Labor Council Endorses Ayers

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council has endorsed Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers and his bid for re-election.

The council said it endorsed Ayers "for his dedication and commitment in the labor and union councils over the years."

Because of incomplete information sent to The Sun, Ayers was not named last week in a list of City Council and School Committee candidates endorsed by the council.

Burma Purchase Ban Law Passed By Council

An ordinance prohibiting the city from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in the Asian country of Myanmar, also known as Burma, has been passed by the City Council.

The council voted 7-1 to support the ordinance Monday night. Councillor Timothy Cahill, who has said the matter is not a local issue, voted in opposition, while Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico was not present for the vote.

There was no discussion before the vote.

Two weeks ago, the law proposed by Councillor Paul Harold received overwhelming support from residents at a City Council public hearing. Mayor James Sheets said this week he will sign the ordinance, which will make it official.

Harold originally introduced the ordinance at the request of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights. He noted this week that Quincy is the first New England Community to pass such a law, and that a similarly ordinance in Palo Alto, Calif. was also passed on Monday.

In addition, the City Council voted 8-1 (with Cahill dissenting) two weeks ago to have the city's legal department draft a home-rule petition that would extend the ban to all subdivisions in the city, particularly investments in its pension fund.

The petition, which if passed by the council would require the support of the state Legislature, was suggested by Councillor Michael Cheney, who said he felt that it would add needed backbone to the city's stand against human rights violations in Burma.

The list of such violations in the Asian nation is considerable.

A 1990 election giving 82 percent of the seats in Parliament to a democratic party was ignored by the military junta. The leader of the pro-democracy party in Burma, Aung San Suu Kyi, who was given the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991, has been placed under "house arrest" by the military for six years.

Local human rights activists have said profits from foreign investments go directly to the Burmese government and lead to forced labor and other human rights abuses. The government also has protected drug dealers who sell 60 percent of the heroin on the world market, and child prostitution in that area flourishes, they say.

Massachusetts has passed the first state law in the country prohibiting the state from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in Burma. Several cities have passed similar laws.

Harold has noted that the United States has placed sanctions on Burma for the same reasons.

Some of the U.S. companies conducting business in Burma are Texaco, Atlantic Richfield, Cluett Peabody, Pan American Enterprises, Servcorp and United Technologies Corp.

Many companies in the United States, however, have pulled out of Burma because of consumer pressure. Among those are Liz Claiborne, Eddie Bauer, Disney, Pepsico, Levi Strauss, Heineken, Amoco, and Macy's.

Apple Computer and Hewlett Packard are among the firms that have pulled out of Burma as a direct result of the Massachusetts selective purchasing law.

Now You See It . . . Now You Don't

DEMONSTRATING THE pressure washing graffiti removal system are (left) Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Mayor James Sheets. To remove the graffiti, an environmentally safe solution of baking soda and water is applied with 160 pounds of pressure. The graffiti removal service is free to all businesses and property owners in Quincy under the city's "zero-graffiti tolerance" ordinance which prohibits graffiti from appearing on all private and public buildings.

RICHARD SIMONI of the Quincy DPW rinses any residue left behind by the pressure washing with water and 60 pounds of pressure. Simoni used approximately 80 gallons of baking soda and water solution to clean the 30-foot by 20-foot brick wall in about one hour.

35% Turnout Forecast

10 Council, School Seat Races On Next Tuesday Ballot

Voters will go to the polls next Tuesday to elect three councillors at-large, three school committee members and four ward councillors.

But with no mayoral race and two ward councillors unopposed, City Clerk Joseph Shea is predicting a light turnout.

The city now has 50,989 registered voters--up 472 since last month's preliminary election--but Shea sees no more than 35 percent of them casting ballots.

"I'll say 35 percent--maybe a little less," he says. "Hopefully, it might be more."

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Shea expected the final results to be tabulated by 10 p.m.

Two years ago, 45.15 percent of the registered voters went to the polls in an election that produced five new city councillors, the largest turnover in that body in 22 years.

But next week's election does not have the same ingredients to attract as big a voter turnout.

Two open seats, one city council at-large and one school committee, have generated interest.

But the fact that Mayor James Sheets has no opposition for the third time as he seeks a fifth term and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 5 Stephen Durkin are both unopposed will keep some voters at home.

Nineteen candidates are running for the 10 contested seats in next Tuesday's election.

Of the 19, nine are making their political debut.

Michael Cheney's decision not to seek re-election opened up one of the three council at-large seats.

Incumbents Timothy P. Cahill, 38, and Paul D. Harold, 49, are seeking re-election. Former Mayor Francis X. McCauley, 67, David McGillicuddy, 57, of Elmwood Ave., retired telephone company executive; and Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 67, of Clay St., retired businesswoman and senior citizen advocate are after the seat Cheney is vacating.

Cahill, who last year was elected Norfolk County treasurer, is seeking his sixth term on the council.

Harold, a former state senator and councillor, returned to the council two years ago after a 16-year absence and will be seeking his second term.

Harold topped the at-large field in 1995 with Cahill second and Cheney third.

McCauley, who served four terms as mayor, came

WQ, QP Added To Program

Community Policing Expansion Approved

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A plan by Police Chief Thomas Frane to expand the city's community policing program into both West Quincy and Quincy Point has been endorsed by the City Council.

The council unanimously backed the plan following a presentation by the chief Monday night. Councillors passed a resolution asking Mayor James Sheets to prepare an appropriation to fund the program expansion for the council's next meeting.

Sheets said Tuesday he will provide funding for the program, but only after he knows exactly how much is needed.

Frane's plan calls for three community officers in West Quincy, three in Quincy Point, and city funding of two existing community policing positions in Germantown that were previously federally-funded.

In addition, the chief wants three sergeants--one in each of the targeted neighborhoods--to supervise the community officers as well as one lieutenant who would oversee the sergeants.

Because it is uncertain how much community policing funding the city will receive from the federal and state governments, Frane was reluctant to speculate on the cost to the city. He did say, however, that since salaries for lieutenants, sergeants and officers are about $50,000, $40,000 and $29,000 respectively, the price tag could be $200,000 or more.

Frane said he would like to appoint current department members to the community policing positions and replace them with new personnel.

Besides the salaries, there would be necessary expenditures for cellular phones, computers, and other equipment for the community policing program, he said.

Frane said West Quincy and Quincy Point were selected for the program after a citywide analysis indicated those were the neighborhoods most in need.

"We found that each was

back to the political scene two years ago to win a school committee seat unopposed.

McGillicuddy is a first-time candidate. Stenberg has run for office in the past.

City Council President Peter Kolson, 51, of Palmer St., head of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority, is seeking his fifth term as Ward 1 councillor. He is opposed by Gretchen Grant, 68, of Bicknell St., who is retired.

Ward 3 incumbent Patrick W. McDermott, 27, of Taylor St., a part-time promotions consultant who is attending law school, is seeking his second term.

Linda L. Tracy, 48, of Beale St., a consultant, is challenging McDermott in her first bid for elective office.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael J. D'Amico, 22, of Willard St., a Boston Globe circulation department employee, is seeking his second term. He upset Thomas Fabrizio two years ago and is the city council's youngest member.

He is opposed by Stephen J. Hawko, 45, of White St., an engineer in the Department of Environmental Protection, who is making his first run for elective office. Hawko stepped down as president of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association so he could challenge D'Amico without a conflict.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce J. Ayers, 35, of Williams St., owner of a handicap service center, is running for a fourth term.

Brian F. McNamee, 41, of Billings Rd., an accountant and management consultant, who is opposing Ayers, probably has conducted the most active campaign among the ward council challengers. This is McNamee's first run for elective office.

Some political observers see the school committee race shaping up as the most interesting because of a spirited campaign for the open seat vacated by McCauley and four first-time candidates in the field.

Two incumbents, Jo-Ann M. Bragg, 42, of East Elm Ave., and Ronald Mariano, 51, of Falls Boulevard, are up for re-election.

Bragg, who has been a leader in youth activities, is a candidate for a second term.

Mariano, who is vice chairman of the school committee and a state representative, is seeking a third term.

Newcomers Kevin F. Coughlin, 42, of Small St., Michael E. McFarland, 43, of Summit Ave., John Rodophele Jr., 28, of Grenwold Rd. and Tracy L. Wilson, 28, of Tirrell St., have their eye on the vacant seat.

Coughlin is a court assistant chief probation officer. McFarland, who owns Barry's Deli in Wollaston, formerly served as executive secretary to Mayor Sheets.

Rodophele is the owner of an Internet consulting company.

Wilson is a labor relations consultant and is also an attorney, recently passing the Massachusetts Bar.

IN NEED OF AN ALIGNMENT?

It may not always be obvious to drivers that their cars are in need of a wheel alignment, which is the position of the wheels relative to the car. When the wheels are properly aligned, they will not resist steering commands, or each other, as the car rolls down the highway. One of the first indications that a driver will have that a wheel alignment may be necessary is that the steering wheel must be turned slightly off-center to get the car to track straight. There also may be too much free play in the steering wheel or other changes in steering response which indicate the need for an alignment, or it may be that the car drifts to one side on a straight, level road when the driver's hands are off the steering wheel. When any of these signs lead to a wheel alignment, the correction can spell improved steering and handling, as well as better gas mileage and more even tire wear.

HINT: Tread wear on only one side of the tire or "sawtooth" tire edges may also indicate the need for a wheel alignment.

For most of your car's maintenance needs, including alignment and complete front end work, rely on our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes or cars. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. JOHN O'ROURKE of 41 Neponset Rd., Merrymount, was honored by the City Council Monday night for saving the brother and sister-in-law of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman from a two-alarm fire in July. With him are his wife Virginia and daughters Christine, 10, and Lauren, 8.

John O'Rourke Praised By Council

Neighbor Who Saved Fire Chief's Relatives Honored

By MICHAEL WHALEN

For his efforts in saving the lives of the brother and sister-in-law of Quincy's fire chief, John O'Rourke of 41 Neponset Rd. in Merrymount has been commended as a "Citizen Hero" by the City Council.

O'Rourke received a special commendation from the council Monday night. He was accompanied by his wife Virginia and daughters Christine, 10, and Lauren, 8.

In addition, Council President Peter Kolson presented all of the family members with pins bearing Quincy's city seal.

On the morning of July 5, a two-alarm fire broke out around 2 a.m. at the single-family home of Daniel and Janet Gorman at 45 Neponset Rd. O'Rourke, the Gormans' neighbor, was alerted to the situation by his wife who was awakened by the sound of the flames.

Although the entire front of the house was engulfed in flames within minutes, O'Rourke tried to enter the Gormans' home. Although initially he was unable, he eventually gained access through the rear of the house and led both Gormans to safety as firefighters arrived on the scene.

Kolson, in presenting the commendation to O'Rourke, said, "The heroics of this individual is justifiably appreciated by all the people of the City of Quincy."

Kolson also noted that O'Rourke's name will be added to the "Special Heroes Plaque" that hangs in the City Council Chambers.

Councillor Paul Harold said while "we sometimes use the word 'hero' loosely," O'Rourke is someone clearly deserving of the title.

"He saved the lives of Dan and Janet Gorman," said Harold.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, noting that no one was injured in the blaze, said, "If it wasn't for Mr. O'Rourke's actions, things would have turned out a lot differently than they did. I'm grateful, and I know my brother is grateful."

Daniel Gorman was unable to attend Monday night's meeting, but his wife and three sons were on hand as a display of the family's gratitude.

O'Rourke, for his part, seemed a little uncomfortable with all the attention.

"I'm kind of embarrassed," he said when asked to speak. "Thank you, everybody. Thank you."

Downtown Gun Range Draws Opposition Fire

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A proposed pistol and rifle range in the heart of downtown Quincy drew strong opposition at Tuesday's license Board meeting.

The board tabled to Nov. 18 the request from Dr. Samuel Mulyanto of Brookline and Atty,. Gary Arber of Newton to put the range in the basement of a building on Maple Street.

The building is located between Mando's Italian Bistro, and the Quincy Post Office and across the street from the Quincy Mutual Insurance Company parking lot. It is near Hairplace One, Quincy Typewriter and TAJ Coins and Stamps.

Arber, an attorney and Mulyanto a mechanical and professional engineer, both appeared at Tuesday's license board meeting and gave an overview of why they wanted a firing range on Maple Street.

Arber said the firing range would be "inside" as opposed to most firing ranges that are "outside." He said they wouldn't be selling firearms, but would rent them to customers. He called the Maple Street location "unique and perfect" and said the firing range would be "totally underground" with soundproof walls.

After a lengthy meeting at city hall, and just when Chairman Joseph Shea was going to ask the board for a vote, board member Fire Chief Thomas Gorman asked "what are we giving a license for?". Shear said he had not yet heard from city solicitor Stephen McGrath and to whether the License Board had the legal authority to vote on the firing range. He then asked Arber, "Do you get the sense that we do not want a firing range at 20 Maple St.?"

Arber then asked the board to table the request until a later date rather than take a vote.

Councillor at large Michael Cheney told the board to "deny the application" and said that it was against the law for a firing range to be 1000 feet from a school. He later presented a written document stating the rules.

Cheney said he was "firmly opposed" to the firing range at this location. He said "public perception" was the most important consideration stating that persons are "afraid of guns" and that school children would be walking back and forth near the firing range every day.

Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said she and other members of the association were"adamantly opposed to the location" and said "dining and shooting is not an advantageous combination."

When Arber told the board he'd never heard of anyone opposing a business because of "public perception", Manning said perception is what people shopping in Quincy see and want the area to look attractive, well organized and safe"

Members of the Quincy Citizen's and Wollaston Park Association spoke in opposition.

Roger Lyons of Squantum said the idea of a firing range at that location would "scare people" and said the idea belongs somewhere in the "boon docks".

Board member and Police Chief Thomas Frane said although he was not against the applicants or the concept,

Pollard Tribute Is Set

Well, it is definitely going to be.

The old Pollard School and the teachers who taught there will have a special remembrance in the new Clifford Marshall School.

School Committee Vice Chairman Ron Mariano, in response to a recent column, has the tribute underway.

MARIANO

The names of the Pollard teachers will be inscribed on a plaque which will be erected in a place of honor in the Marshall School.

The suggestion was originally made here by a former student, Jim Hardie, following the death last May of Ruth Abbiatti, one of those outstanding teachers.

At Mariano's request, School Supt. Gene Creedon is compiling the list of names.

"I think it's a great idea," says Creedon. "A link to the past is what kids need to appreciate their community today. There is nothing more rewarding than preserving the memory of a school and the teachers who were so special in the lives of so many."

CREEDON

The school opened in 1920 and was closed in 1982 as student enrollment declined. Later, a suspicious fire swept through it one night and then it was finished off by a wrecking ball. A condo complex now occupies the site.

The Marshall School is well under construction just a few yards away and is now scheduled for opening next September.

"It's important that we preserve the heritage of the Pollard School," says Mariano, who was a substitute teacher there in 1971.

"The Pollard was a focal point of the neighborhood for a very long time. The teachers were a major part of the community.

"They were involved in community and school activities as if they were parents and residents of the area. They were dedicated and took special interest in the lives of the students not only during school but after school.

"I believe placing their names in honor is a most appropriate and deserving tribute."

Anyone who went to the Pollard will second that.

And they should be grateful to Jim Hardie, who lives on Southern Artery just across the street from the old Pollard site and a few yards from the new Marshall School for coming up with the idea.

And, as we've said before, there was something special about the Pollard and those wonderful teachers.

Their names in a place of honor will be a natural bonding of the old school and the new.

Here's to the Pollard and the Marshall.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS, former Mayor Frank McCauley, Kerry Driscoll, Sheets' secretary, and MWRA Executive Director Douglas McDonald recently took a four-mile walk--under Quincy Bay.

SHEETS

McCAULEY

They sloshed four miles through the five-mile tunnel that will carry sewerage from Nut Island to the new treatment plant at Deer Island. The tunnel is scheduled to be in operation in January.

The four walked four miles to Long Island taking them an hour and a half.

McCauley says it was gratifying for him to have the chance to inspect the tunnel and know that it will soon be in business.

It was his administration that brought the law suit in the early 1980's that forced the clean-up of Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor.

And, McCauley quips: "Now that Jim Sheets and I have successfully walked under the water maybe next summer we might try to walk on it."

THERE STILL SEEMS to be some name confusion in next Tuesday's city election.

The confusion is over the name Tracy. Two candidates--both women--have it, one as a first name and the other as a last name.

WILSON

TRACY

Linda Tracy, 48, of Beale St., a consultant, is a candidate for the Ward 3 city council seat.

Tracy Wilson, 28, of Tirrell St., a labor relations consultant and attorney, is running for the school committee.

Voters have mixed up the two during the campaigning this summer because of their names.

But, at least they're not running for the same office.

THE RECENT COLUMN on pet peeves reminded Herb Fontaine, former WJDA news editor, of one of his.

Fontaine had a 35-year radio career during which program starting time was essential. You go on the air when you are supposed to go on, he says. You can't be late.

FONTAINE

Fontaine is still active in the community as a committee chairman and emcee and that's where his pet peeve is: People who don't arrive on time.

"You know, if you attend a stage play or musical in Boston, they start on time. If you're late, it's your problem," he notes.

He says there are exceptions when there are reasonable excuses for being late.

But when there is no reasonable excuse, he says: "When the time comes to start, whether everyone is present or note, I start!"

SOMETHING I WOULDN'T have known if I didn't have a Jeopardy calendar: the first U.S. president to have a middle name was our John Quincy Adams.

Middle names did not become common in the United States until after the Revolutionary War.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1940's postcard showing the interior of Baker's Clothing Store in Quincy Center. Baker's was a landmark Quincy men's store for almost 40 years. Starting out on School Street in 1926, Al Baker moved to Hancock Street in the 1930s, occupying this store from 1934 until closing in the late 1950s. By that time, there were over a dozen men's stores in the Square. Some store names you may remember are: Beebe's, Dale's, Donahers, Markson Bros., Miltons, Richman's, Sawyers, Whitemans, Howard Clothes, London Clothes and of course Remick's mens department. After Baker's closed, this store was used for a while by Standard TV. It is now home to Everlasting Engraving.

Talks Ongoing On Shipyard Sale

By PAUL HAROLD

Oct. 30 - Nov. 5
34 Years Ago

Although he wouldn't confirm nor deny reports in the Wall Street Journal, Arthur Homer, chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel, said talks were ongoing with General Dynamics concerning the Fore River yard.

Homer noted there was not sufficient merchant ship construction to maintain both the Fore River and Sparrows Point, Maryland shipyards. Currently there was no merchant work in Quincy while the Maryland yard had six contracts.

Fore River had contracts for two attack subs of the Thresher class.

DELLA CHIESA ELECTED TO FOURTH TERM

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa easily won re-election in a contest with City Council President Charles Shea with 18,039 votes to Shea's 10,774. The turnout was 64 percent.

In close votes, two new members were slated to join the council. In Ward 1, Francis McCauley defeated Leo Hannon, while in Ward 3, John Koegler defeated Leo Burke. City Clerk John Gillis said that ballots in those wards and city-wide would be impounded pending recounts.

In the at-large contest, 20-year veteran Carl Anderson was defeated by Ward 5 Councillor George Burke who not only won an at-large seat, but topped the ticket in a six-man field. At-large councillors John Quinn and David "Tuck" McIntosh were re-elected.

BILL FILED FOR GOVERNOR'S MANSION

Rep. Della Chiesa filed legislation that would have the state purchase the Powell estate at 79 Presidents Lane as the official residence of the governor.

The mansion was built in 1835 by Charles Francis Adams, son of John Quincy Adams, who served as ambassador to Great Britain during the Civil War.

The proposed purchase was backed by the Presidents Hill Association.

Opposes Local Trade Sanctions Against Myanmar

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a native from Myanmar (formerly Burma), I am greatly disturbed to learn from [a recent] Boston Globe article about Quincy passing a trade sanction law against a country very close to my heart.

To date, while Myanmar is recovering from years of economic stagnation and unpleasant memories of British colonial rule, unfriendly sanctions from a so called "democratic" country has weakened Burmese confidence for Americans. More seriously, the internal effects of trade sanctions have split urgently needed national support for the Burmese National League for Democracy currently headed by Aung San Suu Kyi.

As a US citizen, I am equally disturbed to see a trend from American city and state governments giving lips service to cries of constitutional rights violation of Asian-American citizens, but yet giving full attention to international human rights lobbyists. As Simon Billenness himself once told me, most community leaders I meet don't even know where Myanmar is on a map! Who gives American politicians the right to interfere with the economic lives of millions of innocent Burmese?

Instead of picking on a small, poor, and internationally neutral country like Myanmar, a "socially responsible" investment firm such as Franklin Research and Development Corp. need to target other populous, affluent, and more politically powerful nations with more severe basic rights violation record. If this means looking into the affairs of corporate America, to promote long term international and local goodwill, it can be done without hurting innocent lives abroad. It is morally wrong, and a business practice unethical, for a rich money making operation like Franklin Research and Development Corp., who is spearheading trade sanctions against Myanmar, to target and use the internal affairs of an underdeveloped country for the principal purpose of gaining publicity and media attention for the firm's own name recognition.

Compassionate support for the Burmese from churches and lay Americans is truly appreciated. However, given the aggressive campaign for access by Christian groups from the States, who are acquiring destitute souls and pristine land in the hinterland of Myanmar and across Asian, before pronouncing a harsh public policy against Asians, America needs to be better informed about the full agenda of local lobbyists headed by religious groups on human rights. Cardinal Desmond Tutu had announced three months ago that trade sanctions against Myanmar is not a constructive strategy. Unfortunately our local media prone to partial reporting never printed this news.

Other than the self-satisfaction of ego stroking, there are more serious civic questions. What are the useful public benefits in passing a municipal law on sanctions against a poor country trying hard to gain recognition and a voice in the world community? Because of the absence of media attention, is there a role for American public participation in the current dispute among high level US and Asian officials regarding a history of CIA involvement in heroin trade to the US from the Golden Triangle? While the Burmese government and the people frantically combat the spread of sufferings and death from substance abuse and AIDS rampant in the area, should there be a priority in the United States for civic and humanitarian policies to stem this international danger?

Councillor Tim Cahill of Quincy is correct. City and state politicians ought to stick to relevant local governance. It is time American leadership models contempt for the exploitation of third world nations as a necessary process just to advance American interests.

A Heartfelt Thanks To Youth Hockey Moms

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

To all who planned, participated in and supported the Friendship Dance organized by the Quincy Youth Hockey Moms, I extend my heartfelt thanks.

It truly was an incredible show of support and caring. I will be eternally grateful for the wonderful friends and family who have given me strength in countless ways during my fight against cancer.

The old adage "laughter is the best medicine" certainly proved to be true that night! It was such fun and certainly boosted my spirits.

In the face of adversity I found that I have indeed been blessed again and over again.

Seafood Surprise

It was a rare occasion one night when no one was expected or would drop in for a bite, when I took a quick ride to the market preparing to cook for two. They were running a special on haddock and scallops, so I bought both.

It didn't take long to prepare this entree which turned out delicious, but I must say, they were leftovers since I still find it difficult to cook for two.

Seafood Surprise

1 pound haddock (or scrod)
1 pound scallops
1 pound fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups homogenized milk or half and half
2 -3 tablespoons floor
grated parmesan cheese
1/4 cup cooking sherry fresh lemon for serving
salt and pepper to taste

Par boil the mushrooms, drain and cut in halves. Set aside. In a frying pan, heat the butter, add the flour and milk or half and half to make a cream sauce. Add the sherry. Stir until sauce is thickened. Add the mushrooms and cook for a couple of minutes. Add the haddock in one piece (it falls apart fast if cut) and the scallops. Cook covered until fish are done. I served it over Rotini, but any favorite pasta such as ziti or linguine will do just fine. Sprinkle parmesan cheese or the juice of lemon over the top.

Lions Club To Host Benefit Concert For Library Nov. 16

The Lions Club of Quincy will launch its "Vision With a Purpose" campaign with an Oldies Concert featuring Herb Reed and The Platters Sunday, Nov 16 from 8 to 11 p.m. at Vincent's Nightclub at Lombardo's in Randolph.

The "Vision With a Purpose" is a special project of the Lions Club designed to fund a room specially equipped for the visually-impaired at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

"The club hopes to raise between $5,000 and $10,000 from this fun concert," said Quincy Lion John Reed, who is spearheading the campaign.

Monies raised will be used to buy special adaptive computers which convert written materials to an audio format and other aids for the library, onto which a major addition soon will be built. The devices will help the visually-impaired enjoy books.

Tickets are $20 per person, $35 per couple and can be bought at the door or by calling 479-1249.

McGillicuddy: Shipyard, Bond Debt Key Issues

David McGillicuddy, candidate for city councillor-at-large, says he sees Quincy's steadily increasing bond debt and the revival of the Fore River shipyard as key issues in this year's city election.

"I believe the bonds are fundamental to Quincy's continued revitalization, providing financing for essential projects such as school repairs and water system improvements," he said. "However, I also realize the need to keep a careful check on the city's rising debt in case our economy should start to slow down or if a recession hits."

Regarding the reopening of the shipyard, McGillicuddy expressed his desire to create jobs by bringing the shipbuilding industry back to the South Shore, echoing the sentiments of Mayor James Sheets, Sen. Edward Kennedy, and former Gov. Michael Dukakis who spoke at a recent politically rally in Quincy.

"The shipyard has played such an integral role in the City of Quincy's history, I feel it is our responsibility to reintroduce this viable business to the area," he said.

In addition to those issues, McGillicuddy said he also is addressing the concerns of local labor unions who are voicing their need for a candidate who is pro-union and will support contracts that are advantageous for both the city and its union members.

"As the former manager of public affairs and community relations at NYNEX/New England Telephone, I understand the importance of union labor," he said. "During my 27-year tenure, I not only interacted with community and political leaders, but also served as liaison between corporate executives and employees, the large majority of which were union members. Through this position, I gained valuable insights into how to develop initiatives that benefit the organization, the community and its workers."

McGillicuddy said he hopes those topics will continue to bring attention to a race "that is far from over" and will cause the voting population of Quincy to broaden their spectrum and investigate other candidates.

"The voters of Quincy need to take a serious look at each of the candidates and question where they stand on the issues," he said. "They need to see real experience and real answers. Quincy needs to elect new leaders who will look to the future. It's time for a new face, with new ideas, that will generate new results."

McGillicuddy is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts with a degree in community planning and management.

City Still Waiting To Hear About Shipyard Funding

The city is still waiting receive confirmation about needed funding for a project that would reopen the Fore River shipyard.

"We're just waiting for word from Washington," Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday. It is still possible the deal could be completed by the end of the month, he added.

Last week, the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) was unable to meet a deadline to complete the necessary paperwork for the shipyard reopening.

Sheets said under an agreement with state officials and Sen. Edward Kennedy, MARAD had planned to finish all paperwork on federal loan guarantees to help reopen the yard by Oct. 20. That deadline had been set by Kennedy's office.

Lawyers for MARAD and shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, the man who is trying to open the yard for the first time since 1986, were unable to complete all of the necessary documents, the mayor said.

Sheets, however, stressed that the issue is very complicated and that he was not concerned about or surprised by the delay.

Only one issue remains: whether a portion of the shipyard that is in Braintree will be used as collateral for the loan guarantees. Sheets said "an agreement in principle" on that issue has been reached.

The loan guarantees would allow Emmanouil and his company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries, to borrow money to rebuild buildings and replace equipment at the yard.

New Hospital Director Begins Work Next Month

Jeffrey Doran, chief executive officer of Hale Hospital in Haverhill, has been selected to become the new director and CEO of Quincy Hospital and will start work in November.

Doran, 41, of North Andover, was one of four finalists for the position. He will succeed Ralph DiPisa, 40, of Medfield, who resigned in August to take a job with Shields Health Care in Brockton, a for-profit company that built a free-standing radiation center in Quincy.

The exact salary figure has not been released, but DiPisa's 1996 compensation totaled $226,000.

The four finalists were interviewed by doctors, hospital union representatives, administrators and the board of managers. The board, after a unanimous vote, decided to offer the position to Doran.

Doran said that although public hospitals are fighting for survival in an extremely competitive environment, it is a challenge they must meet in order to continue to provide top-notch health care to their communities, and because of their status as a key player in the local economy.

"We need to position the hospital in the best way possible to ensure the community retains a most valuable asset," he said.

Doran, who has relatives in Braintree, said he will consider relocating to the Quincy area from a house he bought a year ago in North Andover.

Community Policing Expansion Approved

equally deserving of our attention," he said.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, whose ward includes Quincy Point, urged support for the program expansion.

"I think it's extremely important that we now set the standard," he said. "This program the chief has put together will have a significant impact in those areas."

Raymondi added that even with the additional positions, the Quincy Police Department will still have less personnel than it did in the late 1970s before Proposition 2 1/2 forced budget cuts and layoffs.

Also speaking in favor were Councillors Michael Cheney and Timothy Cahill.

"You have our complete support," said Cheney.

"I'm looking forward to it," said Cahill.

Frane also noted that initially, some department members seemed a bit skeptical about the program. But he said that like the city's domestic violence program--which now serves as a national model--community policing has steadily gained support.

Community policing is a concept that harkens back to the "cop on the beat" of past years who intensely concentrated on an assigned area and got to know personally area residents and business owners in order to be able to help them with their problems.

The City Council's support of the program comes three months after the council voted to create a community policing commission designed to assist police in identifying trouble spots before they become sources of serious crime.

Raymondi initially proposed the commission last spring and later amended his plan following criticism from police department members who said the original version gave the commission too much authority over department policy.

Frane and Mayor James Sheets have yet to appoint the 20-member commission, which will include clergy, school personnel, social workers, Quincy District Court personnel and others. The group is expected to begin meeting early next year.

In a related matter Monday night, Frane told councillors that the police department is beginning to crack down on a number of problems in the Grafton Street area of Quincy Point, including vandalism, graffiti, and public drinking.

The chief said officers have been patrolling the area on a regular basis and things have begun to improve.

"I think we have a pretty good handle on it now," said Frane, who added that implementing the community policing program in the neighborhood also will help with the situation.

READING THOSE RED EYES

When your eyes are bloodshot, your first impulse may be to grab for some drops and get the red out. While proper use of over-the-counter eye drops is usually safe and effective, routine usage may be dangerous. Most drops "whiten" the eyeball by causing the blood vessels to constrict. If the drops are used frequently and in the maximum recommended dosages, the eyes often respond with a rebound effect. When this is the case, instead of getting the red out, the drops can actually make the redness worse. Perhaps even more important than the appearance of the eyes, though, is the fact that overuse of eye drops can conceal the very symptom that could alert your physician to an underlying problem such as allergies, infections, or diabetes.

P.S. Many eye drops are extremely harmful if swallowed even in small amounts by young children. Store them in a secure, out-of-reach place.

Taking care of your eyes seems extra to many folks, whereas problems with our eyes and our vision need the same attention that we give to our more vigorous physical symptoms. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy.

Council Passes $7.9M Water System Bond

The City Council has passed a bond issue totaling $7,951,862 for improvements to Quincy's water system.

The council gave the bond its unanimous support Monday night following a presentation by Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton. The bond was sent to the council by Mayor James Sheets.

Colton said the improvements, which will be made over a five-year period beginning next spring, include five phases: Penn's Hill, Houghs Neck, Squantum, Hospital Hill and the Montclair area/Intervale and Taber streets.

The work mainly consists of upgrading water mains, although some additional improvements also will be made. The five-year project is the first phase of the city's plan to spend $63.5 million over 30 years to fix and replace Quincy's water pipes. The entire city system will eventually be upgraded, although the order of neighbors beyond the first phase has yet to be determined.

The plan calls for aging lead and cast-iron pipes to be cleaned and relined or replaced with cement-coated iron pipes. Colton said the work should be started as soon as possible because of the serious nature of the problem.

Colton said only a few major water-system improvements have been made since the 1970s. Although water mains are expected to last 50 years, the average age of Quincy's lines is 68 years, he said.

The system averages 36 major pipe breaks a year, and last year the DPW got 231 complaints about the quality of water or low water pressure, he added.

Colton said low water pressure and weakened lines have become a potential problem for firefighting in some areas, especially Penn's Hill and Houghs Neck.

Colton said more than one-third of Quincy's lines were installed in the 1920s or earlier. Those on Billings Road in North Quincy were laid from 1893 to 1910. Lines along the Southern Artery date from 1894 to 1957.

The city's oldest lines still in use, along a half-mile section of Hancock Street in Quincy Center between Adams and Elm streets, were laid in 1883.

By comparison, the city's sewer system is in good shape due to millions of dollars of improvements in the 1980s, according to Colton.

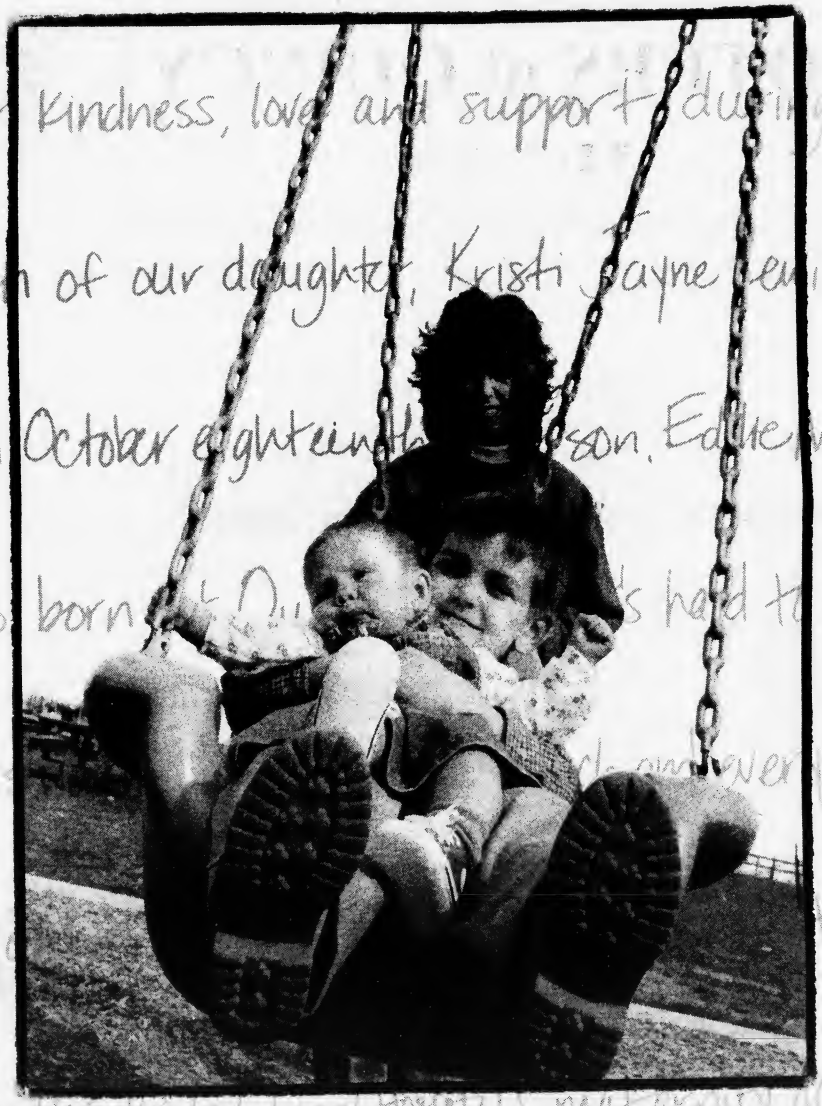
The 30-year water system improvement plan is based on a study Weston and Sampson Engineers of Peabody conducted in the city.

The first five-year phase will cost $9.6 million. The $7.95 million bond issue that will pay for most of the project, according to Colton, will be paid for by increases in the city's water rate.

Colton said the first bond issue will cover $6.95 million in city spending and a $1 million, no-interest Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) loan.

In order to help reduce that amount, the city will also use a $330,954 MWRA grant, $450,000 in federal Community Development Block Grant funds, and $900,000 from a proposed increased in building permit fees.

Building fees are now set at 1 percent of the construction value of a development. Sheets and the City Council plan to file a home-rule petition with the state Legislature to raise the fee to 1.5 percent.



Colton said in the event the Legislature does not pass the petition, the water system improvement project will be scaled down to compensate for the $900,000 loss.

Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi both spoke in favor.

"I'm pleased the bond is before us," said Cheney.

"This is clearly a quality of life issue," said Raymondi.

Councillor Timothy Cahill also voiced support, although he expressed reluctance to raise the water rates. Colton, however, noted that the city has held the line on the rates for three years.

KEEP ULCERS FROM COMING BACK

One of the troubling things about ulcers of the foot and lower leg is that, even after they have been treated successfully, they may come back. The recurrence may be at the site of the original ulcer or in a new location. For this reason, thorough feet inspections should be part of the daily routine for anyone who has had ulcers before or who has one of the medical conditions often associated with ulcers. These conditions include diabetes, high blood pressure, blood clots, phlebitis, swelling, poor arterial circulation, and injury. People prone to ulcers may be advised to cleanse their feet daily with alcohol sponges, as well as apply powder or a skin lubricant before putting on stockings and shoes.

P.S. Pressure from weight bearing or from shoes and tight legwear are common causes of ulcers.

Everyone can experience a foot problem at one time or another. Ulcers that recur can indicate a potentially serious problem. Whether there is a simple solution to your particular problem such as medication, the services of a podiatrist is essential. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

Officials Applaud City's New CDC Designation

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City and state officials are calling the designation of Quincy Center as a Concentrated Development Center (CDC) a major step forward for the downtown.

Mayor James Sheets worked with the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) to get the designation, which will make it easier for the city to obtain federal and state funding for various infrastructure projects.

Sheets and MAPC President Grace Sheppard jointly signed a memorandum-of-understanding identifying current and proposed infrastructure improvements within Quincy Center and their related state funding sources last Friday during a brief City Hall ceremony.

The mayor told those in attendance the improvements made possible by the CDC designation will not only "leave a real psychological impact" on the well-being of the city but also should attract commercial interests to Quincy Center.

"The downtown of every city is really the heart and soul of every city," said Sheets. "This designation allows us to tap additional resources, including federal and state funds."

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said Quincy 2000's Quincy Center Action Plan, which has been supported by City and the City Council, is the foundation for the CDC. Noting that both have the same boundaries in mind, he added, "The CDC would not have been possible without the Action Plan."

"The designation really means another tool for everyone interested in making Quincy a better place," said Mannarino. "We feel Quincy needs an additional tool. The CDC designation puts us on a priority list to get infrastructure improvements.

"We are now within a select group within the Commonwealth to receive additional funding."

Mannarino also praised Quincy 2000 Downtown Development Coordinator Bruce Arons, Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott, and Liz Harrington of the Quincy Planning Department for their role in helping the city obtain the CDC designation.

Sheppard praised Quincy as "a shining example of a city that knows where it's going and what it wants to do." She said the CDC concept "promotes compact development patterns and discourages scrawl," and concentrates on areas such as housing, jobs, and areas that are transit accessible and pedestrian-friendly.

Following the ceremony, state Sen. Michael Morrissey said he is pleased with the CDC designation and hopes it will lead to projects will improve parking and accessibility in the downtown, as well as developments such as office buildings.

City Councillor Timothy Cahill also voiced optimism.

"It seems to me like it's progress," he said. "I think it's a good sign for Quincy 2000 that they're focusing on the downtown. I'm encouraged."

Quincy is the 15 Massachusetts community to receive the CDC designation and the first on the South Shore. Among the others are Salem, Gloucester, Peabody, Lynn and Framingham.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request to transfer a common victualer-all-alcoholic beverage license from Rikay, Inc., doing business as Bobby D's, 226 Water St. to Page-DePaulo, Inc., to be known as Southside Tavern.

•Placed on file a hearing regarding conditions at Point Plaza, Washington Street where tenants are attempting to clean the area by installing more trash barrels.

•Placed on file a request from Squantum Auto Repair, 771 East Squantum St. for a Motor II License. Hasson Shuman was told by Chairman Joseph Shea he would have to wait until after the first of the year to take a vote because of untidy conditions at the site. Shea received a letter from Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers telling the board before he would support a license, the area has to be cleaned up.

•Continued until Nov. 18 a hearing regarding untidy conditions at Triangle Transmission, 62 Liberty St. Owner Paul McNealy failed to appear at the meeting where an abutter presented pictures to the board. Shea assured Rosemary Martin of Penn Street that the pictures will be shown at the next meeting.

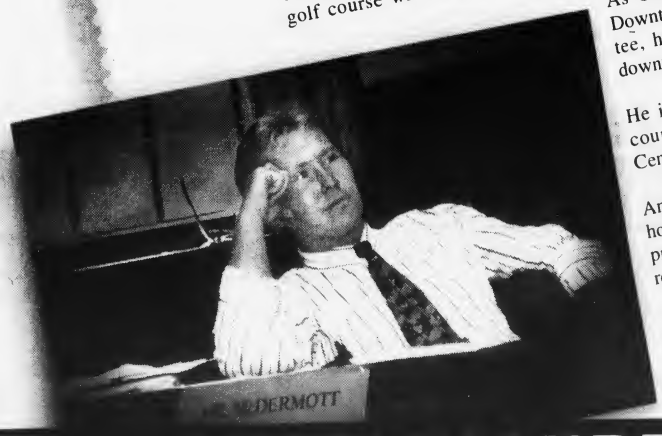
Why Pat McDermott has missed 317 lunches and 294 dinner dates over the past two years.

Councillor McDermott helped secure $1 million to get Phase II of the North Quincy Sewer/Water Intercept Project underway.

Pat has served as chairman of the Park and Recreation Committee for the past two years—two new soccer fields, a recreational facility and a golf course will be constructed in West Quincy. Bishop Field in Montclair has been renovated, including a brand new tot lot, new equipment at Forbes Hill, new fencing at the Whitwell Street Park, and a new park on Marsh Street.



Pat helped ensure that the Montclair School property was ready for the 1997 school year with new windows, paving and fencing.

As Chairman of the city council's Downtown and Economic Committee, he is breathing life back into downtown Quincy.

He is the leading advocate on the council for the $9 million Quincy Center Concourse project.

And Pat is working in the neighborhoods to assure that any proposed project will not adversely affect residents' quality of life.

On November 4th, Vote to re-elect Patrick McDermott. And keep him hungry for the next two years.

McNamee: Successful Business Development Requires Planning

Brian McNamee, candidate for Ward 6 city councillor, has identified funding and good intentions as small parts of successful business development. "For economic development to occur there must be planning as documented through a business plan, a well constituted board of advisors, and mentoring from those who have had success in business. Money and one's wishes for success are not enough to be successful in business," he said at a recent Ward 6 debate at the Nickerson Post.

McNamee went on to advocate the importance of attracting commercial tenants for the available commercial space that is so highly touted throughout Quincy.

"Once you have businesses employing people in our business districts then you will have customers for other businesses such as restaurants and bookstores. We need a plan to attract commercial tenants not only develop commercial space," he said.

McNamee's comments regarding the use of the city's discretionary "free cash" to address budget shortfalls were met with some smiles when he described "free cash" as a curious oxymoron.

"Since when is cash for free?" he said.

GREAT THINGS HAPPEN

When People Work Together

Dear Residents of Quincy;

It is an honor to serve as your Mayor. By working together over the past several years, we have been able to significantly improve the quality of life in the city of Quincy. Through cooperation and diligence we have accomplished many great things:

For our Seniors....

-The BEST transportation program in the State
-The conversion of Naval housing for Quincy's moderate income seniors
-Plans for a senior center and assisted living complex

For our Families....

-New additions to the Bernazanni, Parker, and Beechwood Knoll Elementary Schools
-Construction of the Clifford H. Marshall school to open next fall in Quincy Point
-Refurbished parks and playgrounds throughout the city
-Construction of a public golf course with adjoining athletic fields and walking trails in West Quincy

For our Community....

-More police on the street. Crime is down.
-State-of-the-art addition and renovations to the Thomas Crane Public Library
-Revitalization of business districts in Quincy Center, Wollaston, and North Quincy and with the opening of the Quincy Shipyard, Quincy Point is next!
-The creation of thousands of new jobs

I believe that there is still work to be done and I would appreciate the opportunity to serve you for another two years. I respectfully request your support on November 4th. Working together, we can continue to accomplish great things for our city.

Sincerely,

James A Sheets

Coughlin Opposes Application For Shaw's Beer, Wine License

School Committee candidate Kevin Coughlin has voiced opposition to the recent beer and wine license application of the Shaw's Supermarket in North Quincy.

Last year, Coughlin led residents in opposition to a beer and wine license granted to the nearby Stop & Shop store. In appealing that license, he collected over 1,200 signatures and secured the support of elected officials during a battle that included hearings at the local level, his retaining legal counsel, and filing an appeal with the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Coughlin said there were many issues presented upon the appeal, including the issue of "saturation;" that is, more than enough beer and wine stores to meet "the public need and the common good."

"As I stated last year, this is not an issue of prohibition," he said. "It is simply a question of further desensitizing our kids to the use or abuse of alcohol. The message we're giving them is that beer and wine should be just as common and accessible to them as cereal and milk.

"We have a situation in this country where 4 million kids are already addicted to alcohol and the Budweiser frogs are more recognizable to fourth and fifth graders than Tony the Tiger. Once again we are faced, it seems, with a business whose bottom line interest in profit outweighs the community's concern for its children."

Coughlin added, "Although equitable treatment might suggest granting the license because Stop & Shop prevailed, I suggest by doing so we would be compounding last year's mistake. The License Board has voiced its concern over exposing our children to Keno. Is the number one drug of choice an issue of any less importance? We encourage alcohol-free events on the one hand, yet we seem to endorse its proliferation.

"I am consistent in my concern for our children and hope and trust that the License Board will revisit and carefully consider the concerns and the reasoning for the opposition expressed by the community last year."

100 Volunteers Still Needed To Help Get Out Kids' Vote

About 100 volunteers or more are still needed to help get out the Kids Vote in Quincy in the city election Tuesday, Nov. 4.

For the third year, private and parochial school students kindergarten through high school will cast ballots in the Kids Voting program.

Last year, more than 5,000 Quincy students made their choices known in the 1996 Presidential election.

Kids Voting is a non-profit, grassroots, educational program that gives young people actual experience in the election process by casting ballots alongside their parents in a real election.

Volunteers are needed to staff the 30 polling places in various shifts between 11:45 a.m. and 8 p.m. Shifts include: 11:45 a.m. to 2 p.m., 1:45 to 4 p.m., 3:45 to 6 p.m. and 5:45 to 8 p.m.

Each precinct in the city has an area set aside for students to mark their Kids Voting ballot. Since the regular election workers assist the adults who are voting, volunteers are needed to help students cast their ballots while not interfering with the adults.

Students and volunteers will follow the same check-in, vote, and check-out procedure as that of adult voters.

Students will indicate their choices for mayor, City Council and School Committee using ballots especially prepared for Kid Voters. Their ballots will be tallied separately and the results of the Kids Voting election will be announced following the adult results.

At least three volunteers are needed at each of the 30 polling precincts which will be open to Kid Voters from noon to 8 p.m. Volunteers will serve on two-hour shifts throughout the day. Kids Voting Massachusetts/Quincy will furnish the instructions and all necessary materials.

Businesses and organizations are invited to "adopt" a precinct with a commitment to see that the precinct is staffed by at least three volunteers per shift throughout the day.

Those wishing to volunteer to help Kids Voting on Election Day are asked to complete and return the form on this page or call Kids Voting Quincy Project Coordinator Harold Crowley at 471-6881.

Eastern Enterprises
Powered by Natural Gas

Energy. Clean and Simple.

We're Weston-based Eastern Enterprises, and while you may not know us, we've been bringing you clean and safe energy products for many years through our subsidiary, Boston Gas Company.

Now, in addition to seeing our name on Boston Gas trucks and materials, you'll find us in more places: helping lead Massachusetts to a deregulated energy market through both our efforts at Boston Gas and AllEnergy Marketing Company, our Waltham-based joint venture with New England Electric System. We also own and operate Midland Enterprises, an inland barge company based in Cincinnati.

We're proud to add our name to our subsidiaries' new logos. Altogether, Eastern Enterprises companies serve one million customers in over 40 states. And we intend to keep those numbers happily growing in the years ahead, with innovative products and services, safe and reliable energy and dependable transportation.

As you can see, Eastern Enterprises is a name you'll be seeing a lot more often, when it comes to energy.

POLITICAL ADVERTISMENT

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT Peter Kolson (left) unveiled new "Quincy Welcomes You: Please Drive Friendly" signs at a recent council meeting. Kolson said he hopes the signs, which will be placed at strategic points throughout the city, will encourage motorists to drive in a thoughtful and courteous manner. At right is Councillor Timothy Cahill.

McCauley Conducted Door-To-Door Campaign

Former Mayor Francis McCauley, candidate for city councillor-at-large, says he has visited almost 9,000 households delivering his campaign brochures during this election season.

McCauley also estimates he has walked about 100 miles.

"I'm killing two birds with one stone," he said. "Walking for health and advancing my candidacy for councillor-at-large at the same time!"

McCauley said he has not posted political lawn signs this election year.

"Although I received permission from over 80 residents to post signs, I decided that the time, energy, and money spent on maintaining these signs could be better utilized on other forms of political advertising," he said.

"Vandalism, Halloween and the weather usually take a heavy toll on yard signs, leaving the landscape somewhat the worse for wear."

Newton Endorses Ayers

Former Ward 6 city councillor candidate, Joseph Newton has announced he will endorse Bruce Ayers for re-election.

Newton lost the second nomination by 11 votes to Brian McNamee in the September primary.

Newton, who has followed the race closely and has attended both debates, believes Ayers "has a much better understanding of the issues that effect Ward 6, especially in the Squantum and Norfolk Downs area."

He added that a large part of his decision came after the second debate. Newton said Ayers seemed more issue-solving oriented, while one of McNamee's solutions for an issue was to march constituents into the mayor's office and demand results.

"I can't think of a more ineffective way of ward representation,'" said Newton. "I don't think there is any room for that style of politics in Quincy. A city councillor has to work within City Hall, not clash against it."

Blood Drive In Memory Of Sheriff Marshall Saturday

The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church will sponsor a Community Blood Drive in memory of the late Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's School Hall, 22 Pray St., Quincy Point.

Those who donate blood must be in good health, at least 18 years old (17 with a signed American Red Cross parent/guardian form) and weigh at least 110 pounds.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call Heather McCrann at the Red Cross, 1-800-258-0025, ext. 2094 or Holy Name Society President Edward Barkhouse at 472-1233.

Christmas Poster Contest Deadline Nov. 17

Nov. 17 is the deadline for completion and collection of posters for the annual Poster Contest sponsored by the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee in conjunction with other festival programs in Quincy.

The contest is held in cooperation with the city's public, private and parochial schools. It is open to students in Grades 1-5.

Poster sizes range from 14 by 22 inches (maximum) to 8 1/2 by 11 inches (minimum). The student's name, phone number, grade, school and teacher name must be on each poster, either on an I.D. card attached to a front corner or clearly printed on back of the poster.

Posters must be handed in to teachers by Nov. 17 and will be collected by the committee the next day.

Winners will be notified the following week. They will be introduced and given their awards during the Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony in front of City Hall Nov. 28. First, second and third prizes are savings bonds totaling $100, $75 and $50 respectively.

Two sets of winners will be chosen: one representing Grades 1-3 and the other, Grades 4-5. There will also be a category of honorable mentions which brings recognition only.

Winning posters will be displayed throughout Quincy Center during the holiday season. Posters become the property of the committee. No posters will be returned to the schools until January.

Christmas Fair Nov. 15 At Town Brook House

The Town Brook House Tenants Association will hold a Christmas Fair Saturday, Nov. 15 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Common Room of the Town Brook House, 45 Brackett St., Quincy.

Christmas Fair At Lutheran Church Nov. 8

A Christmas Fair will be held at Lutheran Church of Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Sts., Saturday, Nov. 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Featured will be crafts including wreaths, sewing, quilting, flags, gift baskets, holiday deco, painted items and ornaments.

Also a large food table with baked goods and canned items.

10,000 Students Eligible To Cast Ballots In Kids Voting Program

Ten thousand public, parochial and private school students are registered to cast ballots in the third Kids Voting Program election next Tuesday.

That number includes about 9,000 public school students and 1,000 parochial and private school students, according to Kids Voting Quincy Executive Director Harold Crowley.

Crowley said interest in the program among students seems to be leveling off.

"I think it's much more difficult to generate interest in an election where there's no mayoral contest," he said. "But there are races this year the kids are interested in, particularly the School Committee race. And we're already looking forward to next year and the state election."

In the city election two years ago--the first under the program--the kids voted for all the winners.

There were 9,914 youngsters from kindergarten through high school registered that year and 4,737 went to the polls.

This represented a 47.78 turnout, topping the 45.15 percent for the adult voters that year.

In the Presidential election last year, the kids turnout was 51 percent with the youngsters agreeing on the same winners as their parents and other adults. The adult turnout was 72.21 percent.

Crowley said he is hoping for a 10 percent increase in kid voters this year and also for a higher percentage of kid voters than adult voters.

Crowley noted this is also the first year that four students have been added to the Steering Committee that works on the Kids Voting event. The four are Lance Morganelli and Courtney Ring, both of Quincy High School and Kevin Ann and Kelley McVeigh, both of North Quincy High.

He added that he hopes in the future to increase the number of kid voters on the committee, which is chaired by School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

Volunteers Are Still Needed To Help Get Out The Kids Vote.

'Senior Beat' Wins Fifth Community Television Award

"Senior Beat," the Quincy Cable Television program hosted by John Noonan, has won top honors for volunteering programming by a senior citizen in statewide competition for the fifth year.

The 1997 award was made at the recent 12th annual Massachusetts Community Television Awards ceremony at the Museum of Our National Heritage Center James A. Farr Conference Center in Lexington.

The award was presented by Commissioner John Patrone of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities and Division of Cable Television for "best programming for and by a senior community volunteer."

In addition, Noonan received a special award from Media One Area Production and Programming Director Bill McColgan in recognition of the "Senior Beat" program which has been shown locally on QCTV Channel 3.

"Senior Beat" is a magazine-type television feature program produced on location throughout Quincy with focus on senior citizen personality profiles and special happenings of interest to Quincy's large and fast-growing senior population.

Noonan has hosted and co-produced the program since its first telecast in 1992. Darlene Mendoza has served as program consultant.

"Senior Beat" has won first place honors in state competition four times and once in national competition. It won top honors at the Hometown USA Video Festival sponsored by the National Federation of Local Programmers.

Noonan also has received numerous other cable television awards, including: Producer of the Year, presented by the QCTV Council; the George Riley Memorial Plaque for community television, and for hosting and co-producing (with Program Director Bob Gohl) "Cable Talk," a public affairs program on Channel 3.

Q-VOTE ENDORSEMENTS

Quincy Voice of Teachers in Education, Q-VOTE, is a political action committee founded 20 years ago and now has well over 200 members. The mission of the organization is to survey candidates for School Committee and Mayor in Quincy and identify those who best represent our continuing interest in providing quality education to the young people of Quincy.

The Q-VOTE interviewing sub-committee recently interviewed this year's School Committee candidates and carefully considered their qualifications and experience. Following lengthy deliberations the Q-VOTE team unanimously voted the following:

IN THE 1997 SCHOOL COMMITTEE ELECTION Q-VOTE ENDORSES

JOANN BRAGG -- Her genuine interest in what's best for Quincy's kids, and her tireless work on budgetary matters has made her a great asset to the School Committee.

RONALD MARIANO -- A long-term veteran of the School Committee, Ron's commitment to education has served Quincy well, both here and in the State Legislature.

Q-VOTE strongly urges you to give two of your three votes to these candidates who have consistently supported efforts to renovate schools, open new buildings, reduce and maintain class size, and improve working conditions for teachers.

IN THE 1997 SCHOOL COMMITTEE ELECTION Q-VOTE RECOMMENDS

KEVIN COUGHLIN OR MICHAEL McFARLAND

Q-VOTE strongly encourages you to give your third vote to one of these two candidates. Our committee found these two political newcomers to be eminently qualified and deeply committed to the improvement of Public Education in Quincy.

Stenberg Pledges Safety For Senior Citizens

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, candidate for city councillor at-large, says the safety of senior citizens is among her top priorities if elected.

"I promise a safer place to live for senior citizens on Clay St. where hundreds of seniors live at Quincy housing (Tobin Towers) and Wollaston Manor. All we get is promises, no action.

"I am a senior.. I live here. I know speeding and parking are the two main issues on Clay St. If elected councillor at-large I will fill the special needs for safety for senior citizens but also the safety zones and needs of the handicap and schools to protect our children.

"I will encourage more law enforcement on safety," said Stenberg, a member of the Silver Hair Legislature and former chairperson of the Council on Aging and business woman.

Sgt. Troy Taylor Recruiter At Army Recruiting Station

Staff Sgt. Troy L. Taylor has reported for duty as an Army recruiter at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy.

Taylor is a 1989 graduate of Lynn Vocational-Technical High School and attended North Central Institute in Jackson, Tenn. He is married to the former Amy Morton of Lynn and has two children.

Prior to his assignment with the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy, Taylor was assigned to the Military Police Command in Panama as a police investigator. He has served seven years in the Army.

Throughout his military career, Taylor has earned the Army Achievement Medal, the Army Commendation Ribbon, the National Defense Service Medal, the Good Conduct Medal, and the Joint Achievement Medal.

Here's How To Reduce Risk Of Flood Damage

(NU) - As region after region suffer from the effects of recent floods, many consumers are becoming increasingly concerned about how they can protect themselves from this potentially harmful situation.

If you doubt the threat from flooding, consider that 90 percent of all natural disasters in the United States are flood-related. And living outside a high-risk flood area is no guarantee you won't be flooded. Many communities in the United States do experience flooding at some point after spring rains, heavy thunderstorms, winter snow thaws or hurricanes.

There is something you can do. Investing in preventive measures can reduce the damage brought on by this unavoidable disaster. Making a small investment now can significantly reduce the high costs associated with recovering from a flood.

While no action can totally eliminate the flood risk you may face, a few simple steps may provide the added protection you need to become a disaster survivor, not a disaster victim.

- Find out whether you live in a flood-prone area from your local government, insurance company or agent.
- If you are building a new home, follow your community's requirements so you build to reduce potential flood damage to your home.
- Construct barriers such as berms and floodwalls to stop floodwater from entering the building.
- Seal walls in basements with waterproofing compounds to avoid seepage through cracks in the walls.
- Install check valves in building sewer traps to prevent flood waters from backing up in sewer drains. As a last resort, use large corks or stoppers to plug showers, tubs or basins.
- If you live in a frequently flooded area, stockpile emergency building materials, including: plywood, plastic sheeting, lumber, nails, hammer, saw, pry bar, shovels and sandbags.
- For maximum protection against devastating financial loss from flooding, ask your insurance company or agent about flood insurance because homeowner policies do not cover flood damage.

For information about how to purchase flood insurance, call 1-800-427-9662.

Village At Crown Colony Public Tour Sunday

A public tour at The Village at Crown Colony, a new residential community located at Quincy Village Drive at the end of the Crown Colony office park, will be held Sunday from noon to 3 p.m.

Attendees will be able to tour the newly-completed, furnished model homes. City officials will tour the site on the previous day.

The village is being built by Thorndike Development, which has won several awards for its quality living environments.

Safely Driving A Rental Truck Is No Accident

(NAPS)—Understanding the differences between handling a car and handling a truck can be the key to a safe and hassle-free self-move. Hertz Penske Truck Rental, one of the nation's leading truck rental companies, offers the following guidelines for driving safely when behind the wheel of a rental truck:

• Driving a truck will feel a bit different from driving a car. Before you go out on the open road, familiarize yourself with the truck by getting to know where all the switches and gauges are located. Take it easy at first as you become accustomed to operating the vehicle.

• Trucks are much taller and wider than cars and need much greater overhead and side clearance. If the height and width of the vehicle is not indicated on the truck, be sure to get this information from your rental agent. Make a note of your vehicle's dimensions and be alert for low bridges, tree limbs, and canopies at service stations, fast food restaurants, banks, motels, etc.

Heeding a few hints from experts can help you stay on the road to safety when you drive a rental truck.

• Use your turn signals and avoid making sudden stops or lane changes. Slow down by downshifting into lower gears, and be sure to downshift when going down hills as well. Practicing these basic driving habits gives everyone else on the road sufficient warning of your intentions and helps to prevent accidents caused when sudden or unexpected moves take other drivers by surprise.

• Always use the vehicle mirrors. The additional width and length of a truck requires more turning area and more room for changing lanes. Checking the mirrors before making any moves will help you stay clear of other vehicles and reduce the risk of a collision.

• Never tailgate. Trucks weigh three to ten times more than cars and must have more time and room to stop when traveling at any speed. Maintain at least one car length in between your truck and the vehicle in front of you. This will allow additional time to brake in case you need to stop suddenly. Forty-five mph is the recommended maximum speed for a loaded truck.

• Do not attempt to pass another vehicle moving faster than 40 mph. Never pass on hills or curves.

• Set the hand brake every time you park. Turn the wheels away from the curb when parking with the truck faced uphill and toward the curb when parking faced downhill.

Do-it-yourself movers can pick up a free moving guide at any local Hertz Penske Truck Rental agent, or write to Hertz Penske Truck Rental, Route 10 Green Hills, P.O. Box 391, Reading, PA 19603. They can also request a moving guide and locate the nearest Hertz Penske rental facility by calling 1-800-222-0277.

A Maintenance Check List For Fall

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS)—It's no secret that a regular maintenance routine keeps a house in good shape and can even prevent the need for expensive repair work. Especially as winter approaches, there are a number of projects that should not be neglected. To get your home ready for the cooler weather, follow this maintenance checklist from Katie and Gene Hamilton, home improvement experts and creators of HouseNet (www.housenet.com), a leading online resource for home enthusiasts:

✓Install weather-stripping and caulk around doors and windows and replace all screens with storm windows.

✓Clean out the garage or shed and remove anything that might freeze, such as paint, caulks and adhesives.

✓Take out any window air conditioners and cover the central air conditioner.

✓Maintain and reset the programmable thermostat. Change the batteries and reset the unit for your winter heating schedule.

✓Have a professional clean your chimney. Clean the ash dump and make sure the damper closes tightly.

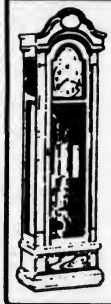
✓ Paint high traffic areas like hallways or bathrooms. Begin by washing the scuff marks with a detergent solution so the surface is clean. Choose a paint designed for washability for previously painted walls in high traffic areas. An eggshell finish withstands repeated washings without fading and is ideal for walls and trim.

✓Gather twigs and branches and cut for kindling. Use a pruning saw for thick branches and break thin pieces by hand. Stack them in a sheltered area so they'll be dry and accessible.

✓Protect water pipes inside the house from freezing by insulating any that are exposed or susceptible to north winds. Use either insulating aluminum backed foam or fiberglass pipe glass wrap, or flexible, closed-cell polyethylene foam insulation that is pre-slit to snap around the pipe.

✓Avoid having frozen exterior pipes by draining the water out of the exterior spigot. A newer house may have a freeze-proof spigot but most older homes have a shut-off valve located inside the house. To winterize the spigot, turn off water at the inside valve and then open the outside spigot to allow water to drain out of the pipe.

✓Bring in a supply of sand, ashes or ground salt for icy sidewalks.



Following these simple tips can make a big difference around your house this winter. For more useful advice from the Hamiltons, visit HouseNet—on the Internet at http://www.housenet.com or on America Online at keyword: HouseNet.

Fall HOME IMPROVEMENT

Home Improvement New Year's Resolutions

[The following is from the Residential Sales Council in Chicago, Ill.]

What are you resolving to do during the New Year? Shed those unwanted 10 pounds gained during the holidays? Contact old friends from years past? Become more organized? Improve your home?

What? Improve your home? Immediately, thoughts center on saw horses, contractors, surmounting bills and, of course, a shortage of petty cash.

Such an association is not surprising considering that the Census Bureau's American Housing Survey, a questionnaire circulated every two years, determined approximately $133 billion was spent on remodeling (including additions and alterations as well as replacements and maintenance) during 1994-1995. This figure can frighten many homeowners, especially since most popular home improvements (e.g., remodeling the kitchen, adding a bathroom, etc.) can average $10,000-$20,000. As a result, homeowners often tend to overlook small efforts, many of which can be completed without hiring outside contractors.

According to Nancy Edmond, CRS, making modest--but effective--improvements can benefit homeowners while they occupy the residence and later when they decide to sell. These projects may increase the value of the home or shorten the time it stays on the market.

"Most sellers wait too long to analyze improvements and are shocked by the costs," said Edmond, a member of the firm J.M. Barrett Company, Inc., Concord, and president of the Massachusetts chapter of the state's leading agents, those who have earned the CRS recognition through training and demonstration of professional experience. "Some people end up spending a great deal more money than they expected to, and even worse, still others decide not to bother at all. Either way, they lose money, because they sell the home for less or it does not sell as quickly as homes in move-in condition."

Professional agents with the CRS credential advise homeowners to include these activities among their list of resolutions for the New Year:

•Hire A Cleaning Crew: Before prioritizing your home's 'to do' list, enlist a professional cleaning crew for a once-over. Once clean, certain items like the family room carpet do not have to be replaced. The service might also point out items not noticed by homeowners.

•Consider New Wall and Floor Coverings: Homes take on a whole new look if peeled paint, wallpaper and stained or warped floor coverings are replaced. Choose neutral or subtle colors; colors can be added with fabric, flowers, paintings, picture frames and other accessories.

•Resurface Kitchen Cabinets: If the kitchen and bathroom cabinets are in good condition, it is considerably less expensive to resurface than to replace them outright. Another option is to simply paint them (use a primer first) or replace the cabinets' hardware.

•Replace Fixtures: Cracked stairwell railings, dripping faucets, failing locks and other miscellaneous items are easily replaced and can keep visitors--and potential buyers--from wondering if the items not visible are being neglected, too.

•Landscape: Before beginning your spring landscaping, make sure your yard complements the neighbors' grounds. Trees should not overshadow the home. If you have a small yard, consider planting potted flowers near the front door or hanging flower boxes from the windows.

•Overhaul Exteriors: Repair cracked cement driveways and walking paths, replace the rusted mailbox and install new door handles, knockers and street address numbers. Investing in a new steel door with a peep hole can make your family more safe and your home more attractive.

•Organize Storage: Consider installing easy-to-assemble closet organizers in the master bedroom, children's rooms, kitchen pantry, linen closet, garage and attic. When you are ready to sell your home, buyers will appreciate the extra storage space.

•Invest in New Windows: Although the cost is significant, there are two reasons to consider new windows an investment: 1) According to Remodeling Magazine, windows average 69 percent return on investment (ranging as high as 100 percent recovery in Pittsburgh and Seattle to as little as 45 percent in Des Moines and Boise), and 2) new windows, especially energy efficient triple-paned glass windows, can lower the monthly utility bills by 20 to 40 percent.

By planning the improvements (which require little routine maintenance) before making arrangements to place the home on the market, you can save yourself time, money and needless anxiety. Who knows? You might even find time in 1998, to read, compose, diet, work, exercise and ring up old pals.

HAPPY HALLOWEEN

Halloween Safety Tips

Police Chief Thomas Frane offers the following safety precautions to motorists, parents and homeowners to ensure a happy and safe Halloween for the children and residents of Quincy.

Motorists are advised to exercise caution on Halloween, Friday, Oct. 31. Children will be "trick or treating," wearing costumes with masks, and crossing streets as they go throughout the community.

Parents should go over these safety rules with their children before they leave the house.

•Cross only at corners.

•Never cross between parked cars.

•If there is no sidewalk, walk facing the oncoming traffic.

•Remove masks before crossing streets.

Parents should follow these tips to further insure the enjoyment of Halloween:

•Make sure children are dressed in light-colored clothes; short enough to prevent tripping. (Reflectors and/or reflective material would be added safety measures.)

•Make sure children can see well through face masks, if worn.

•Makeup is preferable to face masks as it does not hinder vision.

•Accompany young children.

•Go out early, in daylight if possible, or carry a flashlight in the dark.

•Stay within the boundaries of your immediate neighborhood and visit only the homes you know.

•Watch for traffic.

•Only accept and give wrapped or packaged candy.

•Examine candy before allowing children to eat it.

Residents should remove all obstacles from their steps and leave on outside lights which will help prevent youngsters from falling.

Keeping Pets Safe On Halloween

While Halloween is a thrilling time for children and parents, family pets may be frightened by holiday festivities.

The Animal Rescue League of Boston asks pet owners to take a few precautions to ensure the safety and security of their animal friends.

On "trick or treat" nights, pets should be kept indoors. Costumes may frighten pets left outdoors as well create a problem of dogs excessively barking.

The frequent opening and closing of the door may also startle pets. A license and ID tag is always recommended, especially in the event your pet is accidentally let out and becomes lost.

If thinking about dressing your pet in a costume, please make sure the garment does not restrict movement or vision. Costumes can easily make pets overheated or suffer other discomforts. Also keep in mind that costume strings and various accessories can be harmful to pets if ingested.

While no candy is healthy for pets, chocolate can be fatal. Avoid feeding pets candy and keep treats out of reach. These simple precautions will help to make Halloween a happy holiday for the entire family.

Treat Yourself Without Tricking Your Weight Loss Efforts

(NAPS)—Halloween has enjoyed a scary reputation ever since the Celts first celebrated a festival known as Samhain, during which demonic manifestations and the wandering dead were believed to appear. Today, the holiday is particularly terrifying for tens of millions of dieting Americans because of an abundance of bite-size candies and chocolates on hand for trick-or-treaters.

Dieters may be surprised, and pleased, to learn they can still enjoy these Halloween treats without sabotaging their weight loss program, according to weight management expert Jenny Craig, whose new ABC Program helps people learn how to lose weight while still eating their favorite foods.

"Believe it or not, you can still eat Halloween candy while on a weight loss program," said Craig. "Maintaining a healthy lifestyle isn't about 'giving up' anything. It's about becoming more self-aware, making better choices and being kinder to yourself. So if you want to eat a piece of candy or two, do it—and enjoy it. Then hide the rest away or give it to charity, so you won't feel tempted to overindulge over the next few days."

Here are some more fun hints from Jenny Craig to keep your Halloween healthy:

• Wait until the last minute to buy Halloween candy (and buy the kind you don't like).

• Hand out edible treats like nonfat pretzels, sugarless gum or raisins...or nonfood items like Halloween stickers, pencils or tokens to a local arcade.

• Take your mind off eating by keeping busy in between visits from trick-or-treaters—draw funny Halloween pictures, carve a pumpkin or play a board game.

• Get moving! Take the kids trick-or-treating...or just walk around the neighborhood and check out all the decorations and costumes.

• Let someone else hand out candy, and plan a nonfood treat for yourself—a manicure, massage or bubble bath.

• Rent a scary movie and curl up with some lowfat microwaved popcorn.

For more information on Jenny Craig's new ABC Program, call 1-800-43-JENNY.

FALL CAR CARE

Maintaining Vehicle Value

(NAPS)—Most vehicle owners know the importance of maintaining their vehicle's appearance. Washing and waxing, vacuuming upholstery—nearly everyone has spent a few hours on a sunny afternoon performing those tasks.

Then there's engine maintenance. Regular oil changes, filter and belt replacement, and tune-ups are just some of the items that keep a vehicle in tip-top shape.

Owners perform these chores not only to keep the vehicle running well and looking good for themselves, but to maintain the vehicle's value for resale. In general, the better the appearance and performance, the more the vehicle will be worth.

But there could be another factor in the resale value of a vehicle. According to a recent study, if substandard imitation crash parts are used to repair collision damage, and the vehicle is later sold, the value of the vehicle can be reduced by hundreds and even thousands of dollars.

Imitation crash parts are unauthorized copies of vehicle manufacturer crash parts—the sheet metal and plastic components, such as fenders, hoods, bumpers and doors, most often damaged in accidents. Insurance companies often specify imitation parts for collision repair, often without consumer knowledge.

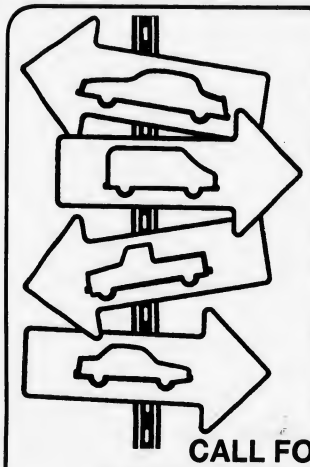
Testing by vehicle manufacturers and body shop organizations have found imitation crash parts to be substandard in fit, finish, structural integrity, corrosion resistance and dent resistance when compared to original equipment manufacturer (OEM) crash parts.

The national study, conducted for General Motors, asked consumers and professional vehicle appraisers in 14 cities to estimate the value of two identical vehicles. Both vehicles had had front-end crash parts—fenders, hoods and bumper components—removed and replaced to simulate collision repair. Both were then subjected to the equivalent of three and a half years (38,500 miles) accelerated cosmetic aging. The only difference between the vehicles was the replacement parts used—one had genuine OEM crash parts; the other, imitation crash parts.

The results? Nine out of ten professional vehicle appraisers selected the vehicle with the genuine parts as having a higher value, and indicated that the vehicle with imitation parts would be worth an average of $740 less. Of consumers, nine out of ten preferred the vehicle with genuine parts, indicating a $1,670 average reduction in value for the vehicle with imitation parts.

There were three areas identified by both groups as reducing value on the vehicle with imitation parts. The most apparent was "red rust" and paint bubbling on the imitation sheet metal parts. This is due to the use of uncoated steel rather than galvanized steel, which provides superior corrosion protection and is used for OEM parts. The second problem area noticed was fit, with uneven gaps and edges between the imitation hood and fenders. Paint fading on the imitation fascia was the third area. While the OEM fascia was molded in its final color, the imitation had to be painted.

Whether traded in at a dealership, taken to a used car lot or sold to another consumer, vehicles repaired with imitation crash parts may not garner their maximum value, according to this study.



The smart thing to do is prevent this loss of resale value. If you're involved in an accident, work with your collision repairer and insurance company to find out which kind of replacement crash parts have been specified. Look at your estimate: words such as "quality replacement," "like kind and quality," and "economy" often mean imitation parts.

If imitation parts have been selected for repairs and you are uncomfortable with that choice, ask that genuine replacement crash parts be used. Be aware that if your insurer does not authorize use of genuine parts, you may be asked to pay any cost difference between the genuine and imitation parts.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Agreements with others are easily reached early in the week. Later, couples reach an important understanding about their relationship. This weekend, joy comes from creativity, sports and other entertainment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Some are looking at some type of home repair this week. Family interests and dealings with financial consultants are favored in general. This weekend, be sure you restock that empty larder.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You don't have to try so hard to be the life of the party. Others notice you anyway. The weekend is favored for romance and leisure activities, provided you don't go overboard.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a week of fits and starts for you as you're plagued with inertia. Overall, however, you manage to get done what needs to be done. Be persistent in your efforts and you'll make career progress.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You won't continue to be the apple of a certain person's eye if you insist on breaking appointments. Later in the week, a minigetaway fills the bill. Couples enjoy a weekend at a favorite romantic spot.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) If you're looking for financial backing for something, this is the week to go after it. You have a lot of energy now and can make considerable career gains. Watch extravagance over the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some could be planning for a special vacation. A latter-week meeting with an adviser is fruitful. This weekend, couples share a child-rearing responsibility.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That project you've been putting off needs your attention. You can no longer afford to wait. Others are impressed by your diligence. This weekend, don't go overboard on a shopping expedition.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're in a party mood, but this will have to wait until the weekend. For now, there are things to be attended to. It's a good week to speak out at group meetings and expressing your views.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Avoid a tendency to let things get away from you at work. Pay particular attention to niggling details. This weekend, both shopping and family life are highlighted. Indeed, it's a nice, quiet time.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is the week to be assertive and go after what you want in your career. Place your accent on initiative. Later, you can feel free to enjoy some leisure activities with good friends.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brighter financial picture has you breathing a sigh of relief. However, that doesn't mean you can go out on a wild spree. Later in the week, you handle a tough problem at work successfully.

Lakers' Bond, Silva Main Targets For Raiders

North Quincy At Silver Lake Friday

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Back-to-back home Old Colony League victories have lifted the spirits of the North Quincy High School football team, which evened its record at 3-3 with a 34-14 win over Dennis-Yarmouth last Friday.

Now, the Red Raiders (3-2 in the OCL) face their toughest test to date when they visit the league's second place team, Silver Lake (4-1 OCL, 6-1 overall) Friday at 6 p.m.

The Lakers, sparked by quarterback Jon Bond and running backs Marquisse Silva and Andre Mendes, boast the league's most explosive offense, averaging 33 points a game.

Bond has compiled 11 touchdown passes, which ties him for the Div. 1 lead. Seven of those scoring tosses have been to Silva, who is one of the leading scorers in Div. 1 with 13 touchdowns. In the Lakers' 41-20 win over Taunton last Friday, Silva scored two touchdowns and Mendes compiled 230 rushing yards and also scored twice.

"They've got a lot of weapons, so we'll have to set up a game plan to stop them," said NQ head coach Ken McPhee. "That Silva is one of the most talented backs around, so we need to keep him and the rest of their offense off the field.

"It's all about ball control, and if we can get that going, we should be in good shape. They haven't shut down anyone; all the teams they've played have been able to score, but only one (Barnstable) has contained their offense and beaten them."

While the Lakers may have the edge on the Red Raiders in talent, McPhee vividly recalls NQ's trip to Silver Lake two years ago when a victory party had been set up for the Lakers--before the game was even played.

"That showed a lack of respect," said McPhee. "Now that they have one of the best teams in the league, everyone expects them to win this game handily.

"That's definitely our battle cry this week: no one expects us to win, but we have the opportunity to do it, so let's go do it. If we play error-free football and contain their offense, there's no reason we can't win this game."

In the triumph over winless Dennis-Yarmouth, the Red Raiders' junior quarterback Chris Bregoli (4-of-6, 102 yards, three touchdowns) spearheaded five touchdown drives in NQ's first six possessions.

"I was pleased with our entire offense tonight, but I was most pleased with how Bregoli played," said McPhee. "He's grasping what we're trying to do, taking what the defense gives him and throwing the ball in the right spots."

On the game's opening drive, NQ senior nose guard and tri-captain Brian Wells intercepted an Aaron Marchese pass and returned it to the D-Y 29-yard line. North's first play was a 24-yard pass to senior fullback and tri-captain Mike Powers. Three plays later, Bregoli connected with senior wide receiver Mark Stanton on a nine-yard touchdown pass. Powers kicked the extra point for a quick 7-0 lead.

After a D-Y punt, senior tailback Jason Turner (13 carries, 113 yards) carried the ball four times for 19 yards, leading the Red Raiders into D-Y territory. Under pressure from the Blue Eagle defense, Bregoli eluded the rush and lofted a short pass to Powers, who cut inside and raced 43 yards for a touchdown.

Leading 13-0 after a quarter, the Red Raiders' defense made its presence felt when Mike Douglas sacked Marchese for a 10-yard loss, forcing yet another D-Y punt. On the next play, Turner rumbled 15 yards before fumbling the ball away at NQ's 43. The Blue Eagles took advantage of the turnover, as Marchese capped the drive with a one-yard touchdown scamper. Turner got a little redemption when he intercepted the two-point conversion attempt, preserving NQ's 13-6 advantage.

Before the half ended, Bregoli again avoided the oncoming rush and hooked up with senior tight end Frank McNamara for a 26-yard touchdown pass. Turner then caught the two-point conversion pass for a commanding 21-6 halftime lead.

North's offense picked up where it left off in the third quarter after Kevin Shaw returned the opening kickoff 40 yards to D-Y's 36. On the first play, Turner turned on the jets and reached the end zone untouched, followed by Powers' second successful extra point.

The all-around talented Powers (four carries, 33 yards) snuffed out D-Y's next drive with his fifth interception of the season, then raced 27 yards on NQ's next play from scrimmage. Five plays later, Turner scored on a one-yard run and North led, 34-6, after three quarters.

A NUMBER OF substitutes saw action in the Red Raiders' romp over the Dolphins. Here, NQ running back Sean Adams fights his way for extra yardage, carrying D-Y defenders along for the ride.

RED RAIDER BACKUP quarterback Mike Reidy (12) turns to pitch the ball in North's 34-14 victory over visiting Dennis-Yarmouth last Friday night. Reidy relieved starter Chris Bregoli, who completed four of six passes for 102 yards and three touchdowns.

Eleven Inductees Join QHS-NQHS Football Hall Of Fame Nov. 25

Eleven former high school football standouts will be inducted into the Quincy High School-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame at the Hall's 14th annual dinner Tuesday, Nov. 25 at the George F. Bryan Post, Quincy.

The North Quincy High inductees will be Robert "Bob" Johnson (Class of 1941), Bob Lundy (Class of 1953), Bob Sleeth (Class of 1968), Glen Segalla (Class of 1979) and Jack Leon (Class of 1980).

Special awards will be presented to Walter Graf, Jackie Wier and the late Marjorie Buckley. Graf was a 13-year member of the now defunct Quincy Fathers Club, which attended all the football games, cheered on the players and helped purchase jackets and organize dinners, dances and trips for the players.

Wier has been a dedicated equipment manager for Quincy High for many years. Buckley, the late wife of Hall of Fame President and member Lionel "Shine" Buckley, was instrumental in the Hall's early days, handling paperwork and holding meetings at her home, among other duties.

All the coaches and players from this year's Quincy and North Quincy football teams will be in attendance. The Hall of Fame will present trophies to the best offensive and defensive player from each team at their respective postseason banquets.

Cocktails will be available at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets are $25 each and can be purchased by calling Ron Ivil at (617) 337-4347, Robert Derbes at (617) 471-0596 or Dennis Kelley at (781) 826-7010. Checks may be made payable to Quincy High School-North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame.

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The second half of the season began on a sour note for Quincy High School's football team, which turned in a lackluster defensive performance in a 20-12 non-league loss to Plymouth North last Friday night.

"We played our worse defensive game of the year," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "We faced an offense we had never seen before and weren't able to handle it. Hopefully this will be a wake-up call for us. We may have gone into this game a little cocky, stepping down to the Division 3 level thinking it'll be a cakewalk.

"They're a young team, but they've been getting better every week and took a major step against us. Their coach (Kevin Cobban) is a Quincy kid who deserves a lot of credit for that team's success. He's done a great job with those kids."

The Presidents (2-1 Old Colony League, 4-2 overall) look to regroup and pick up a victory when they host OCL foe Falmouth (2-3, 2-5) Friday at 6 p.m.

Quincy, which is 3-0 at home this season, will face a Clippers team that has won just one of its four road games. Falmouth is also coming off a league loss to Plymouth South, but Chella is not about to overlook any opponent.

"We haven't beaten them in three years, so this is a big test for us," said Chella. "They're still a very dangerous team. Three off their losses are to teams contending for Super Bowl berths (New Bedford, Winchester, Bridgewater-Raynham), so they're no pushovers."

In the road loss to Plymouth North, Quincy was overmatched in the first quarter as the Blue Eagles drove the ball downfield with its powerful running attack. Plymouth North scored early in the second quarter on a one-yard run by running back Brett Burkhead (22 carries, 166 yards). The extra point gave Plymouth North a 7-0 lead.

The second quarter was dominated by the Presidents, who took the ball deep into Blue Eagle territory but came up empty. A 12-play drive stalled at the one-yard line before the half concluded.

Problems arose for Quincy in the third quarter when Plymouth North's Brian Cherry blocked a punt that was recovered by teammate Brian Rezendes in the end zone for a touchdown. The extra point gave the Blue Eagles to a 14-0 advantage.

"Turnovers hurt us--we had a punt blocked that was recovered for a score, then fumbled a punt in our end," said Chella. "There's two mistakes that if we don't make, we're in a position to win the game."

On the ensuing kickoff, two Quincy players collided and fumbled the ball away, which Plymouth South recovered on the Presidents' 30. Just when it appeared the Blue Eagles would put the game away, Quincy battled its way back with some solid defense and timely offense.

The Presidents' defense contained the Blue Eagles twice inside the 20 and the offense got on the board when quarterback Kevin Moore (12-for-20, 141 yards) connected with Bryan Dunn on a 65-yard touchdown bomb with just over four minutes left in the third quarter.

"They brought a lot of people up defensively, and Kevin handled it very well," said Chella. "He answered the ball and threw the ball well. They dared us to throw, and Kevin came through with some big plays, especially that touchdown pass to Bryan."

Quincy managed to block a punt of its own, at the Plymouth North 24. Six plays later, Moore kept it himself and scored on a one-yard run. The two-point conversion rush failed, however, and the Presidents trailed, 14-12, heading into the final quarter.

The Blue Eagles appeared to seal the triumph when Burkhead scampered 10 yards for a touchdown, capping a four-play drive with just over two minutes remaining.

Not about to give up, the Presidents threatened on their final possession, but Moore's final pass was knocked down with 47 seconds left, wrapping up the victory.

One player who wasn't much of a factor for Quincy was tailback Shaun Faherty, who rushed for approximately 60 yards to close in on the 700-yard mark against a tough Blue Eagle defense.

"I thought Shaun ran fairly effectively, helping us mix the run with the pass, but they had nine guys up on the line, which makes running the ball very difficult," said Chella. "We had to throw more than we usually do, and Kevin responded well to their pressure. We had our chances, but you can't make mistakes and expect to beat a good team, and we didn't."

Manets, Panthers Clash For QYFL Title Sunday

YOUTH FOOTBALL

For the fourth consecutive year, the Houghs Neck Manets will play for the Quincy Youth Football League championship, this time against the Quincy Point Panthers.

The title game between the Manets (5-2) and Panthers (5-2) is slated for this Sunday at 1 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The game will be preceded at 10 a.m. by the junior varsity jamboree featuring all six league teams, followed by the varsity cheeerleading competition.

The Manets clinched a berth in the championship with a 29-15 triumph over the North Quincy Apaches (5-2) this past Sunday. The Manets opened with quarterback Jordan Virtue handing off to backs Paul Flynn, Jason Moore and Danny Galligan, with each gaining seven and eight yards to the Apaches' 30-yard line. Virtue then connected with Sean Richardson for a 30-yard touchdown pass, followed by Flynn running for the two-point conversion and an 8-0 lead.

Defensively, Paul Picarski, Joe Hearn, Donnie Brooks, Brian Chenette, Andy McWalter and Brian Keefe (two sacks) held the Apache offense in check early. Keefe recovered a fumble, but the Manets did not capitalize.

The Apache offense, led by QB Pat Bregoli and Joe Fitzpatrick, countered with an impressive drive. After several key runs and passes by Bregoli, he handed off to Fitzpatrick on a reverse, who scored a five-yard TD. The innovative Apaches used the swinging gate formation to set up a pass from placekicker Dave Rochon to Bregoli, who was wide open in the end zone for the two-point play and an 8-8 tie at the half.

To open the second half, the Apaches' offense drove downfield and picked up momentum when Bregoli hit Fitzpatrick for a first down in Manet territory. A fumble turned the ball over to the Manets, with Flynn scrambling for a 70-yard touchdown run. The conversion failed, and the Manets held a 14-8 lead.

Flynn added a 40-yard touchdown run when Virtue escaped the Apache defenders, scrambling free to set up a pass fake to Richardson before handing off to Flynn. Richardson caught an outstanding pass for the two-point play and a 22-8 Manets advantage.

Early in the fourth, the Manets' Danny Galligan raced 12 yards for a first down before Paul McAteer caught a 10-yard pass to move the Manets deep into Apache territory. Moore added a 15-yard run before Virtue threw a 45-yard bomb to Richardson, setting up a five-yard touchdown run by Flynn. Richardon kicked the point after for a 29-8 lead.

Later in the fourth, Bregoli hooked up with Fitzpatrick on a 55-yard scoring play, and Rochon booted the extra point to close out the scoring.

Other standouts for the Manets were Bill McKeon, Dave Grogan, Chris Jacques, Corey Place, Bill Reid, Mike Sullivan and Shawn Munchbach. Great tackles by Flynn, Hearn, Moore, Picarski and Chenette helped the Manets stay ahead, with solid contributions from Hartshone, Quigley and Tatem. Richardson averaged about 50 yards on kickoffs.

For the Apaches, Bregoli, Fitzpatrick, Ryan Farnham, and Charlie Vidoli played well offensively, as did Kevin Holleran and Charlie Sorrento, before early injuries knocked them out of the game. On the line, strong performances were given by Rochon, Dave Burke, Chris Marinelli, Kevin Gaughan, Gabe Parsons, Neal Gavin and Ben Bell. Defensively, the valiant efforts of Bregoli, Burke, Farnham, Fitzpatrick and Dennis Thomson sparked the Apaches.

The Panthers sealed their spot in the title game with an impressive 34-16 victory over the Milton Mustangs (0-7). It was their fifth straight win after starting the season 0-2.

The Panthers, who will make their first appearance in the title game since 1993, got on the board just four minutes into the game when Mike Regen scored the first of his two touchdowns with a 77-yard run, followed by Mark Chella's run for the two-point conversion.

At the 2:55 mark of the second, Chella scampered 66 yards for a touchdown and Steve Pizzi rolled in for the two-point play and a 16-0 halftime advantage.

The Panthers had a 22-point cushion when James LaFleur caught a 50-yard pass from quarterback Mike Lorenzano. They added another TD later in the third before the Mustangs, who were paced by James Foster, got on the board.

Some of the Panthers' JV squad saw action in the second half, including Jake Bennett, Ed DeWitt and T.J. Pitts. Bennett carried the ball deep into Mustang territory to set up the final score.

The Panthers had a solid two-way effort from Kris Kamborian, Steve and Matt Ramponi, along with Chris Bolter. Joe Viola played well at linebacker and Anthony Sandonato, Matt Hodges and David Andronico led the way on the line. Other standouts were Joe Whiffen, Bob Richie and Andrew Picard.

The West Quincy Elks came out determined to finish their season on a positive note, which they did by edging the Squantum Storm, 16-14. After the Elks (5-2) recorded a safety, the Elks defense controlled the line of scrimmage as Mike Ryan intercepted a pass and returned it for a touchdown.

After another Storm punt, the Elks pounded the ball downfield, setting up a nine-yard touchdown run by Dan DiNardo and the extra point by Ryan for a 16-0 halftime lead.

The Elks defense intercepted five passes (two by Norman Yen, one by Ryan, one by DiNardo) and along with the "Dick Butkus" line of Chris Sullivan and Matt Tupe, preserved the 16-0 lead. The Elks defense of Chris Kerr, Brian Gately, John Chevalier, Jamie Chiocchio, Danny Duggan, Matt Tierney, Ryan DiNardo and Yen came out after the third, replaced by the second-team defense.

The Elks, Apaches, Manets and Panthers all finished 5-2, with a number of skillful players contributing to their teams' successful seasons. The city's two high school football teams should benefit in the years to come with all the talent emerging from the QYFL.

Squantum's Red Flannery Notches Hole-In-One

Red Flannery of Squantum notched a hole-in-one on the par-three 13th hole at Dennis Pines Oct. 12.

Using what he called a "heavenly" seventh wood which he received as a Christmas present from his son Rob, Flannery sunk the 175-yard shot as partners F.X. "Sleepy" Joyce, "Hummy" Henderson and Tony Athas, a Quincy resident, witnessed the ace.

"We had about 14 people watching the shot, and the kids who saw it go in were more excited about it than me," said Flannery, a South Boston native who scored the first-ever ace on the fourth hole at Brook Meadow years ago.

"But don't get me wrong," he added. "I enjoyed it, too, because it doesn't happen all that often."

Flannery's partners fared quite well on the 13th hole as well, as Athas finished the hole in two shots, Joyce in three and Henderson in four.

Red Raiders Gear Up For First Tournament Game

GIRLS' SOCCER

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team will play its first-ever state tournament game later this week, after seedings were announced yesterday (Wednesday). As of press time, the Red Raiders' opponent had not been determined.

The Red Raiders (7-6-4) geared up for their first taste of tournament play with their regular season finale against rival Quincy Tuesday. The game was originally scheduled for last Saturday, but was postponed by inclement weather.

The original makeup date was Monday, but rain again forced postponement until Tuesday. The NQ-QHS boys' soccer game followed the girls' game.

North Quincy head coach Paul Bregoli said if the Red Raiders defeated Quincy, they would likely be seeded 12th or 13th. If they lost, they would receive a 14th or 15th seed and draw one of the top-seeded teams. Regardless of their seeding, the Red Raiders will play Friday or Saturday.

After clinching the tournament berth Oct. 16, the Red Raiders traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham Oct. 20, to play a Trojan team they had tied, 2-2, at home earlier in the season. One of the elite teams in the Old Colony League, the Trojans edged North, 1-0, in a hard-fought, down-to-the-wire classic.

"That was a monumental battle," said Bregoli. "We put together a tremendous defensive performance. It was scoreless for about the first 39 minutes, until they scored with about a minute left to win the game.

"This game had tournament game pressure. They threw all they had at us, and we took it and countered it. The entire defense did a great job in a physical game. Everyone on our side played their hearts out and I'm proud of each of them."

In a scoreless game in the first half, the Red Raiders nearly drew first blood when freshman Kellee Conley one-timed a shot with the B-R keeper out of position, but narrowly missed the far post.

Evidence of the game's physical nature appeared with 21 minutes remaining, when B-R's Joy Flaherty grabbed NQ senior tri-captain Katie Koch by the hair and punched her in the eye, said Bregoli. The punch cut Koch's eye and left her with a "huge lump" on her eyebrow, Bregoli added. Flaherty was ejected from the game and B-R played the rest of the way a player short.

North's top scorer, senior tri-captain Laurie Flynn, had a golden opportunity with 10 minutes left in the game, when the Trojan keeper came out to cut off the angle and Flynn got the ball by her, but had the shot bounce off the right post.

As the game drew to a close, the Red Raiders moved their midfielders and backs up the field in an attempt to notch the go-ahead goal.

"It turns out the mids and backs were too far up," said Bregoli, "because their keeper made a nice kick to a forward, who took it in stride and made a perfect cross to a teammate who banged it in."

Bregoli was particularly impressed with the performance of sweeper Leela Shankar and stopper Liz Bennett, whom he said played their best games of the season. He also commended the efforts of freshman backs Jen Conley and Stacy Szcesuil and junior keeper Kristen Bowes, who collected 15 saves.

"We lost to them here last year 7-0 and 5-1 the year before, so to hold them to one late goal is great," said Bregoli. "We would've like to have won the game, but the girls gave it all they had and that's what matters."

NQ Joins Quincy In Tourney With 11th Consecutive Berth

VOLLEYBALL

For the 11th consecutive year, the North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team secured a berth in the MIAA state tournament, joining Quincy High School, which earlier qualified for the fourth year in a row.

Both teams will learn of their seedings this week for the Central Sectional. Quincy head coach Tom Henderson said both teams may play Saturday with the remainder of the Division 1 seeds.

The Presidents (10-7) hosted the Red Raiders (12-8) Tuesday, aiming to avenge the Red Raiders' 2-0 home victory on Oct. 2.

North Quincy clinched a tournament slot last Thursday with a 15-3, 15-6 victory at Whitman-Hanson. The Red Raiders were sparked by sophomore Katie Jellison, who recorded 12 kills. Senior Megan O'Donnell also turned in a strong performance for NQ.

Last Friday, North upended visiting Taunton, 15-6, 15-4. The strong play of juniors Angela Scott (six kills), Kim Hureth (14 service points) and Allison Haddad, along with Katie Sweetser (seven digs), paced the Raiders to the victory.

Earlier in the week, North fell to New Bedford, 2-0, and Medway, 2-1.

North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle, in his 12th year at the helm, is pleased with how his younger players have adjusted to the varsity level and hopes that bodes well for the Raiders in the tournament.

"This is our 11th straight year in the tournament, and I'm pretty pleased with that," said Rendle. "We have a lot of first-year players and we played a very difficult schedule, which hopefully seasoned them and will pay off come tourney time.

"Going into the season, I certainly hoped to qualify. The question now is, 'How far can we go?' I think we can go a little ways and surprise some teams. The girls are looking forward to the tourney and hope to make some noise before they're through."

Meanwhile, the Presidents dropped two of their last three matches leading up to the showdown against the Red Raiders. Monday, Quincy lost to host Durfee, 11-15, 10-15, led by the standout performance of senior Erin Barry (12 kills, two blocks, nine digs) and Mary Chenette (four kills, two services aces, 11 digs).

Quincy swept visiting Whitman-Hanson last Friday, 15-2, 15-5. Once again, Barry led the way with 15 kills, five service aces and three digs, with a solid contribution from freshman Jacqui Niosi (16 assists, two service aces, three digs).

Last Wednesday, the Presidents dropped a home match to Falmouth, 15-10, 10-15, 10-15. Barry sparked Quincy with 16 kills, three blocks and eight digs. Karen Goldrick contributed five kills and six digs.

"We beat them before and should've again, but we self-destructed," said Henderson. "We're capable of playing very well, but we have to come mentally and physically prepared.

"I was feeling good about our chances in the postseason until this match. Now, I'm not feeling as comfortable because we need to be more consistent if we're going to succeed in the tournament."

Linda Jellison Named Ivy League Women's Volleyball Player Of The Week

Linda Jellison of Quincy, a sophomore outside hitter on the Harvard women's volleyball team, was honored as the Ivy League Women's Volleyball Player of the Week for her efforts in two Crimson victories last weekend.

In the Crimson's first-ever win against Princeton last Friday night, Jellison registered 21 kills and had just six errors in her 15 attempts, for a hitting percentage of .366 in the 3-2 victory. Saturday, the Crimson swept Penn, 3-0.

Jellison, who majors in economics at Harvard, recorded a total of 29 kills and 14 digs on the weekend and also logged four blocks and a service ace. She is currently second on the team in kills (117) and hitting percentage (.220) and fourth in digs (97).

A North Quincy High School graduate, Jellison was a Gatorade High School All-American, Regional New England Player of the Year, State Player of the Year and a three-time member of the Boston Globe's All-Scholastic team. The Red Raiders were state finalists three times in her four years amd won state championship in 1992.

New Internet Site Features Quincy Girls Softball

A new Internet site (www.neyouthsports.com) is keeping Quincy Girls Softball coaches, players and parents actively informed and involved with the program.

Lisa Gallagher of Quincy is coach of the Harvard Pilgrim Health Care team in the Dorothy Quincy division of the Quincy Girls Softball league. She began coaching last year at the request of her 11-year-old cousin, Michele Reppucci, and Gallagher is very excited about this web page.

"Since the end of the season (end of June), I've only checked in one or two times, but during the season I would access the site one or two times a week," she said. "The site was excellent, updated very quickly and full of information.

"I was really pleased with the pages and hope to fill them again next year. It has really given me some new ideas on how to get information to more people."

Complete with a spinning softball, and designed specifically for the Quincy Girls Softball league, http://www.neyouthsports.com/mass/quincy/qgs.shtml, the page is packed with useful information including schedules, standings, league directors, and other important notices.

"The girls were excited to see their league's information on the Internet," said Gallagher. "We were able to post information about a summer league, standings, and the schedule. The site has given the league energy to attract more players, more excitement from current players and an additional way to advertise the league."

Gallagher is also the co-president of the Dorothy Quincy division, and she believes that the web page is a good source for parents to find out who to contact if they have a question.

"We eventually are planning on travel teams and this could be a good way to find other towns or cities to play against," she added.

Additionally, the web site includes search engines, links to "cool places" to visit and links to advertiser sites.

"And the multiple pages for each league is an especially great feature," said Gallagher.

Quincy Girls Softball is just one youth league enjoying the immediacy and power of the Internet absolutely free. The sites are being developed by a full service Internet counseling company, New England Youth Sports in Weymouth. New England Youth Sports provides a free site to youth leagues and is funded by display advertising on each page.

Leagues provide basic information and New England Youth Sports constructs the page from graphic design to on-line technical requirements, and there is no charge for the page development or monthly server hosting.

"The web pages are a great tool for the league, and David Jackson of New England Youth Sports has been very responsive in keeping the pages as updated as possible," said Gallagher. "I was very happy with neyouthsports.com this past season. I hope more teams in Quincy use the pages in the future."

New England Youth Sports has offices at 775 Pleasant St., Suite 9, Weymouth, MA 02189. For more information, visit the company on its web site at www.neyouthsports.com or call (617) 331-7898.

Woodward Edges Holbrook, Doubles Up Montrose, 4-2

In a pressure-filled rematch, the Woodward School soccer team edged Holbrook, 1-0, to avenge an early season loss and improve its record to 3-3-1.

Co-captain Jessica Boothby netted the game-winning goal and goalkeeper Danielle Gatto made 13 saves to earn her first shutout of the season. Great teamwork contributed to the win, with outstanding play from Audrey Ferguson, Janet McNamara and Elizabeth Modestino.

In earlier action, the Woodward team doubled up Montrose, 4-2. Montrose scored in the opening minutes, but Woodward tied the game up on a goal by Kathleen Hester, assisted by Stacey Queripel.

Woodward took the lead on an unassisted goal by Stacey Queripel and got insurance goals from Ryan Kelley (assisted by Hester) and co-captain Stephanie Queripel (unassisted).

Montrose was only able to come up with one more goal in the second half. Great efforts for Woodward were by goalkeeper Gatto, Alysa Snyder, Lori Mickiewicz and Boothby.

NQ's Vukosa National PAL Boxing Champion

For the third year in a row, O'Malley's Gym in Quincy and the Quincy Police Athletic League sent an amateur boxing team to the National Police Athletic League Boxing Championships, which were held in St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 4-11.

A North Quincy fighter, Steve Vukosa, 20, returned home as the 1997 National Police Athletic League Super Heavyweight Champion, clinching the title with a win over Elfair McKnight of New York, a three-time New York Golden Gloves Champion.

Vukosa, a 6'4 1/2, 236-pounder with only 15 fights under his belt prior to the tournament, knocked off Rick Duffy of the Olympic Training Center in Marquette, Mich., in the semifinals. He defeated Jerry Harvey of Augusta, Ga., a two-time National Junior Olympic Champion, in the quarterfinals, and won a decision over George Belle of St. Louis, a finalist in the 1996 National Police Athletic League Championships in Palm Bay, Fla., in the opening round.

A 1995 graduate of North Quincy High School, Vukosa is a full-time student at Quincy College and part-time employee in his father's business, Al Vukosa's Hardwood Floors. Vukosa will appear on television next year when he represents the United States in international competition.

North Quincy Boys Top Quincy; NQ Girls Beat Taunton, Quincy

The North Quincy High School boys cross country team continued to pursue the elusive win, finally getting one against Quincy, while the North Quincy girls lost a heartbreaker to Dennis-Yarmouth, but picked up lopsided victories over Taunton and Quincy.

North's boys' hopes to put it all together for the Old Colony League Conference meet were all but dashed as senior co-captain Jay Newhall broke his arm over the Columbus Day weekend. His return is doubtful. The other co-captain, Joe Linskey, is nursing a sore hamstring and stayed out of the D-Y meet.

The good news, though, is that freshmen phenoms Brian Breslin and Jeff Bartoloni are tearing it up, each taking turns being No. 1 Raider. Against D-Y, Bartoloni broke a four-year-old school record of 18:11 set by Torvi by clocking a 17:50 over the rigorous 3.1-mile loop at Pageant Field. This time also set a freshman course record, the old one being held by two-time state champion Seth Williams of Plymouth, now runinng at Stanford University. Other freshmen Steve Barkowski and Paul Griffith are also improving, making the future for the boys' program a bright one.

On the girls side, Lynda Wilson continues undefeated in the OCL, tying the course record of 20:38 set originally by Patti Gohring of Falmouth, a University of Rhode Island graduate. North's girls are also dealing with the injury and illness bug as Heather Meighan, Shirley Wu and Ashley Crawford are all on limited training or out altogether. In the D-Y meet, several girls ran subpar due to illness which affected the 23-32 loss.

"We put five girls in the top 10, but if they ran their usual races, we would have won," said NQ head coach Geoff Hennessy. "The girls know that at this point in time the OCL's and the Class meets are our focus; everything else is secondary."

North traveled to the recent Brown Invitational and finished its dual meet season in a tri-meet against Plymouth South and Barnstable at Plymouth Carver Intermediate School.

With the official results of the Thetford Trails Run in, North Quincy scored 492 points to place 20th out of 40 scoring teams and only four points behind Notre Dame Academy of Hingham. Scorers and their places were Lynda Wilson (17), Sarah Houghton (69), Kelly-Rose O'Brien (86), Genevieve O'Brien (114), Nancy Gardner (206) and Shirley Wu (241).

Casper Notches Hat Trick In Pee Wee B's Rout Of Waltham

Goaltender Nick Manning was excellent in net behind sterling defensive work from Jake O'Donnell and Danny Durocher as the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee B's overwhelmed Waltham, 9-1.

Manning's quest for a shutout was ended late in the third when a shot from the corner deflected off a Quincy defender and into the net.

The game was close after two period with Quincy leading, 3-0, on goals by Ryan Feldoff, Liam Powers (assisted by Brendan Craig) and Patrick Casper, who one-timed a great pass from Timmy Duggan. Defenders Bobby Donovan and Matt Alleva kept the puck in the Waltham zone and the pressure off Manning.

The Quincy icemen exploded with six goals in the third. Powers showed his breakaway speed and scored unassisted, then combined with Craig to assist Casper on his third goal of the game. The hat trick was Casper's second of the season.

Brian Cooper, who scored twice, was on the receiving end of crisp passes from linemates Pat Clifford and Andy Ross (two assists apiece). Alleva had an assist with a long pass and Duggan capped a night of hard work and alert passing by finding Pat Maxey in front for the last Quincy goal.

Kyle Carmody and Ryan Tobin again played strong defense and with Manning and the rest of the squad, deserve credit for the team scoring 27 goals and giving up just seven this season.

Through its first three games, the B's picked up two victories and a tie.

The season opener against rival South Boston resulted in a 6-3 B's victory at Hyde Park. Veterans Ross (two goals, two assists) and Cooper (two goals, one assist) led the way, with contributions from Clifford (one goal, one assist). Returning defenseman Bob Donovan collected an assist and played well on defense, as did Alleva. Manning's B's debut between the pipes anchored a strong defense which included Carmody, Tobin, Durocher and O'Donnell.

The second game showcased the other lines of rookie Pee Wee's as Casper sparked the B's with a hat trick and two assists in a 10-2 come-from-behind triumph over Norwood. Linemate Powers scored twice and added two assists while Craig's hustle and crisp passing resulted in three assists. Centering the other rookie line was Duggan, who netted two goals and earned assists on goals by linemates Maxey and Feldoff. Maxey also scored an unassisted goal and Ross collected a goal on a pass from Cooper.

Carmody picked up an assist from his point on the blue line and Durocher and O'Donnell stonewalled efforts by Norwood to regain its first-period lead. Manning settled down in net after two early Norwood goals, and with tough physical play from defenders Tobin, Alleva and Donovan held the opposition scorless the last two periods. Coaches Pat Clifford and Kevin Craig were impressed with the team's spirited play and hustle.

The next game resulted in a disappointing 2-2 tie against Belmont. The B's opened the scoring with a goal by Feldoff, assisted by Maxey. Cooper later scored from the slot after a great centering pass from Clifford. Despite an outstanding effort in net, Manning was unable to turn away breakaway goals by Belmont in the third period.

Squirt A's Top Somerville, Tie Up Charlestown, 5-5

Quincy Youth Hockey's Squirt A's opened up the season with a hard fought win over Somerville.

In a defensive struggle, Quincy took the lead in the first period on a slap shot from the point by blue liner Andrew Patten. Somerville battled back to the tie the score in the second period.

With less than four minutes to play in the game, "Big Mike" McKeon and Kevin Richardson broke out on a give and go, ending with Richardson sending a beautiful pass to McKeon, who beat the Somerville goaltender stick side low. Less than a minute later, Richardson broke out to score an insurance goal, shooting the puck top shelf.

Coach Richardson singled out blue liners Paul Noonan, Dave Oronte, Matt "Flash" Haskins and Patten for their fine play and noted the excellent back checking of Brendan Clifford, Pat Malone and Paul Graham.

In its second game, Quincy tied Charlestown Townies, 5-5, in a shootout. Quincy's Paul McLean opened the scoring with an unassisted goal. Richardson tallied the next two Quincy goals, the first unassisted and the second assisted by Patten and Haskins. The next goal was scored by McKeon, assisted by Matt Tobin. McKeon then returned the favor, setting up Tobin for the tying goal.

Quincy's coach was impressed with the overall play of Justin Thorley, Jonathan O'Connor and Alex Shaffer and goaltnder Pat "The Toaster" Maloney for repelling away numerous shots.

Glenn Segalla Plymouth State Athletic Hall Of Fame Member

Glenn Segalla, a 1981 graduate of North Quincy High School, was recently inducted into the Plymouth State College Athletic Hall of Fame along with his 1982 Plymouth State football teammates.

Segalla was an All-American linebacker on Plymouth State's 1982 team which posted a remarkable 10-0 record. The defense recorded six consecutive shutouts and allowed only 48 points the entire season. For its efforts, the Plymouth State team was honored with the Lambert Trophy as the Division II-III team in the East.

During Segalla's four-year career in which he started 42 consecutive games, the team compiled a 38-4 mark. Out of those 38 wins, the defense recorded 18 shutouts. Segalla finished his impressive college career with 338 tackles, eight sacks, seven interceptions and two touchdowns.

Lois Chase Honored For 25 Years Of Church Service

A celebration was held recently at First Baptist Church of Wollaston to honor Lois Chase for 25 years of dedicated secretarial and administration service.

The event was attended by 100 members and friends of the church and by Chase's family.

Among those attending were five present and former ministers and one seminary student, with all of whom she has worked: Rev. Charles McEachern, Rev. Lynn Smith, Rev. Richard Malmquist, Rev. Joseph O'Donnell, Rev. Gene Langevin and Patricia Grace Langevin, the student minister. Rev. Langevin is director of "The Way Up", a ministry to teenagers sponsored by the church.

Following dinner, the ministers and Muriel Hazel, moderator of the church and director of its "Cornerstone Campus" preschool, each gave a tribute to Chase. Mike Kent, church sexton, also spoke. Bob Cavallo was the emcee.

The choir sang an original song entitled "Lois" written by Amy Kehew. Ruth Nickerson presented her with a plaque commemorating her many years of service. Ruth Sanders presented her with several gifts from the congregation.

Attending were Chase's children Doug and Susan Tressel, Janice Morse, Steven and Suzanne Chase, and David Chase as well as 11 grandchildren.

George Paterson, Chase's brother, was also present.

The evening concluded with a dual benediction by Patricia Grace Langevin and Rev. Gene Langevin, who are brother and sister.

A Thought For The Week

DOORS... Ever think about how many doors you have passed through in your life? Silly question? Not really...

We all have seen the sign over certain doors in public buildings. "Exit" or "This Way Out." This designation over doors has a figurative as well as literal meaning. All of our lives, and particularly when we are young, we will be going through many doors. It can mean opportunity, service, and happiness when the doors lead into something beneficial. In this sense education and religion are doors which open to us new vistas of meaningful living...

But there are other doors which lead only to frustration and unhappiness. One of these doors opens the way to quick wealth by dishonest means; another to satisfying revenge; another to avarice and greed. It seems that the doors opening the way to experiences of this type are unfortunately much more numerous than those opening upon a happy life.

When we approach a door which we think will lead us to a new dimension of life, we should look up before we pass through... Above many will be the sign, "This Way Out."

Charles R. Herbert, 85
Former Public Works Commissioner

A funeral service for Charles R. Herbert, 85, former Quincy public works commissioner, was held yesterday (Wednesday) at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mr. Herbert died Oct. 24 at Quincy Hospital.

He served from 1948 until his retirement in 1967 as commissioner of the Quincy Department of Public Works.

At the time of his appointment by Mayor Charles Ross at the age of 35, he was one of the youngest men to ever hold that post. He had previously served several months as city engineer.

He established traffic control, citywide zoning, built or modernized 25 city structures, built miles of streets and sidewalks, and contracted for private garbage collection.

Protecting Our Environment

Worldwide Efforts

(NAPS)—The first step in planetary management is to find out exactly what is going wrong—and why—and whether it is getting worse. The second is to take this information to those who can do something about it.

Through research and education, the United Nations has made great progress in preserving our environment.

That's the philosophy behind the Action Plan for the Human Environment of the United Nations, which has worked to protect not only the people of the world but the world itself for 50 years.

Among the United Nations' programs for the environment is the Global Environmental Monitoring System or GEMS. It deals with atmosphere and climate, environmental pollution, renewable resources and environmental data. It publishes environmental data reports, biodiversity status reports and world resource reports, including up-to-date comprehensive lists of global environmental data.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

Nothing 'Earth-Shattering' In Housing Authority Report

An official at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has said a soon-to-be-released report on the Quincy Housing Authority contains no "earth-shattering" findings.

The statement was made by Mary Lou Crane, HUD regional director, last week. She added, however, that the report will include several recommendations for changes at the authority.

HUD did not release the report last Friday as expected, and at press time officials did not know exactly when it will be released.

Crane previously had stated the report would be out by the end of last week. However, HUD spokeswoman Jacqueline Roundtree said Friday that employees in HUD's public housing office in Boston were still completing the report and did not know whether it would be available anytime this week.

The report will cover a 10-month HUD review of the authority and its former executive director, John "Jake" Comer of Quincy, who retired in April after 15 years on the job.

Crane said the report will deal with such issues as Comer's reported hiring of friends and relatives and his absences from work to participate in veterans' activities.

Eastern Bank Corp. To Acquire Hibernia Savings

Eastern Bank Corporation has announced that a definitive agreement to acquire Emerald Isle Bancorp Inc. and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Quincy based The Hibernia Savings Bank, for $33 cash per share of common stock aggregating approximately $80 million.

The proposed acquisition, which has been approved by both companies' boards of directors and is subject to approval by Emerald's shareholders and various federal and state regulatory agencies, was announced by Stanley Lukowski, chairman, president and CEO of Eastern Bank Corporation and Mark Osborne, chairman, president and CEO of Emerald.

Eastern was granted an option to purchase up to 19.9 percent of Emerald's outstanding common stock, exercisable under certain circumstances.

Subject to all necessary approvals, the transaction is expected to be completed early in 1998.

Lukowski said, "I am very pleased that we have been able to successfully negotiate the acquisition of Hibernia Savings. We believe that the addition of Hibernia will provide us with the opportunity to deliver a wide array of new banking products and services to Hibernia's customer base in the same highly personalized and service-oriented manner they have delivered those services in the past."

Osborne said, "I am very pleased we will have the opportunity to join Eastern Bank and become part of their fine organization. We believe that the terms of the proposed transaction are advantageous to our stockholders. With the merger, Hibernia's customers will have the opportunity to avail themselves of a wider range of high-quality banking products

Former Mayor Francis McCauley and Michael McFarland won the vacant city council at-large and school committee seats and all incumbents were re-elected in Tuesday's city election.

Incumbents Paul Harold, 49, and Jo-Ann Bragg, 42, topped the council at-large and school committee fields respectively.

Mayor James Sheets, running unopposed for an historic third time, was re-elected to a fifth term and was Tuesday's top vote-getter.

Sheets racked up a vote of 14,659. There were 2,080 blanks and 250 write-ins.

The voter turnout was 33.4 percent with only 16,989 of the city's 50,989 voters going to the polls.

McCauley, 67, took the council at-large seat left vacant by Michael Cheney's decision not to seek re-election. He finished third behind Harold and incumbent Tim Cahill, 38.

Harold led the at-large field for the second time in a row as he piled up a robust 12,635 vote.

Cahill, winning his sixth term, polled 11,522. McCauley's vote was 7,989.

Unopposed For Fifth Term

David McGillicuddy, a 57-year-old retired telephone company executive making his debut for elective office, was runner-up with an impressive first time vote of 5,507. Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 67, a senior citizen advocate, finished fifth with 2,004 votes.

Bragg was the school committee front-runner with a vote of 9,641 to win a second term.

McFarland, Wollaston restaurant owner and former executive secretary to Mayor Sheets, making his first run for elective office won the second spot with 8,881 votes--760 votes behind Bragg.

Incumbent Ronald Mariano, 51, was the third place winner with 8,680 votes, 201 behind McFarland.

One of the three seats was vacated by McCauley who ran for councillor at-large.

Tracy Wilson, 28, a labor relations consultant, made an impressive political debut as runner-up with a strong 7,941 vote.

Kevin Coughlin, 42, a court assistant chief probation officer, also making his first run for elective office, was fifth with 4,777. John

Kid Voters Go With McGillicuddy, Wilson

The city's Kids' Vote election had some striking differences compared to the adult vote in Tuesday's election.

David McGillicuddy and Tracy Wilson were "elected" in their respective city council at-large and school committee Kids' Vote races.

Jo-Ann Bragg, who topped the school committee vote in the adult vote, finished fourth in the Kids' Vote.

Francis McCauley, who captured the third seat in the adult city council at-large contest, finished fourth in Kids' Vote.

Tim Cahill, a second place finisher in the adult vote, was the top vote getter in the Kids' Vote council at-large race.

There were some interesting similarities as well.

As with the adult vote, Mayor James A. Sheets was the top vote getter. Kids' Vote also chose the four contested incumbents over their challengers by comfortable margins.

Coincidentally, both the Kids' Vote and adult vote had identical 33.4 percent turnouts.

Here's how the Kids' Vote went:

Mayor James A. Sheets: 2,988 votes. The mayor was the leading vote getter.

Council at-Large : Cahill, 2,452; Paul Harold, 1,799; David McGillicuddy, 1,354.; Francis McCauley, 1,118; and Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 465.

School Committee: Tracy L. Wilson, 1,971; Michael McFarland, 1,471; Ronald Mariano, 1,439; Jo-Ann Bragg, 1,427; Kevin F. Coughlin, 937; John Rodophele, Jr., 253.

Ward 1 City Councillor: Peter V. Kolson, 676; Gretchen Grant, 163.

Ward 2 City Councillor: Daniel G. Raymondi, 341 (unopposed).

Ward 3 City Councillor: Patrick McDermott, 247; Linda L. Tracy, 82.

Ward 4 City Councillor: Michael J. D'Amico, 396; Stephen J. Hawko, 129.

Ward 5 City Councillor: Stephen J. Durkin, 338 (unopposed).

Ward 6 City Councillor: Bruce J. Ayers, 265; Brian F. McNamee, 160.

Seniors Receive 500 Free Smoke Detectors In Project SAFE

PROJECT SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) was recently held by Beechwood on the Bay with the assistance of 50 volunteers, including a dozen off-duty firefighters and 25 Quincy Rotary Club members. About 500 free smoke detectors were installed in the homes of nearly 200 Quincy seniors. From left are Rotary Club members Sharon Gamache and Lynne Houghton, Sparky the Fire Dog, Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

GOING OVER CHECKLIST for Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) are Deputy Fire Chief Paul Cuddy and Quincy Rotary Club member Don Uvanitte. Approximately 500 free smoke detectors were installed for Quincy seniors as part of the program, an extension of the city's elder home repair program run by Beechwood on the Bay.

In Certain Murders

Quincy Delegation Stands Firm For Death Penalty

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Members of Quincy's State House delegation are looking forward to the Massachusetts Senate and House of Representatives finalizing a bill that will bring the death penalty back to Massachusetts.

Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti all voted in favor of the House version of the bill passed last week by an 81-79 vote. Two weeks ago, Sen. Michael Morrissey supported a Senate version that passed 22-14.

A final bill must be forged by a conference committee comprised of three senators and three representatives--one of whom is Tobin--and then approved by the House and Senate. Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci will then sign the bill into law.

Quincy delegation members all said they feel the death penalty should exist in Massachusetts, at least for certain crimes.

Tobin is perhaps the most vocal Quincy advocate of the death penalty. His friend, Norwell State Trooper Mark Charbonnier, was gunned down while on duty in 1994.

"I do not believe that all cases of murder should be punished by the death penalty," said Tobin. "But these past few years, and especially these past few weeks, have made it obvious that some crimes are so atrocious and so offensive to society that the only just and applicable punishment for such crimes is the penalty of death."

Tobin added that he hopes the death penalty will help prevent violent crimes "so that we never really have to do it. I have studied the data that indicates there is significant deterrent value when a society possesses the means to implement such an extreme penalty."

"I appreciate full well that this will not stop all crimes, but it is a needed, appropriate step in the right direction," he said. "Mark Charbonnier was wearing his bullet-proof vest when he was killed. The death penalty would have given him an extra layer of protection, because you have to think about that as a possible consequence before you shoot someone."

He also addressed the issue of the possibility of an innocent person accidentally being put to death through the use of capital punishment.

"Advances in our justice system have embraced so many protections for criminal defendants," said Tobin. "The bill contains so many safeguards that there is no risk an innocent person will be sentenced to death."

Bellotti, noting that he has supported the death penalty since first elected in 1992, said, "I think society has a right to exact a price for horrific and atrocious murders. I think that the bill will pass Constitutional muster."

Cases of murder Bellotti said should be punished by death include those involving contract killers, sexual assault and abuse, torture and others.

He added that while he is not sure whether capital punishment will prevent murders from occurring, he still sees it as appropriate.

"I'm not convinced (it is a deterrent) one way or the other, and I'm not too concerned with it," said Bellotti. "I think it's a proper punishment for those types of murders."

Mariano said he wishes society had no need for the death penalty, but he thinks it does.

"Well, it's an extremely difficult issue to deal with," he said. "No one likes to think we have to have a death penalty. But I've had a strong feeling since elected that there's a place for the death penalty in our system of punishment.

Inspectional Services Director Sworn-In

Walter White of Milton was sworn-in to the position of Quincy's director of inspectional services during a City Hall ceremony last Friday.

White, 44, began work full-time on Monday. Previously, he served as local building inspector for the Town of Franklin.

White is also the founder and president of the Walter C. White Construction Company in Wollaston.

Mayor James Sheets, who named White to the position last month, voiced enthusiasm about the new inspector at Friday's ceremony, which was attended by White's family and a

Quincy D.A. Battleground

There apparently won't be a Quincy candidate for Norfolk County district attorney next year but there should be plenty of campaign action here.

The political stage has been set to make Quincy the main battleground for the Democratic nomination.

It was set when Norfolk County Commissioner William O'Donnell of Norwood, a former assistant district attorney, recently made it official: he is running for the district attorney post.

O'DONNELL

That puts him the in the field with state Senator William Keating of Sharon and Jack Corrigan of Brookline, a former assistant district attorney.

Although there are no Quincy candidates in the picture there will be a hot side battle here.

O'Donnell's entry means two of Quincy's top Democrats will be pitted against one another trying to deliver the crucial Quincy vote. Along with the vital Weymouth, Braintree and Milton vote.

County Commissioner John Gillis, a long-time popular former city clerk, is in O'Donnell's corner.

GILLIS

Senator Michael Morrissey lined up with Keating early this year as did some other local Democrats.

But Morrissey seems to be the most visibly active in Keating's campaign. So active that whenever you see Morrissey at a local function, you expect to see Keating standing beside him. And you often do.

MORRISSEY

Gillis has been seen around the area frequently with O'Donnell at his side. And now, he has officially endorsed him.

Gillis is also heading up O'Donnell's campaign in Quincy and the surrounding key communities.

Gillis, who serves with O'Donnell on the Norfolk County Commission, says that O'Donnell's courtroom experience in the district attorney's office and his management abilities as a commissioner "make him the right man for the job."

Gillis and other Quincy friends including former Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke are hosting a campaign kick-off reception for O'Donnell Tuesday, Nov. 18, 6 to 9 p.m., at Raffael's, 1 Enterprise Dr. Tickets are $50. (For more information, call Tom Burke at 479-2086.)

Democrats held the district attorney's office for 30 years between George Burke and William Delahunt until the latter went off to Washington as a Congressman in January. Then Gov. William Weld appointed Republican Jeffrey Locke to fill out the term.

Both Delahunt and Burke came out of Quincy's Ward 5.

Whoever wins the post next year won't be from Quincy. But Quincy will have a big say in deciding who it will be.

CONGRATULATIONS to Roy Lind of WJDA for being selected as the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post "Citizen of the Year."

LIND

Roy humbly received the award--the 47th annual--at a full-house breakfast Sunday at Beth Israel Synagogue.

Keynote speaker Ken Fallon, his long-time friend and colleague, Jay Asher, who now heads the station, Councillor Dan Raymondi, Rabbi Jacob Mann, Post Commander Bertrand Shaffer and Program Chairman Irving Issacson praised Lind for his community service. And a son, Jim recited a touching poem he had written in honor of his father.

To which I would like to add: Roy comes through on radio and off the air as someone you'd like to have as a next door neighbor.

Incidentally, Roy turned 65 Wednesday and already has his Medicare card. But good news for his listeners: he's not retiring.

WJDA was also honored Sunday for its 50 years of service to the Quincy-South Shore community.

And Rabbi Mann had them laughing as he recalled the early days of the station.

Mann remembered the day he went to the old Quincy Motor Company on Quincy Ave., to get two snow tires. Owner Leo Darr said he would take care of him on the price.

MANN

Jim Asher, Jay's father who founded WJDA, happened to be there with Darr. Probably selling him a commercial.

"Tell you what," Asher said to Darr. "You give him one and I'll give the other one."

And, they did.

"It's too bad," Mann deadpanned Sunday, "I didn't go in there for four tires."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS is a 1907 POSTCARD view of the old St. Francis by the Sea Catholic Church in Houghs Neck. The church was near the corner of Winthrop Street and Manet Avenue. This view is toward the south. Established in 1893 as a mission church of St. John's in Quincy Center, it served the summer visitors to this then popular resort area. They tore this building down in 1919 after the completion of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church at Sea and Darrow Streets.

Hedges To Rehire Fired Deputies

By PAUL HAROLD

Sen. Charles Hedges, the newly elected Norfolk County sheriff, announced he would re-hire the 11 deputy sheriffs fire by Sheriff Peter McCormack.

McCormack of Brookline, the first Democratic sheriff in the history of the county, had been appointed to fill a vacancy by Gov. Foster Furcolo. The 11 deputies refused to work for McCormack's election and were fired. Two from Quincy were William Abbott and Louis Bolea.

HURRICANE DONNA COST CITY $13,500

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced the recent Hurricane Donna cost the city $13,500. Of this, $2,500 was for overtime pay with the remaining costs for equipment and stump removal.

The mayor said DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert and Auditor Alexander Smith were still compiling the final costs, but noted that by the temporary transfer of city employees for the clean up, $38,000 was saved from the gross cost of $51,500.

NQHS STUDENTS RAISE $160 FOR UF

Students at NQHS did their share for the city's United Fund campaign by raising $160. Principal John Walsh said it was important for students to participate in community endeavors.

Participating in the assembly where the check was presented were fund chairman Larry Antonelli, student council president Paul Riley and student council faculty adviser Murray Roberts.

Other students involved in the fund-raising were Rona VanDerMolen, student council vice president; Joseph O'Donnell, president of the Key Club; Stephen Gomes, president of the Varsity Club; Carolyn D'Angelo, president of the Girls' Club; and Gus Andrews, president of the senior class.

Opposes Supermarkets Selling Beer And Wine

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Well, Shaw's Supermarket in North Quincy wants to sell beer and wine.

At an October meeting, the Rev. Steve Dean from the Church of the Nazarene in Wollaston was the lone witness telling city licensing officials that beer and wine at Shaw's "sends a damaging message" to children. "When we throw alcohol in with the bread and cereal, we send a very confusing message," he said.

The hearing was continued until Nov. 18 at the request of Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin. However, I feel the delay is just that, a delay. How can the city's License Board not grant Shaw's the right to sell beer and wine since this same board already gave the new Super Stop & Shop on Newport Ave. the right to do so?

The Licensing Board certainly can't deny Shaw's the right to sell beer and wine on the basis of community opposition because the community over in the Montclair-Wollaston neighborhood fought Stop & Shop and lost at City Hall. The Licensing Board certainly can't deny Shaw's the right to sell beer and wine at their North Quincy store because Stop & Shop is already selling these items on nearby Newport Avenue.

I opposed granting the new Super Stop & Shop on Newport Avenue the right to sell beer and wine but once the Licensing Board allowed Stop & Shop the right to sell beer and wine, they opened the alcohol floodgates.

If City Hall denies Shaw's the right to do what Super Stop & Shop was grant, you can bet the corporate lawyers at Shaw's Supermarkets will be busy planning a court fight and in the end, Shaw's will win.

Personally, I don't think supermarkets should be selling beer and wine. I agree with Rev. Steve Dean and with community activist Kevin Coughlin from Montclair who led the last fight against Stop & Shop on Newport Avenue. I also believe when large supermarket chains start selling beer and wine, it impacts upon smaller neighborhood liquor stores. Quincy could be putting many small business people out of work. City Hall ought to be protecting Quincy businesses.

The city's Licensing Board made a mistake granting Super Stop & Shop on Newport Ave. the right to sell beer and wine against the surrounding community's opposition. Didn't they realize you can't give one supermarket the right without granting it to all the others?

Enjoying The Gift Of Life

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I've just endured a living hell and, miraculously, have been given the "gift of life." It all started Tuesday, Sept. 30 about 7 p.m. at home, 17 Sherman St., Wollaston, when I crashed to the floor in a coma.

Fortunately, my daughter Nancy heard the crash or I would have wound up in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery. Nancy called 911 for help and, thankfully, Quincy Police Sgt. Danny Kennedy, a next-door neighbor was tuned in to his police radio. Danny did a fabulous job, calling ambulances and police and fire department emergency crews.

They responded in no time at all and the wheels to save my life had started turning. Then the call went out to Quincy Hospital surgeons on call, and (lucky me!) two of the most gifted surgeons in the region responded. Namely, Michael P. Murphy and Dr. Donaldson, both of whom are affiliated with both Brigham and Women's and Quincy Hospital.

The skilled Dr. Murphy was in charge of the four-and-a-half hours of major surgery on an old geezer just two months shy of 90 and, although he later admitted that twice he thought he was losing me, the valiant efforts of both surgeons and the all-important crew of assistants paid off and I was given the "gift of life"....for a while, at least. My primary care physician, Dr. Richard Marquis kept my daughter informed all during the crucial proceedings and did yeoman service.

The awesome task confronting my daughters consisted of an abdominal aortic aneurysm which had ruptured. I was released from Quincy Hospital on Friday, Oct. 10 and I'm getting rehab help here at home. My 90th birthday on Nov. 27 happens to fall on Thanksgiving Day this year. My thanks for all your good wishes.

Just imagine how many wonderfully dedicated people all collaborated to save my life and, if just one person missed his or her assignment, I would not be here today. God bless you all.

Statue, History Paint Different Pictures

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The copper sculpture next to the First Parish Church is a recent addition to Quincy Square. It depicts Abigail Adams holding young John Quincy Adams' hand in a moment of shared intimacy as the two stare off into the distance.

I personally like this statue as it conjures up images of primordial Quincy when the city was just a small village at the edge of the wilderness and not the big city it is today.

A recent review of Paul Nagel's new book on John Quincy Adams characterizes their relationship as anything but intimate. It seems that mother and son didn't get along well during their lifetimes and that when Abigail Adams died, her son John Quincy didn't even bother to attend her funeral.

How ironic, then, to see a statue of the two bonding together when the historical evidence at hand paints a different picture.

The reason there is no "J" street in Washington, D.C. is because "J" as written during the eighteenth century, was often confused with other letters of the alphabet, particularly "I."

Veal Cacciatore Or 'Veal Catch'

Usually Sunday dinner at our place consists of some kind of pasta and either a cutlet, meatball or sausage to go with it.

Last Sunday I changed the menu and cooked veal cacciatore. (for short we call it veal catch) I still poured it over pasta, but my husband opted for crusty bread instead. We thought we'd have leftovers for the next day, but during the day members of the family took care of that!

Veal Cacciatore
1 pound veal for stew (we purchase it at Roxie's)
1 can crushed tomatoes
1 large red pepper (cut up)
1 large green pepper (cut up)
1 stalk celery (cut at angle)
2 medium carrots (cut at angle)
1 small onion (chopped)
2 or 3 cloves of garlic (chopped)
3 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup of either sherry or white wine
grated romano or parmesan cheese

In hot oil, saute the onion, garlic and add the veal turning until veal slightly browns. Add the wine and cook for another few minutes (covered). Add the rest of the ingredients (except grated cheese) and simmer for about an hour turning over once in a while. I served it over bow ties, and grated cheese, but any favorite pasta or rice is fine. The veal was so tender, you could cut it with a fork.

HARD-CORE PROTECTION

Next time you develop a hard, painful corn, treat it with tenderness. After all, corns are usually just the feet's way of trying to protect themselves from such abuses as the friction of poorly fitting shoes or misaligned toes. A corn starts to from when persistent friction causes the blood supply to increase to a given spot on the foot. This speeds up the production of corn cells, which then multiply to form a protective shield against the friction. Over time, a hard central core forms inside the corn, killing the healthy cells below in a cone shape. The larger the foot, the deeper the point of this hard cone extends into the foot. Treatment may range from changing footwear to surgical removal.

HINT: Never try to trim a corn's hard tissue yourself. It is too easy to cut normal tissue, inviting infection.

A podiatrist treats all foot and heel ailments ranging from onychomycosis, corns and calluses, to intermetatarsal neuroma, fractures, and problems caused by one's biomechanics. Whenever you need advice on foot care, take a step in the right direction and consult a podiatrist. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300). Remember, good foot health can enhance your daily existence and improve your quality of life.

Proparvulis Club To Mark 75th Anniversary Nov. 15

By ELEANOR REIDY

The Proparvulis Club of Boston Inc., in which Quincy residents are members and have served as president, is going to celebrate its 75th anniversary Nov. 15 at the Woodland Country Club in Auburndale.

Dorothy Collins-Robinson of Needham, who served as president from 1986 to 1987 is chairperson, assisted by the present president, Kathleen Hoyt of Milton and an Advisory Board made up of past presidents.

Proparvulis was organized in 1922 under the direction of Rev. George P. O'Conor, then director of the Boston Catholic Bureau, to assist him in raising funds for the needy children of Boston, specifically, in support of the camp known as Sunset Point Vacation House in Hull. In time, children from the suburbs were included.

Presently, children from many areas of Boston of every race, color or creed are among the happy campers at Sunset Point for 10 days during the summer vacation and some of the children return each year for several years. They are children from troubled homes and they and their families receive counseling from agencies recommended by the Boston Catholic Charitable Bureau.

Proparvulis has been recognized during these 75 years by its motto "having fun whole doing good." A record of their unusual, successful fund-raising activities has been collected in a collage which a pictorial review of the events of the past 75 years made by Eleanor Reidy, Mary Boethel and Theresa Sabean. It will be one of the highlights shown at the Woodland Country Club for this milestone of Proparvulis.

The day will begin with a Mass at the club concelebrated by the club's spiritual director, Msgr. Eugene McNamara of St. Mary's Church in Scituate, with the Most Rev. Francis X. Irwin, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Boston; Msgr. Philip Kearney, former spiritual director of Proparvulis and the Rev. George Emerson of St. Steven's Church in Framingham. Luncheon and entertainment will follow.

Area residents who have served as Proparvulis presidents are: Edna Abbiatti, Mary Boethel, Rose Ciccolo, Dorea Concannon, Mary Coveney, Eileen Crowley, Mary Flaherty, Marion Lynch, Helena Mansfield, Eleanor Reidy and Elaine Reynolds.

[Eleanor M. Reidy served as Proparvulis president from 1989 to 1990. She is a lector at St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy and is a Eucharistic minister to the home bound.]

Mark D. Furbish has joined the Army under the Delayed Entry Program at the U.S. Army Recruiting Station in Quincy.

The program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year before reporting to basic military training.

The enlistment gives the new soldier the option to learn a new skill, travel and become eligible to receive as much as $40,000 toward a college education. After completion of basic training, soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career specialty.

Furbish enlisted in the Delayed Entry Program in September. He will report to Fort Sill in Lawton, Okla. for basic training and subsequently receive advanced individual training as a line of sight-forward-heavy crew member at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas.

His parents are Lawrence M. Furbish of 45 Deldorf St. and Rebbecca A. Long of 1458 Sea St., both of Quincy.

Dr. Claire Fung

SOUTH SUBURBAN ONCOLOGY CENTER
Welcomes
CLAIRE Y. FUNG, M.D.

Dr. Tania Lingos

South Suburban Oncology Center (SSOC) is proud to welcome radiation oncologist Dr. Claire Fung to its medical team. A specialist in treating cancer with radiation, she brings with her a wealth of expertise in the fight against cancer and in helping patients.

"Dr. Fung is a brilliant physician and an exceptionally caring doctor. She will be an enormous asset to cancer patients and their families on the South Shore," said Dr. Tania Lingos, Medical Director of SSOC.

A graduate of Yale University and Harvard Medical School, Dr. Fung was trained in radiation oncology at Massachusetts General Hospital. She is certified by the American Board of Radiology and by the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine. She joins SSOC from Massachusetts General Hospital where she remains on staff as a Radiation Oncologist.

In addition to her skills as a physician, Dr. Fung is also a medical instructor and a cancer researcher. She teaches radiation oncology at Harvard Medical School and Boston University School of Medicine.

As a clinical researcher, Dr. Fung has published widely on innovative radiation treatment strategies and has been a frequent participant in national and international medical conferences. In 1993, she was named Chief of Lymphoma Service, Radiation Oncology Unit, Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Fung is a member of the American Medical Association and the American Society of Therapeutic Radiology and Oncology. She is excited about reaching out to cancer patients on the South Shore and working at SSOC.

"As a physician, my priority is to give my patients world-class care. At SSOC, I can do that because the Center offers cancer patients a top-quality, state-of-the-art option for radiation treatment. I am eager to be a part of such a dynamic medical team," Dr. Fung said.

Dr. Fung can be reached at South Suburban Oncology Center, located at 700 Congress Street, Crown Colony Office Park, Quincy at the intersections of Routes 3, 128, and 93. Her internet address is cfung@ssocpo.shields.com and her telephone number is (617) 471-3700.

South Suburban Oncology Center is a joint venture of Quincy Hospital, South Shore Hospital and Shields Oncology Services. The tertiary affiliate of SSOC is Massachusetts General Hospital.

QHS, Nellie Mae Partnership Starts Third Year

Quincy High School and the Nellie Mae Fund for Education--the philanthropic arm of student loan provider Nellie Mae--have united to increase students' and families' access to post-secondary education and support faculty professional development opportunities.

The third year of the Quincy High School/Nellie Mae Partnership kicked off with a recent orientation program.

Nellie Mae President Lawrence O'Toole and Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill spoke at the orientation, which also included testimonials from Nellie Mae and Quincy High School staff. A broad range of innovative programs and events, including career seminars, college campus tours computer workshops and fellowships, were also announced to the audience.

"There's a lot of enthusiasm behind this year's program," said Nellie Mae Fund for Education Director Sylvia Salas. "The students and staff really enjoy and learn from the variety of events created for them. We've gotten a lot of positive feedback from students who participated in the past--the guidance the program provides has proven to be extremely influential in their lives."

Since its inception in 1990, NMFE has awarded more than $3 million to more than 200 organizations. Additionally, Nellie Mae has provided almost $4 billion in funding to 1 million students in both federally and privately-sponsored education loan programs. Nellie Mae and NMFE are headquartered in Braintree.

Nellie Mae is the largest non-profit provider of federal and private education loan program funds in the country, with combined assets of more than $2 billion. Nellie Mae's commitment to improving access to education through the provision of higher education financing has helped more than 1 million students and parents across the country find affordable ways to pay for college.

Quincy Dentist First To Introduce Laser Drilling

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For those who fret visiting the dentist for a filling, your worries are over, now that a new product has been introduced that avoids the "numb face" and "droopy lips" commonly associated with fillings.

This recent technological advancement, called the Centauri Erbium:YAG Dental Laser System, was created by Premier Laser Systems, Inc. in California and is the first of its kind in the U.S., with 40 machines distributed throughout the country.

The first dentist in New England to test out the laser system was Dr. Stephen P. MacDonald, D.M.D., of MacDonald Dental, a family dental practice located at 770 Hancock St., Wollaston.

"When the Food & Drug Administration (FDA) approved it in May, I called the company's sales representative, thinking it sounded good enough to try," said Dr. MacDonald, who began using the laser system last month. "Since using the new system, every patient who has a filling done with the laser said they like it better than a filling done with an injection. They have no problem at all with the laser, since it works so well."

What do patients like most about the laser system?

"Without question, it's the fact that you don't need an injection," said Dr. MacDonald, 37, who has been practicing dentistry in Quincy since graduating from Tufts University School of Dental Medicine in 1987. "That is the biggest concern they have and now that it is out of the way, patients are more relaxed and at ease when they come in for fillings."

Another positive aspect of the laser is the absence of vibration and the sound of the drill, resulting in less anxiety for the patient.

"The laser is not anywhere near as noisy as the drill, which bothered a lot of patients," said Dr. MacDonald. "It's quiet and easy on the ears, which helps both the patient and myself."

On the occasion that the patients feel the laser coming in contact with a sensitive area, Dr. MacDonald can adjust the setting and finish the procedure.

Using the laser in place of the drill also decreases the amount of tooth to be removed, said Dr. MacDonald, and leaves more surface area for the bonding to bond with the tooth.

"With the laser, I can do a conservative tooth preparation and not take as much tooth structure out," he said. "Now, I can take out where the decay is and fill in the grooves with tooth-colored material, which has been improved recently and is ideal. Patients love it."

While the laser, which is shaped like a pen, saves time on small to moderate size fillings, it cannot be used on all teeth, due to the delicate nature of the delivery system.

"There are a good number we can use it on, but because of the delivery system's setup, it's hard to get to the back teeth with it," said Dr. MacDonald. "Fortunately, it works really well on the front teeth."

If a tooth is a candidate for laser cavity preparation, Dr. MacDonald first explains to the patient how the laser works and what its advantages are over a conventional drill.

"If they don't like it, and no one has yet," he said, "we can do it the old way."

Now that we know the laser's advantages, how does it work?

"The laser is set at a certain wavelength, where it vaporizes water into the tooth," said Dr. MacDonald. "When it does this, the water wants to escape from the tooth and when it does get out, it makes a popping noise.

"The sound is an acoustic wave that actually breaks the tooth all around the water vapor. The laser also vaporizes and kills bacteria it comes in contact with, leaving less chance of any decay being left behind."

Recalling the first time he used the laser, Dr. MacDonald remembers "it was amazing. Drilling on a live tooth without numbing first--I never thought this would happen."

A lifelong Milton resident, Dr. MacDonald lives with his wife, Andrea, who is expecting the couple's first child in January. His father, Dr. Colin F. MacDonald, D.M.D, also a Tufts Dental School graduate, has been serving the South Shore since 1956.

"My father bought a house in Milton and wanted a practice nearby," said Dr. MacDonald. "He walked down Hancock Street, saw this building and loved it. He called the owner, bought it and has been here ever since.

"We both really like the Wollaston area. They have improved fixed up Wollaston Center and made it look nice. We have half our patients from Quincy, with the rest from Milton, South Boston and Braintree."

MacDonald Dental also practices general dentistry, oral surgery, periodontics (gum work), restorative (fillings), crowns and bridges, endodontia (root canals) and tooth whitening.

Dr. MacDonald, who also holds a degree from Trinity College in Connecticut, has always been interested in new approaches and technology in the field of dentistry.

"I like to try new things and see how they work. Laser technology for fillings is the wave of the future and I'm excited to be on the cutting edge."

DR. STEPHEN P. MacDONALD of MacDonald Dental, 770 Hancock St., Wollaston, was the first dentist in New England to purchase a new laser system which can perform fillings without injections or drilling. Here, Dr. MacDonald demonstrates the new laser technology to patient Kate Kinsella.

Alzheimer's Assn. Plans Activities

Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed November as Alzheimer's Awareness Month, announces the Quincy Alzheimer's Association at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

The association, sponsored by Beechwood and supported by the City of Quincy and community fundraisers, provides a wide range of services to those impacted by Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders.

Special programming is scheduled at the center throughout the month. Support group meetings and all activities are open to all at no charge.

Events include:

•"Complaints of a Dutiful Daughter," a video presentation, to be shown tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m.

•"Helping Families Take Control," a special program featuring Dr. Paul Raia, Ph.D., director of patient care and family support at the Massachusetts Alzheimer's Association. Call 471-5712 for more information.

•Special videos and discussions for family and friends looking for insight about caregiving on Nov. 20.

Year-round programs sponsored by the Alzheimer's Association at Beechwood include a "Helpline," support groups, training and information meetings, safe return medical bracelets (in partnership with the Quincy Police Department), and fundraising activities for research.

For more information, call Mary Centola at 471-5712.

Two Residents Enrolled In Boston Choir School

Robert Olsen and Matthew Tobin, both of Quincy, have enrolled in the fifth grade class in the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School in Harvard Square.

FEED A COLD, STARVE A – WHAT?

As long-standing medical myths go, it is one of the classics: Feed a cold, starve a fever. Or is it the other way around? The fact is that neither is true. When you are sick--whether with a case of the sniffles or chills--it is critical to maintain adequate nutrition and fluid levels. As the body temperature rises, so do the metabolism, heart, and respiratory rates. These increase a person's need for sustenance, particularly fluids. So if you are hungry while battling a cold or fever, by all means eat. It is usually best to stick with clear, caffeine-free drinks and bland, starchy foods; avoid dairy products, raw fruits and vegetables, and fatty foods.

P.S. Another myth is that milk products increase congestion and mucus production. They do not.

Sticking to easy-to-digest foods, such as potatoes or pasta, brings comfort to the sick and sustenance to the body. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

Juvenile Justice Summit Nov. 14

Norfolk District Attorney Jeffrey Locke and Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of Quincy College, announce the upcoming Juvenile Justice Summit to be held Nov. 14.

The summit will be an opportunity to bring together community leaders--the courts, the schools, the police--and create partnerships to address juvenile crime and violence.

"The time has come to increase the dialogue, inventory our resources, find out what is new and innovative, and develop a comprehensive agenda to meet the ever-demanding needs of our county's greatest resource--our children", said Locke.

The summit will be held at the Randolph Holiday Inn in Randolph with a luncheon at Lantana and will highlight a keynote address by Dr. Susan Pauker at the Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Foundation. Dr. Pauker founded the "Think Twice" Program, which encourages teens to recognize the consequences of their actions before it is too late.

The agenda for the day will include two panels of speakers, one to update attendees on the recent changes in juvenile law, and a second to introduce innovative ideas that are currently being implemented in Norfolk County. Break-out groups will be created to review sample cases. It is Locke's hope that this will enable peers to interact and discuss current issues facing teens in the home, the schools and the community, breaking ground for Juvenille Justice Roundtables, which will begin to meet in Norfolk County in January.

Both Locke and Ryan believe that by working together with county leaders and professionals that we can prevent juvenile delinquency and violent crime, and "ensure Justice for Juveniles."

NQHS Senior's Essay Published In Textbook

An essay by North Quincy High School senior James T. Cheung entitled "Coming to America" has been published in a school literature textbook series by Harcourt Brace and Co.

The book, Elements of Literature, will be used in thousands of schools in the country, beginning this year.

At age 9, Cheung came to Quincy with his parents from Hong Kong and was enrolled in Grade 4 at Montclair with the encouragement of Mrs. Grace Gapheart. who has since retired. At Atlantic Middle School, he joined the Young Writer's Program and wrote an article which appeared in the school's literary magazine. Impressed by the story, a reader submitted it to the publisher.

"It was a happy surprise," said Cheung, who credits his success to his English and E.S.L. teachers, like Nancy Johnston of Atlantic Middle School, not himself. "I am also grateful to N.Q.H.S. teachers Mr. (Louis) DeMarco and Mrs. (Susan) Reilly who continue to motivate and challenge me to develop my writing skills."

O'Donnell Favors Reinstatement Of Capital Punishment

Norfolk County Commissioner William O'Donnell, a candidate for district attorney, favors capital punishment and says if it is reinstated he would use it "aggressively when appropriate."

The Norwood Democrat says: "no matter where I go in Norfolk County, be it Quincy, Weymouth, Needham, Dedham, Bellingham, or my hometown of Norwood, the one question I am asked is what is my position on capital punishment. While respecting those who disagree, I believe bringing back the option of capital punishment is essential. One of the top priorities of a District Attorney is to have swift, effective, aggressive prosecutions of violent criminals, especially those who commit murder. We need to back our law enforcement personnel who are in the front lines protecting our communities against these violent criminals. The priority of public safety is enhanced with an option of capital punishment."

O'Donnell said, "if capital punishment is voted affirmatively by the legislature and signed into law by the Governor, I would use this tool aggressively when appropriate."

The meeting will feature the inaugural Ward 5 Citizen of the Year Award. In addition, the association will present "High 5" awards to those who have contributed to the group's success this past year. Special service and volunteer awards also will be presented.

Special guest speaker will be Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Society, who will give a presentation of Ward 5's history.

The meeting will also feature a raffle awarding gift certificates to local eateries and businesses, as well as tickets to major sporting events. Tickets may be purchased that evening. Proceeds will benefit the operating costs of the association.

The association also will hold its election of officers for 1998. The four incumbents are: Douglas Gutro, president; Joseph Mulvey, vice president; Dave Murphy, secretary and Cathleen Kyle, treasurer. All are running unopposed for their positions.

The event will include the 60th annual installation of officers and directors at 6 p.m., a social hour at 7 p.m., and a full course dinner that costs $28 per person at 8 p.m.

Attendees will be able to socialize with fellow realtors, affiliates, special guests, family members and friends. Gift donations will be accepted and may be brought to the party.

Reservations must be made by Nov. 13. For more information, contact the SSAR at 62 Derby St., Suite 6-7, Hingham, MA 02043 or call 741-8181.

Habitat Party Raises $5,000 For 'House That Jill Built'

One of the eight to 10 homes South Shore Habitat for Humanity is planning to build in Quincy Point as part of the Granite Village subdivision will be built by an all-female crew.

The kickoff fundraiser, held recently at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, raised approximately $5,000 for that home.

The House that Jill Built is one of three homes in the Granite Village project that Habitat will begin construction in November. The cocktail party-auction, called "Raising the Roof," raised a portion of the $57,000 needed to build the House That Jill Built.

The House that Jill Built is Habitat's first all-woman built house. South Shore Habitat for Humanity is an ecumenical, Christian ministry dedicated to building homes in partnership with South Shore families in need. Ten Quincy families will be housed in decent shelter as a result of the Granite Village project.

All of the women who have contributed to the House that Jill Built were commended by the city of Quincy through a certificate of recognition presented at the cocktail party.

"The Certificate of Recognition is hereby given to all those to contributed to the House that Jill Built in their successful efforts of uniting women of all ages, mothers, daughters, sisters, grandmothers and aunts. Women from all walks of life from professional business women, skilled tradeswomen, office workers, teachers, nurses, housewives and retirees. "Our city would like to express its sincere appreciation for helping a family in need, a family who otherwise would never have had a chance to become a homeowner," Mayor James Sheets wrote to the Jill Built committee.

South Shore Habitat invites any woman interested in the project to call the Habitat office at 781-843-9080 for details on volunteering. No experience is necessary.

Storm Cleanup Tips

- Before you begin to cleanup, analyze your surroundings. If there are downed power lines, you must call in professional utility workers. Do not go near such lines until you have verified that power is cut off.
- Do not operate a chain saw when you are overtired. Take frequent breaks. Fatigue may result in loss of control of the saw.
- Remember to always use protective apparel such as sturdy footwear, snug-fitting clothing, protective gloves, and eye, ear, and head protection.
- Make sure the area in which you are cutting is free of bystanders and animals.
- Do not start cutting until you have a clear work area, secure footing, and a planned retreat path.
- Use extreme caution when cutting small size brush and saplings because slender material may catch the saw chain and be whipped toward you or pull you off balance.
- When cutting a limb that is under tension, be alert for spring back so that you will not be struck when the tension in the wood fibers is released. Cut in small increments in several places to release such tension slowly.
- When sawing, be sure that the saw chain does not touch any foreign materials such as rocks, fences, or nails. Such objects can be flung off, damage the saw chain, or cause the saw to kick back.
- Never "drop start" a chain saw.
- Try to untangle and drag logs into a clear area before cutting.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

Don't Get Tied Up In Power Cords

by Herb King

(NAPS)—In a concerted effort to save money, more and more people are undertaking home-repair projects themselves. However, in counting costs, neither the home handy person nor the professional construction worker should cut corners when it comes to safety.

Herb King

According to industry experts, there are more than 143,000 power tool injuries each year. Many of these are due to accidents involving power cords that short out, shock or simply trip up the user.

A new safety device can not only cut down on potential hazards, but also extend the life of power tools by protecting electrical cords. The King Safety Products' Cord Saver™ is just right for the job, whether at home or on a construction site.

The plastic-coated, stainless-steel safety cable, properly installed on a power tool, prevents breaks in the power cord that can cause shocks and shorts. It also enhances personal safety by allowing the handyman to use both hands while climbing up or down a ladder or scaffold.

Don't raise or lower a power tool by its cord! Use a Cord Saver™. It frees your hands as you climb up or down.

Now you don't have to choose between yourself or your investment in power tools: the stainless steel cable holds the weight.

The sturdy construction of the device gives it the strength to support all hand-held power tools, such as drills, saws and staplers. It can accommodate power cords of up to ten feet in length.

At a suggested retail price of $12.99, the Cord Saver™ will pay for itself many times over by eliminating the need to repair or replace damaged do-it-yourself or heavy-duty, professional power tools and cords.

It also makes a great gift for the home handyman, the perfect addition to the well-stocked tool box. The Cord Saver™ is available at hardware and home centers throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Color Affects Us In Surprising Ways

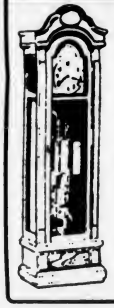
(NAPS)—Color has more influence on our emotional well-being than people might think. That's why choosing the right colors for the rooms in your home is vital to making it a comfortable place to live.

SHADES OF GREEN, BLUE, RED, GRAY, WARM NEUTRALS AND WHITE—A little color can go a long way. Decide how you want a room to make you feel, and color it accordingly.

Each of us has individual tastes in color, often with associations attached to them. From early on, we surround ourselves with the colors to which we have attachments, based on experience. That's why we select colors that make us feel at ease and that reflect our personality.

Color also helps create moods, which is why different colors are preferred for each room in a house. Blues and greens are restful colors for bedrooms and baths while yellow can add energy to the kitchen.

The bathroom, perhaps the most intimate of spaces, is clearly an appropriate place to express your individuality. Likewise, the kitchen, where we gather with our closest family and friends, is where color can help share who we are.



Unfortunately, coordinating colors for the home is often seen as a difficult task.

One company has taken steps to make it easy for homeowners to decorate their homes with colors that suit their style. Kohler Co., a leading plumbingware manufacturer, and a pioneer in color coordinated fixtures, has accomplished this by offering a color palette that reflects consumers' emotional attachment to color.

The color choices are grouped into families, arranged by shades of green, blue, red, gray, warm neutrals and whites. For example, the white group offers nine varying hues which range from pure and soft to warm and textured, allowing a high level of personal expression. French country or urban chic is possible with the blue group which incorporates seven hues ranging from a luminescent iron cobalt to a crisp skylight.

This new approach allows consumers to see how colors can be coordinated and to make a choice that makes their house feel like a home. For information on Kohler's color offering, call 1-800-456-4537.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that Fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.

2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.

3) Try to keep your back straight and, whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges, or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Olde Bostonian's Top Priority: Preserving Architectural Antiques

By LIAM FITZGERALD

In the market for architectural antiques to give your modern home an Old Victorian look?

Then stop by Olde Bostonian, a business that has preserved and refinished doors, windows, mantels and cabinets, among other items which date back a few centuries, for the past 17 years.

"We specialize in stripping and refinishing, making whatever piece it is, no matter how old, look brand new," said David Greenwood of Quincy, owner of Olde Bostonian, located at 66 Von Hillern St., Dorchester. "It's all about beautifying the house; that's our main objective."

Greenwood and his experienced, knowledgeable staff focus on recovering the antique's original beauty while ridding it of harmful lead residue.

"That's one of the biggest things, making things lead-free, because most dust from doors is lead dust, which is how kids have gotten sick," he said. "Everything we do is environmentally sound; all the waste goes to the right place."

While the Olde Bostonian staff specializes in doors, windows, mantels and cabinets, it can beautify any antique item, regardless of age or wear.

"We can do anything the customer wants," said Greenwood. "Old windows, old mirrors, stained-glass windows, French glass doors, columns, ornamental items, posts, cement work, marble mantels, old Clawfoot bathtubs, shutters, rot-iron fencing, anything for the house."

Olde Bostonian also has hard-to-find antiques available for purchase, some of which date back 250 years.

"You can't get an old set of pocket doors elsewhere," he said. "From a house in Canton that was built in 1742, we saved the thin wood doors, along with the additions that were made in 1860."

For those interested in antiques who are unsure of where to begin, Greenwood invites anyone with questions to visit the business or call him at 282-9300. Olde Bostonian is open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

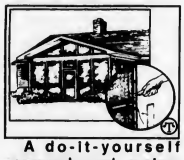
"A lot of people who come in aren't sure how to do what they want done," he said. "When they come by, we help them out, give them information and lend our expertise.

"Some just stop in for ideas and suggestions, which we're happy to give. They'll tell their friends about us, which is good public relations for the business."

With clients from all over the state, including a number of contractors and homeowners, there's not much time for Greenwood and his staff to relax.

"We're pretty busy all year, which I like," he said. "The five guys I have working with me have all been around about 14-15 years, so I know they can handle the workload."

Greenwood recalled a well-known client who purchased 15 antique doors for a home she was having built in Martha's Vineyard.



"Judy Blume, who has written many children's books, bought doors from us, which we stripped and brought to her," he said. "While the house was new, she wanted all old items inside."

For Greenwood, who ventured into the business in 1980, Olde Bostonian's location is everything.

"We're right off the expressway at Exit 15, off Dorchester Avenue," he said. "We want to stay in a good area, near the expressway, with the MBTA in back of us. It's easy for people to find us. We're very lucky to have this location."

Before he went into the antique field, Greenwood admits he never had much of an affinity for older items, but has grown to enjoy working on them over the years.

"I wasn't into antiques prior to opening this business, but now I love it," he said. "I like preserving old stuff; it's a lot of fun."

A do-it-yourself screened porch system can help your home have bug-free outdoor living space.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Screening Your Porch

(NAPS)—Screen porches have always been popular but recently have enjoyed a resurgence in popularity. Porches and decks are part of the growing trend towards attractive outdoor living spaces.

An opinion survey at a National Remodeler's Show found some 95 percent of builders and remodelers from across the country recognize a major trend in screening and enclosing existing decks. Eighty percent surveyed said they had been involved with a screened porch project in the past year.

Many folks find it's wonderfully easy and economical to handle a porch screening project themselves. One way is with a new product called Screen Tight™, a patented porch screening system that's low maintenance, inexpensive and simple to install.

Screen Tight has a two-part vinyl frame that avoids the hassle of the old method using staples, nails, painted wood lattice and yearly maintenance. The base of the frame is flanked by narrow channels at each side and is attached to the wooden porch frame with wood screws. The screen is then rolled into the narrow channels with strips of spline. A colored vinyl cap to complement the porch or exterior home color is then snapped into place to conceal the base.

Also, clear plastic can be rolled into the channels to enclose the porch for year-round use, which offers the homeowner the ability to have a screened and enclosed porch for different seasons.

Screen Tight's design produces a stronger, tighter, more durable fit for the screen than the old method. The product also cuts screening time, costs and maintenance. It's available at many stores including Lowe's, HQ Warehouse, Home Depot, Ace Hardware, HWI Do-It Centers, Servistar, Hechinger's Carter Lumber, Woolahan and others.

number of city officials.

"Today is the beginning, I think, of a new era as it relates to inspectional services," he said. "This will allow us to maximize our services."

City Council President Peter Kolson also offered warm words.

"I'm sure you will have a great relationship with the city in the coming years," said Kolson, who also told White he will receive the full cooperation of the City Council.

White was named to the position Sheets after his name was submitted to the mayor by a specially-formed committee that selected him from a pool of five finalists. Originally, there were about 30 candidates, and the committee trimmed that number to eight before the finalists were chosen.

White graduated from North Quincy High School in 1971, received a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice from Northeastern University in 1977, and graduated from the Building Officials and Code Administrators International (BOCA) Executive Development Institute this year.

He is also a 1974 graduate of the Massachusetts State Police Academy in Framingham and served as a state trooper from 1974 to 1979.

White is a member of Polaroid Corporation's "Power of Photography in Remodeling" Ambassador Program as well as various professional associations and civic groups. He lives with his wife of 21 years, Patricia, and their three children: Joseph, 19; Jacqueline, 15 and Mark, 8.

The committee that unanimously recommended White to Sheets for the inspectional services director's position consisted of Quincy Personnel Director James Chiccino, John Keenan, executive secretary to the mayor; City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and local contractor Paul Kennedy.

The $65,000-a-year position was made available as part of the formation of the city's new department of inspectional services. Sheets and members of the City Council, which has approved the mayor's plan for the new department, have said the change will make inspectional services more efficient by providing homeowners and business owners convenient "one-stop shopping" for construction and home improvement permits.

The new department will combine Quincy's previously separate building, plumbing, wire inspection, gas, conservation enforcement, and weights and measures departments.

The establishment of the inspector's job will result in the elimination of the $56,238-a-year Quincy building inspector's position. According to Sheets, Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, who is out on sick leave, has accepted a new senior building inspector's position from the city that will pay an annual salary of $52,547.

The inspectional services director also will assume two duties currently performed by the building inspector: zoning enforcement and a seat on the Quincy License Board. Those responsibilities have been handled by Acting Building Inspector Roger Wallin while Mulvey has been out.

Quincy's inspectional services will move from the Department of Public Works Building on Sea Street to the JFK Health Center on Hancock Street sometime next year following extensive renovations to the center.

Veterans' Day Parade, Ceremonies Nov. 11

The Quincy Veterans Council Veterans' Day Parade and ceremonies will be held Tuesday, Nov. 11.

The parade will start at 10:30 a.m. and proceed from School St. to Hancock St. to the Adams Academy where the Veterans' Day ceremonies will be observed.

Guest speaker will be Joseph Brooker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces-Quincy Chapter for more than 10 years.

JOSEPH BROOKER

Brooker, 62, has been a Quincy Point resident since 1973. A disabled Vietnam veteran, he is the father of three children and retired from 20 years military service.

He has worked as an investigator for Quincy Veterans Services, as an airline mechanic, plumber, carpenter, and roofer; and in the Deparment of Correction, from which he retired, where he performed various duties.

Brooker served in the Marine Corps in the Korean War from 1952 to 1955. In 1955, he re-enlisted into the Air Force where he remained until his retirement in 1973.

Educated in Boston, he has attended Wentworth Institute of Technology and received degrees from Quincy Junior College and Suffolk University.

Brooker is actively involved with the concerns of all veterans and has served in the D.A.V., V.F.W. and Quincy Veterans' Council.

Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Peter Kolson will bring greetings from the city.

Invocation will be given by Joseph Dennehy, chaplain of the Quincy Veterans' Council chaplain and Quincy Cavanaugh Chapter 79 D.A.V., who will also give the benediction. Prayer will be given by Edwin Boland, assistant chaplain of the Quincy Veterans Council.

The annual ceremonies are sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council on behalf of local veterans' posts.

Thomas Stansbury of the Quincy Veterans Service Department is parade chairman. Edward McAllister, commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, is parade marshal.

Aides to the commander are Stansbury and Lawrence Norton Jr., vice commanders of the Veterans' Council.

Co-chairman is Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley, past state commander of the American Legion and past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council.

Emcee is Irving Isaacson, past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, the Jewish War Veterans' Post 193 A.L., and the Cavanaugh Chapter 79 D.A.V.

Aides to invited guests are Peter Stonis and Joseph Callahan, past commanders of the Veterans Council.

Chief of staff is Paul O'Neill, past commander of the Veterans Council.

Among the participants will be: North Quincy High School ROTC, North Quincy High School Band, past commanders of the Quincy Veterans Council, Gold Star Mothers, World War I veterans, World War II veterans, Fire Department Colors, Civil Air Patrol, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Quincy High School Band, Quincy High School ROTC, Quincy Cavanaugh Chapter 79 D.A.V. and Auxiliary, Quincy Chapter V.C.V.C.A.F., William R. Exercises will be held in the Center for Technical Education Gym on Coddington St. in the event of inclement weather. Information will be broadcast on WJDA.

There are people who deserve it for their heinous crimes."

Mariano cited the cases of one Massachusetts man who recently shot and killed his ex-girlfriend at a bus stop while their children watched, another who killed his wife and hid her body in their basement, and two others who kidnapped, sexually assaulted, and killed a 10-year-old boy.

"These people are not redeemable," he said.

Morrissey, who was among 27 senators who voted to send the death penalty bill to the conference committee on which Tobin sits--"the House bill was much broader," he noted--expressed similar feelings about capital punishment.

"There's no right or wrong with the death penalty," he said. "I can't say I'm a big proponent, but I think it should be available in some circumstances, including murders that involve the cruel and unusual death of a child, public officials who are killed in the line of duty, and those involving cold-blooded, calculating instances."

Prior to last week's 81-79 House vote, death penalty bills in recent years have been passed by the Senate but rejected in the House. Two years ago, the House rejected such a bill by 10 votes.

When Cellucci signs the death penalty bill into law, Massachusetts will have capital punishment for the first time since 1947. Currently, 38 other states have the death penalty.

Clarification

A story in last week's Quincy Sun stated that Paul McNealy, owner of Triangle Transmission, failed to appear at the Oct. 28 meeting of the Quincy License Board.

Although he was not present at the meeting, McNealy had notified City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board chairman, in advance that he would be unable to attend.

The Triangle Transmission matter will come before the License Board on Nov. 18.

Chretien Endorsed By Building Trades Council

Lawrence Chretien, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, has been endorsed by the Quincy and South Shore Building Trades Council.

The council represents all local unions doing construction work in the area.

Chretien said, "I served on the Quincy City Council for eight years and earned a solid labor record. As my campaign unfolds, I will clearly express a commitment to working people in the district. It's obvious that our economy is growing, but not all workers are receiving the benefits they deserve.

"I believe that government, labor, and management have to work together in order to make certain that economic opportunity is granted everyone. I am proud to support organized labor and I am grateful that they are choosing to support me in my race for state representative. I thank the Building Trades Council for their enthusiastic, early demonstration of support."

Chretien added, "In this campaign, I am reaching out to members of organized labor. I expect that I will be able to announce further endorsements in the near future."

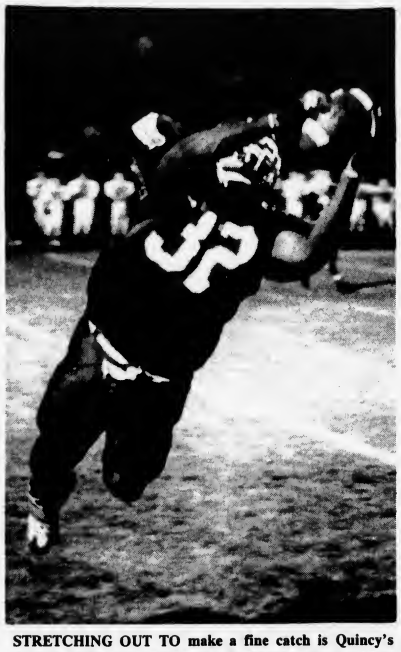
Quincy Bothered By 'Frustrating' Defeat

Presidents Visit Silver Lake Friday

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Coming off its first home defeat of the season, the Quincy High School football team faces another tough road test when it visits Old Colony League foe Silver Lake Friday night at 7.

The Presidents' 21-13 loss to Falmouth last Friday night was especially frustrating for Quincy head coach Peter Chella, who believes his team is better than its record indicates.



"The kids are angry about it," he said. "There were some calls that didn't go our way, and some opportunities that we missed out on that could have altered the outcome. That's what made it so frustrating--we should have another victory."

Now, the Presidents (3-2 OCL, 4-3 overall) have to contend with the offensive-minded Lakers (5-1, 7-1), which handed North Quincy a 42-14 defeat last Friday night and hold the second-place slot in the OCL, trailing only Bridgewater-Raynham (5-0, 6-2).

"Hopefully we can use some of that anger against Silver Lake, maybe it'll give us an edge," said Chella. "We don't have anything to lose, so there's no pressure."

Paced by quarterback Jon Bond (12 touchdown passes) and running back Marquisse Silva (16 touchdowns), the Lakers average 34 points a game and hold opponents to 16 points per contest.

"We know that they've got a lot of weapons and strike quickly; they don't grind it out," said Chella. "We have to keep the ball away from them, limiting their chances to put points on the board."

STRETCHING OUT TO make a fine catch is Quincy's Nathan DoRosario during the Presidents' 21-13 loss to visiting Falmouth last Friday night.

In the loss to Falmouth (3-3, 3-5), the Presidents jumped out to an early lead, only to find themselves playing catch-up in the second half.

Senior tailback Shaun Faherty (20 carries, 159 yards) sparked Quincy's offense on its second drive, collecting 54 yards on four carries, capped by a 14-yard touchdown romp. Mike Turner's extra point gave Quincy a 7-0 lead late in the first quarter.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Presidents tried an onside kick that was recovered by the Clippers on their own 49-yard line. Three plays later, running back Jamaal Branch raced 21 yards for a touchdown, but the extra point failed and Quincy clung to a one-point advantage.

Quincy's next drive came up empty, and the Clippers wasted no time as running back Ryan Kerrigan bolted 64 yards up the middle on the first play for a touchdown. Fullback Joe Laudano caught the two-point conversion pass from quarterback Hunter Greeley for a 14-7 Clipper lead early in the second quarter.

Falmouth later drove deep into Quincy territory, but a fumble recovered by Quincy's Bryan Dunn snuffed out the threat. The Presidents gave the Clippers the ball back when quarterback Kevin Moore was intercepted by Seth Gray, who returned it to Quincy's 12. A combination sack by defensive linemen Jim Quigley and Dan Nichol resulted in a 17-yard loss. Falmouth's Larry White then attempted a 42-yard field goal which sailed wide left as the half ended.

The Clippers' third touchdown was set up by a 68-yard punt return by Branch to Quincy's 7. On fourth down and inches, Laudano carried the ball and appeared to be stopped short of the goal line, but the officials signaled touchdown, much to the disbelief of the Quincy players and coaching staff.

"I really thought we stuffed him," said Chella, "so it was very frustrating when it was ruled a score."

Trailing 21-7 late in the third quarter, the Presidents cut into the deficit with a 69-yard touchown drive. Two receptions for 22 yards by Quigley, a 21-yard run by Moore and a 14-yard jaunt by Faherty moved Quincy inside the Clippers' 10. Faherty's six-yard touchdown run, his ninth of the season, cut Falmouth's lead to 21-13.

An interception by defensive back Dan Kelly at Falmouth's 45 gave the Presidents hope, but that was soon dashed when a fourth-down pass was intercepted in the end zone. Quincy's next possession resulted in a punt, and the visitors ran out the clock to preserve the victory.

In the loss to Falmouth, senior tailback Shaun Faherty rushed for 159 yards on 20 carries and scored two touchdowns, giving him nine for the season. He has compiled over 850 yards this season on the ground.

QUINCY SENIOR TAILBACK Shaun Faherty (44) takes the hand-off from quarterback Kevin Moore en route to his 159-yard rushing performance. Faherty also scored two touchdowns and now has nine on the season.

A QHS-NQ Tourney Clash Possible Tonight At North

The North Quincy and Quincy girls' high school volleyball teams could meet in the Div. 1 Central Sectional tournament semifinals tonight (Thursday) at 7 at North Quincy--if both squads won their quarterfinal matches Tuesday.

Quarterfinal results were not available as of press time. The ninth-seeded Red Raiders (14-8) traveled to play top-seeded Newton South (18-1), while the 12th-seeded Presidents (11-8) took on host Milford (18-3), the No. 4 seed.

If North won its quarterfinal match and Quincy lost, North would play tonight (Thursday) at 7 at Milford. If Quincy won and North lost, Quincy would play tonight (Thursday) at 7 at Newton South.

The Red Raiders and Presidents won their first-round Central Sectional matches over the weekend.

Last Friday, Quincy swept host Brighton, 15-6, 15-0, 15-4, sparked by senior co-captains Erin Barry (10 kills, six service aces, two blocks) and Mary Chenette (one kill, three aces, three digs).

"We didn't have much trouble winning this match," said Quincy head coach Tom Henderson. "We got most of our points on services or when they hit the ball out of bounds. They were more inconsistent than we were, and we took advantage of it."

Last Saturday, North Quincy swept host Arlington Catholic in three straight games. Leading the way offensively were sophomore Katie Jellison (nine kills) and junior Angela Scott (nine kills).

"I was really pleased with how we played," said NQ head coach Jim Rendle. "It was a tough gym, with a big crowd supporting them, but we came through under difficult conditions."

Senior captain setter Megan O'Donnell registered 27 assists for the Red Raiders, who got strong defensive efforts from junior Alexis Miranda and senior Kerry Skehan.

Rendle was also impressed with the blocking of sophomore Jess Lorman and junior Allison Haddad, along with sophomore Tia Harris, who came off the bench to record the last two points of the match with blocks.

In the regular season finale for both squads, the visiting Red Raiders captured their second victory of the season over the Presidents with a 2-0 sweep Oct. 28.

In the first game, North Quincy broke a 10-10 deadlock with five straight points for a 15-10 victory. Quincy held a 6-2 lead in the game, only to see it disappear. The front-line play of Lorman (five kills) and Jellison (nine kills) paced the Red Raiders.

The Presidents made a late run in the second game, as Barry notched four consecutive service points to turn a 7-5 deficit into a 9-7 advantage for Quincy. The Red Raiders reeled off seven of the next eight points, with O'Donnell, Skehan and Katie Sweetser pacing the NQ offense.

Quincy rallied one last time, cutting a 14-10 deficit to 14-13, but Miranda came off the NQ bench and collected the match's final point and seal the triumph.

NEW CARS, HOW AFFORDABLE?

As consumers increasingly place emphasis on the affordability of new cars, automobile manufacturers have responded by holding the line on prices. Manufacturers say the price of the typical 1998 car model will remain unchanged or increase only slightly. This announcement follows a decade in which new vehicle prices increased an average 5.3 percent per year. Even so, by some measurements, new vehicles are already more affordable than they have been in 16 years. The fact is that, in the second quarter of 1997, the cost of a new car was equivalent to 21.8 weeks of average income. That is the lowest since 1981, when wage earners had to collect 20.7 weeks of wages to purchase a new car.

HINT: According to federal statistics, consumers have consistently spent about 11% of their disposal income on transportation. However, in the last two years, that percentage has dropped to 8%.

North Turns It Over To Silver Lake, 42-14

Red Raiders Host B-R Trojans Friday

Early mistakes put the North Quincy High School football team in a hole it could not dig its way out of, resulting in a 42-14 loss to host Silver Lake last Friday night.

The Old Colony League defeat lowered the Red Raiders' record to 3-3 in league play, 3-4 overall. It doesn't get any easier for North Quincy when league-leading Bridgewater-Raynham (5-0 OCL, 7-2 overall) comes to town Friday night at 7.

The Trojans, which romped over winless Dennis-Yarmouth, 34-12, on Sunday, are a perfect 3-0 away from home this season. B-R's balanced offensive attack averages 25 points a game, while its staunch defense limits opponents to just 11 points per contest.

Among the Trojans' many offensive weapons is senior tailback Tim Pauline, who rushed for 142 yards and three touchdowns in the first quarter against D-Y.

In the loss to Silver Lake, North Quincy turned the ball over on its first three possessions, resulting in 21 first-quarter points by the Lakers.

The Red Raiders' problems began after just three minutes had elapsed when Marquisse Silva recovered a fumble and raced 91 yards for a Laker touchdown. On North's next possession, the Lakers' Josh Peterson intercepted a pass by junior quarterback Chris Bregoli and returned it the Red Raiders' 25-yard line. Two plays later, Andre Mendes scampered 12 yards for a touchdown.

Trailing 14-0, North Quincy committed another mistake by fumbling away the ensuing kickoff. Five plays later, Silver Lake took advantage of the miscue when quarterback Jon Bond connected with Silva on a 20-yard touchdown pass. Andy Brem's kick gave the Lakers a 21-0 lead, still in the first quarter.

North battled back in the second quarter, holding the ball for 23 plays and getting on the board when Bregoli (7-of-17, 109 yards) found senior tight end Frank McNamara on a two-yard touchdown pass. The scoring toss capped a 12-play, 92-yard drive. Mike Powers booted the extra point to cut the deficit to 21-7.

The Lakers came right back with another score of their own as Mendes scored on a nine-yard run. North scored another touchdown when senior tailback Jason Turner cross the goal line on a one-yard run shortly before the half ended. The Red Raiders recovered the onside kick and drove to the Lakers' 20 before time ran out in the first half.

Having trimmed the Lakers' lead to 28-14, the Red Raiders were poised to continue their comeback, but did not score in the second half. Meanwhile, Silver Lake took its opening possession and drove 59 yards for a touchdown when Dale Horsman scored on an eight-yard jaunt.

Later in the third, the home team added the game's final touchdown when Silva returned a punt 40 yards, followed by a pass from Bond to Mendes for the two-point conversion.

Gains Outweigh Losses In NQ's Tourney Debut

By LIAM FITZGERALD

While unsuccessful in its state tournament debut, the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team laid a solid foundation for future Red Raider squads to build upon.

On a rain-soaked, windy Sunday afternoon, the Red Raiders fell to host Marshfield, 4-0, but not for a lack of effort.

"The girls have nothing to be ashamed about; they gave it all they had," said NQ head coach Paul Bregoli. "It was a fabulous season, and we achieved the goal we set last year of qualifying for the tournament. They did a lot of work in the off-season on their own, and it paid off. During the season, they did all I asked them to.

"They did more than any team we've had here. I told them not to let this game spoil what they did all year. They're the first girls' soccer team at North to qualify for the tournament, and hen they look back five years down the road, they'll think what they did this season was pretty special."

In the first half of Sunday's game, the host Rams (12-1-4) controlled play early on, holding the ball in the Red Raiders' end but unable to penetrate their opponent's defense.

North Quincy (8-7-4) had its best opportunity to break the scoreless tie when senior tri-captain Kristen Keohane launched a rocket from the right side which narrowly missed the net at the far left post. The scoring chance came with about 15 minutes to play in the first half.

"She didn't miss by much, and if she scores, it's 1-0 us," said Bregoli. "That would've put a whole different spin on the game, but it just didn't go. It was our best opportunity of the first half, by far."

A few minutes later, the Rams got on the board when Katie Kilduff scored the first of her two goals. Kilduff took a pass and lofted it over NQ junior goalkeeper Kristen Bowes' head and into the net.

The Rams jumped out to a 2-0 lead when Kilduff scored again just five minutes after her first tally. The second goal was almost a replay of the first as Kilduff hit the ball softly over Bowes' head and into the left corner of the net.

"That second goal was a killer, because it put us down two against a talented team on their field," said Bregoli. "It also came right after the first goal and sent us reeling a little. I thought we played a pretty good first half, with the exception of that five-minute stretch."

Bregoli commended the first-half performances of senior tri-captain Laurie Flynn, freshman Kellee Conley and sophomore Ashley Murphy, along with Bowes in net.

Early in the second half, Bowes made nice plays to stop two scoring chances, but the Ram offense continued to pressure the Red Raiders and scored two quick goals to put the game out of reach.

The first Ram tally came just a minute into the half when Melissa Keough tapped a loose ball out front into the net. Eleanor Murphy netted the game's final goal four minutes later, controlling the ball after it was deflected by Bowes (18 saves) and depositing it into the open net.

"We had a couple breakdowns, and good teams capitalize on those," said Bregoli. "We didn't come out fired up and ready and also didn't generate much offense in the second half."

Juniors Rachael Powers and Liz Bennett, along with senior Erin Tormey, were praised by Bregoli for their play in the second half.

"Rachael played well at stopper, Liz did a good job at mid and stopper and Erin gave us some great minutes at outside back in her last game," he said.

North's best scoring opportunity came when Conley raced to the front of the net to collect a crossing pass, but missed the ball.

After the game, Bregoli thanked the Red Raiders' six seniors--Flynn, Keohane, tri-captain Katie Koch, Tormey, Leela Shankar and Sharon Lee--for their dedication to the program.

Flynn, who led the team in scoring with 12 goals, was selected as one of the Old Colony League's top five players and was named to the OCL All-Star team along with Keohane.

"The seniors did a great job in their years at North," he said. "All their efforts were directed towards helping the team improve and become a contender, and their efforts paid off in the end. I'm proud of each of them; they were a lot of fun to coach."

Looking to next season, Bregoli is confident the Red Raiders will continue to improve with a number of players returning and a few additions from the junior varsity squad.

"The future really looks bright," he said. "We have a whole bunch of talented players back, including a lot of seniors, and as long as they focus on the team and not the individual, we should have no problem improving.

"Our JV team had a great season, too, going 9-4-4, and we'll probably have a few players come up and help us next season. We're good now, but we're only going to get better."

Red Raider Girls Make It Six Straight Over Quincy

Senior tri-captain Laurie Flynn's 12th goal of the season with 13:15 to play lifted the North Quincy High School girls' soccer team over Quincy High School, 1-0, on Oct. 28.

The victory marked the Red Raiders' sixth straight over the Presidents, including the last four by shutout.

"It was a very well-played game," said NQ head coach Paul Bregoli. "Quincy played pretty well, especially their keeper, Jessica DiBona. She made a lot of saves on some good shots and kept them in it."

Meanwhile, in the North Quincy net, junior goalkeeper Kristen Bowes recorded her ninth shutout of the season.

While neither team managed much offensively in the first half, North Quincy began to generate some scoring chances in the second after making a few positional changes.

"We moved up a couple of our quick kids, Caitlyn O'Donnell and Kellee Conley, who were getting to balls in Quincy's end we didn't in the first half," Bregoli. "That resulted in a ton of opportunities as we put the pressure on their defense."

However, the Red Raiders didn't break the scoreless deadlock until late in the game, when they implemented a play they had worked on in practice the previous week.

"It was a dead ball situation and an indirect kick for us from about 35 yards out," said Bregoli. "We had Stacy Szcesuil chip the ball over the Quincy wall to Laurie, who streaked towards the net, broke in on their keeper alone and put it by her."

Liz Bennett at stopper and Leela Shankar at sweeper were among the standouts for the Red Raiders.

"Leela saved us a couple of times in the first half, turning the ball back and sending it upfield," said Bregoli. "She played an incredible game."

Presidents Put Wraps On Successful Fall Campaign

Despite an overall record of 3-13-2, the Quincy High School girls' soccer team had a successful season.

"The kids worked harder than they ever have with the demanding training put upon them this season," said Quincy head coach Robin Welinsky. "In many games, we cut the goals down to almost nothing, and that's where we're gaining at. My players work hard at what they do.

"The training is hard but with scores the way they were throughout the season, it's obvious we're not far behind. We've had a great season and are already planning for next season, which will be the year to be in the standings for the Old Colony League."

The Presidents concluded their season with a 6-0 road victory over Monsignor Ryan. Captain Leanne Martin collected two goals and an assist, sophomore Amy Papile added two goals and Katie McEvoy and senior Michelle Boncek each scored a goal. Goalkeeper Jessica DiBona recorded the shutout on a tough, windy afternoon. Quincy received solid efforts from the entire team.

After a few rainouts, the Presidents played the Red Raiders at Veterans Memorial Stadium and lost a well-played battle, 1-0.

"This was the best game I've ever seen from my girls," said Welinsky. "Jessica DiBona (23 saves) kept us in the game with her goaltending and senior captain Kara McSweeney led the defense. Jessica had shot after shot on goal and made some unbelievable saves to keep us going."

At the 66:30 mark of the game, a one-on-one situation resulted in a 1-0 lead for North Quincy.

"It's a tough decision whether to come out of the net," said Welinsky. "As a former keeper myself, it's basically a 50/50 chance."

Shortly before the North goal, Quincy senior Becky Mackey rifled a shot that hit the post.

"I thought it went in," said Welinsky. "We really got psyched up at that point."

Welinsky commended the play of seniors Becky Mackey, Marisa Ross, McSweeney and Boncek.

"Becky and Marisa had a great game," she said. "Whenever the ball seemed to be heading towards North's players, Becky was always there defensively. The same for Marisa. Kara will be missed next year.

"She has led our defense since I took over two years ago. Any play, she reads the ball, controls it and clears it. Michelle had a great game as well. She has worked extremely hard to get where she is today."

Other seniors wrapping up their Quincy soccer careers were Diane Hanlon, Kristen Stenberg and Kerry Duffy.

Amy Trethewey Dickinson's Runner Of Meet

Amy Trethewey of Quincy, a junior cross country runner at Dickinson College in Pennsylvania, finished third overall for Dickinson in the recent Messiah Double-Dual 5K race with a time of 21:57.

A Thayer Academy graduate, Trethewey placed third for Dickinson and seventh overall in the Little 3 Championship earlier this month. She finished with a time of 20:57 and was voted as Dickinson's Runner of the Meet by her teammates.

60 Apply For Position

Housing Director Sought By Jan. 1

Jan. 1 is the goal that has been set to find a new executive director for the Quincy Housing Authority.

Rev. James Kimmell, authority chairman, said he and his four fellow commissioners would like to appoint someone by New Year's Day.

"We'd like to have somebody by the beginning of next year," he said. "Realistically, that's probably how long it will take."

Kimmell said a total of 60 candidates, including more than 20 from Quincy, have applied for the position.

Although all of the names have not been made public, it has been learned that local candidates include City Councillor Michael Cheney, former mayoral aide Arthur Foley and former Zoning Board member Lynn Houghton.

Not on the list is state Rep. Ronald Mariano, who had been seen as a potential candidate but has said family and professional obligations prevented him from applying.

Kimmell said the candidates come from a variety of backgrounds, including housing administration, real estate, and business. The majority are from Massachusetts, but there are also candidates from Rhode Island, Virginia, and Texas, he added.

Kimmell said he and the other four housing commissioners must decide whether to search for a director with director housing experience or one knowledgeable in Quincy government. They have been divided on that issue since the search to replace retired Executive Director John "Jake" Comer began in April.

"I'd just like to get the best candidate possible," said Kimmell. "It's a very important job, and we owe to the people of Quincy to get the best person."

The new executive director is required to have a bachelor's and master's degree in public administration or a related field, although that can be substituted with an associate's degree and five years' experience. The director also must have eight years' experience in housing management, community development, or a similar field, including five years as a manager.

Many of the requirements are state-mandated. State officials have in the past rejected some appointees at other authorities who did not meet the requirements.

Kimmell said once the five commissioners have reviewed the applications, each will select two of the 60 candidates for the board and two tenant advisors to interview in closed session. Should each commissioner select the same candidates, they will interview only two applicants, but they could meet with as many as 10 if they all choose differently.

"It looks like we have a lot of good candidates," said Kimmell. "This is a very exciting time. Not every commissioner gets to appoint a new director, and we will set a whole future in motion for the housing authority.

"I'd like to get somebody who has a feel for housing and sees the needs of housing, somebody creative who can look at the total picture of housing."

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development plans to release a report this week or next week after a 10-month review of management practices there under Comer.

NQ Cross Country Runners Continue Strong Outings

The North Quincy High School cross country runners continue to turn in outstanding performances as the season winds down.

At the recent Brown Invitational held at Slater Park in Pawtucket, R.I., NQ freshmen highlighted the day. In the girls' freshman 4000 meter race, NQ's Linda Nguyen placed 13th in a time of 15:50, the fastest ever at Brown by a freshman. Right behind her was teammate Kelly-Rose O'Brien in 16th at 16:01, the second fastest ever. Melissa McKenna finished 142nd at 20:18.

In freshmen boys, NQ's Jeff Bartoloni took second in 12:43 behind Mike Lawson of Ponagansett (R.I.) High School, a former Natioanl Age Group Champion in cross country.

"He (Lawson) beat Jeff by a minute back in Septemeber down at Bryant," said North Quincy head coach Geoff Hennessy. "Now the gap is closed. Jeff will get two more shots at him, too." Bartoloni will race against Lawson at the upcoming Junior Olympics and the Foot Locker Classic.

Other NQ freshmen boys running were Sean-William Goodale (186th) and Chris Johnson (189th).

In JV girls 5K, North's Christine Marre ran 22:12, good for 29th, and Charlene Cote was 82nd out of 94 girls. In championship girls, NQ's Lynda Wilson was 21st in 19:28, Sarah Houghton was 54th in 20:24, Amy Cheung was 86th in 22:30 and Genevieve O'Brien, hampered by a hip injury, was 93rd in 22:54.

In a tri-meet with Plymouth South and Barnstable, NQ's girls split while the boys dropped both ends. Both squads were undermanned due to illness and injury but several Raider athletes stood out.

In the boys' race, Bartoloni took fifth overall, but the next North runner was Peter Connolly in 22nd; thus NQ lost both contests by identical 18-45 scores. In the girls' race, NQ's Wilson and Houghton went 2-6. NQ beat Plymouth South, 24-31, and lost to Barnstable, 21-40.

At the OCL Championships held at Silver Lake, the Raider girls took second, achieving their seasonal goal. Barnstable, with four runners in the top 10, dominated with 30 points. NQ had 68. Scoring for North were Wilson (second), Nguyen (10th), Houghton (11th), Genevieve O'Brien (19th) and Kelly-Rose O'Brien (26th). In the boys' race, NQ placed eighth with 156 points. Scoring were Bartoloni (ninth, tops freshman in OCL), Brian Breslin (24th), Joe Linskey (26th), Conor Quilty (50th) and Steve Barkowski (51st).

In girls' JV, the team placed fifth with 102 points. Scoring were Marre (sixth), Cheung (seventh), Nancy Gardner (27th), Rebecca Favorito (34th) and McKenna (34th). In boys' JV, the team finished eighth with 206 points. Connolly (29th), Rick Walsh (48th), Paul Griffith (50th), Chi Chung (66th) and Ishwer Mahadeo (74th) scored for NQ.

At the State Coaches Invitational held at Franklin Park, all 11 North competitors turned in personal bests. In freshmen girls, Nguyen placed eighth in 12:46 with McKenna 107th in 15:52. In freshmen boys, Bartoloni took second in 10:08. Other scorers were Breslin (14th, 10:42), Barkowski (39th, 11:37), Griffith (125th, 12:34), Goodale (211th, 14:55) and Johnson (221st, 16:45). In sophomore girls, Wilson was fourth in 19:57, Houghton 14th in 21:01 and Marre 47th in 22:53.

North's freshmen and sophomore boys competed in the Black & Red Classic at D.W. Field Park Tuesday and the varsity teams will compete in the Eastern Mass State Meet Saturday at Franklin Park.

Donahue, Lewis & Maggio Spark Pee Wee A's To Comeback Win

Ryan Donahue and Brian Lewis scored two goals each to spark the Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's came back from two deficits to edge Triboro, 4-3.

Josh Giordani, Matt Lavery and Mike McGonagle each picked up an assist for the A's. Goaltender Bruce Maggio played a strong game and had solid support from the defense, led by hard-hitting defenseman John Chevalier.

The Quincy squad remains undefeated under the tutelage of coaches Al Grazzio, Bruce Maggio and Steve McGowan.

Woodward Soccer Ties

In a tight, physical, pressure-filled game, the Woodward School soccer team battled Brimmer & May to a 1-1 tie.

Both teams scored their goals in the first half. Scoring an unassisted goal for Woodward (3-3-2) was co-captain Jessica Boothby.

Strong games for Woodward were turned in by Meaghan MacTaggart, Janet McNamara, Alex Dunn and goalkeeper Danielle Gatto.

Barra To Participate In Judo Camp At U.S. Olympic Training Center

Due to his outstanding regional and national competition record over the past two years, Christopher Barra of Quincy has been selected to participate in an elite training camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Barra, 16, will join two other Massachusetts junior judo players, Charles Boston of Franklin and Tiffany Fagioli of Fall River at the training camp, which begins today (Thursday) and continues through Monday, Nov. 10.

Barra's regional record over the last year includes first-place finishes at the Massachusetts State Championship and Rhode Island Ultimate Judo Challenge and second-place results at the New England Junior Olympics and Chaves Memorial Tournament.

At the national level this year, he finished second at the East Coast Championships and fourth at the Liberty Bell Invitational, Amcan International Tournament and USJI Junior Olympics.

Approximately 40 to 50 of the top judo players throughout the country ranging in age from 15-21 will attend the camp, which will be led by three-time Olympian Leo White.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) If something is bothering you, this is the week to get it off your chest. Heart-to-heart talks are favored. You could receive a surprise travel invitation from a friend for the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Those seeking to make a change, whether career-wise or in domestic surroundings, find this a good week to pursue leads. Family and monetary interests are highlighted later on. The weekend brings an important realization.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You receive a valuable suggestion from an agent or adviser this week. Couples enjoy fun activities with children later in the week. Singles meet with romantic introductions over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You handle a home responsibility early in the week. Later, you'll be excited about a new moneymaking proposition. Talks with authority figures prove productive.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You could be helping a child out with a problem early in the week. Couples decide to share some quality time. You're both definitely on the same wave length.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're still concerned about something you haven't made a decision about. Information you receive helps you with this midweek. Home life is rewarding over the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some decide to take the kids on a special outing this week to a museum or other cultural area. It's a delightful week for travel and the enjoyment of leisure. Romance comes unexpectedly.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Money owed to you finally is paid back. In general, you're pleased with the week's important career developments. Common-sense thinking is your valuable ally.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You don't make the progress you thought you would on a certain work project. However, there's a lovely accent on social interests. Couples enjoy exciting times together this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You finally get to the bottom of something which has been troubling you. Getting some unfinished projects out of the way will be a chief priority so that your schedule is cleared for socializing this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You express yourself with ease and confidence this week. One of your friends is being a real wet blanket, so just ignore this person for now. Happiness is yours through hobbies, travel and cultural pursuits this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Shrewd thinking is your ally in business this week. Despite a minor setback, you ultimately succeed with your objectives. Try to sidestep a quarrel with a discontented relative this weekend.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Veterans' Day is a very special day... We celebrate it in America with the traditional laying of the Presidential Wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. Not only in Arlington, but all over the world there are places hallowed by those who could say as did A.E. Housman in his famous "Epitaph for the Fallen" - "Here lie we dead because we did not choose to shame the land from which we sprung."

We do not know what great things those who gave their all might have accomplished... We do know they were Americans all. It did not matter whether they were rich or poor; what their color was; what religious beliefs they had. Theirs was not a divided nationality. They were just Americans who loved their country enough to offer their lives that those ideals of justice and democracy might not perish from the earth.

As Americans, we too, must not "shame the land from which we sprung." Do we not have a duty as binding upon us as that of any soldier? Do we not have the duty of seeing to it that they did not die in vain; that the ideals which formed the United States be not set aside for lesser material advantages? Do we not have the duty to see to it that America remains strong - spiritually as well as materially - so that those who come after us may live as free people, unafraid in a free world?...

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND OF INTENT TO REQUEST A RELEASE OF GRANT FUNDS

CITY OF QUINCY October 30, 1997
1305 Hancock Street
Quincy, MA 02169
617-376-1365

These Notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities undertaken by the City of Quincy.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about November 19, 1997, the CITY OF QUINCY will submit a request to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the release of funds under Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and the US Housing Act of 1937 to undertaken a project known as 127 Rock Island Road Project, for the purpose of acquiring and demolishing a vacant building to eliminate a blight on the community. The proposed sources of funds are: CDBG Funds of, $38,125 and FEMA Funds of $38,125 for a total of $76,250.

The proposed uses of funds are for Acquisition of land and building and Demolition of the building for the price of $76,250.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The CITY OF QUINCY has determined that the project will have no significant on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (P.L. 91-910) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Records (ERR) on file at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and may be examined or copied weekdays between 9:30 AM and 3:30 PM.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency disagreeing with this determination or wishing to comment on the project may submit written comments to the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169. All comments received by November 18, 1997 will be considered by the City of Quincy prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which Notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The CITY OF QUINCY certifies to HUD that JAMES A. SHEETS, in his capacity as Mayor of the CITY OF QUINCY, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities and allows the CITY OF QUINCY to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will consider objections to its release of funds and the City of Quincy's certification for a period of 15 days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Quincy; (b) the City of Quincy omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 24 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with 24 CFR Part 58 and shall be addressed to: HUD, Room 313, 10 Causeway Street, Boston, MA 02222. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

Step One Program Takes Part In Advocacy Day

The Step One Early Intervention Program of Quincy was scheduled to take part yesterday (Wednesday) in a statewide Early Intervention Advocacy Day and Legislative Reception in Nurses Hall at the State House.

Phyllis Fazio, director of Step One Early Intervention and a recent recipient of the Rosemary Wahlberg Humanitarian Award, was master of ceremonies. Michelle Glidden, a Step One music therapist, lead children in singing throughout the program. Step One staff will also supervise a play area for parents with young children.

The Massachusetts Early intervention Consortium/Infant Toddler Advocates, Inc. sponsored the event as a way to thank legislators who have shown outstanding leadership and commitment to Early Intervention.

Awards of distinction were presented to Rep. Barbara Gardner, Kevin Fitzgerald, Sen. Stanley Rosenberg, and Sen. Frederick Berry for their efforts in improving the lives of children and families involved in Early Intervention programs.

Rodophele, Jr., owner of an Internet consulting firm, trailed with 717. He also was making his first run.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, 51, who is also city council president, won a fifth term, rolling by Gretchen Grant, 68, 2,230 to 645.

Ward 3 incumbent Patrick McDermott, 27, was re-elected to a second term, turning back Linda Tracy, 48, a consultant, by a vote of 1,939 to 668.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, the council's youngest member at 22, coasted to a second term defeating Stephen Hawko, 45, an engineer in the Department of Environmental Protection, by a wide margin, 2,532 to 651.

Ward 6 incumbent Bruce Ayers, 35, was a fourth-term winner with a comfortable 1,981 to 970 win over Brian McNamee, 41, an accountant and management consultant, running for the first time.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin were re-elected to second terms without opposition.

Raymondi polled 1,917 votes against 349 blanks and 16 write-ins. Durkin's vote was 2,185 with 481 blanks and 23 write-ins.

The official final results were completed before 10 p.m.

Election Night Comments

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The top vote-getters in the City Council at-large and School Committee fields and the winners of the two open seats had these comments following Tuesday's city election:

•Paul Harold, who topped the councillor-at-large field in his re-election bid: "I appreciate the vote of confidence given to me by the voters of Quincy. It's reflective of the time and energy I put into the campaign, and it speaks to the issues that are mainstream to Quincy politics: spending, development and the Fore River shipyard issue."

Harold added, "People told me before the election, 'You have no problem.' But once you believe that, you have a problem. I didn't take anything for granted."

•Jo-Ann Bragg, re-elected and top School Committee vote-getter: "Absolutely fantastic. I feel on top of the world right now. I had a very positive feeling when I woke up this morning, because we worked very hard and covered all our bases. I think dedication, hard work and years of involvement were reflected in the vote today."

•Michael McFarland, who finished second for School Committee in his first political campaign: "I was hoping to come in third, and I'm grateful for the confidence the people of Quincy have shown in me. My family, friends and neighbors have just been fantastic. I'm looking forward to taking the School Committee into the next century."

•Francis McCauley, former mayor, who will return to the City Council after a third-place at-large finish: "Obviously, I'm delighted. I want to thank the voters of Quincy who came out and voted today. I had hoped for a bigger turnout but I'm happy to be elected. I'm looking forward to going back to the City Council."

McCauley, who served as Ward 1 councillor from 1964 to 1967 and councillor-at-large from 1978 to 1981 before being elected mayor, also congratulated at-large incumbents Paul Harold and Timothy Cahill for being re-elected and challenger David McGillicuddy, who finished fourth in the at-large race.

And Timothy Cahill, who was re-elected councillor-at-large in a second place finish, had this to say:

"I'm very happy with it. There seemed to be quite a distance between second and third place this time around. I would like to have topped it, but I know Paul (Harold) has a very strong citywide base. I can only be encouraged by it."

Veterans Day Speaker:

Liberty Cannot Survive Without U.S. Military

The survival and success of liberty in the United States cannot be achieved without the nation's military forces, Joseph Brooker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter said during the city's Veterans Day ceremonies Tuesday.

Brooker, 62, a 26-year Quincy Point resident and disabled Vietnam veteran who also served in the Korean War, was guest speaker during the ceremonies at the Adams Academy on Adams Street. He said today's veterans deserve the respect of all Americans because "they are a part of the backbone upon which this great nation stands."

Following is the text of Brooker's speech:

"We are gathered here today to honor our veterans, the veterans of every conflict that the United States has ever been involved in.

"In war and peace, they have served this nation honorably, on ship

Average Homeowner Would Pay $94 More

Residential, Business Tax Rates Going Up

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city's homeowners will pay an average $94 higher tax bill under Mayor James Sheets' proposed tax plan for Fiscal Year 1998.

The plan was brought to the City Council Monday night by Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantucchio. It was put into committee without discussion and a public hearing will be held before the council votes on the tax rates.

Sheets' plan calls for new rates of $32.09 (per $1,000) for Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property--also known as CIPP--and $15.30 for residential property, increases of 78 cents and 38 cents respectively. Last year, the rates were $31.31 and $14.92.

The increase totals about 2.5 percent for both residential and CIPP.

The mayor said this week the tax increase--the largest the city has seen in four years--is necessary to cover a 4 percent pay hike for city workers as well as an increase in the special needs component of the city's education budget and other costs mandated by the state Education Reform Act.

"I want to emphasize that the tax increase has nothing to do with bonding," he said. "The city's bond debt service is lower than it was last year at this time."

Sheets added that since the city has done its best to hold the line on property taxes the last few years, he is comfortable with the increase.

"You never like to increase taxes," he said. "But I think we've done a good job holding the tax line, and we're better off than most local cities and towns."

The owner of an average single-family home, valued at $143,700 will pay $2,199 this fiscal year. Last year, the average homeowner's tax bill for a home valued at $141,000 increased from $2,049 to $2,105.

Under the new rates, business owners will pay about 33 percent of Quincy's tax levy of $85.3 million. As was the case last year, the city has opted to tax commercial, industrial

City To Provide Trash Pickup For Condos

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi's plan to have the city provide pickup of trash and recycables to individual condominium owners in Quincy was approved by the council Monday night.

The council voted 7-2 to back the proposal, with Councillors-at-Large Michael Cheney and Timothy Cahill voicing opposition. As a result of the vote, Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton will sent out a request for proposals (R.F.P.) to companies interested in providing the service and report back to the council at a later date.

Even if a contract is approved, the service will not begin until July 1, 1998, the start of Fiscal Year 1999.

Raymondi said he introduced the proposal last winter because condo owners, as Quincy taxpayers, are entitled to the same services as other property owners in the city. Currently, they have to pay a separate fee for the pickup service.

In May, Colton submitted a report to the council stating the city operationally could address the situation but for financial reasons should not implement the program during the current fiscal year.

Cheney and Cahill argued against Raymondi's plan, saying it is discriminatory against residents of Quincy apartments whose trash and recycables are not picked up by Browning-Ferris Industries, which is contracted by the city to provide the service to most Quincy residents. They also argued that the estimated $350,000 cost of the service will cause an increase in property tax rates.

Cheney also noted that when the city became "condominimized" years ago, the condo owners knew what they were getting into and that they would be responsible for their own pickup service.

Colton said the city's policy on the service is not that all condominiums are ineligible but that any residential property under 12 units that can conform to Quincy's curbside pickup program is welcome to participate. For that reason, he said, the Harborside Condominiums complex in the northern part of the city receives the service.

Colton added that the city also views large apartment complexes as businesses, while condominiums clearly are residential property.

Raymondi, for his part, reiterated his position that the condo owners deserve the same treatment as other Quincy property owners.

"Government has got to act fairly," he said.

FIVE PRIESTS were among those who joined John Harrington, coordinator at the Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry's recent first general interparish meeting. With him from left are Fr. Gerard Petringa of St. John the Baptist Parish, Fr. David White of Sacred Heart Parish, Bro. James Moran of St. Ann's Parish, Fr. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Parish, and Fr. William English of Most Blessed Sacrament Parish.

Citywide Catholic Youth Ministry Being Formed

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy's nine Catholic parishes are collaborating to form a citywide youth ministry that will participate in a variety of spiritual, service, and social activities.

The Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry, as it has been dubbed, will initially be open only to high school students, although it likely will be expanded in the future to include younger children. The group's first general meeting, which included 28 people representing all nine parishes, was held last Thursday night at Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy.

Two of the men spearheading the effort, Fr. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Parish in Quincy Point and John Harrington of Braintree--who has been hired as coordinator of the ministry--outlined their plans in an interview last Friday with The Quincy Sun.

Fr. Monagle, 33, said the idea of a citywide youth ministry was conceived during a recent meeting of priests from the nine Quincy parishes, who get together monthly to discuss various Catholic issues. It was decided, he said, a "new approach to Catholic youth ministry" was needed in Quincy, particularly because of a shortage of priests that in recent years has impacted the entire Archdiocese of Boston.

"We thought maybe we could combine some of our resources," he said. "All nine pastors are excited about the idea, since the teens are going to be the future of the Church."

He added that another issue discussed was the need to boost teen participation in church, saying, "It's not where it could be."

The pastors then appointed Fr. Monagle and two other priests--Fr. David White of Sacred Heart and Fr. Gerard Petringa of St. John's Parish in Quincy Center--to hire a coordinator. On Oct. 15 they selected Harrington, who has taught at three Catholic high schools and, according to Fr. Monagle, has "a good spiritual background," from a field of four candidates.

Fr. Monagle said the ministry's schedule, which is currently being put together, will focus on three areas:

•Spiritual--Helping the members develop their faith. A monthly Teen Mass, which the nine parishes will take turns hosting, will be among the spiritual activities.

•Service--Allowing the members to live their faith by serving others. A meal to be cooked by about 30 teens for the residents of Fr. Bill's Place, scheduled for Dec. 5, will be among the events planned.

•Social--Holding events such as a ski trip planned for January, various dances, and more.

Both Fr. Monagle and Harrington said the goal is to have at least one monthly activity for each of the three areas. A committee comprised of adult and student volunteers from each parish will be formed to help put together the events.

In addition, a monthly meeting for each individual area will be held. Each meeting will be attended by three adult volunteers and three student volunteers from each parish--all of whom have been assigned to that specific area--as well as Harrington and at least one of the three priests overseeing the ministry.

Indeed, Harrington, 40, a former seminary student, stresses that the group cannot succeed without the assistance of volunteers.

"I don't see myself as an activities director, but as a minister who will help the kids integrate into the church," he said. "I am a coordinator. I will rely on the lay volunteers to help me. I'm going to need their assistance."

Harrington, whose new office is located in the old St. John's School in Quincy Center, said he hopes to spread the word about the need for volunteers through the media and church bulletins. A couple of other people have been approached directly, he noted.

He also said he feels the coordinator's job will be "much more rewarding" than previous positions he has held.

"I see it as a personal challenge to model some of the Christian ideals and values we'll be teaching, to teach the kids about the wonderful Catholic faith they have, and to open up the church's resources to them," said Harrington. "I want them to understand that being Catholic is a way of life--not just a philosophy--and make it a part of their daily activities.

"Prayer is an intricate part of the success of this. There will always be the element of prayer. We want to teach the kids to go back to the Sacraments."

Harrington and Fr. Monagle both said at least one more general interparish meeting will be held before the volunteer committee is finalized. They hope to have the committee in place by the end of the year.

Other details, such as what the teens might pay for membership dues, also will be worked out at a later date, they said.

Those interested in volunteering for the Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry can call Harrington at 770-4721.

Hospital Seeks Volunteers

Quincy Hospital has a variety of departments looking for people willing to donate four hours of their time on a regular basis to serve an important role within the hospital.

The Volunteer Department has numerous opportunities for people with a variety of skills and volunteering offers flexible scheduling.

Opportunities presently exist in the following areas:

•Cherry Gift Shop, preferably with cash register experience or an in interest in learning. Meet new people while helping them select merchandise from collectibles to baby clothes.

•Whitwell Cafe, assist serving meals to employees and visitors in the cafeteria.

•Patient Advocate, visit with patients to determine how the hospital can better serve their needs.

•Reception Desk, greet visitors and patients and direct them to various hospital departments. A knowledge of basic computer skills, or willingness to learn is necessary. Openings available daily, particularly for early evening and weekend time periods.

For more information, call Karen Tufts at 376-5504.

Family Commission Meeting Today

The Quincy Commission on the Family will meet today (Thursday) at 5 p.m. at Squantum Gardens, 63 Saratoga St.

The meeting will include a report from Executive Director Linda Stice, a presentation by Kathy Bandera, executive director of Quincy's community policing commission, and possibly other business.

Meetings are open to the public.

Sheets Eyes Completion Of Deal To Reopen Shipyard

Mayor James Sheets left for Washington, D.C. yesterday (Wednesday) in the hopes of finalizing a deal to provide $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the reopening of the Fore River shipyard.

Sheets said before he left he hoped the deal would be completed during an all-day conference yesterday with officials from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), which must approve the guarantees, and others.

"We would like very much to have a date for the closing by Wednesday," he said. "I'm hopeful that will happen."

Sheets added he would like to see the paperwork for the deal completed by the end of the month.

MARAD gave shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil a letter of commitment for the loan guarantees last year, shortly after Congress passed a budget resolution allowing loans to a closed shipyard.

Emmanouil, who wants to build six double-hulled tankers at the yard--which closed when General Dynamics left in 1986--is still awaiting a decision on another $240 million in guarantees that will allow him to build the tankers.

Emmanouil hopes to lay the keel for the first tanker by next fall and says his $322 million project will create 1,000 jobs for the first contracts and as many as 2,000 for future shipbuilding.

Council Approves Concourse Landtakings

Landtakings for the planned Quincy Center Concourse were approved by the City Council Monday night.

The council took the matter out of its Finance Committee and approved it without discussion. The committee voiced support of the landtakings last month.

Property owners who will be affected by the landtakings and the amounts they will be paid by the state include:

Boston City Properties (Star Market), $31,316; Trustees of 126 Granite Street Trust (TJ Maxx), $31,469; Atlantic-Quincy Realty LLC (Paperama), $62,987; Hancock Park Limited Partnership, $2,600; and Ruben A. Grossman Trust, $18,000.

The state-funded, $9.1 million concourse will link Hancock Street with Burgin Parkway in Quincy Center. City officials hope the roadway, which they say will improve traffic problems and help revitalize the downtown, will be open to motorists by late 1998 or early 1999.

City Council Briefs

The City Council took the following action at its meeting Monday night:

•Appropriated $15,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account to the Quincy Fire Department for repairs to Engine 8 in Germantown.

•Accepted gifts totaling $1,035 for the city's DARE (anti-drug) program. Donors included: Degan Memorial Fund, $1,000; M. Pearl D'Andrea, $25 and Jean Gildee, $10.

Oh sure, the Quincy Banking Center is a brand new branch of The Bank of Canton.

But The Bank of Canton has been in Quincy long before now. We're one of the South Shore's oldest community banks. Providing mortgages for more homes in Norfolk County, for example, than 95% of all other institutions. And savings accounts and CDs, construction loans, debit and credit cards, checking, lines of credit, car loans, college loans, and more.

And folks like Branch Manager Michelle Higgins, Regional Mortgage Manager Judy Farmer, Commercial Lending Vice President Paul Carey and others, have been helping the people of the Quincy area with their personal and business banking needs for years.

So even though we look like the new kids on the block, we're not. For over 165 years, we've been with you. Now, we're in your neighborhood too.

Kolson Has The Votes For Council Presidency

The City Council president's gavel will remain in the hands of Peter Kolson next year.

Kolson has quietly but quickly put together enough votes among colleagues to assure him of another term as council president.

KOLSON

Kolson confirms he has at least six known votes. Only five are needed.

In addition to his own vote he has five committed to him: Paul Harold, Dan Raymondi, Bruce Ayers, Michael D'Amico and former Mayor Francis McCauley who is returning to the council after winning an at-large seat in last week's city election.

"I consider it a great honor for my colleagues to accord me the privilege of continuing as Council President," says Kolson. "I am deeply appreciative of their confidence in me."

A change in the council rules approved last March paved the way for Kolson to be re-elected.

Until then, a council president could not succeed himself after serving two years. Now the limit has been extended to four years.

The rule change, proposed by Raymondi, squeaked by to passage on a 5-to-4 vote. Lining up with Raymondi were Patrick McDermott, D'Amico, Ayers and Kolson.

Opposing the change were Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney, Stephen Durkin and Harold.

McDermott reportedly was interested in assuming the council presidency. Ironically, if he had not voted for the rule change, Kolson would have been ineligible for another term and McDermott might have put the votes together.

The council presidency is considered the second most powerful elective office in the city, second only to the mayor.

In addition to conducting the council meetings, he appoints the various council committees and is often the one the media turns to for comment on issues.

The presidency is also considered by some as the springboard to the mayor's office. Some presidents have sprung, others haven't.

The council president steps in as acting mayor when the mayor is out of state. And, is automatically in line to assume the mayoral duties if the mayor is incapacitated and unable to carry them out or to complete his term.

Kolson has been a low-key council president who does his job without making a lot of noise. He no doubt will continue that style the next two years.

And he won't be running upstairs to check Jim Sheets' pulse.

SOMEONE ASKED Jo-Ann Bragg how she felt election night wen the final returns were in.

BRAGG

"Fantastic," she replied.

And, fantastic it was, as she topped the School Committee field with an impressive 9,641 vote.

Her top billing wasn't too surprising to those who know her. She not only campaigned hard but she works hard at her job all four years of a term, not just in an election year.

MIKE McFARLAND had to be pleased, taking the second school committee spot, in his first run for public office, finishing only 760 votes behind Bragg.

McFARLAND

McFarland, former executive secretary to Mayor Sheets, covered a lot of ground during the campaign and the results show it.

Those who like to look down the political road see him as a future mayoral contender.

THE BIG SURPRISE of the election was newcomer Tracy Wilson who took the runner-up fourth place spot in the school committee race.

WILSON

Her vote of 7,941 was only 739 behind incumbent Ron Mariano who was third.

Wilson, a labor-relations consultant and attorney, is now seen as a definite "political comer" sure to be heard from again in the future.

And, it could be the very near future. There's already speculation she might run for the state representative seat Mike Bellotti is vacating in his bid for sheriff.

"I'm flattered people think of me as a state representative candidate," she says. "But, I would have to think about that."

KEVIN COUGHLIN is a bit disappointed but not discouraged about his fourth place finish in the school committee race. His vote was 4,777, not bad for the first time out.

COUGHLIN

Coughlin thinks he might have done better if he had gotten off to an earlier campaign start. As a Middlesex County court assistant chief probation officer, he wanted to be sure there would be no conflict if he ran. He asked for a legal opinion, but didn't get the official green light until three months later.

Would he run again? "People are telling me I should," he says. "I'm not closing the door."

Coughlin, incidentally, has a painful souvenir of the campaign: a badly bruised right index finger.

He was repairing one of his campaign signs on Beale St. in the dark the night before the election and banged the finger with a hammer.

YOU WILL PROBABLY see more of Dave McGillicuddy who finished fourth in the council at-large race.

McGILLICUDDY

The retired telephone company executive polled a respectable 5,507 vote in his first venture into the political arena.

"Not too bad," he smiles, "considering I was up against three heavyweights." (Harold, Cahill, and McCauley).

Will he run again?

"I would think about it," he says.

SPECIAL GET-WELL wishes to Grace Giunchiglia, Edna Abbiatti and Edie Corey.

Grace, who served as personal secretary to two mayors--Amelio Della Chiesa and James Sheets--is a patient at Quincy Hospital where she has undergone two major operations since Oct. 9. (If you'd like to drop her a card, she's in Room 515 in West 5.)

Edna, of that wonderful Abbiatti family, and retired Daniel Webster school teacher, is recuperating at home after a stay at the hospital.

Edie, one of the mainstays of the city Election Department, suffered a nasty leg cut requiring 13 stitches in a fall at home. She hopes to be back at her desk this week.

A speedy recovery to all three.

AND, BEST WISHES to Brian Smith who will mark his 40th birthday Saturday, Nov. 29 at New England Sinai Hospital where he is a resident.

Brian will be honored at a birthday party that day in Conference Room A & B from 1 to 3 p.m. Brian worked in the housekeeping department at Quincy Hospital for 11 years.

He is the son of George and the late Jeanne Smith. George is a former member of the Quincy Planning Board and active in the Quincy Lions Club.

Happy birthday, Brian.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920's postcard view of the old Quincy District Courthouse that was on Coddington Street in Quincy Square. It was built in 1911 a few years after the Coddington School that was next door. Once there was a plan to line both sides of Coddington Street with public buildings of this type all the way down to Sea Street. As part of this plan, the high school and the police station were later built. The court was moved when the County built the present East Norfolk Court building on Chestnut Street. This old building was torn down in the 1980's to make room for Presidents Place. Now an empty lot, the site was recently targeted for a downtown hotel but the present owners plan to build an office here.

Seeks Members Of Civilian Conservation Corps

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Somewhere out in this area of Quincy there are several men who were at one time in an organization affectionately called the C's, more formally called the Civilian Conservation Corps 1933-1942.

In this Commonwealth, 100,000 men and boys were part of the most prestigious Corps. The number of that 100,000 from the City of Quincy have been lost for antiquity, for my records show only 23 survivors. However, there are more alumni.

There is to be a celebration in the fact that the Department of Environmental Management has reached the century mark in age 100. The Civilian Conservation Corps made immense contributions to the environment through the existence of the DEM.

The Alumni Association has been in existence here in Quincy for 14 years, 1983 to 1997, with only 34 registered alumni down to about 11 alumni surviving. There are more, for, I through the efforts of another local newspaper has made notice of the DEM 100 anniversary have received several phone calls from CCC guys and would you believe women (girls) who had worked at the Army Base in South Boston 1933 shuffling papers and in the town halls that made out the papers recommending and preparing papers to the Army for enrollment. The Army at that time had the responsibility for housing and care of the enrollees, while the state had the responsibility of providing the work projects for the enrollees, most of the projects are still in existence.

I am asking all former Civilian Conservation Corps Enrollees, 1933-1942, and all other interested people contact Francis J. Derwin at 471-5664.

Thanks Hospice For Helping His Mother

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, my family utilized the services provided by Hospice of the South Shore to help care for my mother.

While it was only for a short period of time, the work of everyone involved made my mother as comfortable as possible during that time.

As director of the Council on Aging, I have been very familiar with the great work Hospice of the South Shore provides for elders. But now that I have experienced first-hand the services you offer, I am even more impressed.

On behalf of the Buckley family, I would like to thank Hospice for the special care they gave my Mom and I wish Hospice all the best as they continue their outstanding service.

Urges Support Of Endangered Species Recovery Act

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing about an issue which Congress is making a decision on in the near future, whether to strengthen or weaken the Endangered Species Act.

The original act, passed in 1973, has helped to halt the potential extinction of dozens of animal and plant species, including the bald eagle, the gray wolf, and California sea otter.

Yet for all of the Endangered Species Act's successes, many species are slipping through the loopholes in the current act. We are currently faced with the greatest rate of species extinction worldwide since the disappearance of the dinosaurs 65 million years ago. Each year, about 50,000 species become extinct worldwide. That is four species every hour.

Unfortunately, Sens. Chafee and Kempthorne are proposing legislation that would severely weaken the ESA, jeopardizing over 20 years of progress in conservation. This bill will seriously undermine the ESA in a number of ways, including adding further delays to the listing of threatened and endangered species and severely weakening the ESA's current goal of recovering imperiled species.

In an effort to halt the weakening of the ESA, the Endangered Species Coalition, including the PIRG's have worked with Rep. George Miller (D-Calif.) to introduce the Endangered Species Recovery Act. ESRA would strengthen the protection of endangered species in a common sense way. This bill would protect wildlife by amending the ESA to encourage earlier conservation by federal agencies, make recovery of species (to the point they no longer need ESA protection) the standard for species throughout the Act, and increase citizens' participation in community planning.

I am writing this is a concerned citizen. I want to see ecological diversity survive for many more generations. In Massachusetts alone there are 16 endangered species, which without our help, may soon become extinct. I am urging concerned citizens to write or call their local Congressman to show support for Miller's Endangered Species Recovery Act.

No Anthem At Home Games

Nov. 13 - 19
1950
47 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

James Carter, director of health education for the Quincy school department, defended the policy of not playing the national anthem before home football games.

His defense came following criticism by the American legion of the Weymouth school department for their failure to play the anthem at a home game.

Carter said playing the anthem was suspended because "gate-breakers" took advantage of the situation. During the playing of the anthem, police at the stadium stood at attention, while "gate-breakers" jumped the wall to avoid paying admission.

'EXCELLENT SHIPYARD' TO BE REMEMBERED

In a letter to George Daley, Jr., chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, Navy Secretary Francis Matthews said he'd remember the "excellent facilities" at the Fore River yard when awards were made for new construction and conversion work.

BAY POLLUTION TO END IN FIVE YEARS

Clarence Sterling, state director of the division of sanitary engineering in the Department of Public Health, predicted that pollution in Quincy Bay would end in five years.

He noted that the newly built Nut Island treatment facility, along with the piping of Boston's waste water from Calf Pasture in Dorchester to Deer Island, would end the discharge of sewerage into the bay.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

No-Boil Lasagne

The longer I cook the more I want things easier to do. In the preparation of lasagne, for instance, I had been using the no-boil kind.

They cost a lot more than the regular lasagne that require boiling, but it was worth it.

However, recently our daughter Nancy has been making the regular lasagne without boiling them. I finally tried it last week and they came out as well if not better than the no-boil brand. It was so easy, plus the kitchen stayed cool!. You have to use a little more sauce and a bit of water on the bottom.

No-Boil Lasagne
1 pound lasagne
1 to 2 quarts tomato sauce
1 pound ricotta cheese
1 package of shredded cheddar or mozzarella cheese grated romano cheese
4 ounces cream cheese
1 egg
1 teaspoon fresh parsley

Mix the ricotta, parsley, cream cheese, and 1/2 cup of grated romano cheese. Blend well and set aside.

In a baking dish, layer the bottom with sauce. Begin placing the lasagne in strips (cut them to fit if you have to in certain places). Add the ricotta mixture spreading it well and then the sauce and shredded cheese. Repeat until lasagne is used up. Add additional sauce and top it with shredded and grated cheese.

Before baking in a 350 degree oven, add about a half cup of water on the sides of the baking dish. Cover and cook for about an hour and remove cover, put a fork through to see if it is cooked. If it's bubbling and done to your liking, remove from oven and wait about 10 minutes before cutting. It comes out picture perfect!

DIANE PURDY'S Children's Theatre Workshop will perform "Clown Town Calamities," which deals with various safety issues, Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center. Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

LOOKING OUT FOR ALZHEIMER'S

It has become one of the most dreaded disorders of our time. Because it seems to steal away the very essence of a human being, Alzheimer's disease is often more feared than medical conditions that might cause far more physical pain and disability. Alzheimer's is a disease of the brain, with breakdown of brain tissue. Symptoms often start in later middle age, typically showing up in uncharacteristic memory lapses and shifts in behavior. As the condition progresses, signs may include restlessness, difficulty speaking and moving, extreme fearfulness, excitability, and confusion. The exact cause is not known, although there are many theories. Treatment is also a puzzle, but good nutrition and drug therapy can help slow its progress.

P.S. Dementia has many causes other than Alzheimer's, most of which are reversible. See a doctor promptly if you start to notice problems.

Checking out your medical concerns, no matter how small or large, can alleviate your distress. That's what we're here for, and to give you the proper medical interventions you need in a timely manner. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Ayers, Durkin Meetings On Shaw's Beer-Wine Application

Two city councillors are holding neighborhood meetings this week regarding the recent application of the Shaw's Supermarket on the Wollaston-North Quincy line for a beer and wine license.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers will hold a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

Ward 5 Councillor will hold a meeting on the issue Saturday at 11 a.m. at the Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston.

The Quincy License Board, which last year grant the same license to the nearby Super Stop & Shop store, will vote on the Shaw's application at a future date.

Residential, Business Tax Rates Going Up

and personal property at 169 percent of the levy which is less than the state maximum of 175 percent allowed under state law.

Homeowners will pay about 67 percent of the levy, despite the fact that residential property accounts for about 78 percent of the total value of real estate in the city.

Total commercial property valuations will rise from $963.9 million in FY97 to $987 million in FY98. Residential values will rise from $3.41 billion to $3.5 billion.

Property taxes are the largest single source of revenue for the city's budget (about 60 percent of it) which was $149.6 million this year. The rest comes from local receipts, including sewer and water bills, excise taxes and other fees as well as state aid.

On Monday night, Fantucchio told councillors that "prudent spending" by Sheets and the City Council has allowed Quincy to hold the line on property taxes in recent years. She added that the city could have hit residents with an average increase of $130 or more, considerably higher than the $94 recommended by the mayor.

Special Meeting To Be Held Nov. 24

Council Seeks Update On School Building Needs

The City Council is seeking an update from Mayor James Sheets' School Building Needs Task Force on needed structural improvements to the Quincy Public Schools.

The council unanimously approved a resolution introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney Monday night calling for the task force to finalize its recommendations on the issue for a special meeting to be held Monday, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The task force, which is chaired by Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, was formed to make recommendations and form a plan regarding how to remedy school building needs into the next millenium.

Karen Tufts Named Hospital Volunteer Services Coordinator

Karen Tufts of Quincy, has been named coordinator of volunteer services at Quincy Hospital.

Quincy Hospital has almost 200 volunteers performing a variety of tasks in departments such as accounting, radiology, and registration services as well as on the nursing units and in the library. As coordinator, Tufts is responsible for recruiting, training and overseeing the volunteers. She plans to focus on the recruitment effort in order to further enhance services throughout the hospital.

Tufts has been manager of the Cherry Gift Shop at the hospital for the past three years, and will continue in that position. Since the manager is the only paid staff person in the gift shop, Tufts has extensive experience with the volunteers at the hospital.

"I'm looking forward to working with the superb staff of dedicated volunteers at this hospital," said Tufts. "They serve such an important role in this organization, and both the hospital and the volunteers benefit greatly from the experience."

Fr. William McCarthy Retiree Assn. Chaplain

FR. McCARTHY

The executive board of the Quincy Retiree Association Inc. recently voted unanimously to appoint Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church as the group's first chaplain.

Association President Stephen Moynihan said Fr. McCarthy was chosen because of his work at St. John the Baptist, at Fr. Bill's Place, the homeless shelter named in his honor and in the community.

"We felt he would be the appropriate person," said Moynihan.

ENC Receives $460,000 Donation From Alumnus

Dr. Carl Crouthamel, distinguished physical chemist and alumnus of Eastern Nazarene College (ENC), recently presented an unrestricted gift of stock valued at approximately $460,000 to ENC President Dr. Kent Hill.

The gift has been earmarked by college officials to support the sciences, and represents the most significant donation thus far to be designated for the renovation and expansion of Shrader Hall, ENC's science building constructed in 1959. The gift is the second largest in the history of ENC, and the largest designated by the college for a capital building project.

Dr. Crouthamel's professional career involved work on the Manhattan Project, serving as research assistant to world-renowned Enrico Fermi. Dr. Crouthamel worked on controlled chain reaction experiments and prepared the first sample of pure uranium for Fermi.

After his work on the Manhattan Project, Dr. Crouthamel joined the Argonne National Laboratory, published the first book on practical gamma ray spectroscopy, worked for several years on the breeder-type nuclear reactor, and was employed by Exxon Nuclear.

Near the end of his career, he was instrumental in helping to start the program to build the first gamma ray lens for use in astronomy. The lens can located black holes and can be used for the verification of nuclear arms treaties.

Dr. Lowell Hall, chairman of the division of natural and mathematical sciences at ENC, said, "We are thrilled that such a distinguished alumnus of the college has chosen to honor the college with such a large gift. His gift helps to ensure that our fine reputation in the sciences will continue for many decades to come."

Forbes' 1838 China Voyage Historical Society Topic Nov. 20

The voyage of Milton resident and renowned ship captain Robert Bennet Forbes to China from 1838-40 will be recounted by his direct descendant, Phyllis Forbes Kerr, at a meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Thursday, Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

On the voyage, Forbes participated in the beginning of the U.S.-China trade that would make great Massachusetts fortunes and was a witness to the first British-Chinese Opium War. The voyage was Forbes' daring and ultimately successful attempt to regain his own fortune and also produced a remarkable set of letters to his wife, Rose, detailing his adventures and demonstrating the couple's love for each other.

Phyllis Forbes Kerr's edition of Forbes' letters, "Letters from China, the Canton-Boston Correspondence of Robert Bennet Forbes," was published this spring by Mystic Seaport Press. She will present an illustrated guide to the Forbes adventure. She will also have copies of her book available for purchase and autographing. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served.

Two Residents Commended Students

Fontbonne Academy seniors Maryellen DiPietro and Colleen Gargan, both of Quincy, were recently named Commended Students in the 1998 National Merit Scholarship Program.

A Letter of Commendation from Fontbonne and the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, which conducts the program, will be presented by Principal Sharon Gouveia to the two seniors.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

DON'T TOUCH THAT TOENAIL

One of the longest running myths about foot care is that ingrown toenails are self-treatable. Just angle or round off the corners of your toenails and they won't have a chance to become ingrown - or so the story goes. Unfortunately, that myth is in fact just a myth, a false notion. One of the worst things you can do in an attempt to either prevent or treat ingrown nails is to cut down the corners. The reason is that toenails grow out from the matrix, inside the toe. A nail becomes ingrown when the tissue surrounding it closes in on the sides of the nail, making it appear that the nail is growing out of the flesh. Ingrown nails require professional care. Left untreated, pain and infection are likely to result.

P.S. When it comes to trimming nails, go straight!

Take a step toward healthy feet now by exercising your toes and feet. If you are having any type of foot problem such as an ingrown toenail, call us at 773-4300, to arrange for a consultation. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18. All medical coverage is accepted. Watch this column in the weeks to come as we discuss many other interesting topics related to foot care.

Chretien Opposes Subsidies For Incinerators

As legislators on Beacon Hill debate a bill to deregulate electric utilities, candidate for state representative Larry Chretien has expressed opposition to a provision in the bill that would make trash-burning incinerators eligible for up to $10 million in subsidies.

The subsidies would be paid for by surcharges on the electric bill of all ratepayers in Massachusetts.

Chretien said, "The bill provides financial support for sources of electricity that are supposedly good for the environment. Well, someone evidently thinks that trash-burning incinerators are in that category. That is not the case at all. Incinerators cause air pollution and toxic ash that has to be landfilled.

"Rather than spending millions on this technology, the state should be doing more to encourage better ways of handling solid waster. Those better ways include reusing material, source reduction, recycling, and composting."

Chretien added, "The Commonwealth has a goal of recycling almost half of its solid waste. Every year, the Department of Environmental Protection grades each city or towns on progress towards that goal. It does no make sense to have a goal such as that while providing subsidies to incinerators.

"Incinerators are an inferior option of creating electricity anyway. We would be better off focusing our efforts on technologies that are truly good for the environment-photovoltaics, wind energy, and conservation."

FIRST GRADERS Jacqueline Bradley, Kristen Bloomer and Ellen Einsidler were among those participating in the Merrymount School's recent Kids Voting Rally.

Flood Implements New Revenue Raising Programs

Norfolk County Sherriff John Flood has implemented several new revenue-raising programs at the Norfolk County Sheriffs Office and Correctional Facility.

The programs will generate approximately $50,000 in funds annually as a result of a barber service fee, a medical fee and an administrative fee charged to inmates incarcerated at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office Correctional Facilities.

The first program executed was a fee to inmates for barber services. Cost for each inmate per haircut is $4 and is charged to the inmates canteen fund. The program, since July 1, has generated over $2,987.

A second program implemented pertained to inmate medical care. Each inmate is charged a $5 co-payment every time they see a nurse, doctor, dentist or optometrist. Inmates are also charged a $2 co-payment for all pharmaceutical services. The new program, initiated in March, has brought in $5,079.

Flood has also begun imposing an inmate processing fee of $30 per inmate to assist in defraying the cost of incarceration. Inmates are charged the one-time fee during the booking process at the time of entry to the facility. The fee helps to cover the cost of the state mandated physical and blood work that all inmates are required to receive upon arrival. In its first two months of operation, the processing fee brought in $4,380.

All three initiatives are part of the Inmate Financial Responsibility Program initiated by Flood. The goal of the program is to place part of the responsibility for the financial obligations that the Sheriff's Office incurs with the inmates committed to the Norfolk County House of Correction. By placing a portion of the responsibility on the inmates, it alleviates part of the financial burden placed upon the taxpayer.

Flood said, "the purpose of this program is to teach the inmates a sense of personal and social responsibility, that all law abiding citizens already have. While doing so, we are able to generate funds that help reduce the impact of our budget to our local communities."

Both the medical fee and the administrative process fee are firsts for a Massachusetts County Correctional Facility.

Lincoln-Hancock Students Honor Frank Anselmo

FORMER SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Frank Anselmo, 99, a veteran of both World War I and World War II, was honored by Lincoln-Hancock School students Monday during a pre-Veterans Day play staged in his honor. Anselmo served 29 years on the School Committee after retiring from the Post Office.

"PLEASE, MR. POSTMAN" was one of the songs performed by Lincoln-Hancock School students of Steven Cantelli during Monday's play in honor of Frank Anselmo. Anselmo was superintendent of the Quincy Post Office when he retired. He then began a 29-year political career as a school committeeman. (Sun photos/Tom Gorman)

SOME WOMEN CAN'T CONCEIVE OF BEING PREGNANT WITHOUT A NURSE MIDWIFE.

There are lots of things to consider about being pregnant. Like, who will comfort, guide and support you for the months up to and after delivery? For many expecting mothers, the answer is a certified nurse midwife. These professionals have the knowledge, experience, and understanding to help you along the way, while monitoring your progress. At the Center for Women's Health, we have five certified nurse midwives for you to choose from. This team supports and works closely with our highly-regarded OB GYN doctors. And, because we are affiliated with Quincy Hospital, a complete range of women's healthcare services is available, from annual examinations to the birth of your child. Call (617) 376-5462 and we can set up an appointment to meet our midwives. If a family is in your future, the Center for Women's Health is a welcome place to start planning.

Three Families Chosen For Habitat's Granite Village

South Shore Habitat for Humanity has selected the first three families who will live in its Granite Village on Bower Road by this spring.

"Habitat has given me a chance to live decently," said Marie Niamkey, whose family is one of the three. "This is the only way I can have a home. It's hard to find a three-bedroom in Quincy. My kids will now be comfortable."

South Shore Habitat, an ecumenical, Christian ministry dedicated to building homes in partnership with South Shore families in need, will build 10 homes in Quincy Point beginning in December. The first three families were selected recently by Habitat's Board of Directors.

Applications for the seven additional houses to be built at the site will be available when those houses are ready to be constructed.

The first three chosen: Niamkey, a Quincy resident with two children; Stephen Jacques, a resident of the city with four children; and Dereck and Robin Ingemi, former residents with three children. They were selected based on need, ability to pay the no interest, affordable mortgage and the desire to complete the 500 "sweat equity" hours on their home.

The Niamkey family is currently living in a cramped, two bedroom apartment. Marie Niamkey is the sole provider for her children. She works as a nursing assistant in Weymouth and as a seamstress. Because of Habitat, she will be moving into the three-bedroom House That Jill Built, an all-women-built home, which will allow her two children, Nina, 15, and Jean-Jacques, 11, to have their own rooms. Niamkey will help to build her home, alongside hundreds of other women who have volunteered to build the Jill house.

The Jacques will be moving into and will help build their three-bedroom Habitat home, which is being partially sponsored by Christ Church in Needham and by a major gift from Maxwell House Coffee Inc.

Stephen Jacques is a divorced single father with two sons, ages 9 and 10, and two daughters, ages 12 and 14. The family has been living with his mother in her crowded Quincy home. He said moving into the Habitat home, will relieve some of the stress his mother, who has had health problems, has had to deal with and will allow his children to live in a stable environment.

"It's great. I'll be working and living in Quincy," said Jacques, who is an EMT and soon to be a paramedic working in Quincy. "My kids can stay in the Quincy school system. That's all my kids wanted, a house of their own someday."

Jacques, who has construction experience, will help to build his family's home.

The Ingemis and their three children, ages 2, 3 and 5, also will be working off their sweat equity hours by helping to build their own home, which is being sponsored than St. Steven's Episcopal Church of Cohasset. They are currently living in one room of a Randolph home, which Robin's mother owns and lives in with Robin's two siblings.

The Ingemis recently moved back to the South Shore from South Carolina, where they moved to find work. Both Robin and Dereck are employed in Needham, where she works as a waitress and he at Sourcecode.

"This came at the perfect time. I'm so thankful, I'm at a loss for words," said Robin. "Habitat is a great program. I think people should get involved with it. You want to give your children a place to call home when they're young. They're going to have that. Everybody should have that."

The Ingemis tried on two previous occasions to become Habitat homeowners before being selected on the third attempt.

Habitat received 88 applications for the first three of the 10 houses to be built on Bower Road. The homes will be built in three phases by volunteers over the next two years. The application process is expected to open up again in the spring.

Applications not selected for the first three homes will be kept on file and considered for the remaining homes. Local families who can demonstrate a significant housing need and who meet Habitat income and residency requirements are encouraged to apply.

Selected families will purchase the homes at cost and will receive a 20-year, zero-interest financing by Habitat, resulting in a small monthly mortgage payment. Each home costs $50,000 to $55,000. Habitat will use the monthly mortgage payments to finance future home construction or renovations for other families with housing needs in the South Shore area. The 500 "sweat equity" hours each family is required to complete act as a down payment for the house.

and shore or in the air, whether stateside or overseas, we all served to support the missions of the United States and its allies.

"As I look to this memorial of the World War I soldier, I see a man who for his country and world betterment went forward into battle, and when the armistice was signed and he returned home, he still went forward, but this time as a veteran.

"Millions of fine brave men and women have come forward to serve this country in its time of need. Many have been maimed and disabled, are unaccounted for, and have given their lives to protect and defend our freedom, our way of life, and to preserve what this country stands for.

"Today millions of veterans continue to carry that torch of dedication and love of country. They are a part of the backbone upon which this great nation stands.

"Veterans are an asset to this country. We are now and always will be a part of this nation's life and history.

"The late John F. Kennedy said, and I quote: 'Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country."

"As veterans, our duties to this country did not end upon our discharge from the military. We as veterans have done and continue to serve and do for our great nation.

"He also said: 'Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, in order to ensure the survival and success of liberty.'

"This cannot be achieved without our military forces, and the military of today are the veterans of tomorrow. Support the veterans of today and of the future. We veterans are not an ideality; we are in every walk of life, we are real people, we do exist.

"The United States of America, with all its freedoms and opportunities, proudly stands tall in this world. This could not have been accomplished without the sacrifice of our veterans.

"War is the conflict of one nation against one another. I did not, and like so many others, do not want war. I doubt that any veteran enjoyed war.

"Those of us who have experienced the devastation of villages and cities, the hunger and wasting of people, of separation from family and friends, under conditions never experienced before and hope to never experience again. Gen. Creighton Abrams once said: 'Nobody in his right mind welcomes war, especially those who have seen it. The destruction, the pain are beyond telling.' It has been said before, 'War is hell.'

"If the genius and monies of the warring parties could be utilized to the making of peace instead of conflict, the world as we know it would be a better place.

"Many nations now seem to be striving for this, we see today, in countries that have conflicts, that the United States along with other united nations have deployed forces to areas of strife, to mediate and enforce peace and harmony.

"The role of the military presently seems to be that of keeping peace throughout the globe. The men and women of these peacekeeping forces are a part of our future.

"These men and women, upon their release from military service, will reenter civilian life. They, like those of us before them, will enter many occupations in private industry and government. They will work, pay taxes, vote and raise families. They are our future veterans, and like those of us here today, are a part of this nation's future. Don't forget us.

"In recent years, we haven't had the wars and conflicts of the past. We can hope and pray that we never experience those horrible times again.

"Give us veterans the honor and respect for our sacrifices. Those of us who served, did our best, not just for ourselves, but for our country.

"Do not lose sight of what this nation has achieved, and don't forget that we as veterans have had a large part in making these achievements possible.

"Thank you all for being here."

The ceremonies were preceded by the annual Veterans Day Parade which started at School Street and traveled down Hancock Street before ending at the academy.

Thomas Stansbury of the Quincy Veterans Services Department was parade chairman and Edward McAllister, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, was parade marshal.

Hank Bradley, Quincy Veterans Services Director and past state commander of the American Legion, was co-chairman. Emcee was Irving Isaacson, past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, the Jewish War Veterans Post 193 A.L., and the Cavanagh Chapter 79 D.A.V.

Also in attendance were city and state officials, including Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Peter Kolson who both spoke; representatives of several military and veterans' organizations and a number of local residents.

After 39 Years Of Service

Frank McLaughlin Retires As Quincy's Tree Warden

By DAVE MURPHY

In 1958, a young man named Frank McLaughlin answered an advertisement in the newspaper looking for people interested in working for the Forestry Department in the City of Quincy.

Thirty-nine years later, he has planted almost 1 million flowers, 10,000 trees, and has done more to aesthetically improve our city than anyone ever has. Now, after four decades of loyal and dedicated service, Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin has retired.

He has outlasted seven mayors, numerous hurricanes and blizzards, and more than his share of close calls. Through it all, McLaughlin has emerged with his smile and sense of humor firmly intact.

McLaughlin rose quickly through the ranks of the Forestry Department. After beginning as a tree climber, his work ethic and unwavering enthusiasm for the job were recognized by his superiors. He was promoted to working foreman in 1972 and to tree warden, the highest position in the Forestry Department, in 1978.

Along with his many years of on-the-job experience, McLaughlin learned his craft by studying at Harvard University. He studied courses in horticultural science and received many certificates of merit.

McLaughlin and his wife Mary have been married 40 years. They have four children: Frank, Daniel, Jeannine, and Julie. Longtime residents of Quincy Point, the McLaughlins now live on a six-acre spread in Hanson.

"I consider myself to be the luckiest guy around because of the wonderful family I have," he said. "My wife Mary has always been there for me, and my kids are constantly making me proud to be their father. What more could any man ask for?"

McLaughlin spends part of his time caring for chickens, racing pigeons, emus, and hunting dogs. He frequently enters his pigeons and dogs in local, regional and national competitions, and has enjoyed considerable success in both endeavors.

McLaughlin also has been successful in earning honors for the city. Just recently, Quincy was recognized as a "Tree City USA" by the National Arbor Day Foundation for its commitment to planting, protecting, and preserving the urban forest. His many years of professionalism and proficiency in the art of arboriculture are largely responsible for the city attaining this recognition.

His work can be found throughout the city. The north and south entrances to the city at the Neponset River Bridge and Fore River Bridge are seasonally decorated by McLaughlin with a variety of flowers and shrubs. One of his finest works, McIntyre Mall at City Hall, contains more than 3,000 flowers.

"Very few people take as much pride in their work as Frank does," said Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department Executive Director Thomas Koch. "He has a genuine concern for all of the flowers and trees in our city, and that is reflected in his work. He sure will be missed."

In 39 years, McLaughlin has never refused to work an emergency, often coming to work in the middle of the night to answer a call for a downed tree. Through hurricanes and blizzards, he has never refused to come to the aid of the citizens of Quincy.

"I'm happy to be retiring so that I can spend more time with my family, but I will surely miss this place," he said. "For 39 years, I have looked forward to coming to work every day. I will miss the people and the job that I have grown to love."

North Quincy Visits Hingham Saturday

Raiders Fall Victim To Powerful B-R Running Attack

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Back-to-back losses to the Old Colony League's elite teams--Silver Lake and Bridgewater-Raynham--have sent the North Quincy High School football reeling as the season draws to a close.

The Red Raiders (3-4 OCL, 3-5 overall), who fell to visiting B-R, 27-0, last Friday night, seek their fourth victory when they travel to Hingham Saturday at 1:30 p.m. for a non-league contest.

Hingham, a Division 3 team in the Atlantic Coast League, has struggled through a tough campaign, losing all six league games. Winless in four home games, Hingham (1-7) averages under 12 points a game while yielding nearly 29 a contest.

"We have only one more game before Thanksgiving, and we need to come out and play hard," said North Quincy head coach Ken McPhee. "We're done playing the iron of the OCL; now we have to focus on Hingham and get a victory.

"Hingham's a little young up front and inexperienced, but they've played some good teams tough, so we can't go in and expect them to roll over."

North will be without the services of sophomore tight end/linebacker Brian Deptula for the remainder of the season.

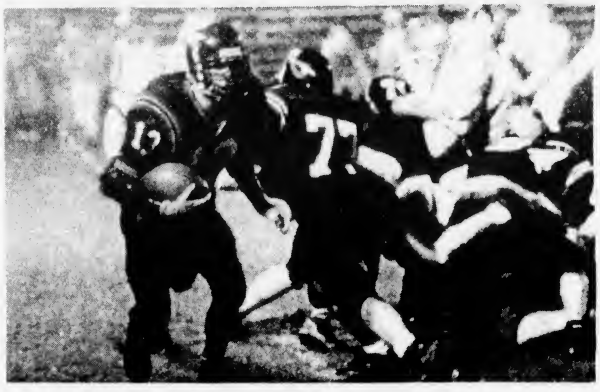
"Brian's battling mono, and we're going to miss him," said McPhee. "He's a player."

In the loss to Bridgewater-Raynham (6-0, 7-2) on a cold, windy, wet night, the Red Raiders fell victim to the powerful Trojan running attack, spearheaded by junior Doug Bessette (nine carries, 204 yards, four touchdowns--all in the first half).

After North punted on its first possession, Bessette wasted no time showing why he is one of the OCL's standout runners. He took the handoff on B-R's first play from scrimmage and rumbled 65 yards before NQ senior defensive back Jason Turner hauled him down at NQ's seven-yard line. Three plays later, Bessette found an opening and scored on a one-yard run.

"He's the best back I've seen in a long time," said McPhee. "He's not someone you can arm tackle, and that's what we tried to do. Once he's out in the open, he's off to the races. You have to contain him at the line, but we weren't able to do that and it cost us a couple big plays."

North's next drive halted when Turner fumbled the ball away at his own 18. Four plays later, on a fourth and one at the nine, Bessette carried for the first down. On the next play, Bessette followed the strong blocking of the Trojan offensive line for an eight-yard touchdown run. Jesse Mead kicked the extra point for a 13-0 B-R lead with 3:29 remaining in the first quarter.



The Red Raiders executed a long drive on its next possession, sparked by the running of Turner (80-plus yards), who collected 17 yards on three carries, and the passing of junior quarterback Chris Bregoli, who connected with senior tight end Frank McNamara on a 19-yard pass play. Senior fullback Mike Powers added 16 yards on four carries, but the drive stalled at the B-R 28.

"We got some good performances from our offense, especially Turner, Bregoli and Powers," said McPhee. "B-R's such a strong all-around team, though, and they were able to keep us off the scoreboard."

Early in the second quarter, the Trojans again wasted little time padding their lead as Bessette capped a five-play, 72-yard drive with a 46-yard touchdown run. Mead's extra point extended the B-R lead to 20-0, effectively putting the game out of reach.

On the first play following another North Quincy punt, Bessette raced 63 yards untouched for his fourth touchdown of the half. Mead added his third extra point for the game's final score.

Throughout the game, the Red Raiders moved the ball downfield but could not penetrate the Trojans' red zone area. One such drive in the fourth quarter began at NQ's 49, with back-to-back receptions by senior wide receiver Mark Stanton for 18 yards moving the Red Raiders to the Trojans' 37. After a short run by Powers, Bregoli was sacked for a nine-yard loss, setting up a third and long pass, which fell incomplete and was followed by another punt.

RED RAIDERS' FULLBACK Mike Powers looks for an opening to run through during North's 27-0 loss to visiting Bridgewater-Raynham last Friday night.

QUARTERBACK CHRIS BREGOLI (14) turns to hand the ball off to tailback Jason Turner (33), who rushed for over 80 yards for North Quincy against the Trojans.

Panthers, Manets Tie, Share QYFL Crown

YOUTH FOOTBALL

The Houghs Neck Manets and Quincy Point Panthers, who battled to a 6-6 tie in the Quincy Youth Football League championship game, were named co-champions following the memorable contest.

Despite the heavy rain and muddy conditions, it was a well-played game from start to finish as both defenses played outstanding football and limited the offense's opportunities.

In the first quarter, the Panthers moved the ball on its initial possession, including a 10-yard run by running back Mark Chella (seven carries, 45 first-half yards) but turned the ball over on a fumble.

Later in the quarter, the Panthers were again forced to punt. This time, the Manets' Paul Flynn, who led the league in scoring, returned the punt 65 yards for the game's first touchdown and a 6-0 Manets' lead.

The Panthers threatened on another drive as Mike Regen had a 15-yard run and Chella collected 20 yards on three carries, but the drive stalled and the Panthers' James LaFleur booted a 35-yard punt to the Manets' 20. This time, the Panthers' defense stepped up as Kris Kamborian recorded a sack and partially blocked the punt, giving the Panthers the ball at the Manets' 26.

Driving down to the 10, the Panthers had a first and goal but the Manets made three defensive stands that resulted in losses. On a fourth and goal play, a pass by Panther quarterback Mike Lorenzano (7-for-11 passing for 60 yards and seven carries for 50 yards) sailed out of the end zone.

Solid efforts from Panther defensive linemen Joe Viola, David Andronico, Matt Ramponi, Anthony Sandonato, Joe Whiffen, Andrew Picard and Matt Hodges limited the Manets to one first down in the first half. Strong defensive end play from Chris Bolter and Keith Ryan helped the Panther defense stifle the Manets' offense.

In the third quarter, the Manets were stopped on their opening drive, then took over when the Panthers fumbled the ball away. Once again, the Panther defense stepped up as Steve Ramponi stuffed a fourth and two play to give his team the ball back.

Trailing 6-0, the Panthers desperately tried to get the equalizer and eventually did following a 15-play, seven-minute drive in the fourth quarter. On the drive, Lorenzano was 6-of-8 passing, including three third and 10 completions to LaFleur and a first-down pass to Ramponi to the Manets' six-yard line. On third down at the two, Lorenzano completed a two-yard touchdown pass to LaFleur to tie the game at 6-6 with just 1:07 remaining in the game. The two-point conversion pass, intended for LaFleur, fell incomplete.

The Manets took over and ran two plays, picking up their only first down of the second half and just second of the game. But time ran out and the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Also playing well for the Panthers on special teams were Bobby Richie and Steve Pizzi, who had a good kickoff return to start the game. (Cont'd on Page 22)

PANTHERS' RUNNING BACK Mark Chella (81) secures the ball as a host of Manet defenders attempt to dislodge it. The QYFL championship was a well-played game, despite the muddy field and wet weather.

Struggling Quincy
At Barnstable Friday

Silver Lake's Victory Presidents' Third Consecutive Defeat

By LIAM FITZGERALD

After a sizzling 4-1 start, the Quincy High School football team has stumbled heading into the home stretch, losing three straight with just two games remaining on the schedule.

The latest defeat came at the hands of Old Colony League host Silver Lake, which scored two first-half touchdowns en route to a 14-0 victory over the Presidents last Friday night.

"They were just a bigger, stronger team and we couldn't move them off the ball," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella. "That prevented us from doing much offensively, although I thought our defense played a strong game."

The Presidents (2-3 OCL, 4-4 overall) face another challenge when they visit Barnstable in a key league game Friday night at 7. The Red Raiders (5-1, 6-3), who Sunday romped over Plymouth South, 28-8, are one of the contenders for the OCL crown and boast an offense which averages nearly 25 points a game.

"Barnstable's another team that has a size advantage against us," said Chella, who noted that Barnstable's three losses are to teams with a combined record of 20-5: Bridgewater-Raynham, Brockton and undefeated St. John's Prep.

"They play with a lot of confidence and intensity and are a real tough team," he added. "They're the only team to beat Silver Lake, so we're going to have to be ready for a battle."

During their current losing skid, the Presidents have scored a total of 25 points, an average of just over eight points a contest. In its first five games, Quincy's offense was clicking to the tune of 22 points a game.

"In the second half of the season, we've had games where we've gained a lot of yardage running the ball one game, then the passing game has excelled, but we haven't put a full ballgame together yet," said Chella. "We're going to have to do that if we want to beat Barnstable."

In the loss to Silver Lake, Quincy's offense struggled from the start under the windy and rainy conditions and was never able to get in gear.

Receiving the game's opening kickoff, the Presidents turned the ball over when senior quarterback Kevin Moore was intercepted by Marquisse Silva on the first play. The Lakers (6-1, 8-1) drove to Quincy's 20 but came up empty as the Presidents' defense held its ground.

A scoreless battle through the first quarter, Silver Lake got on the board early in the second quarter when running back Andre Mendes (17 carries, 109 yards) scampered in for a two-yard touchdown. The drive was highlighted by a 42-yard run around right end by Mendes deep into Quincy territory. Quarterback Jon Bond called his own number for the two-point conversion and an 8-0 lead less than a minute into the second quarter.

While Quincy's offense faltered, its defense contained Silver Lake deep in Presidents' territory. One Laker punt return gave them the ball at Quincy's 25, but the drive stalled six plays later at the 5.

However, Silver Lake's next punt return led to its second touchdown. Mendes caught the ball at the 25 and returned it to Quincy's 2. He then went over right tackle for a two-yard touchdown with 3:41 left and the Lakers took a 14-0 halftime lead.

"Neither team was able to throw the ball in the bad weather, but they were able to move the ball on the ground," said Chella. "It's tough to stop a team like that when they start a drive in our end."

In the second half, Quincy moved the ball beyond midfield but could not penetrate the Lakers' 32-yard line. Senior tailback Shaun Faherty picked up most of his 50 yards on the ground in the second half, giving him close to 900 yards for the season.

"Shaun likes to cut, but he couldn't plant on the wet field, which hurt us offensively," said Chella.

On its final drive, the Presidents completed three passes, the longest a 20-yard completion from Moore to senior tight end Jim Quigley. Again, the drive stalled and the Lakers held on for the shutout victory.

During the game, Quincy lost senior Bryan Dunn to a hip injury, though Chella said the punter/kick returner/wide receiver/safety should be back in the lineup Friday night.

QUINCY'S OFFENSIVE LINE, which includes from left, Sean Fitzpatrick, Steve Wiltshire, Tom Kelly, Jason Crossman and Dan Nichol, has done its job all season, providing running lanes for tailback Shaun Faherty, who has rushed for nearly 900 yards and with two games remaining has the opportunity to eclipse the 1,000-yard mark.

Panther coach Tom Ford was impressed with the efforts of both squads, who entered the game with identical 5-2 records.

"It's billed as Championship Sunday, and it definitely lived up to that billing," he said. "There were nothing but champions on the field that day. Everyone enjoyed the game, which capped a great year for the league."

The Manets' coaches are Bill Dunn, Dave Perry and Jim Virtue. Ken Fernald is the franchise owner and Tony DiStasi serves as commissioner.

Adam Goodrich, Joe Tower Named Babe Ruth MVPs

At a recent meeting, Quincy Babe Ruth League coaches voted Adam Goodrich and Joe Tower as the league's Most Valuable Players.

Goodrich, the National League MVP, helped Sons of Italy reach the playoffs by batting .500 and anchoring the defense behind the plate. He also pitched and played shortstop.

Tower, the American League MVP, stood out as one of the top pitchers in the league. He also played first base and the outfield for the Quincy Fire Department squad, which captured the city championship.

Teen Get-Away and Quincy Police Athletic League recently co-sponsored a Basketball Shoot-Out.

First place winners were Tim Curran and Danielle Rogers, followed by Tom Deagle and Jessica Connolly in second place. Third place for the boys was a tie between Richard Zapata and Dan Donovan. The third place finisher for the girls was Tanya Carpenter.

Free ice cream was handed out to all who participated.

Coordinating the event were TGA Executive Director Jo-Ann Bragg, TGA Program Director Jim Graham, PAL Director Joe Kintigos and officers Ted Stevenson and Tom Laughlin.

Reggiannini's Hat Trick Sparks Bulldogs Over Brookline, 6-2

Sparked by Dan Reggiannini's natural hat trick, the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B "Bulldogs" took a bite out of Westwood with a recent 6-2 victory.

In the first period, Kevin Shinnick tallied the first goal, assisted by Bryan Donelin. Mike McPherson lit the lamp, assisted by Shinnick, and Mike Giordani netted a goal, assisted by his brother, Matt, and Brendan Mulcahy.

Reggiannini notched his natural hat trick in the second period with assists from Rose Devlin, Stevie Bythrow and Glen "Gibba" Gibbons. The game puck was presented to Bythrow for his non-stop effort in both ends of the ice.

The Bulldog coaches commended the hard work of the defense and the solid goaltending of Ryan "The Beezer" Barter, who held Westwood to two goals.

VOLLEYBALL

Raiders Bounced From Tournament Semifinals

After stunning top seed Newton South in the Division 1 Central Sectional quarterfinals, the North Quincy High School girls' volleyball team was swept in the semifinals by Milford last Thursday.

Milford, the fourth seed, defeated ninth-seeded North Quincy, 15-9, 15-1, 15-13 to advance in the tournament.

"I'm a little disappointed in how we exited, but Milford's a strong team and had it working against us," said North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle. "They were clearly the better team that night, especially at the net."

The visitors from North (15-9) took an early 4-1 lead in the opening game, with Kim Hureth serving the first four points. Milford cut the deficit to 7-6, then captured the lead and never relinquished it.

In the second game, Milford jumped out to a 6-0 advantage, forcing NQ to call a timeout to try to regroup. When North fell behind 14-0, it took another timeout, after which Angela Scott served the team's only point of the game.

The Red Raiders turned the tables in the third game, taking a quick 6-1 lead, resulting in a Milford timeout. Amy Jellison served five of the next six points to build NQ's lead to 12-9.

Milford rallied to knot it at 12-12 and went on to clinch the match.

Rendle commended the play of senior co-captain Megan O'Donnell and senior Kelly Fernandez in the Milford match.

Earlier in the week, the Red Raiders upended No. 1 seed Newton South, 3-2. North edged the Lions, 15-8, 13-15, 15-7, 13-15, 15-4 to advance to the semifinals.

"We put it all together for this match and played very well," said Rendle. "I was real pleased with the play of our setter, Megan O'Donnell, who played spectacular."

Sparked by the serving of juniors Scott (nine kills) and Alexis Miranda, who each collected four consecutive service points, North Quincy captured the first game. Sophomore Katie Jellison (22 kills) recorded two blocks and three kills and Jessica Lorman added three blocks in the opener to help NQ.

After dropping the second game, NQ again took an early lead in the third game, jumping out to a 10-0 advantage. Miranda's four straight service points highlighted the spurt. O'Donnell, who was named a Pilgrim Conference All-Star and received the conference's Sportsmanship Award, constantly fed Katie Jellison for numerous spikes and closed out the game with a brilliant service point.

Again, the Lions battled back to tie the match, but the Red Raiders recovered the momentum to close out the victory. Leading 4-0, NQ's Miranda reeled off five consecutive service points to up the lead to 9-0. Jellison launched a spike to clinch the triumph.

Rendle commended the performances of seniors Kerry Skehan and Katie Sweetser, who combined for 20 digs on the back row of defense.

"Skehan and all the seniors--O'Donnell, Sweetser, Fernandez and Jennifer Nielson--have given strong efforts and worked hard," he said. "For a team that was supposedly rebuilding, we had 15 wins and won two tourney games.

"This was a great accomplishment, reaching the sectional semis. These kids really gave it all they had, and did very well."

Milford Sweeps Presidents Out Of Central Sectional

Despite the top-notch performances of senior co-captains Erin Barry and Mary Chenette, the Quincy High School girls' volleyball team was eliminated from the Division 1 Sectional quarterfinals by host Milford last Tuesday.

Fourth-seeded Milford won the match, 15-9, 15-4, 15-6, to move on to the semifinals.

Barry wrapped up her brilliant career with 11 kills and seven digs, while Chenette contributed six kills and 12 digs for the 12th-seeded Presidents (11-9).

"Erin and Mary both played very well in their final match, but as a team, we didn't come to play, and that's disappointing to me," said Quincy head coach Tom Henderson. "I know we're capable of playing better because I've seen them play better. I think the girls know that, too, but we didn't do what we had to do to win this match."

What also irked Henderson was that only one goal the team set was reached--qualifying for the tournament.

"We only reached one of our goals," he said. "We also wanted to win as many matches as possible to secure a home match, but that didn't happen. The previous three years, we've lost in the Sectional semifinals, and we wanted to correct that but didn't get a chance this time."

Looking back at the season, commended the efforts of all the seniors--Barry, Chenette, Karen Goldrick, Luisette Piloto and Danielle Robertson.

As Barry moves on to college, Henderson said her consistent effort and dedication to improving will be just two of qualities he will remember about the senior co-captain.

"Erin's probably in the top five of the players I've coached," he said. "She's a great kid, has a good attitude and works very hard. She also makes sacrifices and is willing to accept the blame if she makes a mistake. She's also able to move on and learn from it and not dwell on it.

"She's successful because she had put her time and energy into improving her skills. She works out and builds up her strength and plays a lot of volleyball throughout the year. She is always physically and mentally prepared to play and will be successful wherever she goes."

Fairfield, Iona and Providence College have all expressed interest in Barry, and Henderson said she is interested in each school as well.

"We're going to miss having her around, like all the seniors," said Henderson, "and hopefully she'll be an example of what hard work and dedication can accomplish."

YMCA's Second Annual Y-Five Road Race Sunday

The South Shore YMCA Stryders will hold their second annual Y-Five 5-mile Road Race Sunday. There will also be a 5-mile walk and a 1-kilometer (.62-mile) kids' fun run.

Proceeds from the events will benefit the Y's Annual Support Campaign.

The road care, which begins at 11 a.m., will start and finish at the YMCA, 79 Coddington St.

Registration will be held until 10:30 a.m. race day. The entry fee for the road race and walk is $15. For the fun run, cost is $5.

Entry forms may be picked up at the Y or may be obtained by calling 479-8500, ext. 0, or by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three male and female finishers overall and in the following age groups:

Youth (15 and under); Junior (16-19); Open (20-29); Submaster (30-39); Master (40-49); Grandmaster (50-59); and Grand Senior (60 and over).

Trophies will also be awarded to the first male and female wheelchair finishers, and ribbons will be awarded to all fun run entrants.

Richardson's Six Points Lead Squirt A's To Victory

Kevin "Mr. Yes" Richardson's six-point effort (hat trick, three assists) propelled the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's over Brookline, 6-2.

Other big scorers for the A's were "Big Mike" McKeon (goal, two assists) and Matt Tobin (goal, three assists). Richardson, McKeon and Tobin, which form "The Paydirt Line," accounted for five of the six Quincy goals.

Blue liner Matt "Flash" Haskins also scored on a nice shot from the point, assisted by fellow blue liner Paul Graham and Andrew Patten.

While Coach Richardson was pleased with the overall team effort, he commended "Super Dave" Oronte, Jonathan O'Connor and Pat Malone for their all-out hustle and grit displayed thoughout the game. The coach also praised the performance of goaltender Pat "Toaster" Maloney, who had a strong game between the pipes.

CAR NEGLECT

Most of us put off doing things of one type or other, but those who neglect to service various systems and components of their cars run the risk of higher repair costs down the road. Here, according to a survey of ASE-certified automotive technicians conducted by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), is a list of the routine services that their customers most frequently neglect: oil filter (21.7%); cooling system, belts/hoses (19%); transmission (12.3%); periodic maintenance (10.3%); tune-ups (8.7%); tires (8.5%); suspension and steering (8.2%) brakes (7.7%); timing belts (7.7%); and body/paint work (1.0%). As they say, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

HINT: Car owners should follow the recommended service schedules in their owners' manuals.

Don't neglect your car. It represents a sizable investment. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition whether that means something as simple as replacing your battery or complex engine work. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550), we are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

OBITUARIES

Joseph A. Murphy, 70
Boston Edison Chemical Engineer

A funeral service for Joseph A. Murphy, 70, of Quincy, was held Nov. 8 at the United First Parish Church.

Mr. Murphy died Nov. 4 at home.

A chemical engineer for Boston Edison for 28 years, he retired in 1981.

He served in the Navy during World War II and in the Air Force during the Korean War.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Someone once said that happiness is not perfected until it is shared.

We all know that a happy person is not necessarily free from trouble. It indicates they do not allow troubles to overwhelm them.

In case after case it has been proved happy people have learned contentment comes from an inner peace within themselves. They find cause for gratitude in all things. In fact, some of their problems and difficulties have even bettered their lives.

Of course, there are many ways to find happiness. But one of the best ways is with other people. One seldom finds it alone . . .

It can, for example, be found in inviting a friend, an acquaintance, a neighbor to attend church with you. Even if you are turned down, the effort itself can give you a happy feeling, because you tried. If your invitation is accepted, you will be even more happy. Many, many people can testify how true this is . . . Isn't it worth trying?

SSI Benefits To Rise 2.1% For 1998

By LAURIE ZASTROW

Social Security Commissioner Kenneth S. Apfel announces Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits will increase 2.1 percent. The increase will begin with benefits that Social Security beneficiaries receive for December 1997, which will be paid in January 1998. Increased payments to SSI recipients will begin on December 31. The automatic cost-of-living adjustment is made annually.

"Today's news confirms that inflation remains under control," Apfel said. "Low inflation is good for America, particularly for many Social Security beneficiaries with limited incomes."

For Social Security beneficiaries, the average monthly benefit amount for all retired workers will rise from $749 to $765. The maximum federal SSI monthly payments to an individual will rise from $484 to $494. For a couple, the maximum federal SSI payment will rise from $726 to $741.

Social Security and SSI benefits increase automatically each year based on the rise in the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers (CPI-W) from the third quarter of one year through the corresponding period of the next. This year's increase in the CPI-W was 2.1 percent.

The automatic increase is the lowest since December 1986 when beneficiaries received a 1.3 percent increase and is the second lowest since the automatic adjustment became effective- in 1975.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's time to improve your self-confidence. You really have nothing to be so insecure about, so try to conquer this. Later in the week, be alert for a travel or educational opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're on the right track toward achievement of a major goal. A new job offer or financial opportunity comes your way. One person you're dealing with isn't on the up and up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You have a feeling that someone in business is insincere and hasn't kept his word. Later in the week, either a friend or a group activity gives a happy lift to your spirits. Enjoy this special time.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This isn't the time to be making loans as you're not in the financial position to easily accommodate this. You could be disappointed by a friend's actions. However, a reconciliation or improved rapport is achieved with a loved one.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An important breakthrough comes in your relationship either with a child or a romantic interest. An inhibition is swept away. This weekend, a new plateau is achieved.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) One problem that has concerned you for some time is happily resolved this week. Be on the alert for a new business or financial opportunity. A loved one requires extra consideration this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Use caution in financial dealings with others. Someone could try to take advantage of your generous nature. In general, avoid any risk-taking or gambling. This weekend, couples reach a new level of understanding.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your suspicions are correct. Someone in business is trying to pull the wool over your eyes. Later in the week, a gift or financial assistance could come from a relative.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A desire for self-improvement leads you to investigate a course of study. You are painfully aware of a family member's weak points. However, do your best to be supportive.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A greater confidence in your abilities will cause you to expand your business aspirations this week. However, in romance, it's best to take it one day at a time. Rushing things isn't advised.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A business associate whom you've relied upon lets you down this week. However, happily, your social circle widens. This weekend some decide to join a club or organization.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This is no time to entrust others with your secrets, particularly those of a business nature. The financial backing you receive this week will enable you to get a project going.

Agencies Need Volunteer Help During The Holidays

By LINDA STICE
Executive Director
Commission On The Family

What does Thanksgiving mean to you?

In our house it means that we clean frantically for three days, then have our annual pie crisis, in which I realize that last year's vow to master a really great pie crust has again gone unfilled. My kids and I start cooking seriously the day before the holiday, while my husband admires whatever we create.

We bring my daughter's radio down to the kitchen and listen to Alice's Restaurant while we peel, mince and stuff. On the big day, the menu never varies, beginning with Bugles and onion dip, followed by my sister-in-laws great lasagna, and then, when we are all stuffed, the traditional turkey dinner, three kinds of pie, and whipped cream.

We have assorted relatives over and because my side of the family lives out of state, we usually have people spending several days with us. It is actually my favorite holiday of the year - full of excitement as we plan, shop, cook, and talk.

We are lucky. If you read this and think "sounds a lot like my Thanksgiving", you are lucky. There are people for whom the previous paragraph reads like a fairy tale. They live in the same city we do, but they have no family, no friends that invite them over for the big day.

If they are children, they leave school early on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, just like all the other kids do, but there are no turkey decorations in their windows at home and no confidence that a special meal will appear the next day.

If it is a family strapped for cash, they may be on a list at their local food pantry for a dinner basket, but there are no guarantees. If the person is a house-bound senior, their Thanksgiving dinner comes the same way every dinner does: from a Meals on Wheels volunteer. If the person lives alone or in a shelter, she or he may yearn not just for the comforting food, but for the company of others.

Fortunately, in Quincy, there are many organizations and fine people that work every day to address these needs. All of them can use help year round, but in the next few weeks, the need for your help is critical. If you can donate time or food or money or toys, please call the contact people listed.

Atlantic Neighborhood Center (contact Patricia Thorley: 376-1381) This program provides dinner baskets on both Thanksgiving and Christmas to families in need from North Quincy, Wollaston, Montclair, and Squantum. They offer some toys and clothing. They need donations of money, uncooked turkeys, canned goods, desserts, toys (preferably new), and clothing, especially winter coats for adults and children. Volunteers are needed to help assemble and deliver food baskets at Christmas.

Father Bill's Place (contact Laurie Boisveirt: 770-3314) Provides dinner on Thanksgiving and Christmas Days at no charge. Dinner is served at the Christ Church Episcopal, 12 Quincy Ave. from 1 to 3 p.m. on those holidays. Open to all. They accept donations of money, uncooked turkeys, squash, potatoes, canned goods, pies, cider, and juices. Volunteers needed to peel squash and potatoes, serve dinners, and clean up.

Germantown Neighborhood Center (contact Kathy Quigley: 376-1384) Provides holiday food baskets and Christmas gifts for children. Donations of money, gift certificates from food stores, uncooked turkeys, canned goods, and new toys accepted.

Koch Club (contact Tom Koch: 376-1251) The Koch Club provides Christmas food baskets and gifts to families 'in need. They accept donations of money and new, unwrapped toys and games, especially for older children.

The Lord's Planting (contact Patricia Thorley: 847-4444) Offers a Thanksgiving Dinner open to the public at no charge. Dinner is served at 1 pm on Thanksgiving Day at 65 Newbury Avenue in North Quincy (side entrance). They accept donations of money, canned goods, and nonperishable foods. Volunteers are needed to help set up and clean up.

Pantry Shelf/Protestant Social Service Bureau (contact Bettyanne Muir Lang:773-6203) Provides Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner baskets, toys, and clothing to families in need. They need donations of money, supermarket vouchers from $5 to $25, uncooked turkeys, produce, canned goods, desserts, new clothing, and new, unwrapped toys. Volunteers needed the week before Thanksgiving and two weeks before Christmas to assemble baskets and wrap gifts. On Nov. 23, 20 volunteers are needed to unload donations and stock shelves. Call in advance.

Quincy Crisis Center (contact Ruth Blenkhorn: 471-7075) Provides Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner baskets, clothing, and toys. Donations of money, uncooked turkeys, cooked turkeys, produce, canned goods, desserts, new clothing (especially men's winter clothing, new or used), new toys, and warm blankets accepted.. Volunteers needed Nov. 18-22 and Dec. 16-20 to pack and deliver baskets and gifts.

Salvation Army (contact Amanda Courtney: 472-2345) The Salvation Army provides toys, food vouchers, and food parcels to individuals and families in need at Christmas. They need donations of money, canned goods, and new clothing and toys. Volunteers are needed to stand at the kettles during December. On Dec. 19, help is needed distributing toys and food at their 6 Baxter St. location.

Seaside Advocacy Group (contact Peter Seppala: 479-0828 or 689-3054) Provides holiday dinner baskets to families in need. They accept donations of money, uncooked turkeys, canned goods, and desserts. Volunteers needed to help assemble and hand out holiday baskets.

South Shore Elder Services (contact Susan in Nutrition: 848-3910) Delivers Meals on Wheels to home-bound senior citizens on Thanksgiving and Christmas Days. They need 40 volunteers on those days to deliver 5 or 6 meals each. Meals are picked up at Quincy Hospital.

Southwest Community Center/Quincy Community Action Program (contact Debbie or Nancy: 471-0796) Provides Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets and toys to families in need. They need donations of money, uncooked turkeys, canned hams, produce, canned goods, desserts, new gifts (especially for older children), new clothing, or used clothing in good condition, diapers (especially large sizes), laundry detergent, dish detergent, and shampoo. Volunteers needed to organize food drives, unload donations, and do some heavy lifting.

WJDA (contact Debbie Logan: 479-1300) Provides Christmas gifts for children in the Head Start program. Look for their "Giving Trees" located in businesses around the South Shore, or deliver new, unwrapped toys or clothing to WJDA, 29 Brackett St.

FREE SEMINAR
Dealing With Alzheimer's
Solutions to Caring for A Loved One With Alzheimer's
Tuesday, November 18, 1997

When one person gets Alzheimer's Disease or other Dementia, the entire family is affected. Everyone's life is drastically changed. And you want to do what's right.

To help you deal with this, Grove Manor Estates is holding this Free Seminar*. The Seminar will answer some of the hard questions for you. Topics include:*

- The unpredictable nature of the disease
- How to avoid catastrophic reactions/events
- The stress it adds to the caregiver's work and personal life
- Your own fears about aging
- Choosing the best setting to care for those with the disease

Our guest speaker is Howard Block from The Massachusetts Alzheimer's Association.

Grove Manor Estates is an Assisted Living Retirement Community, which also features the Woodlands, specializing in serving those with Alzheimer's.

Seating is limited, so call today for reservations: (781) 843-3700. RSVP by November 17, 1997. Refreshments will be served.

Beechwood Aviation History Month

Beechwood Community Life Center in Quincy is celebrating Aviation History Month in November.

The center is focusing on Quincy's "first ladies of aviation," Amelia Earhart and Harriet Quimby. The celebration included a recent appearance by former Quincy resident Frank DeLear, a pilot, engineer and aviation historian.

Beechwood recently celebrated its third year at 440 East Squantum St., the same site credited with the birth of aviation in 1910 and the initial three air shows in 1910, 1911, and 1912. The site later became the Dennison Airport.

For more information about aviation-related events or Beechwood's Aviation History Center, call 471-5712.

Senior Writing Workshop

"For This I Am Grateful," a holiday writing workshop for seniors, will be offered Wednesday, Nov. 19, at the Quincy Council on Aging, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cost is $15. For more information and to reserve a space, call Mary Burke at 376-1243.

Avalon Donates $50,000 For Point Projects

Avalon Properties Inc. of Braintree has donated $50,000 to be used to help fund various projects in Quincy Point.

Bill McLaughlin, Avalon vice president of development, presented a check for that amount to Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi at the council's meeting Monday night.

Raymondi, who noted the donation is part of the mitigation package designed when Avalon was given permission to build its Avalon at Faxon Park apartment complex off Falls Boulevard in Quincy Point, said the funds will be a great help to the neighborhood.

"It will provide for other programs we're hoping to expand," he said.

He added that he is pleased to add Avalon at Faxon to the list of other recent development projects in Quincy Point--including the Roche Bros. Supermarket, the soon-to-be-opened Wal-Mart store, and others--saying it "brings much-needed housing to Quincy Point and the South Shore" and also will provide a number of employment opportunities.

"I'm extremely excited about what this project means to the community," said Raymondi.

McLaughlin said Avalon Properties is happy to make the $50,000 donation and proud to be a part of the Quincy community.

"We've had a great relationship working in Ward 2 with Councillor Raymondi," he said.

Council President Peter Kolson agreed with Raymondi's assessment of recent development in the latter's ward.

"The way things have been happening lately, we should start calling Ward 2 'Boomtown,'" said Kolson.

Raymondi said after the meeting that no firm decision has been made on exactly how the $50,000 will be spent, adding only that it will be used to make "a variety of public improvements."

Lobby To Be Expanded, 500 P.O. Boxes Added

$2-3 Million In Improvements For Quincy Post Office

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A major renovation project is underway at the Quincy Post Office, 47 Washington St., Quincy Center, and should be completed by October of next year.

Jim Lundrigan, manager of the facility, said work has begun in the building's basement and eventually will move to the main floor and the outside of the building. He estimated the cost at between $2 million and $3 million.

Lundrigan said the design work was done by Maguire Group Inc. of Foxboro and the construction is being performed by Paul J. Rogan Co. Inc. of Braintree.

He also stressed that the project will not at any time affect lobby service to the customers.

"It was designed so it wouldn't affect the customers or the service," he said.

Lundrigan said the work in the basement, which is expected to be completed by February, has made it necessary for "some mail handle work" to be moved to the Braintree Post Office. Still, he added, service to customers will remain unaffected.

"The only way customers will be affected is by the noise from the demolition crews," he said.

The basement renovations will include new lockers, breakrooms and bathrooms as well as upgrading of the plumbing and electrical systems which will affect the whole building.

"It's mostly aesthetic, for the employees," said Lundrigan.

Changes on the main level, visible to customers, will be made after the basement work is completed. They will include:

•A remodeled, expanded lobby.

•Upgraded lighting.

•A partial postal store, which will sell items of historical significance, similar to those in other Massachusetts post offices.

•Up to 500 new post office boxes. Lundrigan said the Washington Street facility currently has about 900 boxes, while the post office's satellite facility for the 02169 zip code located in West Quincy has another 600.

Lundrigan also noted that while there will still be four windows open to customers, they will all be located straight ahead as a customer walks into the front door. The window currently on the right side will be eliminated and replaced with the postal store.

In addition, one of the four new windows will be lower than the others for handicapped accessibility, he said.

Nominations Open For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are now open for The Quincy Sun's 13th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Olin Taylor was honored for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love."

He was selected from 40 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Wednesday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 18 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.

For Family, Children's Programs

QCAP Awarded $515,656 In State Education Grants

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., in behalf of the Quincy Early Childhood Advisory Council, announces it has received more than $515,000 in grants from the Massachusetts Department of Education.

The Quincy Family Network and Community Partnerships for Children programs were awarded $150,000 and $415,656 respectively.

Established in 1996, the Family Network supports the parenting needs of all families with children three years and younger. Recent research suggests that the first three years in a child's life are the most critical for healthy development.

Affirming the central role of parents in this stage of child rearing, the Quincy Family Network will provide a newborn home visiting program, parenting and playgrounds, education programs, outreach and referral to parents with young children. A special emphasis will be placed on reaching new parents to reduce their isolation and enhance their parenting skills as well as to Asian families and other newcomers to the city.

"The Quincy Family Network's vision is to identify the needs of parents and their young children and create a caring and supportive environment for all families in Quincy," said QCAP Executive Director Rosemary Wahlberg.

"Parents, who are the driving force behind this effort, will work closely with community agencies to develop needed resources for healthy child development. This project provides a wonderful opportunity to bring together all sectors of the community towards pursuing the common goal of building strong families in our city," Wahlberg.

Participating agencies include Quincy Community Action Programs, the Quincy Commission on the Family, South Shore Mental health, the Asian-American Services Association, the Atlantic, Houghs Neck and Germantown and Germantown Neighborhood Centers, Quincy Hospital, Manet Health Center, Quincy Public School, Quincy Mother's Cooperative, Literacy Volunteers of America/Quincy-Thomas Crane Library, and the Tobacco Control Program of Impact Quincy.

In addition, the Quincy Community Partnership for Children will expand the supply of preschool age child care programs and provide preschool age child care subsidies to working families. This grant will also provide training and accreditation assistance to child care providers in Quincy.

Participating agencies include Quincy Public Schools, QCAP's Head Start program, South Shore Day Care Services, Community Care for Kids and various group and family licensed child care providers in Quincy.

The Quincy Family Network and Community Partnership for Children initiatives are both under the auspices of the Quincy Early Childhood Advisory Council.

Sheets Says Story On Shipyard Contract Problems 'Inaccurate'

Mayor James Sheets is calling a story in Tuesday's Patriot Ledger about federal auditors' opinions on the proposed revitalization of the Fore River shipyard "inaccurate and incomplete."

Sheets, who returned to the city Tuesday after four vacation days in Florida, commented on the Ledger story in a phone interview with The Quincy Sun. The article states that federal auditors have said the government should not back Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil's plan to renovate the shipyard unless he finds additional contracts for ships.

Sheets said he does not believe the story was intentionally written to mislead readers but that it "does not have all the facts." The shipyard deal, which has been in the works for some time, should be closed by Dec. 15, he said.

"It's inaccurate and incomplete," said the mayor. "I can't go into details.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS
'Does Not Have All The Facts'

Much has happened that I can't talk about. But I've read the article, and it's just inaccurate.

"We have every confidence the (federal) loans for the shipyard modernization will be completed by Dec. 15."

Tuesday's story in The Ledger says the auditors have termed the status of a contract Emmanouil has to build six double-hulled oil tankers in Quincy as "uncertain." The auditors said they cannot count on Emmanouil's contract with Intermare Navigation Inc., a Greek shipping company, to keep the shipyard afloat because Intermare wants the government to guarantee $249 million of $287 million for the six tankers but has not yet completed its application for the money, according to the story.

The article also states that the 16-page audit found that Emmanouil had not put up enough of his own money for the project, had not shown he has enough working capital to keep the shipyard running, and may have overestimated the value of the reopened shipyard.

Overall, the audit found Emmanouil had not satisfied 13 of 28 requirements to get $55 million in loan guarantees for the modernization of the shipyard, the story states.

Emmanouil, who now owns the shipyard, also is waiting for approval of another $240 million in guarantees that will allow him to build the ships.

He has said the reopening of the shipyard eventually could result in as many as 2,000 new jobs.

Shaw's Denied Request For Beer, Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board, after hearing opposition from three city councillors and a few opponents denied Shaw's Supermarket's request for a beer and wine license at Tuesday's meeting.

After a three hour meeting, the board voted 3 to 2 against the request.

A motion to grant the license was made by Walter White, director of inspection services, who was attending his first meeting as a license board member, replacing Matt Mulvey. It was seconded by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. Opposing were Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, Police Chief Thomas Frane and Chairman Joseph Shea.

White when making his motion said it was pending on a tighter security, while Gorman said he wanted registered designated for just the sale of the beer and wine.

Councillors opposing were Ward 5 Councillor Steven Durkin, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, and by letter, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott.

Citing a "saturation" of liquor licenses in the area, both Ayers and Durkin said there are at least 10 places that liquor can be purchased in the area of Shaw's.

In urging the board to deny the license, Durkin pointed out that having beer and wine in a supermarket would expose liquor to teen-agers and said the sale of liquor "doesn't belong in a supermarket."

Ayers said after attending several neighborhood meetings said "We don't know how more clearly we can tell you," but "respect our position when you have councillors in Wards 3, 5 and 6 who are opposing this request."

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Shaw's., and Brian Leahy, manager showed the board plans on the where the beer and wine will be located. Leahy said the display would take the place of the card and photo section.

Fleming said that with the construction of Shaw's where the former Boston Gear Works was, had lived up to every promise and has been a "great asset to Quincy. He cited that Stop & Shop was granted a beer and wine license last year and said he felt as though Shaw's should be able to be competitive.

Fleming added that there are 64 Shaw's stores who sell beer and wine and said they are a "responsible company."

Fleming said that only a few people attended meetings in the neighborhood and concluded there was "little interest and concern" in the issuing of the license.

Speaking in opposition was Steven Dean, youth pastor at the Church of the Nazarene, Kevin Coughlin and Michael Morad.

Morad said if the licensing board allows Shaws a license, then who will be next "Roche Brothers?" He added that establishments that sell alcohol will become as abundant as all the hair salons, restaurants that occupy the city at this time."

Coughlin showed a map to the board citing 10 locations in the city where the public could purchase beer and wine.

Speaking in favor of the license was Maralin Manning, director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Quincy 2000, Don Uvanitte, vice chairman of the Chamber of Commerce.

Uvanitte said he felt Shaw's was a "good cooperate neighbor" saying he "wholeheartedly supported" the granting of the license.

Joseph Mannarino from Quincy 2000 who said he "strongly supported" the license called it a "matter of free trade"and felt not allowing Shaw's to sell beer and wine would be a "mistake."

Manning said Shaw's had a right to complete equally with other markets in the area who sell beer and wine.

James Carson, co-owner of Copeland Beer and Wine objected, saying the city was "saturated with liquor licenses."

He said the board was giving out mixed signals--refusing the sale of Keno in liquor stores, while giving liquor licenses to grocery stores.

ACTOR JOHN TRAVOLTA emerges from a trailer in Quincy Point between takes on Monday. Travolta, the star of "Pulp Fiction," "Grease," "Saturday Night Fever" and other movies, was at the Avalon at Faxon Park apartment complex off Falls Boulevard filming location shots for his latest film, "A Civil Action." The site was used because the film company needed an active construction site for the film, which takes place in Woburn.

Salvation Army Seeks Sponsors, Volunteers

The Quincy Salvation Army is seeking sponsors and volunteers for the holiday season.

The Army needs assistance from organizations willing to do the following:

•Sponsor a family. Needier families are matched with sponsors who are given the ages and genders of the children along with family wish lists. The sponsor purchases and wraps gifts and brings them to The Salvation Army for delivery to the family.

•Volunteer. There are a number of tasks that need to be done, including kettle ringing and distribution of toys.

•Have a food or toy drive that includes employees and/or customers. Non-perishable food or new toys will help the Army stretch its budget.

•Donate funds or in-kind items.

Those interested in helping should call 472-2345.

Sheets vs. Harold?

A Jim Sheets-Paul Harold mayoral race in 1999? Now, that would certainly liven up the old town.

Sheets has hinted he might run at least one more time for a sixth term. Harold is interested in being mayor and may be getting a little impatient waiting for Sheets to step down.

SHEETS

HAROLD

If they were to go toe-to-toe, it would be Sheets' first major challenge since he took office in 1990.

Back then he went up against three heavies: Joseph LaRaia, Steve McGrath and Peter O'Connell. Sheets and O'Connell won the preliminary election nominations and Sheets was the winner in the final.

Since then, he has had one opponent (Roger Lyons) and has been re-elected to three terms unopposed, the only mayor in Quincy's history accorded that honor and political respect.

Both Sheets and Harold came through the city election earlier this month still looking like a couple of powerhouses.

Running unopposed for the third time, Sheets racked up a vote of 14,659 -- 93.32 percent -- to top the entire ballot. There were 2,080 blanks.

Four years ago, running unopposed, his vote was 12,651 or 75 percent. There were 4,222 blanks.

Harold, for the second time in a row, led the city council at-large field with a 12,635 vote. Second and third spot winners Tim Cahill and former Mayor Frank McCauley had 11,522 and 7,989 respectively.

Harold, a former state senator, returned to the City Council two years ago after a 16-year absence. He topped the field that election, too, with a 12,244 vote.

Harold left the senate in 1992 to run for the 11th Congressional District seat being vacated by Brian Donnelly.

But, the district was shifted to the 10th and Harold found himself up against incumbent Gerry Studds.

Studds defeated Harold for the Democratic nomination but Harold carried Quincy over him by a wide margin--12,951 to 5,256.

Harold has always been a strong vote-getter in Quincy. In fact, he holds the record for the biggest vote polled by a councillor at-large candidate in the city's history. That was a whopping 21,243 in 1977.

There are those urging Harold to make the run for mayor in 1999. Will he? He might.

But there might be one good reason not to: Sheets isn't losing any political ground. He's worn well in the mayor's office so far for nearly eight years.

He's still riding a popularity wave with that Papa Bear image and the general feeling by residents that the city's in good hands.

Sheets is 62. Harold is only 49. He has time to wait for the vacancy sign to be hung over the third floor office door.

Before Harold makes a decision, he might look back at the 1959 election when a young popular city council president James McIntyre challenged a middle-aged popular mayor, Amelio Della Chiesa. The popular mayor won. (McIntyre later succeeded Della Chiesa when the latter left office in 1965.)

Harold would need some issues to mount a campaign on. Unless something dramatically unforeseen develops in the next two years to change the picture, Sheets would be hard to beat.

But, in politics, things do unexpectedly happen that do change things.

Who knows what two years will bring?

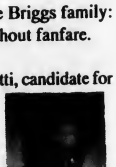
K. BRIGGS

It is also a tribute to the company's Briggs family, Karl and sons, Steve and Doug who themselves have been a cornerstone through the time, efforts and talent they have given the Y.

Karl, who is chairman and chief executive officer of Quincy Mutual, is a former chairman and 40-year member of the YMCA board, a member of the Y Hall of Fame, and was a vice chairman of the Capital Improvements Campaign that raised the money for the new addition.

Doug, the company's president-treasurer, is the vice chairman of the Y board and Steve, vice president of claims, is treasurer of the Y.



The family has long and strong ties to the Y. Karl's father-in-law, Harvey MacArthur, former president of Quincy Mutual, was a member of the Quincy YMCA board in the 1940's.

And Quincy Mutual's Washington St. headquarters, one of the city's handsomest buildings, is located on what was the site of the old Quincy Y, predecessor of the South Shore Y.

And, just one more thing about the Briggs family: They do what they do quietly and without fanfare.

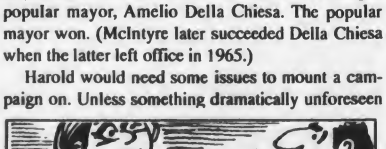
THOSE ROTARIANS SURE know how to zing one another--for a good cause.

GUARNIERI

At a recent meeting, Bob Guarnieri, president of the Colonial Federal Savings Bank, happily paid a "happy buck" because, he said, he is happy that Bob Curry, the Quincy hardware magnate, isn't on his board of directors.



Curry, who is on a lot of boards, missed a chance to get back at him. He could have paid a buck to make Guarnieri listen to his recent hair-raising adventures in the Amazon jungle.

Scott Gledhill paid a happy buck in recognition of his 35th high school reunion. But someone claimed he was expelled in the fourth grade.

Roger Brousseau, who makes the Quincy Neighborhood Club tick, donated five happy bucks because his daughter got married and, he said, that's all the money he has left.

Jay Eckblom of President Press gladly donated a buck when Cerebral Palsy's Maryrose Mirick thought he was 37. That was because, someone pointed out, she wasn't wearing her glasses.

All in fun and those happy bucks go to the club's worthy endeavors.

Since 1976, the number of cents-off coupons distributed in the U.S. has doubled, but fewer than five percent of those in circulation have been redeemed.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN OLD POSTCARD view of the Quincy Elementary School on the corner of Botolph Street and Newbury Avenue in Atlantic. They took this picture shortly after it was built in 1909. This building was distinguished by the polished Quincy granite columns that adorn the entry ways. Several more classrooms were added to the rear of the building in the forties. The first elementary school that was named Quincy was a wooden building that was on the site of North Quincy High School. Declared as surplus in the 1980's, the city sold this school building to developers who converted it to condominiums.

John Quincy Adams Admired And Loved Both His Parents

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This letter is in response to Joel Davidson's letter to The Sun about the relationship between Abigail Adams and her son, John Quincy Adams.

To insinuate that Abigail Adams and her son, John Quincy Adams did not get along is gross exaggeration. It was Abigail who taught John Quincy his first prayers; she taught him French because she was training him to be a diplomat. It was Abigail who persuaded John to take their son, John Quincy, with him to Europe. She said: "Our country will need trained diplomats."

She advised John Quincy Adams to practice discipline, to take care of his health, to keep his temper in check. "Great necessities call out great virtues....and form the character of the hero and the statesmen."

From his mother he learned to hate slavery. "I wish most sincerely there was not a slave in the provence." In later life, he would take up this antislavery cause as an eight-term member of the House of Representatives. He became the leading defender of freedom of speech by opposing the gag order imposed on him for eight years because of his antislavery stance.

The reason he was not present at Abigail's funerla is that he was Secretary of State in 1818. There were no trains to hurry him home. Abigail would have been the first to advise him to remain at his post.

She was sickly all her life and he and his family were with her the previous August. There was no way of knowing that this would be her last illness. Her recuperative powers were amazing. She had rheumatism, intermittent high fevers and a rare skin disease. Abigail died Oct. 28 and Louisa wrote her father-in-law Oct. 30 that John Quincy Adams was "totally incapacitated" by the tragic news. He would call his mother "the pearl of great price" and the woman of valor mentioned in the Bible.

John Quincy Adams was not present at his father's death either. Why? He was in Washington fulfilling his role as our sixth President. On hearing of his father's illness, he immediately set out for Quincy only to learn that halfway home that his father had already died.

John Quincy was a man of great intellect, enormous learning and had a heart full of admiration and love for his parents. He learned from their example. He was a son worthy of such parents.

Casino Gambling Would Be Good For Massachusetts

[The following letter addressed to Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci was submitted for publication by the author.]

Dear Gov. Cellucci:

I once made a vow never to write to a politician and I never have until now.

There is a subject that irritates me, and the more I see and hear about it infuriates me. I am not writing this just for myself, but also for about 99 percent of the citizens of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont and in some cases, Canada.

The subject is casino gambling.

Ours is a senior building that goes to Foxwoods by the busload. Upon arriving at Foxwoods, there are other buses and cars from various parts of Massachusetts and all the other New England states. Now that we are retired, we also drive there on many occasions. We have worked hard all of our lives, and we deserve the pleasures of casino gambling.

We in Massachusetts must be doing something wrong by thinking casino gambling would not benefit our state. I am sure people would much rather drive to Massachusetts than to Connecticut.

The old adage is that it would interfere with the Massachusetts State Lottery, which is a crock. It interferes with it now, because the money that is spent in Connecticut does not come into Massachusetts in any way, shape or form.

Casino gambling will bring in crime: another fantasy. Crime is an existing thing; always was, always will be. You can't blame this on casino gambling. Every state has crime, drugs and prostitution and it wasn't casino gambling that brought it into Massachusetts.

The advantages of casino gambling are astronomical. The jobs are too numerous to mention, the new businesses that will come forth, etc. I know I don't have to tell you all the advantages it will bring.

People will gamble even if they have to travel hundreds of miles (Las Vegas, Atlantic City and the Islands), so why not Massachusetts?

Another fantasy: some people would abuse gambling. Sure, there are a few that might; if they have gambling in their blood, they will bleed. That isn't any reason to stop people from having a casino. We have people drinking alcohol that are alcoholics. Did you see the state stopping the liquor business from selling it? Same thing, different reasons.

I would not object if they wanted to build a casino here in Quincy, even though nobody seems to want it in their own backyard.

I love Massachusetts; it's my state. I was educated here; my children were educated here. We have the best schools and hospitals, so why not make it even better by building something that would be very profitable to us?

I hope you have read this letter and will consider putting this on the ballot so we the people can vote on it and decide what we want, and not what they want.

Bill Calls For MDC To Buy Golf Club

Nov. 20 - 26

By PAUL HAROLD

Rep. Joseph Brett re-filed legislation, for consideration for the 1975 session, for the MDC to purchase and operate the 92-acre Wollaston Golf Club.

Brett said he was not chasing the club out of town, but wanted to preserve the open space if the club, as anticipated, moved to the old Cote farm in Milton.

The legislation provided for a purchase price of up to $3 million.

MODERN VOTING SYSTEMS CONSIDERED

The city council voted to establish a five-man study committee to consider the purchase of mechanical or electronic voting machines for the city.

The resolution was sponsored by Councillor Clifford Marshall, to end the "slow count" and the burden of long hours on city workers and expenses.

City Clerk John Gillis said the cost to the city included 234 persons during the day and 600 at night. Day workers were paid $25, while night workers got $10. Added to those numbers were the cost of 12 policemen during the day and 39 at night.

FIRST TENANT AT MARTENSEN ST. HOUSING

The new $2.3 million, 150-unit elderly housing on Martensen St. opened this week with the installation of its first tenant.

Rents of $67 per month would be adjusted with the passage of a new state law that set rents at no more than 25 percent of one's income.

QHA director Clement O'Brien said that the authority planned to build an additional 860 more elderly units. There were 1,000 names on the waiting list.

QUINCY-ISMS

Mayor James McIntyre was seeking the names of Quincy servicemen in Viet Nam to receive Christmas gift packages. . . Students at ENC were raising $60,000 to replace the "white shack," 1928 athletic facility, with a new 2,000-seat gymnasium. . . Dr. Alfred Mahoney was named to the $20,225 post of health commissioner. He was serving acting commissioner following the retirement of Dr. John Foley. . . Squanto Associates proposed a new town, at a cost of $40 million at the site of the Wollaston Golf Club. . . Members of the Rent Grievance Board included Frank McNally of Brae Rd., Edward Melia of the QCA and Mrs. David Colletti of the League of Women Voters. . . The $1.2 million addition to the Squantum School had a cost over run of $45,989 because of an unexpected area of peat on the site. . . Robert Denvir presided over a meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Council to consider the use of the interest from the Serposs Fund to purchase a building for the Sgt. Grenham Youth Center. The building for purchase was the site of the Sunnyside Market on Sea St. . . John Evans, principal at the Atlantic Junior High School, retired from QPS after 40 years. . . Two counselors for Survival, Inc. sought the support of the Quincy Young Republicans at a special meeting. . . The Morrisette Post, under the leadership of Commander Ambrose Powers, hosted the annual banquet for members of the QHS and NQHS football teams. James Ricciuti was chairman. . . The MDC approved a $1.3 million expansion of Wollaston Beach, with the relocation of Quincy Shore Drive and the dredging of Black's Creek. . . Pasquale DiStefano, chairman of the Cancer Crusade, presided at the awards banquet at Walsh's Restaurant. . . DPW Commissioner John Browne announced the recently storm battered Squantum causeway would receive $10,000 in repairs. . . Atty. Thomas Brownell represented the Belair Corp. for their 48-unit apartment house project on Morton St. . . Mayor McIntyre was seeking $13,000 in federal funds to develop the newly filled Teale Pond as an athletic field for NQHS. . . Sea Scout Paul O'Neil of Lansdowne St. was awarded the Eagle award at the Sea Explorer Post at the Nickerson Post. . . Broad Meadows was rejected as the site for the South Shore Community College. . . There was a public hearing to acquire land for the proposed Lincoln-Hancock School. . . Councillor Albert Barilaro and Thomas Hurlebaus were recognized by the city for their work for Question One, which would have amended the state constitution to allow for different valuations between residential and commercial real estate. The question won in Quincy, but lost state-wide.

Risotto And Beans

Here is a super but easy recipe for rice (risotto) we had this past week. I used red kidney beans, but any kind of beans will do. This dish is loaded with vitamins according to the articles written about the goodness of both rice and beans.

Risotto and Beans

1 cup rice
1 cup and a half beans
2 cups tomato sauce
2 chicken bouillion cubes
grated romano or parmesan cheese

Cook the rice according to directions. Drain out most of the liquid. Add the tomatoes, beans, bouillion cubes and cook covered until bubbly. Serve as a side dish with grated cheese. I served it with sausages and peppers. (Instead of using bouillion cubes, College Inn chicken broth may be used as part of the liquid when cooking the rice).

Our grandson Jonathan (who loves rice), and who lives three houses down from us, ran up the street when I called to tell him what I had cooked. He brought it home and his mother said he ate the whole thing!

Dylan Roche Wins Beechwood 'Family Grow Together' Contest

Five-year-old Dylan Roche, a kindergarten student at Beechwood on the Bay, is the winner of Beechwood's third annual "Family Grow Together" Contest.

Dylan, who planted sunflower seeds with his parents in June, said, "We planted and watered and watched and watered all summer." His winning sunflower plant measured 10 feet, 4 inches.

Dylan said he was excited that the family project resulted in winning family prizes donated by the following Quincy merchants: Curry Hardware, Grazioso's Deli, Barry's Deli, Presidential Camera, O'Brien's Bakery and O'Lindy's Lanes. He also won a special book and said he looks forward to growing again next year.

Each summer, Beechwood provides free sunflower seeds to families wishing to "Grow Together" at home. A "team" of at least two family members plant and tend the seeds.

"Parents and grandparents planted, as did aunts, uncles and godparents," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals. "We had one team where the mother was 78 and the daughter was 54."

Beals said more than 200 Quincy families participated this year.

Saved Lives While Off Duty

City Council Honors Two Firefighters For Rescues

Two Quincy firefighters recently were honored by the City Council for their efforts in saving lives while off-duty during two separate incidents earlier this year.

Firefighter David Taylor Jr. was recognized for helping an accident victim on Route 128 in Needham during the April Fool's Day Blizzard. Taylor helped the injured man in the car and applied medical assistance despite the severe weather conditions and the fact that the victim's car was enveloped in smoke.

The other firefighter, Daniel Polvere, was recognized for applying CPR to a man who went into cardiac arrest at a July 4 event in Duxbury until the Duxbury Fire Department arrived.

Both victims' lives were saved.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who presented the commendations, praised the two men.

"Thank God for the efforts of firefighters David Taylor Jr. and Daniel Polvere," he said.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he also is proud of his two department members, noting they were so modest about their actions they did not even tell him about the incidents themselves.

"It's a great honor to me," he said. "They took the time out of their schedules to give aid to a person in need."

Chretien Supports "Brownfields" Bill

Lawrence Chretien, candidate for state representative, says he supports a bill now being discussed in the House of Representatives that would speed the beneficial re-use of contaminated urban properties.

The sites, known as "brownfields," are commercial or industrial sites that lie vacant or underutilized because of toxic contamination. There are over 7,000 sites in Massachusetts.

The legislation, House Bill 5013, provides incentives to developers to clean up the sites and to re-use them in ways that would promote economic development.

Chretien said, "In every community in the Commonwealth, there are brownfields that could be used to provide jobs and to increase the tax base. From an environmental point of view, it is better to redevelop brownfields before we develop sites that are now open space. There is only so much land in Quincy and Randolph. Every acre is precious."

He added, "The legislature's Natural Resources Committee has approved this bill. So, it's time for the House to take a vote and make it a law.

Unfortunately, some greedy industrial polluters are trying to either kill the legislation or be allowed to walk away from their cleanup responsibilities.

"I hope that the House of Representatives will do the right thing. This year's legislative session has just a few days remaining."

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

Council Says 'Happy Birthday' To Ed Spargo

The City Council said "Happy Birthday" to Quincy's Ed Spargo Monday night.

Spargo, a resident of Sherman Street and a former newspaperman who has remained active in the community, will turn 90 on Thanksgiving Day.

Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold prompted the well-wishes for Spargo, who was unable to attend the meeting.

Harold said Spargo's father founded The Quincy Telegram, which operated in the city from 1909 to 1927. Spargo worked there in his younger years before becoming moving on to The Quincy Evening News where he served as editor from 1928 to 1936.

After The Quincy Evening News was purchased by The Patriot Ledger, Harold noted, Spargo worked in composition at The Ledger for 11 years and later at The Boston Globe for 24 years.

Since his retirement 25 years ago, Spargo has spent his time printing pamphlets and offering information on nutrition and health care tips for friends and other community residents.

"He's probably more active than he was before he retired," said Harold.

Council President Peter Kolson also said Spargo deserves to be recognized for his upcoming milestone.

"I think that's very appropriate," he said. "He's a very nice man."

State To Approve Housing Pet Policy

Quincy Housing Authority tenants may be able to keep pets in their apartments beginning early next year.

State officials are close to approving a six-month pilot program under which tenants in the city's 600 state-subsidized apartments can keep dogs, cats and other small animals if they pay a $160 fee, submit to quarterly inspections, and work with volunteer captains.

The approval will come as soon as a tenant pet committee is in place to oversee the program and hear complaints.

Tenant representatives already have composed a list of eight block captains to monitor daily pet activity on the streets. However, they are still looking for volunteers to sit on the four-member pet committee that will administer punishments for violators.

As soon as the tenants collect names of possible committee members, Acting Housing Authority Director Jacqueline Loud will select the members from the list and submit the final committee makeup to the state, according to a tenant spokeswoman.

Pets have always been banned at the state-subsidized units, although tenants say housing authority officials did not begin enforcing the ban until last year. Some residents, at that time, began giving their pets to animal control officers to avoid eviction.

Following those incidents, authority officials formed a task force with tenant representatives and spent eight months developing the pilot program, which was submitted to the state in December.

The tenant spokeswoman said she believes the pilot program will work and ultimately become permanent since violators no longer have the choice of giving up their apartments or their pets. Instead, they can be evicted whether they or not they let their pets go, she said.

She added that people who have kept pets have prepared for the pilot program by registering and their pets, as the program requires.

Rev. James Kimmell, the housing authority chairman, has said he is pleased the state is ready to approve the pet policy.

Resident Donates Espionage Documents To UNH Library

The Special Collections Department of the University of New Hampshire's Dimond Library recently received an assortment of documents that provide an inside look at the world of counterintelligence and espionage.

The material was donated by Isadore Zack of Quincy, a former special agent in the U.S. Counterintelligence Corps (CIC).

A former Quincy newspaperman, Zack served in U.S. Army Counterintelligence Corps from 1942 to 1946 as special agent in charge of the Counterintelligence Group at First Service Command, Boston.

His gift to the UNH Library consisted of 500 pages of documents now declassified covering CIC activity on the home front during WWII. Also included was WWII training manuals for CIC agents and a special collection of Domestic Intelligence Reports prepared by his agents.

UNH History Professor Douglas Wheeler, who teaches a course on espionage, said Zack's gift was a welcome addition to the growing intelligence papers section being developed at UNH.

Proposed Tax Rate Increase Business Council Topic Nov. 24

Mayor James Sheets' proposed tax rate increase for Fiscal Year 1998 will be the topic for the Quincy Business Council of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy, on Monday, Nov. 24 from 8 to 9 a.m.

Marion Fantucchio, chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors, will explain how the tax rate is calculated and the reasons the city needs the proposed increase. Other city officials also have been invited to attend.

Sheets' proposed tax hike calls for a jump in the residential rate from $14.92 to $15.30 per $1,000--an increase of $94 for the average Quincy homeowner--and an increase from $31.31 to $32.09 per $1,000 in the commercial rate. Business owners will pay about 33 percent of the city's $85.3 million tax levy, although commercial real estate accounts for about only 22 percent of Quincy's total property values.

The City Council will vote on the tax rates in December.

For more information about the meeting, call the Chamber at 479-1111.

SOME WOMEN CAN'T CONCEIVE OF BEING PREGNANT WITHOUT A NURSE MIDWIFE.

There are lots of things to consider about being pregnant. Like, who will comfort, guide and support you for the months up to and after delivery? For many expecting mothers, the answer is a certified nurse midwife. These professionals have the knowledge, experience, and understanding to help you along the way, while monitoring your progress. At the Center for Women's Health, we have five certified nurse midwives for you to choose from. This team supports and works closely with our highly-regarded OB/GYN doctors. And, because we are affiliated with Quincy Hospital, a complete range of women's healthcare services is available, from annual examinations to the birth of your child. Call (617)376-5462 and we can set up an appointment to meet our midwives. If a family is in your future, the Center for Women's Health is a welcome place to start planning.

Medicare Costs Increase For 1998

By LAURIE ZASTROW

The 1997 increases in the hospital costs payable by Medicare beneficiaries—the Part A hospital insurance deductible and the Part B medical insurance premium—were announced this month. The deductible and the premium are recalculated each year to reflect changes in the costs of health care or changes in Medicare law.

The Part A deductible for beneficiaries admitted to hospitals in 1997 will be $764, an increase of $4 over this year's $760. The monthly Part B premium will remain at $43.80. These relatively modest increases for 1997 reflect increases in Medicare spending lower than previously projected.

The Part A deductible is a beneficiary's only cost for up to 60 days of covered inpatient hospital services during a benefit period. A benefit period begins when the beneficiary enters the hospital and ends when he or she has been out of the hospital or a skilled nursing facility for 60 consecutive days. The Part A deductible is based on the rates that Medicare pays hospitals for inpatient care.

For hospital stays longer than 60 days, a beneficiary will be responsible for $191 per day for the 61st through 90th days, and $382 per day for the 91st through 150th days.

When a beneficiary needs therapeutic care in a skilled nursing facility after at least three consecutive days of inpatient hospital care, Medicare pays 100 percent of covered expenses for the first 20 days. The beneficiary is responsible for $95.50 per day for the 21st through the 100th day.

Part B Medicare helps beneficiaries pay for the services of doctors and other medical practitioners, hospital outpatient services, independent clinical work, and durable medical equipment and supplies. The premium is determined by a formula, set in law, to cover 25 percent of current estimated costs.

$375,000 For Boston Harbor Islands

$291,000 Approved For New Adams Site Institute

President Clinton has signed into law a major appropriations bill containing a proposal from Cong. Bill Delahunt and Sen. Edward Kennedy to launch work at both the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy and Boston Harbor Islands National Recreational Area.

The Adams National Historic Site is slated for $291,000 to initiate the Adams Institute and Museum Services Center, an innovative education, research and public outreach effort. The bill also contains $375,000 in funding for the new Harbor Islands park.

The 1998 Interior Department appropriation also contains $332,000 to complete the federal share of land acquisition at the Mashpee National Wildlife Refuge. This sum will be used to purchase the final 278 acres of the "Bufflehead Bay" tract, a key element of the Refuge acquisition program.

The theft of four priceless books from the Adams Library last year highlight the important of protecting the millions of national treasures housed by the National Park System in the Northeast, Delahunt said.

To help ensure the security of these artifacts, the Adams National Historic Site will now be home to the new Adams Institute and Northeast Museum Services Center. The Center will include a comprehensive museum cataloging program to enhance the protection and preservation of museum collections, as well as research and education opportunities at the Site and other parks throughout the Northeast. Such signature pieces as FDR's wheelchair, the first photograph and the original flame of the Statue of Liberty are featured in other National Park Museums throughout the region.

The Boston Harbor Islands Recreation Area, the nation's newest national park, will receive $375,000 in funding to provide educational and recreational opportunities to an estimated half-million visitors a year. Opened to the public last summer, the park encompasses more than 1,200 acres of 31 islands and is managed through a unique collaboration of several public and private groups.

Delahunt, a member of the House Parks Subcommittee, is working with several South Shore communities to explore how to link the park with other facilities and attractions.

In a related matter, Delahunt Wednesday attended the Boston Harbors Islands Dinner to help honor his predecessor, Gerry Studds, for his authorship of legislation creating the park.

The Department of Interior appropriations bill also contains 1998 funding for federal fisheries, national parks, Native American and coastal protection programs.

Best Buddies Chapter Established At ENC

Best Buddies International has established a Best Buddies chapter at Eastern Nazarene College.

Through Best Buddies, nine ENC students and nine individuals served by Work Inc. have been paired up to spend time getting to know one another and share their similar interests.

ENC is one of 16 colleges in Massachusetts that participates in Best Buddies Colleges program. Under the leadership of Stephanie Sipe, college buddy director for ENC, buddy pairs have made a one-year commitment to contact each other weekly, see each other twice a month, and join fellow buddy pairs for four group outings. Buddy pairs recently met for the first time at a bowling pizza party that officially kicked off their Best Buddies chapter.

Founded by Anthony Kennedy Shriver, the mission of Best Buddies is to enhance the lives of individuals with mental retardation by providing opportunities for socialization and friendship. Best Buddies is dedicated to providing the opportunity for mutually enriching friendships to develop between all participants.

Can Chiropractic Help You ?

Chiropractic care is based on the scientific fact that the nervous system controls the function of every cell, tissue, organ and system of your body. When the spinal bones (vertebrae which cover the spinal cord) lose their normal motion or position, this can irritate the nervous system which can cause back and neck pain, headaches, numbness...

By locating the areas of malfunction and applying specific adjustments, a Chiroprator helps to restore the spinal bones to their normal motion/position and helps the body to heal itself.

Fallon Ambulance Services Receives Chamber Award

Fallon Ambulance Services recently was honored for three consecutive years of growth by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at the Chamber's recent annual Business to Business Exposition.

The 61-year-old, three-generation, family-owned firm won the coveted "Success Profile," one of 16 companies recognized at the event.

Fallon Ambulance was cited for continued growth and contribution to the economy of southeastern Massachusetts. Peter Racicot, vice president of marketing services, accepted the award on behalf of the company.

More than 400 Chamber members and guests attended the ceremony at Lantana in Randolph, which featured Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci as keynote speaker.

Fallon Ambulance Services' rapid growth over the last three years--including an expansion of medical response staff from 300 to 450 in one year alone--has been driven in part by new contracts the firm has won.

Fallon Ambulance recently was awarded the 911 contract for the City of Quincy and renewal of their 911 contract with Milton. Additional new contracts include Milton Hospital, South Shore Hospital and Braintree Hospital.

The firm has added two office locations in the City of Quincy, one 3,500-square-foot site and one 6,000-foot office.

"It's a real honor to receive the Chamber award," said Racicot. "As long-standing Chamber members, it's gratifying to be recognized by our peers for our accomplishments. Our growth comes at an interesting time in our industry. We have remained a 'David' in an industry of 'Goliaths,' and the strategy seems to be working.

"As one of the very few remaining independently-owned ambulance companies, our decision to stay independent is in stark contrast to what is happening in our industry. As our competitors merge with larger entities or are bought out by them, we set out to carve a niche in the marketplace that would enable us to remain competitive."

The company has accomplished this in part through extensive community outreach programs, such as "Bringing Families Together"--a program to help brighten the holidays for residents and patients of hospitals and nursing homes, by offering rides home during that special time. For needy families, Fallon Ambulance supplies both a vehicle and driver, and imposes only a minimal fee to help defray (an average of $20 per trip." However, no one is turned away for inability to pay.

Fallon Ambulance participates in a number of additional outreach programs, including the QUILL (Quincy Independent Living and Learning) program, a non-profit organization that assists adults with developmental disabilities.

The company provides free airport-to-hospital transportation for children who have been flown to Boston for medical treatment under the American Airlines "Miles for Kids" program. The ambulance company also has entered a partnership with the Bernazzani School in Quincy, where the students get a first-hand, up-close look at the healthcare industry working with Fallon Ambulance Service under the city's School Community Partnership program.

Planning Board Meeting

The Quincy Planning Board was to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The agenda included:

•A special permit for Site Plan Review filed by Arbella Mutual Insurance Company. The applicant has proposed construction of a four-story office building of 133,000 square feet at 1,900 Crown Colony Drive.

•A MBTA and Technology Park Associates, LLC proposal for an office building on Hancock St. in North Quincy.

•A proposed zoning change to increase height regulations from four to eight stories in Industrial B District. A public hearing date must be established.

•A proposed zoning change for an increase in parking requirements in Business C District for Retail and Office. A public hearing date must be established.

Other business may also be discussed.

Abutter, Owner At Odds Over Transmission Shop

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Paul McNealy, owner of Triangle Transmission, 62 Liberty St. came under fire Tuesday at the Quincy License Board meeting because of complaints regarding the condition of the site.

One of his abutters, Rosemary Martin presented several pictures to the board showing parked cars in such a way as to block the view of a driver coming around the corner calling it a "dangerous situation."

Martin told the board that after she complains, the place looks good for about a week and then after that it goes back to where it was before.

Atty. William Phelan, representing McNealy said the business is operated very "effectively" and although acknowledging the issue of parking, told the board he thought Martin had a personal "vendetta" against McNealy, and wouldn"t be satisfied whatever he did.

He urged the board to allow McNealy to park 12 cars during the daytime and eight cars overnight.

While observing the pictures, Chairman Joseph Shea questioned why there were cars without plates parked in the area, and noted there were too many cars on the site.

Shea said that curbs were supposed to be installed which would make the parking of cars more restricted, but added it probably would be impossible to do so until Spring.

McNealy explained that often times on a Monday, he finds several cars left over the weekend, and then receives a telephone call from that person, stating that the car couldn't go "backward" or "forward."

He said some customers fail to pick up their cars when ready, forcing him, after going to the Registry of Motor Vehicles to tow the cars away.

He said he has no control over the situation, and at times, Martin takes a picture when all of this is happening, before he gets a chance to "shuffle the cars" elsewhere.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said the city should either enforce the zoning laws or not. He said "things have to change" in that area and told the board that Liberty Lounge where McNealy's em-ployees are parking their cars is in the process of being sold.

D'Amico said he wanted only eight cars parked until the curbing is completed.

Police Chief Thomas France said McNealy should make some sort of arrangements so cars are not parked there over the weekend.

At the end the meeting, a 5 minute recess was held when Shea, McNealy, D'Amico and Martin went into another room to discuss the issue.

It was decided that McNealy would have to comply with the parking of 12 cars during the day and eight overnight. Also that employees must not park at McNealy's but at the Liberty Lounge until other arrangements can be made.

The board will meet again next week to discuss the matter further.

Surgeons-Podiatrists

RELIEF IN A BOX

Quick recovery and minimal discomfort are among the benefits of many of the newer, less-invasive surgical techniques used in podiatric surgery today. A device known as TENS (transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation) can help make the post-op process even easier. A TENS unit is a battery-operated device typically housed in a small box with attached electrodes. When placed on the feet, the electrodes can safely deliver electrical impulses that both ease discomfort and stimulate healing following surgery. Other, more traditional recommendations for post-operative care still usually include the application of cold packs plus elevation of the affected areas for the first day or two after surgery.

P.S. Discomfort is usually greatest two or three days after podiatric surgery. Call if pain persists or worsens.

As you've just read podiatric surgery is now less-invasive, and discomfort minimal and easily controllable. If you are having any foot problems call our office for an appointment. All medical coverage is accepted. You'll find us conveniently located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

First Parish Receives $100,000 State Grant For Needed Repairs

Massachusetts Secretary of State William Galvin, chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission, Reps. Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin, and Mayor James Sheets have announced that United First Parish church in Quincy Center, has received a $100,000 grant from the Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund.

The Quincy project is among 72 local projects across the state to be awarded a grant for the repair and restoration of deteriorating historic structures.

United First Parish Church (Unitarian) was constructed out of Quincy blue granite in the Greek Revival style in 1827 and was designed by Boston architect Alexander Parris. Also known as the Church of Presidents, the building was a gift of President John Adams.

The $100,000 grant will address the slate roof repair and replacements along with associated flashings, gutters, downspouts, and repair and painting of wood fascia.

"Local historic resources hold a special place in the hearts of Massachusetts citizens. Therefore, I am extremely pleased that my office will be able to find 72 local projects representing a total of $5.4 million in state monies. We are further pleased to assist in saving these local treasures for future generations to enjoy," said Galvin.

"This total of $5,400,000 represents the largest amount of funding allocated in one round, demonstrating that state funding for historic preservation equals the creation of jobs and continues to be wisely invested in Massachusetts neighborhoods. In this round of grants, state dollars will serve to spearhead major revitalization efforts, and stimulate the economy in numerous Massachusetts communities," Galvin added.

The Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund was designed to benefit State Register properties in public and non-profit use. It is a matching grant program for up to 50 percent of the total project cost. Therefore, the $5.4 million in grants represents over $10 million that will be invested in local Massachusetts communities.

Another feature of the program allows applicants to request up to 75 percent of total construction costs provided they establish an endowment fund for the long-term maintenance of the grant assisted property.

Public Hearing Nov. 24 On Removing Downtown From Historic District

The Quincy Historical Commission will hold a public hearing on a proposal to remove the downtown shopping district from the Quincy Center Historic District Monday, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

City Councillor Michael Cheney proposed last month that Hancock Street from Granite to School streets be removed from the historic district, saying the restrictions placed on that district has hampered downtown revitalization.

Cheney wants a council vote on the matter taken in December.

Previously, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association asked the City Council to remove that portion of Hancock Street from the historic district for the same reason. The QCBPA board also has asked the council to limit the historical commission's role pertaining to signage to only buildings of true historic value in an established historic district, saying a new signage ordinance pending before the council is strict enough and should be enforced by the city's building inspector.

The Quincy Center Historic District was created by a city ordinance in 1974 and originally included Adams Street to Dimmock Street down Hancock Street to Granite Street, where it ended.

In 1989, the district was extended to include Hancock Street from Granite to School streets by another ordinance.

The city has another historic district, the Adams Birthplace District on Independence Avenue and the surrounding area.

'Education Week' Designated In Quincy

This week has been designated "Education Week" in Quincy by the City Council.

The council unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi calling for the designation Monday night. The action coincides with the National Education Association's declaration of Nov. 16-22 as National Education Week.

Raymondi's resolution states that the council "urges all citizens of this city to honor and recognize the contributions of educators and support staff in Quincy's public and private educational institutions.

The resolution lists 10 reasons why the week should be designated in Quincy, including:

•The city was home to Col. Francis Parker, an innovator in education for whom an elementary school in North Quincy is named.

•The Commonwealth of Massachusetts "leads the nation in public education."

•Quincy has two colleges, Quincy College and Eastern Nazarene College.

•Nov. 19 has been designated to honor support personnel of schools nationwide.

Former School Committeewoman Margaret King voiced support of the City Council resolution.

"This is an especially great week that should be celebrated," she said.

The national observance was established by the National Education Association and the American Legion as an annual event in 1921. The week now has 13 national co-sponsors, including the U.S. Department of Education.

Ayers Meeting Nov. 25 On MBTA Parking Garage

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers will hold a neighborhood meeting Tuesday, Nov. 25 at 7 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

The purpose of the meeting is to hear a proposal for a MBTA North Quincy Train Station parking garage and office building for Technological Associates.

All are welcome. For more information, contact Ayers through the City Council office, 376-1341 or 1342.

Realtors Assn., Exposition Co. To Present Home Show Feb. 7-15

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) and North American Exposition Co. will hold the MAR's Showcase of Homes in conjunction with the 19th annual North American Home Show Feb. 7-15 at the Bayside Expo Center in Boston.

The agreement to include the association's Showcase of Homes as part of North American Exposition's Home Show will result in one of the largest real estate-related consumer shows ever offered in the Northeast.

At the show, the public will be able to view current market listings and model homes available through realtors and developers across the state; shop for new home appliances, interior furnishings and windows and doors; learn new home improvement ideas from architectural, landscaping and interior design experts, obtain home financing advice and prequalification approval from local lenders; and attend a variety of informational seminars on home ownership and home remodeling.

"If you're in the market to purchase a first home or second home, renovate your current property, or sell and trade up or down to meet your present living needs, this show will prepare you for that process," said MAR President Richard Dils.

"Traditionally, the Home Show has been geared toward homeowners who are looking to build a new home or renovate their existing property," said Robert McAlpine of North American Expositions. "For the thousands of first-time buyers, trade-up homebuyers and empty-nesters looking to downsize in the coming year, this show is a great preparation tool."

For information on trade booth costs and availability in the MAR Showcase of Homes exhibit area, call 617-890-3700.

QNHS Celebrates Successful Affordable Housing Year

More than 130 residents, business people, and city officials gathered recently at the Quincy Sons of Italy to help Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services celebrate a successful year of creating and maintaining affordable housing development in Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Peter Kolson congratulated the organization on its accomplishments of the past year.

Normand Grenier, executive director, discussed some of the year's highlights. In addition to rehabilitating more than 20 residential units throughout the city, the organization was able to: •Create six additional units of transitional housing for domestic violence survivors in conjunction with DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended).

•Create a home for formerly homeless veterans in conjunction with Father Bill's Place.

•Support South Shore Habitat for Humanity's creation of eight first-time homebuyers' opportunities at Granite Crossing.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing also is in the process of establishing five housing units for the physically handicapped.

DOVE Executive Director Ann Marie Simone presented Normand Grenier with a plaque of appreciation for his work on behalf of battered women and their children.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing is a public-private partnership established in 1981 to help maintain and revitalize Quincy's neighborhoods. The organization's approach to housing development and includes partnerships with local government, local businesses, and residents.

Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a longtime environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Those nominated the past 12 years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient. Again, deadline for nominations is Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

$2-3 Million In Post Office Improvements

change that will affect customers is the new configuration of post office boxes.

The boxes will all be located on the left side of the lobby, and the box numbers of some customers will change. Those customers will be notified well in advance so they will have time to change their letterheads and make other adjustments, he said.

Finally, the outside of the building will be touched up with "water blasting," according to Lundrigan.

The renovation work is the first major project to be undertaken at the site since an addition was built onto the back of the building in 1946. The original facility was constructed in 1908.

"The work needs to be done, I will say that," said Lundrigan.

The U.S. Postal Service keeps an eye on all of its facilities and makes a priority list of those that need upgrading, he added.

"They felt this one was one of the top ones (in terms of need) in the Boston area to upgrade," he said.

Tide Mill Plaza Plan Gets Six-Month Extension

A plan to turn a piece of waterfront land off Southern Artery into a shopping mall/fishing pier received a six-month extension from the City Council Monday night.

The council gave Twiss Realty and Stop & Shop that time to sign tenant stores for the planned $2.6 million Tide Mill Plaza. Since the plan already has taken nearly three years, however, councillors gave Stop & Shop only the six months instead of the two-year extension it requested.

The original Planned Unit Development permit from the council for the Town River Bay project was due to expire next month.

The council could refuse another extension if the project is not in effect by next May, which would force Stop & Shop to abandon the project or submit a new proposal.

Atty. David Mahoney said Stop & Shop and Twiss have been aggressively marketing the seven-acre site but still have not found a large anchor store for the 65,000-square-foot project.

The site of the former Duane Lumber Co. and an adjoining salvage yard, the land is located across a canal from the Souther Tide Mill and near Stop & Shop on Southern Artery.

Twiss Realty, Stop & Shop's development arm, purchased the land in 1992 and unveiled the Tide Mill Plaza project, in February 1995. Twiss called for a combination of restaurants, shops and a commercial fishing pier.

The plan, however, has run into opposition from preservationists who say the shopping center will make it difficult to ever restore the 19th century Souther Tide Mill and auto repair shop owners who voiced displeasure about the concept of bringing in Philadelphia-based Pep Boys to the site, which has since been dropped from the project.

The shop owners had raised concerns that the discount auto repair shop would drive them out of business.

Since the plan to bring in Pep Boys was dropped, the developers have had trouble finding another major store for the plaza.

'Look Good' Program For Cancer Patients At Hospital

Quincy Hospital will host the American Cancer Society, in partnership with the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association (CTFA) and the National Cosmetology Association (NCA) for a "Look Good...Feel Better" program.

The event, which will be held Monday, Dec. 1 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center at the hospital, 114 Whitwell St., is free and open to people living with cancer.

The program teaches cancer patients who are undergoing chemotherapy or radiation treatment how to enhance their appearance during treatment. Patricia Queeney, cosmetologist, of Patricia & Company in Milton, will instruct participants how to use makeup, wigs and other accessories to regain self-image and confidence during a time when looks may change due to treatment.

Quincy Hospital provides a number of cancer-related programs to the community including cancer support groups, and free mammogram and cancer screenings.

Advance registration is required for the free program.

Call Jane Taub at 376-3112 to register.

Dr. Norman Wortzman Podiatric Hotline Volunteer

Dr. Norman A. Wortzman of Quincy joined podiatrists from all over New England recently in volunteering to answer questions about foot health during the fourth annual American Podiatric Medical Association, Region I Podiatry Hotline.

The free service allowed people from the six New England states to call toll-free and ask a podiatrist about proper foot care.

"It was a rewarding experience to be able to help so many people with their foot complaints," said Dr. Wortzman.

Council OKs Permit For Meadows Project

The City Council has approved a Planned Unit Development (PUD) permit for the proposed Meadows at Marina Bay apartment complex.

The council voted 8-1 Monday night to back the project, with Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold dissenting.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers--whose ward includes the parcel in question, called Lot 23--said he tried for months to obtain money to buy the 66-acre parcel and preserve it as open space. He said the city has received no solid commitment for federal or state grants or other funding.

Ayers added that Mayor James Sheets also has not committed to the open space acquisition.

"I feel this project could be a good project," Ayers said of The Meadows.

The 136-unit Meadows apartment building and parking area would occupy about six acres at Victory Road and Seaport Drive. The Meadows at Marina Bay LLC is owned by local developer Peter O'Connell and his son Thomas.

The project developers, as a condition of the PUD permit, must donated $27,500 to cover the first phase of the restoration of a nearby marsh that is dying, according to Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, because of inadequate tidal flow between the marsh and the ocean. The money will benefit a "wetlands banking fund" that will be established by the city.

The development site, a wooded area, is informally referred to by local naturalists as "the bird sanctuary." It was once slated for preservation under the 1980s Marina Bay master plan.

Harold said that plan reflected an intent to balance higher-density waterfront construction with open, natural areas.

And although Atty. Peter Eleey asserted that there is "no legal standing" that the area is a bird sanctuary, Harold said O'Connell breached a "moral obligation" to keep his word to the community.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney proposed using a portion of the developer's permitting fee to plant trees and shrubs elsewhere on the property to duplicate the bird habitat. The fee would be 1 percent of the $13 million project, a total of $130,000.

Cheney's proposal will be discussed at a future City Council meeting.

Before the project, which will take 18 months to complete, can begin, the developers must wait for decisions on the Zoning Board of Appeals permit--currently under appeal in Superior Court--and the Conservation Commission permit, which is under appeal to the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Another condition of the permit calls for the developers to work with a city engineer to improve traffic signaling and the flow of cars between Marina Bay and North Quincy.

Councillors have asked Marina Bay developers, including the O'Connells, developer Peter Gordon and Thorndike Development, and Boston Scientific which owns the road, to donate money for Commander Shea Boulevard, which needs to be upgraded.

The city hopes to rebuild the road to city standards after completion of a Massachusetts Electric cable-laying project along Commander Shea Boulevard in 1999. The electric company has pledged a contribution of $300,000 but the improvements--which will include drainage, lighting and sidewalk upgrades--will total about $800,000.

After the meeting, Harold cited his concerns about the bird sanctuary, Commander Shea Boulevard, and the outstanding legal issues as the reasons he voted against the permit.

Buyer Beware When Shopping For Diamonds, Survey Shows

A recent state survey on the sale of diamonds at some major retailers shows buyers should be aware that a good deal probably is too good to be true, says one local jeweler.

Jeff Bertman, graduate gemologist, of Rogers Jewelry in Quincy, in his position as president of Massachusetts and Rhode Island Jewelers Association (MARIJA), was involved with the state Department of Consumer Affairs regarding the misrepresentation of total diamond weights in diamond merchandise marked in fractional weights, such as 1/4 and 1/2 carat of total diamond weight.

In the investigation, conducted by the Department of Consumer Affairs, merchandise was randomly purchased at Macy's, Filene's Basement, Ames, and Service Merchandise. After the merchandise was purchased it was weighed for total content by the director of Weights and Measures for the City of Boston to determine how accurately the total weights were, versus the claims made, either in ads or in person.

JEFF BERTMAN

In about one third of the purchases the merchandise weighed less than the claimed weights, in one instance more. In one case there was a potential difference of up to $600. It was also determined, advertising was produced that does not follow the guidelines of the FTC regulations by those imposed by the Department of Consumer Affairs. Results were released by the department to local and regional media.

One way to safeguard the consumer, Bertman said, is to make sure diamonds are quoted in actual weights, such as .26ct. or .54ct., rather than fractions and are guaranteed by the seller.

"This would state an actual weight rather than an approximation. Furthermore, make sure the place you buy the goods has a trained person who can explain the variations to you. Most consumers do not realize that as diamonds get bigger than become rarer and thus more expensive per carat. Depending on quality, a diamond weighing .98ct. and one of a similar quality weighing 1.00 carat might vary in price up to $7,000, though the difference is only .02 carat," he said.

Bertman said the MARIJA is sponsoring a campaign entitled "Your Assurance of Quality -- Integrity -- Professionalism."

"Any store displaying this decal will have pledged in writing to maintain the Code of Ethics adopted by the Jewelers of America. I think jewelers making this commitment will be one safeguard in shopping."

"Remember," Bertman added, "If it seems to good to be true, you can sure it isn't."

Step One Takes Part In Early Intervention Advocacy

The Step One Early Intervention program of Quincy took part in a statewide Early Intervention Advocacy Day and Legislative Reception in Nurses Hall at the State House recently.

Phyllis Fazio, director of Step One Early Intervention and a recent recipient of the Rosemary Wahlberg Humanitarian Award, served as master of ceremonies.

"There is only a small window of opportunity between the ages of birth and three years to help children who are at risk in their development," said Fazio. "Today we want to thank the legislators and their staff who have understood the importance of promoting early intervention."

Michelle Glidden, a Step One music therapist, led children and parents through popular songs while Step One staff supervised a play area for toddlers.

The event was sponsored by the Massachusetts Early Intervention Consortium/Infant Toddler Advocates, Inc. Awards for outstanding leadership and commitment to Early Intervention programs were presented to Representatives Barbara Gardner and Kevin Fitzgerald and Senators Stanley Rosenberg and Frederick Berry.

Children eligible for Early Intervention include those who were born premature; have feeding, vision or hearing problems; are slow to sit up, stand, walk, or talk; have behavior or attention difficulties; or were born with a disability which affects their development. Step One Early Intervention serves Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

TWO TYPES OF DIABETES

The best-known fact about diabetes is that it has something to do with sugar -- people with diabetes usually have to be careful about eating sweets. It's far from that simple, though. Diabetes mellitus, the disorder's full clinical name, comes in two common types: Type I, or insulin-dependent, appears mainly during childhood. Type II, or insulin-independent, more often occurs among over-40 patients. In both types, the problem is that the pancreas doesn't produce enough of the hormone insulin to properly absorb the glucose that is necessary to fuel the body. The result is abnormally high glucose levels in the blood and urine, causing such symptoms as excessive thirst and urination, weakness, fatigue, and reduced resistance to infection.

P.S. There is no cure for diabetes, but taking steps to keep it under control can help you toward a long life with minimal complications.

Take care of yourself when you are dealing with a chronic illness. That means two things primarily: receiving the proper medical intervention and the information you need to make the right decisions about your care. We offer both right here. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

Balanced Attack Lifts North Over Hingham

FOOTBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Sunday's 26-16 non-league victory over host Hingham was just what the North Quincy High School football team needed heading into its annual Thanksgiving Day showdown with Quincy.

"This was a big win for us," said North Quincy head coach Ken McPhee. "You always want to go into Thanksgiving on a positive note and a good feeling about your team.

"I thought we played well on both sides of the ball. We did some good things offensively and played strong defensively. I was really pleased with the effort the kids gave in this game."

The Red Raiders improved to 4-5 overall and remained 3-4 in Old Colony League play. North, which dropped three of its first four games, rebounded to win three of five and climb to within one victory of the coveted .500 mark.

"We're 4-5, but we could be 5-4 or 6-3 if we got a couple of breaks," said McPhee. "I thought we should've beat Stoughton and had a shot to win the Barnstable game, but we didn't do it. We're happy with this victory, because it gives us a shot at .500, where we haven't been in a while."

After North and Hingham played a scoreless first quarter, NQ struck first when senior tailback Jason Turner (15 carries for 82 yards) scored his sixth touchdown on a three-yard run.

Later in the quarter, junior quarterback Chris Bregoli connected with senior tight end Frank McNamara on a 25-yard touchdown pass and North led, 12-0, at the half. The touchdown was McNamara's fifth of the season and the eighth thrown by Bregoli.

"Chris has really come on in the last few games and played well," said McPhee. "He's done an exceptional job helping this team get back on track after a rough start."

Senior fullback Mike Powers, a force offensively and defensively all season, scored two third-quarter touchdowns to push the Red Raiders' advantage to 26-0. His first score was a three-yard run, followed by a two-point conversion pass from Bregoli to McNamara. Powers' second touchdown (his fifth of the season) came on a 35-yard run.

"He and Jason had big days offensively," said McPhee. "Mike's been everywhere this season. He's one of our captains and whenever we need a big play, he's there.

"He's been a stalwart on defense, with seven interceptions and has batted about 12 balls away. He's probably our leading tackler, too. He's quick, he's tough and definitely All-Scholastic material."

In the fourth quarter, Hingham staged a comeback as Chris Primo scored on a four-yard run, followed by a two-point rush by Nick Shore. Hingham cut the deficit to 10 when Josh Corson recovered a blocked punt in the end zone and Ron Lawrence caught a two-point conversion pass from Shore, but got no closer as North held on for the 10-point triumph.

McPhee also commended the outstanding performances of senior flanker/defensive back Matt Kane and senior center Jim Callahan, along with senior defensive end Kevin Bowes (tri-captain), senior wide receiver Mark Stanton and senior offensive and defensive linemen Chris Robinson, Brian Wells (tri-captain) and Mike Douglas.

"Matt had a heck of a game both ways," said McPhee. "He was covering a kid about three inches taller than him and the kid didn't catch anything.

"Jimmy's new to the center position and has done an unbelievable job. He's the mainstay of our offensive line. He's very quick off the ball and hasn't had a bad exchange with our quarterback--not one."

Presidents Bow To Barnstable, 28-7

Fourth Straight Defeat Sends Quincy Reeling

This is precisely not what the Quincy High School football team had in mind for the second half of the season.

Through five games, the Presidents were 4-1 and in gearing up for a race at the Old Colony League crown.

Now, having lost four in a row, the Presidents (3-4 in the Old Colony League, 4-5 overall) hope to salvage their season with a Thanksgiving Day victory over North Quincy. It would mark Quincy's fourth straight win over their crosstown rivals.

Quincy's latest loss came last Saturday, when the host Barnstable Red Raiders reeled off four unanswered touchdowns en route to a 28-7 victory. Barnstable improved to 6-1 in the OCL, 7-3 overall.

Early on, the Presidents had the upper hand and took an early lead when senior quarterback Kevin Moore threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to junior wide receiver Mike Lencki. Mike Turner's extra point gave Quincy a 7-0 lead heading into the second quarter.

The Red Raiders cut into the lead on a 37-yard field goal by Joe DeMartino and went ahead for good on a 36-yard touchdown pass from Mark Shedlock to Stefan Gomes. Mike Broton, who rushed for 202 yards on eight carries and two touchdowns, raced 78 yards for his first score before the half ended.

Leading 15-7, the Red Raiders padded their lead when Broton broke free for a 30-yard touchdown run in the third quarter. The game's final score came in the fourth, when Shedlock hooked up with Gomes again, this time on a 66-yard scoring toss.

As of press time, Quincy head coach Peter Chella was unavailable for comment.

A few reasons for Quincy's recent struggles may be evident through a closer look at the statistics:

•In their last four games (all losses), the Presidents have been outscored 83-32, or by an average of about 21-8.

•In their first five games (four wins, one loss), the Presidents outscored their opponents, 111-71, or by an average of 22-14.

•When Quincy scores 18 or more points, its record is 4-0. Translation: when the Presidents score three or more touchdowns in a game, they are undefeated.

•When Quincy scores 17 or fewer points, its record is 0-5. Translation: when the Presidents score fewer than three touchdowns, they are winless.

•Overall, Quincy has scored 143 points in nine games (15.8 points per game) and yielded 154 (17.1 ppg).

Therefore, if Quincy is to win on Thnksgiving Day, the odds are in the Presidents' favor--if they score 18 or more points (three touchdowns would suffice).

(Of course, Quincy could win the game, 7-6, on a late punt return and none of this would matter...)

Stephen Golden Runs Dublin Marathon, Raises Money For Leukemia Research

Stephen Golden of Wollaston recently traveled to Dublin, Ireland, to run in the Dublin Marathon for the Leukemia Society of America.

Golden was part of the "Team in Training," a group of 250 Boston-area athletes who raised more than $750,000 for the local chapter of the charity. The money is used for research and development in seeking a cure for leukemia, Hodgkin's disease and related cancers.

The money also assists the families of cancer patients in meeting parking and transportation expenses related to treatment.

Golden ran the marathon in memory of Carol Lewis and Lillian Callow, family friends who have died of leukemia, and three-year-old Matthew Coronite of Weymouth, who is currently battling the disease.

Apaches Win Cheerleading Competition

The North Quincy Apache cheerleading squad captured the Quincy Youth Football League cheerleading competition held last Saturday at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

Originally slated for Nov. 2 before the QYFYL championship game, the competition was postponed due to rain.

With several hundred people in attendance, the Apache cheerleaders finished ahead of the Quincy Point Panthers (second place) and the Houghs Neck Manets (third).

The league's other three teams, the West Quincy Elks, Squantum Storm and Milton Mustangs also competed for the cheerleading title.

The Apache cheerleaders went on to compete in the state cheerleading competition which was held last Saturday at Boston College High School in Dorchester.

Cheerleading groups from all over the state actively competed and several thousand people attended the competition. The Apaches finished in fourth place in their division.

Sacred Heart Sixth Grade Girls Win Basketball Tournament

Over 600 basketball players participated in the recent third annual Quincy Youth Basketball Tournament at North Quincy High School.

The tournament has become the kick off tournament for many teams in the area to begin their basketball seasons. It drew teams from Quincy, Milton, Norwell, Hingham, Stoughton, Walpole and South Plymouth and other cities and towns to compete at the sixth, seventh and eighth grade levels. Fifty-one teams competed in six different divisions for boys and girls.

Family members cheered on their hometown teams as the excitement of competition filled the NQHS gym. In the end only one team from each division emerged victorious, but for one weekend youngsters played basketball for the pure excitement of the game.

The champions of the girls' sixth grade level were from Sacred Heart in North Quincy, while the finalists hailed from Braintree. Stoughton was the boys' sixth grade champion, while Milton was the finalist.

In the girls' seventh grade level, the champion was Norwell and the finalist was Hingham. South Plymouth was the boys' seventh grade level champion, while Scituate was the finalist.

Hingham was the champion of the girls' eighth grade level and Walpole was the finalist. The champions of the boys' eighth grade level were from Milton, while the finalists were from Stoughton.

Recreation Department Gym Program Starts Saturday

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct supervised recreation programs in 10 neighborhood gymnasiums on Saturdays beginning this Saturday.

The programs are free and open to boys and girls age 8 through high school. The time varies for each age group. All programs have walk-in registration and are open only to Quincy residents. Participants may attend the location of their choice.

The particpating gyms are Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Point Webster, Wollaston and Atlantic.

Assorted gym activities including floor hockey, tag football, basketball and relay races will be conducted under the supervision of the Recreation Department staff.

The core schedule is from 8:30 to 9:45 a.m. for elementary age, 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. for middle school age and 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for high school age. Some adjustments in this time schedule may be made at different locations to accommodate differences in attendance by age group.

Middle School Wrestling Champions Crowned

A five-week intramural wrestling program recently culminated in the City Championship held at the Munroe McLean Gymnasium.

A total of 24 wrestlers representing Quincy's four middle schools demonstrated the skills they learned during their practices, which were held twice a week at the city's high school gymnasiums.

Ribbons were awarded to the top three finishers in the following weight classes:

Flyweight: 1. Dennis Conway (Atlantic); 2. Tom Peterson (Atlantic); 3. Derick Last (Atlantic).

Super-lightweight: 1. Colt Burns (Atlantic); 2. Rob Chase (Sterling); 3. Pat Morales (Atlantic).

Lightweight: 1. Tim Duggan (Sterling); 2. Dennis Hill (Sterling); 3. Sean Glynn (Broad Meadows).

Middleweight: 1. Mike Moody (Sterling); 2. Pat Wong (Atlantic); 3. Andrew McDonough (Broad Meadows).

Light-heavyweight: 1. Ben Dutton (Central); 2. Ken Tasney (Atlantic); 3. Tim Sommers (Atlantic).

Heavyweight: 1. Shawn Bowles (Sterling); 2. Craig McKechnie (Atlantic); 3. Greg Sommers (Atlantic).

Coaches Bill Zinnell and John Koltun are to be commended for their work with the program.

Harry's Pizza And Seafood Ends Soccer Season Undefeated

The Harry's Pizza and Seafood Under 12 boys team finished the Fall 1997 Quincy Youth Soccer season undefeated with a record of 7-0-2.

"It was a fun season in which every team member contributed to make us better as the season progressed," said Malcolm McNeil, coach of Harry's Pizza and Seafood.

McNeil extended his appreciation to all the players for their time, effort and sportsmanship, and to the parents for their support in getting the players to the games and practices.

The team consisted of 17 players who McNeil said "gave it their all every week."

The players: Mark Costello, Joe Starzyk, Dan O'Donnell, Peter Gilcoine, Pearse Lombard, Daniel Rouleau, Kyle Costa, Leo Levesque, Tom Ross, Liam Powers, Kyle Carmody, Paul Grazioso, Matt MacNeil, Jordan Oster, Andy McDonough, Daryl Costa and Bryan Donovan.

For Making State Tournament

Council Honors NQHS Girls' Soccer Team

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team was honored by the City Council last week for recently reaching the state tournament for the first time in team history.

The Red Raiders, who made the tournament for the first time in their 20-year existence, fell to host Marshfield, 4-0, in the first round Nov. 2.

Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers presented team members with special commendations in recognition of their efforts.

"It was the winningest season for a girls' soccer team in the history of the City of Quincy," said Harold. "They've represented the city proudly."

Ayers, a North Quincy High graduate, added, "They've faced some tough competition and rose to the occasion. As a former Red Raider, I know how proud I am of them."

Coach Paul Bregoli, noting that several City Council members are former high school athletes, said his team is also filled with "future leaders" of the city who are talented both in the classroom and on the field.

The team includes tri-captains Laurie Flynn, Kristen Keohane and Katie Koch; their fellow seniors Sharon Lee, Leela Shankar and Erin Tormey; juniors Liz Bennett, Kristen Bowes, Kate Ceurvels, Dorothy Cronin, Rachael Powers and Betsy Stone; sophomores Maureen Holleran, Ashley Murphy, Caitlyn O'Donnell and Jill Nicholson; and freshmen Stacy Szcesuil, Kellee Conley and Jen Conley.

A NEEDED INJECTION

Since the virtual demise of carburetors during the 1986 model year, fuel injection systems have helped car owners to easier morning starts. Fuel injection has also helped auto makers comply with strict emissions standards while achieving significant gains in fuel economy and power output. Essentially, there are two types of fuel injection. Throttle body operates much like a carbureted system, with an injector(s) sitting atop a conventional intake manifold, in which air and fuel are mixed and sent to the cylinders. With port-injection, each cylinder has its own injector situated above the intake port, spraying atomized fuel into the combustion chamber. Using gasolines with sufficient levels of detergents and additives helps prevent clogging that can disrupt either system.

HINT: Throttle body injection systems are simpler, but less efficient, than port-injection.

For most of your car's maintenance needs including problems with your car's fuel injection system, rely on our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. For the best service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Your Horoscope

by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Things could easily fall into disarray at home base this week. There just seems to be too much to do. Partners, though, are in rapport. This weekend, enjoy a social visit.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Changes or mix-ups in social plans plague you early in the week. A child doesn't see eye to eye with you, but be patient. The weekend brings new insights into financial dealings.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Minor details at every turn seem to impede your progress at work early in the week. Try not to let this get you down. Good news or a visitor from afar brightens up your weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Couples can't seem to get enough time to spend together this week. You're just too busy. A worrisome business matter is happily resolved by week's end. Financial prospects improve.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) There's some difficulty this week coming to agreeable terms with co-workers. Also, a matter about a child concerns you. This weekend, a friend is a source of encouragement and inspiration.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Work priorities take precedence over travel this week. A mix-up in communication is likely with a loved one. Time alone over the weekend leads to inspired thought.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You could have too many irons in the fire where work is concerned. Try to focus on what's most important so that you can ensure success. The weekend brings a burst of creative energy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Social life doesn't exactly match up to your expectations this week. You could end up disappointed in a friend. However, creative thinking leads to a major business triumph.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're unable to get that private time you so crave early in the week. Interruptions are just par for the course. A loved one gives you a new perspective on a family concern.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A business delay has you fuming and fretting. Don't let this cause you to lay back and do nothing. Implement whatever you can under these circumstances. Accent financial planning over the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're likely to meet with some unplanned expenses this week. In general, it's not the time for reaching financial decisions. This weekend, creativity and romance are happily highlighted.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're likely to receive some conflicting information on the job this week. However, by week's end, you achieve a clear perception of what your next step should be.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Surely no one can dispute the truth in the ancient adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." It makes sense because it works. Large lists can be easily cited. Vaccinations probably head the list in matters of health. Fire prevention safeguards personal and property values, etc.

With prevention so prevalent in so many things, is it not strange that there is so little preventive action in the difficulties of human relationships? Riots, neighborhood strife, family discord, delinquency, unethical conduct, crime and lawlessness are only a few of the disturbances in human relationships, which if prevented would need no cure.

Everybody knows this. There is no communication gap in the problem. But there is an action hap, a gap between misused energy and creative activity. This action hap reflects disregard for our Judeo-Christian heritage. Love, concern for others, humility, doing right despite being wronged are but a few of the preventative against distressed human relationships. Can you explain why these are not more widely used?

Beechwood Receives $2,000 State Grant

Beechwood on the Bay has received a matching grant of $2,000 from the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

The grant was awarded through the MCC's Organizational Support Program and will support arts, music enrichment, and performances for Quincy children at the Beechwood center.

MCC grants are awarded through a statewide competitive process. The grant signifies that Beechwood on the Bay provides a high level of quality in its programs, community service, and administrative ability.

Beechwood will direct the award to the Music School's long-standing CEPY (Cultural Enrichment for Youth) program. Beechwood's goal is to reach new audiences with high quality intergenerational programming.

The MCC has a budget of $14.7 million for Fiscal Year 1998. Its funds reach every community in Massachusetts. The mission of the MCC is to promote excellence, education, access, and diversity in the arts, humanities, and interpretative sciences in order to improve the quality of life for all Massachusetts residents and to contribute to the economic vitality of our communities. The non-profit cultural industry has a $2.56 billion economic impact in state.

South Shore Community Bank Breaks Ground

A groundbreaking ceremony was recently held at the construction site of the South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company's new bank building in Braintree.

South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company's Chief Financial Executive Officer Don Olson, President and Senior Loan Officer James Barbieri and Chief Financial Officer John Fancuillo, along with several distinguished community and business leaders, celebrated the region's first new bank since the 1960s.

The future bank will be located on John W. Maher Highway in Braintree. Other branches are planned for Quincy and Hingham, bank officials indicated.

"The groundbreaking ceremony not only commences the physical development of South Shore Community Bank & Trust Company, it serves as a symbol to South Shore residents and businesses that they will soon have a community bank dedicated to providing personalized banking service," Olson said. "We are continuing our capital raising efforts and anticipate a first quarter 1998 grand opening."

The establishment of the bank is a result of the founding members' identification of a growing need on the South Shore for a hometown bank that provides personal service and caters to customers' individual needs. The bank's goal is to create a community-focused, customer service-oriented environment, providing another banking alternative to residents and small businesses on the side.

McKay Fried Makes Two Staff Changes

McKay Fried & Partners of Boston Inc. (MF&P) has expanded its staff by promoting Irene Sullivan to senior account executive in the public relations company, and Suzanne Choquette as traffic manager in the advertising company.

Sullivan, previously an account executive, will continue to service a variety of clients including Hunneman Real Estate Corporation, Net Properties Management, Inc., Pan Energy Corporation and Philip Morris U.S.A. As senior account executive, she will be responsible for the supervision of MF&P's other PR account teams and assist in the strategic development of new business campaigns.

Sullivan served as an account executive at Pinpoint Marketing & Communications Inc. (PPMC), handling the same clients base, prior to MF&P's acquisition of PPMC in May of this year. She brings over five years of experience in the public relations industry to her current position.

Sullivan holds a bachelor of arts degree in communications with a concentration in marketing from Boston College. Originally from Hull, she now lives in Quincy.

Choquette joins MF&P as traffic manager, where she will be responsible for scheduling and monitoring the timeliness of all projects in MF&P's advertising company. She will facilitate the flow of client work through all agency departments.

Prior to working at MF&P, Choquette was the assistant marketing manager at J. Baker, Inc., in Canton for two years. While with J. Baker, Inc., she worked with FAYVA, Parade of Shoes and Casual Male Big & Tall.

Choquette is a graduate of Simmons College with a major in communications. She has also studied at the Rhode Island School of Design and the School of Fine Arts, Boston. She lives in Cumberland, R.I.

November Alzheimer's Awareness Month at Beechwood

The Quincy Alzheimer's Association at Beechwood on the Bay has scheduled special activities during November which has been proclaimed Alzheimer's Awareness Month by Mayor James Sheets.

The association, sponsored by Beechwood Community Life Center and supported by the city and community fund-raisers, provides a wide range of services to those impacted by Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders.

Special programming is scheduled at the center throughout the month: Support group meetings and all activities are open to all at no charge.

Special videos and discussions for family and friends looking for insight about care giving are planned for Nov. 20.

Year-round programs sponsored by the Quincy Alzheimer's Association, at Beechwood Community Life Center include:

Helpline: Information materials for diagnosis and services, referrals, family counseling, guidance and support, and educational materials,

Support Groups: For family members.

Training and Information Meetings: for families; professionals; community groups.

Safe Return Medical Bracelets (in partnership with the Quincy Police Department)

Fundraising activities for research.

Alzheimer's Disease is a progressive disease of the brain, the most common form of demential and the fourth leading cause of death among adults (typical life expectancy is 8-10 years from the onset of symptoms). "One in 10 people over 65 and nearly half of those over 85 have Alzheimer's, with increasing numbers being found in people in their 40s and 50s", reports Sharron Beals, Beechwood's Executive Director.

An estimated four million Americans are victimized by Alzheimer's with 1,700 in Quincy estimated to be suffering from the disease. It is estimated that 14 million Americans, an estimated 350,000 of them in Massachusetts, and 5,100 in Quincy, will have the disease by midi-century unless a cure or a means of prevention is found.

For more information about services, programs and informative meetings, call Beechwood's Elder Services Director, Mary Centola, 471-5712.

Council Appropriates $193,000

Underground Storage Tanks To Be Removed

The city is planning to remove its underground storage tanks used for fueling city vehicles at Quincy's fire and police stations and replacing them with an upgraded central fueling facility at the Department of Public Works.

The City Council appropriated $193,000 for the work from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account to the DPW Monday night.

DPW Commissioner David Colton passed out a packet to councillors outlining the reasons for the work:

"As you know, the city is subject to Massachusetts and U.S. regulation for the operation of vehicle fueling facilities," the packet states. "The Department of Public Works, in conjunction with the police and fire departments, currently operate nine such facilities. None are in full compliance with the current regulations and the U.S. EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) has ordered us to correct the situation."

Colton said after consulting with Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, the city has decided to take the following action:

•Remove all underground storage tanks at the police and fire stations.

•Upgrade the central fueling facility at the DPW to comply with regulations.

•Purchase a small fueling truck to remotely service fire vehicles in case of emergency.

The $193,000 appropriation breaks down to $93,000 for the removal of the tanks, $65,000 for the design of the new facility, and $35,000 for the fueling truck. Green Enviromental Inc. of Quincy will both remove the tanks (the holes left behind will be filled by the city) and do the engineering design work, Colton said.

Both Colton and Gorman said a number of local communities already rely on a central filling station because it is environmentally and economically sounder than the older system.

Pain Center Offering Two New Treatments

The Quincy Comprehensive Pain Center, in its third year of treating patients with acute and chronic pain, is now offering two new treatments.

They include massage therapy, an alternative method of treatment that can alleviate pain for a number of disorders involving muscle and other soft tissue; and acupuncture, the ancient Chinese art of healing.

The Pain Center uses traditional medical techniques and alternative therapy to help patients deal with acute or chronic pain. In a thoroughly holistic approach, treatment ranges from nerve blocks and medication to acupuncture, manipulation, stress reduction and relaxation techniques. The acupuncturist is a board licensed practitioner.

Andrew Koropey, MD, medical director of the center said, "Patients have more alternatives than they would generally find in a more traditional medical environment."

The professional staff at the Pain Center includes Dennis Baily, DO, osteopathy; David Blaustein, MD, physiatry, Barry Freedman, MS, DC, chiropractic medicine; and Andrew Koropey, MD, anesthesiology.

The center is located on the Quincy Hospital campus and is accepting new patients with a variety of acute and chronic disorders. For more information or to make an appointment, call 376-5557.

Steps Off At 12:15 P.M. Sunday

80 Units Featured In Christmas Parade

The 46th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade featuring more than 80 marching units will kick off Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at School and Elm Sts. and proceed north along Hancock St. to North Quincy High School.

The grand marshal will be 104-year-old Alfred Benedetti of Quincy, the oldest grand marshal in the parade's history and believed to be the oldest grand marshal in the country.

Thousands of people are expected to line the 2.8-mile route which will feature more than 80 marching units, including floats, bands and returning favorites as well as some new attractions.

This year's parade theme is "The Sights and Sounds of Christmas." The parade will feature 20 floats, 22 bands, 23 specialty units and 15 color guards, more than last year.

"As in the past, this parade will live up to expectations," said Christmas Festival Committee Chairman George White.

Several new floats and bands will be featured in this year's parade. Other highlights include a group of 25 to 30 horses from the mounted units of the Quincy, Boston and other police departments as well as a special contingent consisting of 14 units from the Shriners Aleppo Temple that will make up the parade's second division.

Float participants include Star of the Sea Parish, Thomas Crane Library, Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, Woodward School for Girls, Cub Scout Pack 1, Koch Club, Quincy Park Department, Jack Conway Realty, Work Inc., South Shore Men of Harmony, South Shore Habitat for Humanity, Quincy Point Congregational Church, Quincy Hospital, Bare Cove Fire Museum with fire engine, Quincy Fire Department engine, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Worcester Sound and Light, Quincy Partnership, St. Ann's Parish and Quincy First Night.

And, of course, Santa will wave to spectators from his float sponsored by the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

Floats will compete for eight awards and a total of $4,250 in prize money. The grand prize winner for the best overall float will receive the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and $1,500 cash. Other cash prizes are $1,000 for first place, $750 second, $500 third and $250 each for fourth and fifth places.

Judging the floats will be Jane Johnston, former Woodward School teacher; Frank Buckley, president of the Squantum Community Association; and Kathy Burgess of the Quincy Art Association.

Featured bands include 13 high schools and one junior high--Quincy, North Quincy, Abington, Bourne, Chicopee Comprehensive, David Prouty, Douglas, Holbrook, Lawrence, New Bedford Jr., New Bedford Sr., Pittsfield, Southbridge and Weymouth--as well as the Boston City Band, Boston Police Gaelic Bagpipe Band, Canton Legion Post, Citations Drum Corps, Crann Tara Pipe Band, Roma Band, Immaculate Heart of Mary and Waltham Legion Post.

Bands will be judged in the vicinity of Cottage Ave. and Hancock St. Chief judge is Joseph Nee.

Specialty units expected to appear are:

Winners of the Festival Committee poster contest, Quincy High and North Quincy High beauty queens, Hallmore Clydesdales, Toys for Tots, Red Cross vehicle, Bare Cove Museum fire engine, Council on Aging van, Rockland Police Department safety car, two sponsor penant marching groups, Suspenders juggling group, Ronald McDonald in convertable (with van), Scituate Safety Car, costumed characters, Quincy Fire Department-pumper and vehicle, Quincy Fire Department vehicle, Fallon Ambulance, Hi Wheelers antique autos, Rick Cobban on stilts, Worcester Searchlight and Power, US Trust antique fire engine, and DARE Vehicle/MBTA Contingent.

Alfred Benedetti, 104 Years Young, Parade Grand Marshal

Quincy's Alfred Benedetti, 104, is the oldest grand marshal in the history of the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade.

Yet he has remained active despite his age.

Benedetti worked in the ship design field for 56 years--47 of them at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point, where for 33 years he was a piping supervisor in the engine drawing room.

ALFRED BENEDETTI

After training at Franklin Institute in Boston, he had entered the yard's apprentice program and stayed, except for five years. During World War I, he moved to Bridgeport, Conn., to work on submarines--because he could earn $25 a week there, compared to $15 in Quincy--before returning to the shipyard and the City of Presidents.

When he had to retire from the shipyard at age 68, he worked another 10 years for other companies.

In recent years, Benedetti has become a fixture at the city's annual Senior Olympics, where he is a champion bocce player and also competes in the basketball toss, bowling, javelin and horseshoe competitions.

200 Shriners To March In Christmas Parade

Some 200 members of the Shriners Marching Units will participate, for the second consecutive year, in the annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday.

The Shriners' internationally-known Philanthropic Organization is again coming to Quincy as part of the 125th anniversary celebration of the founding of the organization.

The Shriners also are celebrating the 75th anniversary of the construction of the first of its 20 hospitals located throughout the world. The hospitals service around 162,000 active patients.

Children of all ages, races and creeds receive free care and treatment at the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield and the Boston Burns Institute.

The Shriners Marching Units will be led Sunday by Grand Master of Aleppo Temple Arthur Johnson of Hingham and Richard Shaw of Lexington.

Marchers will be representing a number of special contingents. Leading the units will be members mounted on Palomino horses. Aleppo Clowns also will perform.

Following the parade, the Shriners will gather at the Quincy Masonic Temple on Hancock St. for a collation.

Santa Arrives By Parachute Saturday

Santa Claus will "drop" into Quincy for the holiday season Saturday at 12:30 p.m. when he parachutes from a plane and lands at Faxon Field behind the Quincy Center for Technical Education.

Costumed characters will be present to give candy canes to children at noon. After the landing, Santa will be transported by fire engine to downtown Quincy Center.

Santa Mail Box At City Hall Plaza

A "Santa Mail Box" for children to write letters to Santa will be placed in City Hall Plaza-Constitution Common this Friday.

Children can write letters to Santa and place them in the boxes. The letters will be mailed to Santa's North Pole address.

Christmas Festival Info Phone Line

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee has a public information telephone line listing the times and places for its various scheduled events.

For more information, call 376-1392.

Part Of $73.1 Million, 12-Year Capital Plan For City Schools

New Quincy High School Recommended By Mayor's Task Force

Construction of a new Quincy High School was among the recommendations presented to the City Council Monday by the Mayor's School Building Needs Task Force.

The new Quincy High recommendation was included in a 12-year, $73.1 million Quincy public schools capital plan outlined at Monday's council meeting.

One location under consideration for a new Quincy High is a 16-acre site of undeveloped land adjacent to Faxon Park which could be taken by eminent domain, the task force report stated.

"A site of this size would provide ample opportunity for a 175,000 sq. ft. fully equipped high school with parking and other amenities," the report stated.

The task force also recommended the "complete renovation" of the existing Quincy High School and relocating Central Middle School there.

Central Principal Louis DiMartinis told the Sun Monday he supports that proposal.

Task Force Recommendations

- Renovate the old Point/Webster School for conversion to the new Quincy Point Middle School.
- Renovate the existing Quincy High School for conversion to a new Central Middle School.
- Construct a new Quincy High School. (The Task Force also recommended that the Quincy School Committee make a further recommendation regarding the incorporation of the technical programs at Quincy High School and discontinuing the use of the Center for Technical Education building.
- Renovate the Sterling Middle School.
- Rehabilitate and repair nine elementary schools.
- Rehabilitate and repair North Quincy High School.
- Replace windows at Broad Meadows and Atlantic Middle Schools.
- Increase funding levels for annual school repair and maintenance.
- Reorganize building maintenance responsibilities to provide improved maintenance for the long term care of buildings.

Elementary School Capital Plan Summary

Total Need: $7,190,000 over 9 Years ($789,889 per year)

Year 1: Moisture and Electrical improvements at Atherton Hough and Montclair.

Year 2: Moisture and Electrical Improvements at Squantum, Snug Harbor and Wollaston.

Year 3: Mechanical Improvements at Atherton Hough, Montclair and Merrymount as well as Asbestos Removal at Merrymount.

Year 4: Mechanical Improvements at Squantum and Snug Harbor; Asbestos removal at Snug Harbor; and Electrical Improvements at Bernazzani and Parker.

Year 5: Mechanical and Exterior Work at Wollaston, Fire Alarm upgrade.

Year 6: Moisture Protection and Exterior Work at Lincoln Hancock and Merrymount.

Year 7: Mechanical and Electrical Work at Lincoln-Hancock, Merrymount; Asbestos Removal.

Year 8: Exterior Work at Snug Harbor; Exterior Work and Moisture Protection at Bernazzani.

Year 9: Mechanical Work at Bernazzani and Parker; Asbestos Removal and Door & Window System Width Upgrade.

Middle School Capital Plan Summary

1.	Quincy Point Middle School Conversion/Renovation	$7,000,000
2.	Central Middle School Conversion/Renovation QHS	$8,000,000
3.	Sterling Middle School Complete Rehabilitation	$5,000,000
4.	Broad Meadows Middle School Window Replacement and Moisture Protection	$1,000,000
5.	Atlantic Middle School Window Replacement/Moisture	$1,000,000
	TOTAL	$22,000,000

High School Capital Plan Summary

1.	Quincy High School New Construction/Land Acquisition	$42,000,000
2.	North Quincy High School Repair and Rehabilitation	$2,000,000
	TOTAL	$44,000,000

Phelan Named City's New Data Processing Director

Mayor James Sheets has appointed former Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. as the city's new director of data processing.

Phelan, 40, will fill the vacancy created by the retirement that will be created by the retirement of Robert Brennan, the current director, on Feb. 1.

Phelan, a lifelong resident of Quincy, is presently employed as director of computer operations for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department. He has over 15 years of computer and data processing experience, having worked in the private sector as director of management information systems and data processing supervisor for Burke Distributing Company in Avon.

CHARLES PHELAN

Phelan was the Ward 5 councillor from 1988 to 1996 and served as City Council president from 1992 to 1994 as well as chairman of the council's Data Processing Committee. He and his wife Michelle and their two children live in Wollaston.

Sheets said bringing Phelan in as the director is "an excellent appointment" for the city and that the former councillor is perfect for the $70,742-a-year position.

WHAT ABOUT EARWAX?

This isn't a topic that comes up too often over drinks and dinner, but what is the purpose of earwax, and what should you do if you have too much of it? For starters, some earwax is a healthy sign. It can help protect the inner ear and keep skin well lubricated. Because it is acidic in nature, earwax also may help protect against bacterial infections. For some reason, though, earwax production will occasionally go into overdrive. When that happens, the buildup can interfere with hearing. Individuals should never use cotton swabs or other foreign objects to clear out the wax, as this could damage the ear and/or shove wax deeper into the canal.

P.S. To avoid infection, don't attempt to clean your ears if you've ever had a ruptured eardrum or inner ear surgery.

If you are someone who deals with this condition and you want the right advice, see your physician for how you can make sure your comfort and health are properly attended to. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Bellotti Seat Could Draw A Crowd

Now that the city election is history, the big local political question is who's running--and who's not running--for the First Norfolk District state representative seat next year?

That's the one Michael Bellotti is vacating in his quest for the Norfolk County sheriff's badge.

Depending on who's in and who's out of the race, it could be a political free-for-all. A real scramble.

Right now there's only one official candidate: former Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, who is already off and running.

CHRETIEN

But there is a growing list of potential candidates for the Democratic nomination that could create one of the most crowded fields for any office in recent years.

Among them are three ward councillors--Patrick McDermott (3), Michael D'Amico (4) and Bruce Ayers (6). All three of whom came through the city election in good shape for a run at the Bellotti seat.

McDERMOTT

D'AMICO

AYERS

Will they get in?

At the moment, Ayers and McDermott seem more likely than D'Amico.

"People in the district are encouraging me to run and say they will support me," says Ayers. "I am giving it serious consideration and will make a decision around the holidays."

"I'm still in at this point," says McDermott. "I haven't made a real decision yet but probably will around Christmas or the new year.

"There are a lot of folks who have already committed their support to me."

McDermott, who is now a full-time student at Suffolk Law School, says one factor in his final decision will be his course schedule for next semester.

"I think it is going to be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and that would give me time to campaign," he says.

He notes he was able to successfully campaign for re-election to the city council this year while going to school.

D'Amico might pass this one up--for something bigger later on.

"At the moment," he says, "I am leaning against running. It's a critical time in the ward for the ward councillor to be campaigning for another office."

He points to the proposed hotel at Crown Colony, the traffic already in the area, and the planned Quarry Hills golf course and recreational facility.

"There's a lot going on in the ward," he says. "I have to think about all of that. I will make a final decision in a couple of weeks."

What about election night speculation he might challenge state Senator Michael Morrissey?

"Don't know how that got started," he says. "But you never know."

Ayers would seem to have the numbers advantage if he runs. Of the 12 Quincy precincts in the First Norfolk District, five of them are in his ward.

Three of McDermott's Ward 3 precincts (3,4,5) and two of D'Amico's Ward 4 precincts (1,3) are in the district. Two of the Ward 5 precincts (2,5) where no candidate has yet stepped forward are also in the district along with two in Randolph.

Other names are being mentioned as possible candidates.

On the Democratic side: Jo-Ann Bragg who topped the School Committee field this year. Tracy Wilson, who finished an impressive runner-up in the school committee race in her first try. Linda Tracy, who challenged McDermott for the council, says she's going to run.

Also being mentioned are Joseph Murphy, aide to Rep. Ron Mariano and Sandy Sullivan of Squantum, a teacher at Sacred Heart School and coordinator of the Quincy Police DARE program.

Republican names being mentioned are School Committeewoman Christine Cedrone and Brain Glennon, city conservation officer.

None of them can wait too long to make that final decision.

Chretien, who lost the nomination to Bellotti by a scant 94 votes in 1992, already has staked out a campaign headstart.

JOANI EMMANOUIL, wife of Sotirios Emmanouil, the Greek shipbuilder trying to get the Quincy Shipyard back in business, obviously has confidence that her husband will do it.

She took a tour of downtown Quincy the other day with Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, to get acquainted with the area.

And, made an appointment to get her hair done at the Embellish salon.

CITY COUNCIL President Peter Kolson and Councillor Bruce Ayers have another luncheon bet on this year's Quincy-North Quincy football game. Kolson played for Quincy in the 1960s and Ayers for North in the 1970s.

KOLSON

Loser has to take the winner to a restaurant of his choice in the other's ward. Kolson has won three in a row and last year got to dine on lobster at Burke's Seafood Restaurant in North Quincy.

Not only did Ayers have to pick up the tab, he also had to wear the blue and white jersey of Quincy High while Kolson munched away.

"This year," said Ayers, "Peter's going to pay and wear a Red Raiders' jersey."

"No way," says Kolson. "Bruce will spring again and with my appetite he better bring his checkbook or credit cards. I'll bring the blue jersey. I think he's beginning to look good in blue."

MILESTONE: Personal congratulations to good friend, Ed Spargo, who will celebrate his 90th birthday Thursday.

SPARGO

"See, Dad, they've declared it a national holiday (Thanksgiving)," his daughter and pal, Nancy, kids him.

Old newspaper pro Ed was patient and kind teaching me how to lay out a newspaper page when I first started at the Ledger many moons ago.

Ed, who has conducted a one-man health crusade for many years, obviously practices what he preaches. Happy young 90th, kid.

George Orwell, author of 1984 and other works was really named Eric Blair.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS is a 1920's real photo postcard view of the Pfafman Oval now known as Veterans Memorial Field. This view is from the yard of the old Eastern Mass car barn. The chimney of the MDC pumping station in Merrymount Park is in the right distance. During the thirties, the WPA built the present brick wall around the field along with the concrete spectator stands. In 1938, the upgraded facility was dedicated as Quincy Memorial Stadium. It is still known as the 'Stadium' although in 1951, city officials changed the name to honor Quincy's Veterans. The game being played in this picture was probably Quincy High since North had not yet opened. Charles M. Johnson of Wollaston published this postcard.

Haircut Prices Boosted To $1.25

Nov. 20 - 26
1954
43 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

The price of haircuts in Quincy and the South Shore was boosted this week by 25 percent, bringing the price up to $1.25.

The vote by the Quincy chapter of Master Barber Association and Local 390 of the Journeymen Barbers Union, affected 95 barbershops in the city.

Joseph Campobasso, secretary-treasurer of the association, said the increase was needed to "give barbers a working wage in view of the increased operation expenses."

LICENSE GRANTED FOR WOLLASTON MOTEL

After three months consideration, health commissioner Dr. Brooks Ryder granted a license to Winfield Strout to build a 24-unit motel on Hancock St., opposite the stadium.

The issuance of the license was the subject of extensive debate in the city, with opposition from the city council and a community campaign led by Rt. Rev. Walter Leach, pastor of St. Ann's. One thousand signatures were collected in opposition by Councillor Alfred Helfrich.

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce was among the proponents.

The motel still needed a permit from the building department.

BOARD CONSIDERS RE-ZONING PROPOSALS

The Planning Board considered two major re-zoning proposals, one to block a supermarket planned for North Quincy and the other to change a large parcel in Quincy Point/South Quincy from industrial to residential use.

Five hundred people were in support of Councillor Frank MacDonald's effort to re-zone the Pope property on the corner of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive, to stop plans for the construction of a supermarket there.

In Quincy Point, residents of the new development on Apex St. wanted the adjacent 120 acres (in Quincy Point and South Quincy) changed from industrial to residential.

Concerned About Shipyard

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Mayor James Sheets keeps saying everything is okey-dokey concerning Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil's plan to renovate the Fore River shipyard but things are looking more like hocus-pocus to me.

I'm still trying to figure out this whole issue. Let's see: Emmanouil wants to build six tankers, but he's looking for the finances to do it. A Greek shipping company wants Emmanouil to build them six tankers, but they're also looking for the finances to do it. Everybody seems to be looking for tankers, but, apparently, nobody's got the money. They all seem to be dialing 911 for Santa Claus to come to the rescue.

I think Lawrence Weintraub, assistant inspector general at the U.S. Department of Transportation is right: "The government should scratch their heads and ask questions before handing out the money."

What happens if the money's found and the shipyard plan still went belly-up? Who pays, we the taxpayers? U.S. Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) is also rightly concerned that taxpayer money could be unduly at risk.

Over the years there have been many photo-ops at the shipyard as pols rush to get their pictures taken holding their shovels. Sheets says he's looking forward to beginning renovations at the shipyard but the whole idea is starting to look like Titanic time at the shipyard. Is it taking on water and going down fast as the political band plays on?

A former Boston city councillor and friend of mine told me it would be easier and cheaper to just hand out paychecks to 1,000 unemployed shipyard workers and forget about the tankers. Who needs to actually build ships when there's apparently all this money floating out there, huh?

Granite Ball Belongs In Shea Memorial Park

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I agree 100 percent with the article in Readers Forum; the granite ball belongs in Shea Memorial Park.

My father was a stone cutter. He was one of many stone cutters to uphold the tradition of Quincy's chief industry for over a century.

Due to the Granite Workers Memorial Committee and the many volunteers, the Shea Memorial Park is the best park in the City of Quincy. It contains memorial bricks, plaques, benches, a 7-foot statue of a granite worker and many flowers, bushes and trees. A lot of hard work and donations keep it looking well.

All that is needed now is the granite ball that was a gift to the City of Quincy by the granite workers. The ball is now located at the rotary at the base of the Fore River Bridge.

Because the granite ball is a symbol of our heritage and a memorial to the granite workers of Quincy, the granite ball belongs in Shea Memorial Park.

What Happened To The $700,000?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

At the moment (Nov. 14, 1997), the long-awaited revival of the former Fore River shipyard is still in doubt.

Some weeks ago, an auction of the various tools and other equipment of the former shipyard was auctioned off to buyers all over America. Reportedly, over $700,000 was obtained in this sale.

What happened to the $700,000?

Tried & True Turkey Stuffing

It's hard to believe Thanksgiving Day is almost here. Here are a couple of tried and true stuffing recipes (in lieu of Stove Top) that I have used for years. One has giblets and ground meat, the other is plain bread stuffing.

Giblet Stuffing
giblets and livers from turkey (cut up in small pieces)
6 slices bread (soaked)
1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs
2 cups stuffing mix (soaked)
2 stalks chopped celery
1 medium chopped onion
1 egg
1 cup water
salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup white wine about 4 ounces of ground beef
2 tablespoons oil

In hot oil, saute the celery and onion and add the giblet and ground meat (pork or beef) and cook until blended. Add the wine, water the stuffing mix, the soaked bread. and the egg. Cook covered until blended. Add more water if too dry and more breadcrumb if watery. The recipe for the bread stuffing is the same, however, other things can be added in place of the meats including chopped mushrooms..

Stuffing should be completely cooled before placing it in the turkey just before roasting.

I roast the turkey at 350 degrees, 20 minutes to the pound if stuffed.

FOOT SOAKS: GIVE THEM A WHIRL!

What's a classic picture of relief? Relaxing in a comfy chair, a soothing cup of tea or warm milk in hand, feet plunger into a tub of water. The fact is, foot soaks can be beneficial to tired feet, as well as an important part of therapy for painful conditions such as arthritis. Warm whirlpool baths can gently massage sore joints and muscles, even speed healing. There are several precautions that must be observed, however. The water should be between 93 to 102 degrees (lower if the whole body is submerged), and gentle foot exercise should be done during the soak to prevent pooling of blood and swelling. Also, take care that circulation isn't cut off by tightly rolled-up pant legs or the edge of the tub.

P.S. A solution of one tablespoon of salt in a quart of lukewarm water makes a soothing foot soak. Check with your podiatrist.

While a foot soak can make your feet more comfortable, if you are suffering from any kind of foot problem call a podiatrist. Your podiatrist, a specialist in foot care, can best determine the most effective course of action for you. Make an appointment soon with us at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300). Our offices accept most health insurance, and we are members of many HMOs and PPOs.

Bell Atlantic Awards $20,000 Grant To QHS, Technical Education Center

A $20,000 grant has been awarded to Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education as part of the Bell Atlantic Foundation Excellence in Education program.

Bell Atlantic Regional Director of Public Affairs Bob Noble made the presentation at a recent School Committee meeting.

The $20,000 will enable expanded participation in Project FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) and the creation of an introductory engineering course at the high school.

During the past two years, Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education have collaborated with Bell Atlantic engineers to create a robot that has successfully competed in Project FIRST. The project has proved professionally enriching to the teachers involved and has spurred student interest in engineering as a career, said Angela Avery, director of occupational education at the high school.

This positive reaction prompted an inter--disciplinary team to recommend the creation of a pilot program in which a physics teacher, an electromechanical teacher and the computer-assisted faculty will team-teach an Introduction to Engineering course.

The Quincy grant and others were recently announced by Ray Smith, Bell Atlantic's Chairman and CEO.

"Helping improve the quality of education in the communities we serve is vitally important to Bell Atlantic," said Smith. "We must remember that technology alone won't do the job of improving our nation's schools. It also takes teacher and student dedication and training, as well as parental and community involvement. These grants will go a long way in making this happen."

The Bell Atlantic Foundation administers all grants on behalf of Bell Atlantic Corporation. The foundation's philanthropic emphasis is on providing safe havens for youth and grants for technology, education, arts and human services.

QUINCY POLICE DEPARTMENT members were promoted during a swearing-in ceremony Monday at City Hall. From left are Police Chief Thomas Frane, Joseph Molloy, who was promoted to lieutenant; Kevin Williams, promoted to sergeant; Mayor James Sheets and City Clerk Joseph Shea who administered the oath. Missing is Robert Crowley who was promoted to captain. The promotions were the result of Frane being named chief by Sheets in August.

3 Police Promotions, 5 Recruits Sworn-In

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Three members of the Quincy Police Department were promoted this week as a result of the recent appointment of new Police Chief Thomas Frane while five new police officers also were sworn-in.

Mayor James Sheets said prior to a ceremony held Monday in City Hall that the three promotions are a direct result of the appointment of Frane, who was promoted by the mayor from the rank of captain in August to succeed retired Chief Francis Mullen.

Those promoted include:

•Robert Crowley, 50, of Quincy, a department member since 1972, promoted from lieutenant to captain.

•Joseph Molloy, 49, of Pembroke, a member since 1971, promoted from sergeant to lieutenant.

•Kevin Williams, 48, of Braintree, a member since 1974, promoted from officer to sergeant.

Four new recruits, all from Quincy, were sworn-in Monday. They are Robert Gillan, 33; Thomas Cleary, 31; Patrick Faherty, 24 and David Levine, 28.

A fifth officer, Christine Kraunelis of Quincy, was sworn-in Tuesday because she was unable to attend Monday's ceremony.

A police department spokeswoman said with the promotions and new recruits, the department now has 154 patrol officers, 26 sergeants, 15 lieutenants and five captains in addition to the chief. Kraunelis is the seventh woman to join the force, the spokeswoman added.

Sheets said the addition of the new recruits has nothing to do with the city's community policing program which currently operates in Germantown and is expected to be expanded into Quincy Point and West Quincy in the near future.

Quincy College Participates In Annual Trustees Convention

Quincy College recently participated in the Annual Convention of the Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT), which was held this year in Dallas, Texas.

Representing the school were Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, college president and Board of Governors members John Farmer and Rev. Michael Wayne Walker.

At the convention, community college governing board members learned creative, innovative solutions and strategies for the challenge facing their colleges and communities.

The event is a major trustee development activity offered by ACCT. Attending the convention were over 1,500 community college governing board members and administrators from the United States, Canada, and around the world.

Within the theme "The Challenge of Board Leadership: Effective Communications," speakers focused on transforming higher education in the 21st century, reshaping the bell curve of class in America, learning communities and technology, and the outcomes of citizen governance.

The convention program offered a one-day, pre-convention workshop, five general sessions, eight academies, 35 concurrent sessions, four interactive discussions, and over 28 roundtable discussions.

The Dallas County Community College District and Texas' public community colleges provided planning, promotion, hospitality and on-site assistance.

The purpose of the ACCT is to strengthen the capacity of community, technical, and junior colleges to realize their missions on behalf of their communities through the development of effective lay governing board leadership at the local, state and national levels.

REAL ESTATE

Mass. Housing Market Posts Sales, Price Gains

Declining mortgage rates, a tight rental housing market, and steady income and job growth across the state this summer all sparked a sharp increase in single-family home sales in Massachusetts in the third quarter of 1997, according to data released recently by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

Average selling prices of detached single-family homes and condos also rose steadily in the past year, MAR's report noted, an indication housing demand continued to outpace supply, and that trade-up activity, or the sale of larger homes to current homeowners, is especially strong right now.

The MAR data specifically shows detached single-family home sales improved 7.8 percent during the three months from July to September 1997 versus the same quarter a year ago, rising from 12,629 units closed in 1996 to 13,616 this year, while condominium sales rose 13.4 percent in the third quarter of 1997 versus the same period last year, climbing from 2,591 units closed in the third quarter quarter of 1996 to 2,939 in the same period this year. This marks the ninth consecutive quarter in which residential real estate sales have increased in Massachusetts over the comparable three-month period one year earlier.

"We're in the midst of a remarkable run of sustained sales growth in the single-family housing market," said MAR President Richard Dils. "Similar to the confidence being shown in the stock market these days, consumers have demonstrated an equally strong desire to enter the housing market in recent months."

In fact, the 13,616 detached single-family homes sold fromJuly to September 1997 is the most third quarter sales for such property since 1987, he said.

Regionally, during the third quarter of 1997, detached single-family homes exceeded year-ago levels in every area of the state except the South Shore, where sales declined 6.7 percent versus the third quarter last year. The most significant sales gains from July to September of this year occurred on Cape Cod and the Islands (+13.6 percent), the Central (+11.7), Northeast (+9.1), and greater Boston (+9.3) regions, where the rate of sales growth surpassed the statewide sales increase.

Similarly, in the condo market, sales improved in every region except the West, which experienced a 8.5 percent decrease in activity from the third quarter of 1996. Again, the Cape and Islands, Central, Northeast and greater Boston the greatest sales growth, with sales up 13 to 17 percent over the third quarter last year.

Aside from lower mortgage rates, which fell to a 1997 third quarter average of 7.62 for a 30-year fixed-rate loan in Massachusetts, other factors drawing home buyers into the market include solid gains in the state's per capita income levels over the past year, unusually low apartment vacancy rates, especially in the greater Boston region, and a tight labor pool which has attracted new residents to the state to support the local growing economy.

By month, sales of detached homes rose 4.5 percent in July, 0.4 in August, and 22.6 in September versus the same months in 1996, while condo sales improved 9 percent in July, 2.6 in August and 32.7 in September.

Price data from the MAR report reflects this trend of greater sales activity in middle and upper-end housing units, as well as modest appreciation throughout the single-family market. The statewide average selling price for detached single-family homes increased 4.9 percent during the third quarter of 1997, rising from an average of $196,694 in the third quarter a year ago to $206,258 in the same period this year. Meanwhile, the average price of a condominium sold in the Bay State in the third quarter of 1997 was $131,355, a gain of 8.7 percent over the 1996 third quarter average of $120,894.

Regionally, in the detached home market, Cape Cod and the Islands, the Central region, Northeast, South Shore and West regions all reported third quarter price gains equal to or greater than the statewide appreciation rate of 5 percent. In the condo market, price increases of 5 to 10 percent were observed in the Central, greater Boston and Northeast regions between the third quarter of 1996 and the same period this year, while the Cape and Islands saw at 21.2 percent gain in average price.

Sales and price data from the MAR repot reflects transactions occurring through Realtor-affilliated multiple listing services in the Commonwealth, and account for about 50 percent of all real estate sales in Massachusetts.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

Coupon Drawings On Saturday

$500 In Prizes At Wollaston Holiday Promotion

More than $500 in prizes will be awarded at the 12th annual Afternoon in Wollaston holiday promotion on Saturday.

A total of 19 Wollaston Business Association members have included coupons on Page 14 of this week's Quincy Sun which can be dropped at the appropriate businesses Saturday. A drawing for the winner will be held at each store at the end of the event.

Afternoon in Wollaston will feature special offers from Wollaston businesses designed to help shoppers save a few dollars for the holidays. What better way to kick off the season?

Event Co-Chairperson Lynne Houghton of Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker said participating merchants will begin their special offers as soon as they open in the morning.

"Everyone is welcome to take a through stroll and take a peek at some of the new restaurants and stores we have in the area," she said. "They'll also enjoy all of the decorations."

Houghton said the decorations include new snowman banners, Christmas wreaths and new lighting. There are also 12 new wrought iron barrels and 12 new wrought iron benches, funded primarily by a $15,000 donation from Shaw's Supermarkets although the Wollaston Business Association also helped pay for the purchase.

Afternoon in Wollaston will end at 6 p.m. when participating businesses draw the prizes from the coupons.

The participating merchants and their prizes are:

Beale St. Fish Market, 35 Beale St., $15 gift certificate.

Blackwood Pharmacy, 663 Hancock St., $25 gift certificate.

Bridgewater Credit Union, 34 Chapman St., a turkey.

Brigham's Ice Cream, 13 Beale St., free ice cream cake ($16.95 value), one-pound box of assorted chocolates, and dinner and dessert for two (three winners).

Century 21 Annex, 49 Beale St., special holiday surprise.

Coffee Break Cafe, 12 Old Colony Ave., assorted gift basket ($50 value).

Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach St., $50 Savings Bond.

The Egg & I, 853 Hancock St., two $10 gift certificates (two winners).

Granite Group Realtors, 7 Beale St., $25 gift certificate to Blockbuster Video.

Hair Artist Salon, 29A Beale St., $5 off any service.

Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker, 645 Hancock St., $25 gift certificate to Well's Grille.

Ink Spot, 673 Hancock St., $5 off any printing over $25.

Mantis Flowers and Plants, 645 Hancock St., $15 gift certificate.

Newcomb Farms, 31 Beale St., fresh roast turkey dinner for two.

Paul's Barber Shop, 10 Beale St., two free haircuts.

Sullivan's Corner, 716 Hancock St., $25 gift certificate.

U Rent It Tool, 68 Beale St., half-price off any rental.

Woll-Nut Shop, 17 1/2 Beale St., 2 lb. box of chocolates and nuts ($20 value).

Also, the Christian Science Reading Room, 18 Beale St., will be distributing a free copy of The Christian Science Monitor to anyone bringing a coupon to the store.

Harbor Express Running Extra Boat For Holiday Travelers

Harbor Express is running an extra boat out of Logan Airport yesterday (Tuesday) and today for holiday travelers.

The vessel departs Logan at 11 p.m. and arrives in Quincy at 11:20 p.m.

Harbor Express operates from the Fore River bridge to Logan Airport and Boston's Marriott Long Wharf. Two new high-speed catamarans operate up to 24 round trips per day, seven days a week with ample parking. Total trip time to the airport is 25 minutes.

At Logan, there are free shuttle buses to take passengers to their terminal. Upon arrival at the Long Wharf Marriott, passengers can either board the MBTA blue line or walk to their destination.

For more information on Harbor Express, call 376-8417.

Five Quincy Teachers Receive B.C. High Award

As has been the case in past years, the parade theme winner also will march in the event. This year's theme winner is Ann Lovaas of Scituate, who suggested "The Sights and Sounds of Christmas."

The color guard competition will feature Quincy Police, Randolph Police, 2nd Marine Division Veterans Color Guard, Cambridge Police, Quincy Fire Department, Marine Corps League Caddy Detachment, George F. Bryan Post, Department of Mass. VFW Ladies State Color Guard, Shriners Legion of Honor Color Guard with van, Morrisette Post, Silver Dolphin Color Guard from Groton, Conn.; Rockland Police, Mass. Court Officers Honor Guard, American Legion Post State Commander, and Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

Comfort stations will be located at Quincy District Court. Portable units will be located at Shaw's parking lot and North Quincy High School.

The parade is expected to last about two-and-a-half hours. Following the parade, band and award floats will be presented at an awards ceremony in the North Quincy High School auditorium at 3:30 p.m. Capacity is 500 people.

Christmas Lights To Be Turned On Friday

The holiday season will officially begin in Quincy Friday when the Christmas lights are turned on at Constitution Common in front of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Costumed characters will begin handing out candy canes at 6:30 p.m. From 7:05 to 7:25 p.m., there will be a Christmas Program for children and entertainment by Gary the Silent Clown. A Christmas music presentation provided by the Sterling Middle School Choral Group under the direction of teacher Dan Caruso will be held from 7:45 to 7:55 p.m.

Following the introduction of local officials and winners of the elementary school Christmas Parade Poster Contest, the lights will be turned on at 8 p.m.

Santa Claus will appear briefly from 7:55 to 8 p.m.

Winning posters will be displayed in windows at The Quincy Sun and other downtown Quincy Center locations.

In the event of inclement weather, the ceremony will take place inside the Presidents Place Galleria, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Posters that won the first, second and third prizes in both age categories will be displayed in the window of The Quincy Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center, beginning Friday.

'Toys For Tots' To Be Collected At Parade

U.S. Marines will be in the line of march of the 46th edition of the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee's annual Christmas Parade Sunday to collect "Toys for Tots."

Master Sgt. Ken MacWilliams, U.S.M.C.R. (Ret.), Boston coordinator of the Toys for Tots Program, said a Marine unit will collect new, unwrapped non-violent toys along the parade route.

The parade will kick off at 12:30 p.m. at the intersection of Elm and School Sts. in the downtown business district and proceed along Hancock St. to North Quincy High School.

A color guard of 2nd Division Marines will precede the Marine passenger and collection van. The van will display appropriate Toys for Tots signage.

"The U.S. Marine Corps is observing the 50th anniversary of the Toy for Tots community service program and new toys are greatly needed," said MacWilliams.

Nativity Pageant Dec. 14 At United First Parish

The public is invited to attend a Nativity Pageant Sunday, Dec. 14 at 6:30 p.m. at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The pageant will be conducted by Rev. Jack O'Brien of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and Rev. Sheldon Bennett of United First Parish Church.

First Night Buttons To Be Sold At Parade

First Night Quincy will be selling admission buttons at the annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday for $5, announces First Night Chairman Michael Cheney.

After Sunday, buttons will be available for $7 at Stop & Shop, Shaw's, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Harbor Express in Quincy Point, and City Hall. They will also be available at the event for $10.

First Night Quincy 1998 will include an international food festival, two laser light shows, a Festival of Lights parade, fireworks, 18 ice sculpture, entertainment at 21 Quincy Center locations, and special event rides.

As in past years, there also will be hat making, mask making, and face painting as well as a new artist, chain saw artist Ken Dudley. A complete program will be available at the parade.

Beantown Trolley has been hired to transport First Night revelers from location to location. A new site has been added at South Shore Buick, 50 Adams St.

Admission to all events is free to anyone with a First Night button.

Cheney said the event will be enjoyable whether or not the weather is clear.

"Even if the weather is poor on New Year's Eve, we still have 21 indoor locations that will be toasty-warm and the entertainment promises to be hot," he said.

Cheney said volunteers are still needed for the sixth annual First Night event. To volunteer, call Barbara Cheney at 472-9008.

To enter a float in the Festival of Lights contest, pick up an application at Lappen Discount Auto Supply on Southern Artery. First, second and third prizes of $500, $250 and $100 will be awarded, and all participants will receive a certificate. For more information, call Bill Morrill at 773-1439.

For more information on First Night, call Cheney at 376-1071.

Sheets To Be Honored By Step One Program

Mayor James Sheets will receive a plaque from eight children enrolled in Step One Early Intervention and representatives from the Step One Parent Advisory Committee on Tuesday, Dec. 2 at 1:15 p.m. in the mayor's office at City Hall.

The plaque is being presented to Sheets for his dedication and contributions to Step One Early Intervention over the last few years.

Step One is a program of South Shore Mental Health that helps parents recognize and understand their child's particular developmental needs. Eligible children are 3 and younger and have various developmental problems. The program serves families in Quincy, Randolph, and Milton.

Quincy Veterans Services Toys For Tots Drop Off Point

Quincy Veterans Services will serve as a drop off point for those wishing to donate toys to the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program.

Those who need to have the toys picked up should call Henry P. Bradley, director of Quincy Veterans Services at 376-1191 to make arrangements. The Toys for Tots program accepts only new toys and asks that the toys not be wrapped.

With the help of many, toys were provided throughout the Commonwealth for over 70,000 children last year.

Council On Aging Receives State Award

The Quincy Council on Aging has received the 1997 ROSE Award from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs (EOEA), announces Secretary of Elder Affairs Franklin Olivierre.

The award is the highest honor the EOEA can bestow on the 347 Councils on Aging in Massachusetts. It was awarded in the category of Non-Traditional Use of Resources for the council's proposal to convert Naval housing to elder housing at Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace, expanding its transportation program and building a senior center on the same site.

QUINCY COUNCIL ON AGING recently received the 1997 ROSE (Resources Organized to Serve Elders) Award from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs (EOEA). From left are EOEA Program Director Emmett Schmarsow and Council on Aging board members Al Farquhar and Maida Moakley, Chairman John Noonan, Director Brian Buckley, Secretary Mary Kay Bamford and board member Gerard Weidmann.

The ROSE (Resources Organized to Serve Elders) Award was presented by Emmett Schmarsow of Elder Affairs to Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley at the Massachusetts Council on Aging (MCOA) and Senior Center Directors Annual Meeting at the Sea Crest Hotel in Falmouth.

Also presented at the MCOA luncheon were Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan, Secretary Mary Kay Bamford, board members Maida Moakley, Gerard Weidmann, and Al Farquhar; transportation manager Thomas Clasby and staff member Don Conboy.

The Council on Aging, Mayor James Sheets and his staff, Planning Director Richard Meade and the Planning Department presented its proposal, after numerous community hearings and City Council approval, to the Department of the Navy. The Navy eventually approved Quincy's recommended uses of the 27 acres and a lease between the Navy and city was signed June 30.

Phelan Named City's New Data Processing Director

(Cont'd from Page 3)

Council, Chuck Phelan brings a great expertise and awareness to the city's Data Processing Department."

Phelan said he is eager to begin his new position.

"I'm really looking forward to working for the city," he said. "I think I bring a lot to the table. The city's system is good, but it needs some upgrades. I look forward to working with the mayor's office on that."

Brennan, 67, the city's present and first director of data processing, has served in that position since the department orignally was formed as part of the School Department in 1969 (it became a citywide department in 1982). Under his direction, the department has grown to handle the day-to-day processing needs of the city as well as its computer and telephone operations.

Since the department was formed, Brennan has networked the city's numerous offices, has modernized the city's phone system, and most recently directed the construction and implementation of the city's Enhanced 911 system. Presently, he is involved in networking and wiring the school system for access to the Internet.

"The pace at which computer and communication technology has advanced over the last 10 years has been astounding," said Sheets, "and the city has been very fortunate to have Bob Brennan at the helm of the Data Processing Department during that time. He has put together an outstanding staff of professionals and has ensured that Quincy keeps pace with the technology changes.

"Due to Bob Brennan's efforts, the City of Quincy has been able to streamline many of its governmental processes and is well-positioned to meet the technology challenges of the next century."

The mayor added that Brennan first told him about his retirement plans three months ago.

Sheets said to familiarize himself with the city's computer and data processing operations, Phelan with begin working with the Data Processing Department on Dec. 15.

"Given the complexity and number of projects with which the Data Processing Department is involved, having Chuck Phelan work with Bob Brennan throughout December and January should ease that transition," said Sheets.

Brennan could not be reached for comment at press time.

Sheriff Warns Of Phone Scam

Norfolk County Sheriff Jack Flood is issuing a warning to all residents of Norfolk County.

Phone calls are being made by people claiming to represent a Deputy Sheriff's Association and attempting to solicit funds by requesting residents to leave money at their door to be picked up.

Flood cautions that these calls have not been authorized and are in no way affiliated with his office.

Anyone who is contacted should call the Attorney General's Office at 727-2200, ext. 225.

RAINING CHAMPIONS

By checking the condition of their cars' wiper blades and replacing them when necessary, car owners can assure themselves of good visibility under rainy conditions. At the very least, wiper blades will dry out and crack over time. Their lives may be shortened even further due to contamination caused by road film or car wash chemical adhesion. The term "park set rubber" refers to wiper inserts that have become hardened after exposure to sunlight in a set position for a prolonged period. They will chatter and skip across the windshield. The clearest indication of the need for replacement is the insert that has partially torn away from is metal support and slaps the windshield with each wiping pass.

HINT: Rear-window wiper blades are very likely to wear out faster than front windshield wipers because they are subjected to additional road grit kicked up by the rear tires.

If your windows are smeared when it rains see your service technician. Driving with reduced visibility is just downright dangerous. Ask LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled and can do most everything to keep your car in safe conditions. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are your source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your routine tasks comfort you and make you feel secure this week. You are able to pounce on every detail and end the job with a flourish. Home life is favored over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a week of new beginnings for you, both at work and at home. Relationships are also taking a new, exciting turn. This weekend, you have extra initiative that is fortunately tempered by diplomacy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Concentration is a problem early in the week. However, as time goes on, you gain control and are able to accomplish much. Try not to allow unexpected events to throw you off course this weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're struck by some wanderlust and could be tempted to throw caution to the wind and take off. However, tend to tasks at hand instead. In romance, it's a time of commitment for singles.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Don't be too concerned when a social plan is changed. This ultimately works to your advantage as you get much done at work instead. Over the weekend, home-based activities bring good times.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Unexpected developments occur on the job this week. In love relationships, you have no doubt how you feel. Enjoy a special outing this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You are so caught up with work, you're neglecting a loved one. Don't let this preoccupation damage your relationship. Investment concerns come to the fore later in the week.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some make plans for a family reunion or outing. You are at your communicative best and should take full advantage of this. Success is achieved through your creativity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You plunge right in to tackle all those unfinished tasks. Much is accomplished and you feel satisfied with your progress. This weekend, pay close attention to domestic concerns.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) If you have to err, it's best to do so on the conservative side. Beware of making any radical changes in your strategies. Social life is heightened this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Uncertainty about travel plans clouds your week. At work you're all work and no play, but you make big strides in attaining your goals. A coworker is helpful.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Travel and business conducted from a distance is favored. Take advantage of this and get in some sightseeing as well. Important news is delivered by a bigwig.

Quincy Eyes Fourth Straight Win Over NQ

Chella: 'Win This For The Seniors'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

When Quincy High School battles North Quincy High School Thursday at 10 a.m. in the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown, the Presidents have an opportunity to do what neither school has done in 40 years.

A Presidents' victory over the Red Raiders would be their fourth in a row, something that hasn't been done since Quincy won five consecutive Thanksgiving games over North from 1954-58.

However, Quincy head coach Peter Chella is not concerned with the streak. That's not to say he doesn't want to beat the Red Raiders; he simply has other reasons in mind.

"I want to win this game for the seniors," said Chella, who is 2-0 against North on Thanksgiving. "It has nothing to do with any winning streak.

"We've had success against North recently, but my focus is on getting a victory for the seniors. They're a great group of kids. I only regret we weren't able to win a few more games this year."

When the Presidents take the field at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, they'll be seeking their first since Oct. 10, when they edged Plymouth South, 20-17. Since then, consecutive losses to Plymouth North, Falmouth, Silver Lake and Barnstable have put a damper on an otherwise enjoyable campaign.

QUINCY
SEASON RECORD (4-5)
Quincy 22, Bishop Stang 7
Quincy 33, Denn-Yarm. 6
Br.-Rayn. 35, Quincy 13
Quincy 27, Taunton 6
Quincy 20, Plymouth S. 17
Ply. North 20, Quincy 12
Falmouth 21, Quincy 13
Silver Lake 14, Quincy 0
Barnstable 28, Quincy 7

"The second half has been rough, but we've played hard every game," said Chella. "I'm disappointed somewhat, but I can't complain as hard as they've played. I wanted one more win because they deserve it."

Quincy's head coach cited overconfidence and tough competition as possible reasons for the team's recent downfall.

"We might have been a little too cocky against Plymouth North, and against Falmouth, we were in a position to win but didn't get it done. We lost to a strong Silver Lake team down there in the driving rain, and then ran into a Barnstable squad which just wore us down in the second half."

Despite the current four-game losing streak his team has endured, Chella knows the adrenaline will be flowing come kickoff time.

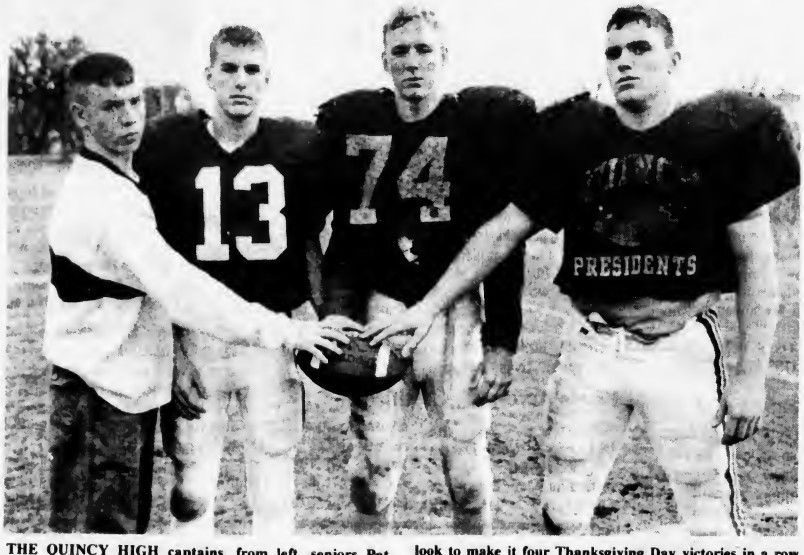
"The kids are focused and ready to go," he said. "It's a lot easier for them to get up for this game, because they know those guys. All they're thinking about is this game, not what's happened in the past."

Both teams enter the game with identical 4-5 records, and the similarities don't end there, said Chella.

"We're so evenly matched that we're like mirror images of each other," he said. "Their quarterback (Chris Bregoli) can move and throw the ball, so can ours (Kevin Moore). They have a good running back, so do we (Shaun Faherty). They have a strong fullback (Mike Powers), so do we (Steve Maze)."

On the defensive side of the ball, neither team has been consistent in containing opposing defense, and Chella expects more of the same Thursday.

"I'd say we both have some deficiencies on defense; I doubt it will be a defensive struggle," he said. "It could be an offensive show, something fun for the fans."



While the running duo of Faherty (nine TD's, 930 yards) and Maze (four TD's) have sparked Quincy's offense all season, Chella also has a lot of confidence in his quarterback and receivers.

"Faherty and Maze have had good years for us, but we can throw the ball well, too," he said. "Kevin's done a nice job for us in his first year. He's quietly thrown for about 900 yards and four TD's.

"He's been in the system long enough that he knows what he's doing. I like our receivers, too. They've all been here before and may be called upon to make a big play for us."

Though just in his third year at the helm, Chella is fully aware that anything can happen when these two teams meet--and usually does.

"It'll likely come down to who makes the plays and makes them at the right time," he said. "We've been able to do that towards the end of the last few games, and hopefully we'll do it again this year."

Raiders' Focus: Halt 3-Year Losing Skid

NQ Has Not Defeated Quincy Since 1993

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Stop the streak.

That's the battle cry for the North Quincy High School football team as it prepares for Thursday's annual Thanksgiving Day battle against Quincy High School (10 a.m., Veterans' Memorial Stadium).

A Quincy win over North would be its fourth in a row, a feat last accomplished by the Presidents when they won five straight in the 1950s. North has never won four consecutive Thanksgiving games, but would love to start a streak of its own.

"We've lost three in a row, and we're not about to lose four," said North Quincy head coach Ken McPhee. "The games have been close the last few years, but we've come out on the losing end all three times.

"It's about time we put a stop to this and celebrate a victory. We have 18 seniors who are good kids and have really come on as a group. They want to end their careers in a good way--with a win on Thanksgiving."

While their rivals from Quincy (4-5) have lost four in a row heading into Thursday's showdown, the Red Raiders (4-5) picked up three victories in their past five games and can finish the season at .500 with a triumph over the Presidents.

"We have had a better second half, but it doesn't matter what either team has done up to this point," said McPhee. "Last year, we were 7-2 and they were 3-6, but we lost to them.

"You have to play this game like it's the last one you'll ever play. The winner gets bragging rights in the city and we haven't had that for a while."

To emerge victorious, McPhee said the Red Raiders must eliminate their turnovers and outshine their opponent on special teams.

"We have to control the ball and protect it," said McPhee. "That's what has hurt us this year--turnovers. They can change a game around. Special teams is also important, because you want to have good field position and pin them in deep when they have the ball."

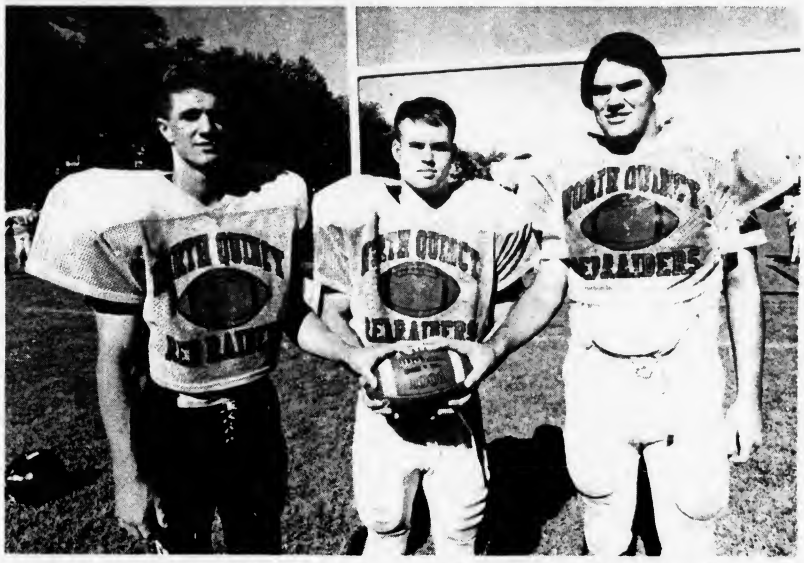
Returning kicks for the Red Raiders, who average about 28 yards on kickoff returns, will be senior Jay Turner and Kevin Shaw. All the kicking duties--kickoffs, punts, extra points and field goals--will be handled by senior co-captain Mike Powers.

Junior Chris Bregoli, who has thrown eight touchdown passes and run for another, will start his first Thanksgiving game.

"He's gotten a lot better as the season's gone on," he said. "He still makes a few mistakes here and there, but he'll be ready come kickoff. It's his first start, but that won't bother him. He's a tough kid who can handle the pressure."

North will utilize its top offensive weapons--tailback Turner (six TD's), fullback Powers (five TD's) and senior tight end Frank McNamara (five TD receptions)--along with reliable senior wide receiver Mark Stanton, in his first year on the squad.



"I know we'll get great efforts from Bregoli, Turner, Powers and McNamara, but the X factor is Stanton," said McPhee. "He hasn't dropped a pass all year and has made some fantastic catches."

Defensively, the key for the Red Raiders will be containing Quincy's explosive running game, namely senior tailback Shaun Faherty, who has compiled over 900 yards and nine touchdowns this season.

"He's our main focus; he is a dangerous back who can break a long one and be off to the races," said McPhee. "We need our defense to do the best job it can. They've come up with some big ones, but they've also had some tough games against good teams."

As always, McPhee believes the game will come down to which team is ready to play when the opening kickoff arrives.

"I thin we match up very well," he said. "It should be a very even game, a toss-up. Whichever team is ready to play, keeps their mistakes down and makes the big play will win. We'll be ready; there's no doubt about that."

PRESIDENTS' SENIOR TAILBACK Shaun Faherty is the leading scorer in the city, with nine touchdowns to his credit. Against North on Thanksgiving, Faherty (930 yards) will have the opportunity to break the 1,000-yard rushing mark.

MAKING HIS FIRST Thanksgiving Day start, Quincy senior quarterback Kevin Moore hopes to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, Mark Glynn, who sparked the Presidents to three straight wins over the Raiders.

Who Has The Advantage?

Picking a favorite in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game is always difficult, and this year is no exception, as both teams enter the showdown with 4-5 overall records.

At the halfway point, the Presidents were 4-1, the Red Raiders were 2-3. Since then, Quincy has lost four straight games while North sandwiched victories around two losses to get within one victory of .500.

Against common opponents, the Presidents and Red Raiders have had the same results. In Old Colony League play, both clubs posted victories over Dennis-Yarmouth, Taunton and Plymouth South and lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, Silver Lake and Barnstable and Falmouth.

Both teams were 1-1 in non-league games. Quincy topped Bishop Stang and fell to Plymouth North, while North Quincy knocked off Hingham and lost to Stoughton.

Offensively, a few other similarities that could pay dividends for both teams are their talented backfields and strong offensive lines.

For the Presidents, senior tailback Shaun Faherty has rushed for over 900 yards and nine touchdowns and senior fullback Steven Maze has scored four touchdowns. Combined, this duo has compiled 80 of Quincy's 143 points.

On the Red Raiders' side, the tandem of senior tailback Jay Turner (six touchdowns) and senior fullback Mike Powers (five touchdowns) has accounted for 76 of North's 128 points.

Defensively, both squads have had their ups and downs, with North yielding 40 or more points twice and Quincy allowing over 30 points once. Early in the season, Quincy held three opponents to under 10 points, all in victories.

One of the major bright spots for North has been Powers, a safety who has intercepted seven passes this season.

Presidents' Faherty Leading Scorer

Quincy tailback Shaun Faherty is the leading scorer going into the Thanksgiving Day classic between Quincy and North Quincy.

The 5-9, 165-pound senior has scored nine touchdowns and 54 of Quincy's 134 points in nine games. He scored two touchdowns in three different games--Bishop Stang, Dennis-Yarmouth and Falmouth.

Senior fullback Steven Maze (four touchdowns, one two-point conversion) is second with 26 points, followed by senior quarterback Kevin Moore (four touchdowns) with 24 points.

Leading the way for North is senior tailback Jay Turner, who has rushed for six touchdowns and caught a pair of two-point conversion passes to compile 40 points. Senior fullback Mike Powers (five touchdowns, six extra points) is second in scoring with 36 points, followed by senior tight end Frank McNamara (five touchdowns) with 30 points.

First-Year QBs Square Off

Junior Chris Bregoli will quarterback North Quincy and senior Kevin Moore will call the signals for Quincy when the Red Raiders and Presidents meet on Thanksgiving Day.

Both quarterbacks will make their first Thanksgiving Day start.

Bregoli, who stepped in to fill the void left by Tom Coughlin, is an athletic, agile quarterback who has thrown eight touchdown passes and also rushed for a touchdown.

Moore, also a mobile quarterback who can avoid defensive pressure, took over the reins from Mark Glynn, who led the Presidents to three consecutive Thanksgiving Day victories. This season, Moore has tossed four touchdown passes and run for four touchdowns of his own.

Sullivan Quincy's Top Thanksgiving Game Coach

Bill Sullivan is Quincy High School's most successful head coach in Thanksgiving Day games.

He went 6-2 against North Quincy as a head coach from 1952 to 1959. Sullivan led the Presidents to five consecutive wins from 1954-58, the longest win streak in series' history.

He lost to the Red Raiders in 1953 and 1959.

Sullivan was an assistant to Munroe MacLean from 1939 to 1951.

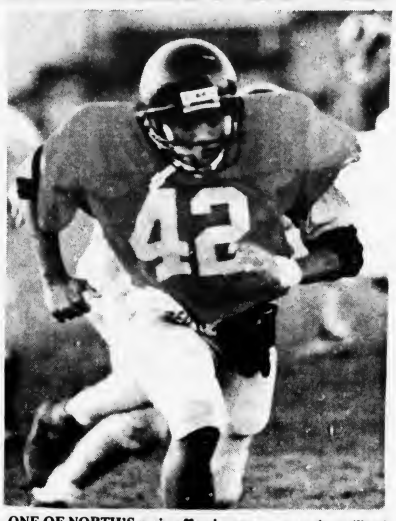
The Series Record: Quincy 32, North 27, 5 Ties

Entering the 65th meeting between Quincy and North Quincy, the Presidents hold the edge with 32 wins.

North has won 27 times. Five games have ended in ties. The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs. The 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 tie.

The series was last deadlocked (7-7-3) going into the 1950 game.

This year Quincy is aiming for its fourth straight victory. The last time the Presidents accomplished that feat was 1954-58, when they won five in a row.



North will be trying to stop a three-game skid. The Raiders had won three straight before the Presidents snapped North's winning string in 1994.

1947 Game Drew Largest Crowd

There has always been debate as to which Quincy-North Quincy game drew the largest crowd.

It appears the 1947 game had the largest paid attendance, reported to have been 18,003. In 1946, the paid attendance was 16,065.

Many estimate that close to 25,000 saw the 1947 game, if you count those who watched for the walls and trees, and those who lined the bus yard where the MBTA garage now stands.

Thousands of extras also watched the 1946 contest.

The biggest previous crowd was the 15,000 who watched the 1939 game.

In recent years, an estimated 9,000-12,000 have attended the game.

North Perfect In 1966, 1992

North Quincy has twice entered the Thanksgiving game with a perfect record, 1966 and 1992.

Ken McPhee had a role in both as a starting guard on the 1966 club and the coach of the 1992 team.

The 1966 team, coached by the late Carl Leone, had a 9-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and shut out Quincy, 8-0.

The 1992 team had an 11-0 record, won the Old Colony League title, beat Arlington in the Div. 1B Super Bowl and shut out Quincy, 20-0.

Excitement, Last-Second Drama Mark Q-N Series

For sheer excitement and last-second drama, few football rivalries can match Quincy-North Quincy.

Close games have defined the series, especially in recent years.

Twelve of the last 14 meetings have been decided by less than one touchdown and conversion.

Last year, Quincy edged North, 12-7, on a third-quarter punt return for a touchdown by senior Andrew Byrne.

In 1985, 1987, 1989 and 1993 the outcome was in doubt until the final play of the game.

In 1984 and 1994 the Presidents grabbed interceptions in the final minutes to thwart comeback efforts by North Quincy.

In 1975 the Red Raiders won the only overtime game in the series, 15-8.

Of the 64 meetings between the Red Raiders and the Presidents, 36 have been decided by one touchdown and conversion or less.

The margin of victory has been greater than two scores in just 17 games.

Quincy's 1970 Team Undefeated

Quincy's 1970 team, coached by Hank Conroy, had a spotless 9-0 record.

The Presidents defeated North that year, 16-6, and won the Greater Boston League title.

MITE HOUSE

Kyle Craig (two goals, two assist) and Craig Calley (two goals, one assist) were the offensive catalysts in Doherty & White's 9-3 win over Bruce Ayers Club in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League action.

Scott Richardson netted two goals, Dave Guerrero and Corey Lumaghini had a goal and an assist each, Anthony Gilbody scored a goal and Brendan Gavaghan added an assist for D&W. For Ayers, Nick Masone and Charlie McGee picked up a goal and an assist, Brian Sullivan netted a goal and Dave Regan dished out an assist.

Justin Laura notched two goals and an assist to pace Kiley Real Estate over Barry's Deli, 5-1.

For Kiley, Jason Laura scored two goals, Matt Flaherty netted a goal and Brian McLean and Dan Findley each had an assist. For Barry's, Jim Fitzpatrick tallied with an assist from Jeremiah Foley.

Three players--Molly O'Connell, James Nash and Tom Pasquantonio--picked up a goal and an assist for Jay Cashman in an 8-1 triumph over Lydon-Russell.

Adding a goal apiece were Andrew Bythrow, Jeff Bailey and Sam Shaw, while Matt Lawlor dished out two assists and Matt Shaw, John Magliozzi and Patrick Young added one assist apiece for Cashman. Kenny Patey, with assists from Stephen McDonagh and Eric Beagle, netted the L-R goal.

John McInnis scored five goals to spark Quincy Sheet Metal over First Choice Home Care, 7-6.

Other offensive standouts for QSM were Lambros Papalambros (two goals), Josh McKeon (three assists) and Eric Moreschi and Amanda Maggio (one assist apiece). For FCHC, Glen Misho and Chris Hunter netted two goals each, Casey Conley added a goal and an assist and Chris Rooney scored a goal.

Joe Canavan's hat trick helped Paul Harold Club edge Doran & Horrigan, 5-4.

Doug Haskins (goal, two assists), Zachary Helfrich (goal), Robert Mann (two assists), Mary Gillespie and Robert Fontana (one assist each) also got on the board for Harold. Pacing the D&H effort were Brandon Gilmore (two goals, assist), Mike Lebel (goal, two assists), Henry Thomas (goal, assist) and Mike Cronin and Greg Cahalan (one assist each).

Longtime Recreation Department Leaders Honored At Ceremony

Quincy Recreation Department leaders Dan Coughlin and Brian Buckley were recently recognized for their 30 years of service at a ceremony at the Beechwood Knoll School gym.

Coughlin and Buckley have worked for the Recreation Department's Saturday morning program as a team for 30 years. They have worked the majority of those years at Central Middle School, as well as the Merrymount School, the Bernazzani School and currently at the Beechwood Knoll School.

Among the duo's highlights were three trips to the Boston Garden with the Central Rec. Teams, numerous city-wide championships and hundreds of participants.

Burgin Platner, Pat Foley Tie; Sugarman, Sun Victorious

SQUIRT HOUSE

Steve Maggio netted two goals for Burgin Platner in a 3-3 tie with Pat Foley Painting in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League action.

Matt McHugh added a goal and Christina Kelley dished out an assist for BP. For Foley, goal scorers were Pat Devlin, Chris Tufo and Terrence O'Connell, while Matt Haskins collected two assists and John Clark and Brett Martinson each chipped in an assist.

Eric Kenney and Jake McQuinn each notched two goals to spark M. Sugarman over Westminster Dodge, 5-4.

Chris Garvey and Mike McKeon each scored a goal, Kevin Barry dished out two assists and Steve Bythrow and Justin Thorley each contributed an assist for Sugarman. Leading the Dodge effort were James Spellman (two goals), Andrew Patten (goal, assist), Patrick Malone (goal) and Paul Graham (two assists).

Dave Oronte and Kevin Richardson (two goals, one assist apiece) sparked The Quincy Sun to an 8-0 triumph over Keohane's.

Joining Oronte and Richardson on the Sun's score sheet were Jason Amato (two goals), Matt Quigley (goal, assist), Robby Gagliard (goal), Jimmy Callahan (two assists) and Sean McCormack, Mike MacPherson and Paul McLean (one assist each). Recording the shutout between the pipes was goaltender Eddie Laura.

Craig, McKeon, Giordani, Hasson Multiple Scorers

PEE WEE HOUSE

Brendan Craig's two goals and three assists paced Skinner's Winners over Coffee Break Cafe, 9-4, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League action.

Other offensive contributors for Skinner's were Ryan Conley and Ryan Tobin (two goals, two assists each), Matt Grazioso (goal, two assists), Dan Sullivan and Brendan Conley (one goal apiece). Pee Wee A's Cruise Past Brookline, 9-0

The Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's turned in their best performance of the year in a 9-0 shutout over Brookline.

All three lines were clicking and the defense played flawlessly for Coach Grazioso's squad.

The A's line of Brendan Conley, Matt Lavery and Josh Giordani buzzed the Brookline net all night, creating numerous scoring opportunities. Matt Grazioso, Ryan Conley and Rob Mooney continued the pressure when they were on the ice.

The line of Ryan Donahue, Billy McKeon and Brian Lewis netted seven goals. McKeon notched a hat trick and two assists, Donahue added two goals and two assists and Lewis had a pure hat trick and two assists.

The A's defense was also involved in the scoring with Miah Hasson chipping in with a goal and an assist. Brian O'Hanley and Sean Moriarty each had an assist. Bruce Maggio earned the shutout with help from defensemen Steve Kelley and John Chevalier.

RELIGION

Rev. Rebecca Wegner To Become First Female Pastor Of Lutheran Church

Rev. Rebecca Parrish Wegner will be installed as the first woman to serve as pastor of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 15 Harvard St., North Quincy, in its 52-year history Saturday, Dec. 7 at 4 p.m.

Good Shepherd is part of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), which has 5.3 million members nationwide.

The installation will be conducted by Bishop Robert L. Isaksen, bishop of the New England Synod of the ELCA. All are welcome.

Rev. Wegner will soon be introducing a new initiative to the leadership of the church called "For the Good of the City," a visionary plan for service in and to the community in the next five years.

She comes to the city from a five-year pastorate in Southern Connecticut, where she was actively involved in the life of the city, serving on various task force groups dealing with racial unrest, working with a Justice Department investigation into allegations of civil rights violations in the city and helping to form a non-profit organization to build low-income senior citizen apartments.

REV. REBECCA WEGNER

"One of the really wonderful things about being a pastor in the ELCA today is that we are a unified, church body," she said. "While at one time Lutherans were seen by non-Lutherans as ethnically-closed congregations that were somewhat parochial in their thinking, that is no longer the case.

"I can bring a fresh outlook to life and ministry in this place informed by my experiences with people from vastly different regions and lifestyles. It's very exciting."

A second career pastor, Rev. Wegner worked as a regional credit manager for an oil-related industry in Texas for many years before responding to the call to serve as an ordained Lutheran minister.

She earned her bachelor of public administration degree from the University of Mississippi in Oxford, Miss.; did graduate work in finance and administration at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas; and received her master of divinity degree from Luther Seminary in St. Paul, Minn.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We all have many things to be grateful for at Thanksgiving time. . . especially in this time of world turmoil and unrest. Freedom, our most precious gift, we take for granted most of the time. . . We can say what we want, go where we please and worship as we please. More than half the world cannot exercise these privileges.

Yes, Thanksgiving is truly an American holiday and we should not only give thanks for our bountiful blessings, but be willing to share what we have with those less fortunate than ourselves. . . not only in material blessing, but in giving of ourselves.

Our earliest settlers in 1620 knew this and after that first terrible winter when many died, they planted their food and had a successful harvest. They gave thanks to God for their bounty and shared it with the Indians.

Today this tradition must continue more than ever.

Let us not only give thanks for our own good fortune, but share with others our blessings. This is the true meaning of Thanksgiving. . .

Beat Tax Rush For SS Numbers

By LAURIE ZASTROW

Incorrect Social Security numbers continue to be a frequent reason for the delay of income tax refunds, according to Laurie Zastrow.

Taxpayers are urged to act now to beat the rush for Social Security numbers needed for tax returns. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will not process returns with missing or incorrect Social Security numbers. If the return does not include the correct Social Security number, IRS may contact the taxpayer for the correct information before issuing a refund.

Taxpayers are now required to have the names of all dependents correctly listed on their tax returns. To avoid delaying your refund, you should make sure your name and Social Security number, and the name and Social Security number of your spouse and any dependents listed on the return, agree with the name and number shown on each individual's Social Security card.

To get a original or replacement Social Security card, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. The best times to call to avoid peak telephone traffic are later in the week and the second half of the month.

If you have already applied for a Social Security number for your newborn child at the hospital where you gave information for your child's birth certificate, you should receive your child's Social Security card in the mail within two to four weeks after Social Security receives the information from your state's vital records office.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Gospel Business Men's Meeting Dec. 13

The South Shore Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will be held Saturday, Dec. 13 at 6:30 p.m. at G.J. Coddington's, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Dinner will be served. Cost is $10 per person and all are welcome. For more information, call Bill Craig at 471-1912 or Alex Canavan at 749-5982.

Quincy Foursquare

Rev. Bill Donahue, pastor, will preach on "Wells Of Salvation" at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday at The Lord's Planting, Quincy Foursquare Church, Newbury Ave. and Sagamore St., North Quincy.

Prayer Meeting is at 7:30 a.m., Children's Movie and Adult Sunday School at 10 a.m. and Sunday School for children at 11:30 a.m.

On Thursday, a Thanksgiving Dinner will be served at 1 p.m. followed by a televised football game. All are welcome. For reservations, call Pat Thorley at the church.

Please Join With Us And Help Decorate The Fourth Annual Deware Funeral Home Holiday Memorial Tree

Bring an ornament to put on our tree in memory of a loved one. For each ornament put on the tree, The Deware Funeral Home will make a donation to a local charity. This year our charity is the Esther Sanger Center for Compassion (formerly Quincy Crisis Center). If you do not have an ornament, we will provide a holiday ribbon for you to place on the tree.

"Everyone Is Welcome"

You can place an ornament on the Holiday Memorial Tree at The Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock Street, Wollaston.

COUNCIL ORDER NO. 9 7-337 November 24, 1997

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

1 . Chapter 2.04 of the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking out Section 2.04.050[D] and inserting in place thereof:

D. Department of Inspections.

2. Chapter 2.04 of the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking out Section 2.04.160 in its entirety.

3. Chapter 2.52 of the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking out said chapter and inserting in place thereof the following new chapter:

Chapter 2.52
Department of Inspections

2.52.010 Established - Composition

There is hereby established in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 88 of the Acts and Resolves of 1995 of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts the department of inspections. The department shall include the electrical department, the building department, including the plumbing personnel thereof, the department of weights and measures and the conservation enforcement officer.

2.52.020 Appointment - Term - Qualifications - Duties

The mayor shall annually appoint the director of inspections who shall have supervision and control of the department of inspections. Such director shall possess all the necessary qualifications, experience, and certification required for an inspector of building or building commissioner under the provisions of G.L. c. 143. Such director shall be exempt from the provisions of G.L. c. 31.

The director shall perform all duties and responsibilities required of the inspector of buildings or building commissioner as required by the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts by and the ordinances of the City of Quincy, including the appointment of plumbing and gas fitter inspectors. All local building inspectors and the plumbing and gas inspectors shall report to the director of inspections.

The director shall conduct a meeting on a bi-weekly basis and shall summon to such meeting any and all department heads, inspectors, or other employees, including but not limited to local building inspectors, wire inspectors, plumbing and gas inspectors, the health commissioner and inspectors within his/her department, fire safety inspectors, director of planning and community development, commissioner of public works, and conservation code enforcement officers necessary to review applications for building permits for buildings with a gross floor area in excess of ten thousand square feet.

2.52.030 Sealer of Weights and Measures

The mayor shall, pursuant to G.L. c.98, sec. 34, appoint the sealer of weights and measures. He shall be subject to the provisions of G.L. c. 31 and shall report to the director of inspections.

2.52.040 Duties

The sealer of weights and measures shall, as directed by the director of inspections, perform the following duties.

1. collect the fees and charges which by law he is allowed to receive and pay over to the city treasury all money received by him;
2. at the time of sealing, furnish the owner of the articles sealed or his agent a certificate signed by the sealer, stating the name and address of the owner of the article, the date when sealed, and the amount of the fee, if any, collected;
3. keep a detailed record of all work performed by him and annually make a report to the mayor;
4. establish office hours for the convenience of the public who desire to have scales, weights and measures tested;
5. have the care and custody of all public scales of the city; and
6. perform such other duties that the director of inspections deems necessary for the proper performance of his duties.

2.52.050 Inspector of Wires

The mayor shall, pursuant to G.L. c. 166, sec. 22 appoint the inspector of wires. He shall be a licensed electrician and subject to G.L. c. 31. He shall report to the director of inspections.

2.52.060 Powers and Duties

The inspector of wires shall, as directed by the director of inspection, perform the following duties:

1. have supervision of all electric and other wires erected in, upon, over or under any building;
2. keep a detailed record of the business transacted in the department over which he has charge, and shall submit an annual report of the same to the mayor in January;
3. require any person operating electric or other wires to furnish him with such information as may be necessary to the faithful and effectual discharge of his duties;
4. have access at all reasonable times to all wires and appliances and apparatus in the interior of a public building or on private premises which are intended for carrying an electric light or power current, and no person shall arrange, affix or change any such wires, fitting or apparatus without giving the inspector reasonable opportunity to inspect the same before they are covered or enclosed;
5. establish rules regulating the time of notification of work to be done, the requirements or conditions for turning on the electric current and such other matters as he may deem advisable; and
6. perform such other duties that the director of inspections deems necessary for the proper performance of his duties.

4. Chapter 2.64 of the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking out said Chapter in its entirety.

5. Chapter 2.116 of the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by adding in Section 2.116.0 1 0 by adding at the end of the first paragraph the words: "and shall report to the director of inspections".

6. The Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking out the words 'building inspector", 'inspector of buildings', or 'building commissioner' wherever said words may appear and inserting in place thereof the words 'director of inspections'.

Roger Meade Elected To South Shore Habitat Board

ROGER MEADE

Roger L. Meade of Quincy, vice president of residential mortgage lending for The Hibernia Savings Bank, has been elected to board of directors of the South Shore Habitat for Humanity Inc. (SSHH).

Meade became involved with the SSHH in 1993 when he served on the Braintree Family Selection Committee. He will serve a three-year term as director assisting the chairman of the committee.

"It is with great enthusiasm that we welcome Roger Meade to our board," said Chief Development Officer David Bigley. "Roger's expertise as a banker and mortgage lender has long been an asset to our organization. We now have the opportunity to benefit even further from his expanded role as a director."

Established in 1985 under the guidelines of Habitat for Humanity International, SSHH works with community and business leaders, volunteers and residents to make simple, decent housing a reality for South Shore families in need. Its goals are not only to build homes, but also to establish partnerships that provide low income families safe, comfortable homes of their own.

Among many contributions to SSHH, Hibernia Savings has assisted in financing an interest-free home loan in Quincy and its employees have volunteered time and efforts to help build several homes on the South Shore. Most recently, the bank applied to the Federal Home Loan Bank, on behalf of SSHH, for a grant to help finance Granite Crossing, a new Habitat for Humanity community in Quincy.

Meade joined The Hibernia Savings Bank in 1989. He is responsible for residential mortgage lending and product development.

START THANKSGIVING TRADITIONS

Break away from the grind of daily routine and celebrate with unique family traditions. Traditions are important to our kids because they say who we are as a fmily and they represent the things we value. That's why they bear repetition. When our kids grow up, traditions we have shared will support and nourish them in their own family lives.

Many of the things you are already doing have no doubt become family traditions in your home. But if you are looking to start a new one, here are some ideas:

* As part of your Thanksgiving menu, serve a dish that is from your family heritage. It could be an appetizer, salad, soup, vegetable or dessert. Let your children get involved in the preparation.

* Decorate fabric napkins or napkin rings with a Thanksgiving motif to adorn your table each year. Write the names of family members on each napkin or ring to mark their place at the feast.

* Let the kids be in charge of the table centerpiece. When they are young, their "tablescaping" responsibility may be as simple as placing mums in a vase surrounded by a few colorful leaves.

* Photograph the decorated table from year to year and mount the snapshots in a simple holiday journal with jottings of your family memories. Watch your kids' creativity grow.

Entertainment Extra
by Evelyn Ludvigson

Q. My brother and I have a bet with our uncle, who is a long-time New York Yankees fan although he never lived east of the Mississippi. He says Mickey Mantle was married to a movie star. We don't buy it, but he swears it's true. So, Evelyn, how about settling this for us once and for all. Al and Don

A. Happy to oblige. Mickey Mantle was married once to the woman he loved from the day they met to the day he died. She was not — I repeat — not a movie star.

Q. Did Frank Sinatra try to adopt one of Dean Martin's sons? I know that sounds crazy, but I was told that Frank wanted a brother for his son, Frank, Jr., and his first wife, Nancy, couldn't have any more children. And since Dean was one of his best friends and had a lot of kids, he made a bid to take one of them. Charles C.

A. No one I know ever heard that story. But the fact is, both families were close and the idea could have come up, but no one — except Frank — knows for sure.

Q. I have heard that we were very close to being hit by an asteroid, but the government wouldn't alert us because they were afraid of what people would do if the news got out. Have you any word on that? Jennifer W.

A. Wow! This has been a week for rumors, to say the least. First Mantle, then Sinatra, and now asteroids???? The fact is, we are probably always going to be vulnerable to asteroid collisions. How much we can do to prevent disaster depends on how ready we are with the right technology.

As for keeping a recent "scare" secret, that would be nigh to impossible. Even if the government got all our astronomers to keep quiet, what about astronomers in other countries?

In any event, word would get out somehow if the entire government disappeared into its underground bunker for several days, and emerged only to find we got along quite well without them.

Q. I was a long time fan of John Denver, and I would like to know if they found alcohol in his body when he died in a plane crash. I believe John had given up drinking some time ago. Mark D.

A. No alcohol was found in Denver's body. An ironic turn to this story is that he may have not been legally drunk when he was arrested for drinking while intoxicated earlier this year. Some of his close friends say he had a thyroid problem that interfered with the metabolization of alcohol and certain foods, and threw off all the tests he had taken.

Q. Is there a reason Chelsea Clinton decided not to follow in her parents' footsteps and become a lawyer? I have a feeling she has no respect for that profession. L.J.

A. Chelsea has always done well in science and has wanted to be a doctor almost as long as she wanted to be a ballerina. She decided to continue to study dance, but only as an artistic expression. She hopes to go into medical research once her studies are completed.

Efforts Resume To Retrieve Two Bodies In Quarry

Police divers were expected to return to the Granite Rail Quarry yesterday (Tuesday) and today in an attempt to retrieve two bodies found at the site last week.

John Blackadar, head of the Quincy Police Department's underwater recovery team, said at press time Monday the team would attempt to retrieve the first body yesterday and the second today.

Blackadar said stormy weather created visibility problems that prevented divers from retrieving the bodies over the weekend. The first, a woman's body was discovered Thursday and a second body, which has not been identified as a man's or woman's was discovered the following day.

Blackadar said although there have been news reports that a third body may have been discovered, that is not the case.

"We have not seen any third body," he said.

High-tech underwater cameras and other equipment have been used throughout the search.

Authorities have said a Quincy man awaiting trial in the 1994 murder of Stoughton teenager Sonia Leal told police the whereabouts of the unidentified woman's body.

Shawn T. Kane, 22, tipped authorities to the decomposed body in an effort to make a deal with prosecutors in the death of Leal, a prostitute whose body was recovered from the quarry three years ago.

Kane is scheduled to go on trial Dec. 15 in the Leal case. Two companions--Kevin Lynch, 32, and Robert Larkin, 22, also of Quincy--are serving life sentences for the murder of Leal.

Authorities said Kane implicated Lynch and Larkin in the death of the second woman, whose body was located on a ledge 175 feet below the quarry by an underwater camera but has yet to be brought to the surface. A local law enforcement source also said Kane had nothing to do with the murder of the unidentified woman.

While it is possible the bodies in the quarry could be those of Karen Hammond, 21, of South Boston who has been missing since January 1995 and Patrick McDonagh, an Irish student missing since 1994, authorities have said they cannot say whose bodies they are until the proper tests have been done.

Once recovered, the bodies will be taken to the state medical examiner's office in Boston where forensic pathologists will use several methods to identify the bodies, including comparing dental records, examining clothing and testing DNA.

Mayor James Sheets, like other officials, said he wants to be sure conditions are right for the the two bodies to be retrieved, particularly after equipment problems last Thursday resulted in two divers being hospitalized.

"The priority is the safety of the divers," he said Monday. "While we all feel to some extent the tragedy of the loss of two human beings, you don't want to risk the lives of the living to retrieve the dead."

In Downtown Area

Cheney Proposes New Business Zone, 10-Story Height

City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney has proposed the creation of a Business Revitalization Zone in Quincy Center.

The area in question includes Hancock Street, Cottage Avenue, Dennis Ryan Parkway, Revere Road and other streets.

In a related proposal, Cheney has also called for a zoning change that would increase the height limitation on buildings in that area from six stories to 10 stories. The limitation was previously 10 stories but was reduced following recommendations by a citizens task force in 1987.

The councilor briefly outlined his plan for his colleagues during Monday night's City Council meeting.

Cheney said the added growth could result in an increase of 30 to 50 percent tax revenue in the city, which would considerably alleviate the burden on Quincy's taxpayers. The change would also result in numerous permanent and construction jobs and bring more retail stores and offices to the area, he said.

Cheney said the revitalization zone and zoning change are needed.

"The alternative to passing this is to do nothing," he said. "And that's what's happening in our downtown, nothing."

Planning Director Richard Meade agreed that "the 10-story height is best in certain areas." And when Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi suggested that parking is the downtown's worst problem and should be addressed first, Meade said the current parking is adequate.

Cheney, who noted that Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill proposed a simi-

Council Appropriates Over $300,000

Community Policing Program Gets Funding

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A plan by Police Chief Thomas Frane to expand the city's community policing program into both West Quincy and Quincy Point has been funded by the City Council.

The council unanimously approved two appropriations for the program Monday night. They included $212,763 from the city's reserve for appropriation to be used for personnel and $90,636 from Quincy's free cash account to be used for community policing equipment.

Frane said after the meeting he hopes to have the program up and running by January.

The chief's plan calls for three community officers in West Quincy, three in Quincy Point, and a third to be added in Germantown, where there are already two community policing officers.

In additiou, the chief wants three sergeants--one in each of the targeted neighborhoods--to supervise the community officers as well as one lieutenant who would oversee the sergeants.

Frane said he will appoint current department personnel to the lieutenant's and three sergeants' positions--although he has not yet decided whom they will be--and hire seven new patrol officers. He added that it has not yet been determined, however, which, if any, of the above personnel will be used in the community policing program or if other department members will fill those roles.

Frane said the $212,763 will cover personnel costs for the program until June 30, the end of the current fiscal year. He noted that in the future, he hopes to move some of the community officers to other neighborhoods in the city so he will not have to constantly ask the council for more money to expand the program.

Council Approves Tax Rate Increases

The City Council has unanimously approved Mayor James Sheets' tax classification rates for Fiscal Year 1998.

The council voted 9-0 Monday night to pass the tax plan. As a result, the average homeowner will see a $94 increase in his or her tax bill.

Sheets' plan calls for new tax rates of $32.09 (per $1,000) for Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property--also known as CIPP--and $15.30 for residential property, increases of 78 cents and 38 cents respectively. Last year, the rates were $31.31 and $14.92.

The increase totals about 2.5 percent for both residential property and CIPP.

Sheets has said the tax increase--the largest Quincy has seen in four years--is necessary to cover a 4 percent pay hike for city workers as well as an increase in the special needs component of the city's education budget and other costs mandated by the state Education Reform Act.

Sheets and City Council members also have said the city has done its best to hold the line on property taxes in recent years, with a relatively small increase in Fiscal Year 1997 and no rate hike the previous two years.

The owner of an average single-family home valued at $143,700 will pay $2,199 this fiscal year. Last year, the average homeowner's tax bill for a home valued at

USS Nevada: Pearl Harbor Survivor

By Rev. JOHN C. SWANSON

Sunday is the 56th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Many Quincy residents today can still remember exactly where they were or what they were doing when they heard the news bulletins on radio that fateful morning of Dec. 7, 1941--a date President Franklin Delano Roosevelt said would "live in infamy."

Some may recall the valiant U.S.S. Nevada (BB 36), the only battleship in Pearl Harbor that day that was able to get underway during the attack.

But how many realize that the Nevada was Quincy-built at the Fore River shipyard in 1916 and became a symbol of Quincy shipbuilding know-how as she went on to prove to be one real tough ship?

The battleship Arizona, West Virginia, Oklahoma and Utah were sunk by Japanese planes that morning. The California, badly damaged, sank two days later. The Pennsylvania was hit in drydock, the Tennessee

POLICE DIVERS remove the body of P.J. McDonagh from the Granite Rail Quarry last week. The Irish student had been missing for three years.

Search For Woman's Body In Quarry Stalls

Police divers are contemplating their next move as the search for the body of a woman in the Granite Rail Quarry has come up empty.

John Blackadar, head of the Quincy Police Department's underwater recovery team, said at press time Tuesday the team will discuss what to do next with the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office while a private company continues to probe the site with a special underground camera.

A decision was expected by the end of the week, he said.

The search is now entering its third week. At one point, a woman's body was discovered, as was the body of P.J. McDonagh, an Irish student missing since 1994.

But while divers were able to recover McDonagh's body last week, they have been unable to locate the woman since the initial sighting.

Authorities have said a Quincy man awaiting trial in the 1994 murder of Stoughton teenager Sonia Leal told police the whereabouts of the unidentified woman's body.

Shawn T. Kane, 22, tipped authorities to the decomposed body in an effort to make a deal with prosecutors in the death of Leal, a prostitute whose body was recovered from the quarry three years ago.

Kane is scheduled to go on trial Dec. 15 in the Leal case. Two companions--Kevin Lynch, 32, and Robert Larkin, 22, also of Quincy--are serving life sentences for the murder of Leal.

Authorities said Kane implicated Lynch and Larkin in the death of the second woman, whose body was located on a ledge 175 feet below the quarry by an underwater camera but has yet to be brought to the surface. A local law enforcement source also said Kane had nothing to do with the murder of the unidentified woman.

While it was once believed the body in the quarry could be that of Karen Hammond, 21, of South Bouth, who has been missing since January 1995, authorities have said subsequently they do not believe that is the case, although they cannot be sure until the proper tests are conducted.

Once recovered, the body will be taken to the state medical examiner's office in Boston where forensic pathologists will use several methods to identify the bodies, including comparing dental records, examining clothing and testing DNA.

Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci said this week the state will help fund the recovery effort if necessary. The district attorney's office is paying for the services of the underwater camera company, a cost of $2,000 to $3,000 a day.

Father Seeks Photos Of Quarry

The father of a 21-year-old South Boston woman missing since January 1995 is seeking photos of the Granite Rail Quarry in Quincy in the hope it will aid the search for his daughter.

Charlie Hammond said this week he is hoping photos taken of the quarry in the past can somehow help pinpoint the location of the body of his daughter Karen.

Police divers, acting on a tip, discovered a woman's body at the quarry recently but have been unable to recover the remains since the initial sighting. At this point they cannot say for certain whether it is Karen's body.

Those with photos of the quarry or related information should call Hammond at 268-9466 or The Quincy Sun at 471-3100.

Harold Lone Council Dissenter

Marina Bay Project Gets Final Green Light

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The proposed condominium development known as The Landing at Marina Bay was approved by the City Council Monday night.

The council gave the project its final green light in the form of a Planned Unit Development (PUD) permit by an 8-1 vote, with Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold the lone dissenter.

The project is the third Marina Bay development passed by the council this year. The others were the $22 million Marina Bay Senior Living Campus approved in August and the 136-unit apartment complex dubbed the Meadows at Marina Bay okayed last month.

The Landing proposal was made by Thorndike Development Corp. of Braintree through its affiliate, M.C. Properties Limited Partnership. The developers hope construction can begin in April and that people will begin moving into the condominiums by the fall of next year.

The 152-unit plan calls for 48 single-family homes, 42 townhouses and 62 residential flats to be built on a 20-acre tract off Victory Road. A pedestrian promenade and a village green also are included in the project.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, whose ward includes the project, said he and his fellow councillors have made all efforts possible in order to protect the rights of area residents.

"We've worked on this for over a year," he said. "No one can accuse the council of rushing this project."

Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill also spoke in favor.

"I really do believe this is going to be a beautiful project," said Cahill, adding that it will bring tax revenue and families into Quincy.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and Atty. David Mahoney, legal counsel for the developers, assured councillors that a number of concerns, including traffic and sewer-water-drain issues have been addressed.

Harold, however, voted against The Landing because Thorndike and the developers of the other two projects planned for Marina Bay have not agreed to pay part of the cost of repairing Commander Shea Boulevard, the other roadway into the area.

Mahoney responded by saying that Thorndike and the other developers, Peter O'Connell and Peter Gordon, are reluctant to make that commitment because the boulevard is owned by the Townsend Co. of Maryland, which is leasing it and the former Jordan Marsh warehouse to Boston Scientific Corp.

Harold said if the three developers do not pay for the repairs, the city may have to take the roadway over in the future. Mahoney said there is no reason for such drastic measures because Boston Scientific has pledged to have work done on the boulevard.

A Thorndike plan for 268 condominiums of the same site was rejected by the City Council last year. A lawsuit by Thorndike partner Lloyd Geisinger followed but was dropped after the council agreed to take a look at the 152-unit proposal.

Thanksgiving With The Mayor

Winter Parking Rules

The Quincy Department of Public Works advises residents of the city's winter parking rules in effect for the 1997-98 season.

Overnight parking is prohibited without a resident parking permit available from the Quincy Police Department (745-5813). Permits are void during snow emergencies.

Parking on an emergency artery during a snow emergency is prohibited. All streets in the city are posted with signs identifying them as emergency arteries.

Parking is allowed during a snow emergency on the odd side of non-emergency streets this winter.

Any car will be towed if it is in violation of the winter parking rules. The average tow and storage fee is $75.

If bad weather is expected, call 770-SNOW or listen to radio or television news to learn if there is a snow emergency. For snow emergency updates, listen to WJDA Radio, 1300 AM.

WHAT CAUSES CANKER SORES

They may not be life threatening, but canker sores can make life miserable--even if only for limited periods of time. Defined as ulcers in the mouth lining, cankers are actually something of a mystery. They can be caused by an accidental bite on the cheeks or tongue, but they also may appear for no obvious reason. What is known is that certain foods can make canker sores worse, as can stress and hormonal changes. Fortunately, the sores usually heal in a week or so without treatment. Home remedies that may ease the discomfort during healing include holding a warm tea bag on the canker or swabbing the spot with a mix of equal parts antihistamine and liquid antacid.

P.S. Consult your doctor if a mouth sore persists for more than a week or if cankers seem to keep coming back.

We may not know what causes them, but certainly eating a lot of sweets when you have one increase your discomfort. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

Stice School Vice-Chairman

Linda Stice will be the next vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee.

Stice reportedly has at least five committed votes, more than enough, to succeed Ron Mariano in January. Only four are needed among the seven board members.

STICE

Mariano, under the school committee's rules and regulations, cannot succeed himself after serving two years.

Mayor James Sheets will remain as chairman automatically by virtue of his office as mayor.

Stice, who has six years on the board--longer than anyone but Mariano--declined to comment on the number of votes she has. But does say:

"I'm optimistic and would consider it a great honor. I am grateful for the support I have received."

As vice chairman she will appoint committees and preside over school committee meetings in the absence of Sheets.

And, she notes: "I am a consensus builder."

JACK CORRIGAN, Brookline Democrat running for Norfolk County district attorney, is quietly but busy putting together a Quincy support team

CORRIGAN

He already has prominent Quincy Atty. Tom Kiley as his overall campaign coordinator and says there will be other well-known Quincy Democrats getting aboard.

Corrigan has already opened an organizational office at 21 McGrath Highway and is looking around for another Quincy spot for a campaign office.

Corrigan served over seven years as an assistant district attorney under Bill Delahunt during which time he headed the Civil Rights and White Collar Crime Units.

He is making his first bid for elective office although he has worked in the campaigns of Governor Michael Dukakis, Senator Edward Kennedy and Walter Mondale.

Corrigan is running as "an experienced prosecutor" and says that's what the public wants in the D.A's office.

YOU CAN SCRATCH the name of Jo-Ann Bragg from the list of potential candidates for the state representative seat Michael Bellotti is vacating to run for sheriff.

BRAGG

Bragg, who topped the school committee field in last month's city election might have been the lone Ward 5 candidate for the Bellotti seat.

But, she says:

"I really like working for the schools and the kids. I want to concentrate on the school buildings needs recommended by the Mayor's Task Force of which I was a member.

"So, at this point I am not considering running for state representative. But, maybe sometime in the future."

FORMER CITY OFFICIAL James (Pete) Ricciuti is a patient at Quincy Hospital where he was admitted Nov. 18 for surgery. Following surgery he is still at the hospital now undergoing physical therapy there "and feeling good."

RICCIUTI

Ricciuti served as public works commissioner under three mayors--James McIntyre, Walter Hannon and Arthur Tobin. He was also purchasing agent and then executive secretary to McIntyre. He is the only one in the city's history to hold all three posts.

Ricciuti's most herculean task and greatest challenge as public works commissioner was the Blizzard of '78 when his crews worked around the clock to dig the city out from under 26 inches or more of snow.

Ricciuti retired in 1981 but still keeps a close eye on Quincy's political scene. He's always had a good eye for that.

A speedy recovery, Pete!

MILESTONE: Fr. William McCarthy, Quincy's beloved Father Bill, will celebrate his 71st birthday Tuesday, Dec. 9, 7 to 10 p.m., at the Common Market, Willard St.

McCARTHY

Jack McDonald, who owns the restaurant, is hosting the party, with proceeds going to Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless.

Tickets are $20 and can be obtained by calling 376-2255.

Jack picked up the tab for Fr. McCarthy's 70th birthday last year which raised over $6,000 for the shelter.

J. KOLSON

It was her fifth back surgery in 10 years and hopefully will correct what has been a serious problem. It will be awhile before it is known for sure.

"It wasn't the way we would liked to have celebrated our wedding anniversary," says Peter. The November surgery took place on their 27th anniversary.

BRIAN McNAMEE, unsuccessful candidate for the Ward 6 city council seat in last month's city election, visited with Barbara Arnold's second graders at the Squantum School last week to thank them for their participation in the Kids Voting program.

It was McNamee's first bid for public office and he pressed the issues. He'll be back.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 POSTCARD view Brook Street in Wollaston looking west from its intersection with Arlington Street. The street got its name from Sachem Brook that meandered along here from the Montclair peatbog to Quincy Bay. They buried the brook pipes under the lawns of the houses to the left. This street is a good example of the wide east/west streets the land development companies laid out throughout this part of Wollaston. Holbrook Road, one of the widest, was originally named Broadway. At the time of this picture, before automobiles, it doesn't seem that there was a need for such width, only one horse-drawn wagon is using the entire street. Today, however, thanks to someone's vision, both sides of the street accommodate dozens of parked cars and there is still plenty of room for two travel lanes. The lawn on the left corner is now the site of Andre's.

St. Catherine's Church Dedicated

By PAUL HAROLD

Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos, Primate of North and South America and Canada, was in Wollaston this week for the dedication of St. Catherine's Church.

Founded two years ago with a membership of 70 families, the church had grown to 170 families. William Parros, president of the church board, said plans were being discussed to build a new church within five years. The proposed church would be of the Byzantine architectural style, with the existing church being reserved for use as a school or youth center.

The parish included Dorchester and 12 towns and cities.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa attended the ceremonies and made the Archbishop an honorary citizen of Quincy.

NQHS WINS IN SHUTOUT; FIRST IN 17 YEARS

In the 30th Thanksgiving Day game between QHS and NQHS, North pulled off a shutout, defeating Quincy 18-0. It was the first shutout since 1945.

The muddy field conditions "helped" North's fullback, Bill Curran, who was the deciding factor in the Red Raiders' win. Curran carried the ball 22 times for an average of six yards a carry.

KILROY, THE MAN BEHIND THE LEGEND, DIES

James Kilroy of "Kilroy Was Here" fame, died in Boston this week. The famous World War II slogan was created by Kilroy when he was an inspector at the Fore River Shipyard. The artwork showing a man peering over a wall was added later by an unknown artist.

Kilroy chalked the slogan on ship parts to save time by showing test gangs that he had already checked the job.

Kilroy began work at Fore River as a tank inspector, just two days before Pearl Harbor. He had previously served as state representative and city councillor in Boston.

After the war, the American Transit Association sponsored a contest to discover the origins of the slogan. Kilroy won the contest, winning a 22-ton trolley car as a prize. He used it as a playhouse for his nine children.

READERS FORUM

Praises Quincy School System

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Someone recently told me that I was always penning letters to the editor and doing something that rhymes with the word witch. Now I agree, my letters usually address issues I feel have gone unaddressed. Many times I criticize a government action or inaction. Sometimes I praise but mostly, I probably do the word that rhymes with the witch. With all the practice I get, I'm good at it.

However, this letter is not one of those. This week I write to praise the Quincy Public School system for giving our children an excellent educational product. My daughter graduated from the Squantum School this past June. She is now at Atlantic Middle. I have been very pleased with the teaching in our public school classrooms and with the partnership between schools and parents that works so well here.

Last year I served on the Squantum PTO Board. Two years ago, I ran for School Committee. I support Quincy Public Schools and commend Supt. Eugene Creedon for doing an excellent job in what can only be called difficult times in the public sector. I don't always agree with him, but I believe he is the right person for the times.

Quincy's public schools are being impacted by a growing non-English speaking student population and Quincy is addressing the situation well. Demographics change but commitment to excellence in education is never-ending.

Quincy is not the same city it was 25 years ago (maybe not even 10 years ago). It will continue to change and with the change a need to keep producing a high quality public school system addressing the needs of a growing diverse student population.

Our children are our future. Quincy's public schools are preparing them for it. They give our children the tools that will be necessary to survive in the 21st century. No matter our skin color, no matter our ethnicity and no matter how we spell our last names, Quincy will not only survive but grow as a nurturing and diverse community of peoples.

See, I don't always write letters that rhyme with the word witch. Do I?

A 'Thank You' To Hospice Of The South Shore

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

During National Hospice month, I would like to thank all at Hospice of the South Shore, many whose names I don't know, but who worked behind the scenes, for being there for my mother and myself.

I will share my experience with all I know about how wonderful Hospice of the South Shore is.

I want to especially thank Susan, our social worker, for listening to me and supporting me. Also, Mary, mother's nurse, who gently guided me through the process of imminent loss. (By the way, it happened exactly the way Mary suggested it might.)

I am grateful for the care they took with my mother and also for the education they gave me. Thank you!

Crane Library Holiday House Tour Dec. 7

The Crane Library Holiday House Tour to benefit the Crane Library Building Fund will be held Sunday, Dec. 7 from 1 to 5 p.m.

The tour will include six private homes on Quincy's historic Presidents Hill, named for Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

The homes presented in the tour reflect various architectural styles, including federal, colonial revival, Greek revival, and shingle. They have many features of note, including stained and leaded glass windows, chandeliers, unique fireplaces, and notable woodwork, staircases, porches and more.

Previous owners of the homes include George Sidelinger, the Honorable John Shaw, and Charles Francis Adams.

The tour starts at the Adams Academy Building of the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center where transportation to the hill will be provided. Carolers and musicians will perform at the academy, and refreshments will follow the tour.

Flat shoes are preferred for the tour. No cameras are allowed and the homes are not wheelchair accessible. Children over 12 are welcome.

Tickets are $15 in advance, $18 the day of the tour and are available at all Crane branches. For more information, call 376-1301.

USS Nevada: Peal Harbor Survivor And A Real Tough Ship

and Maryland were damaged and dead in the water.

But the Nevada got underway and refused to go down even after being hit by seven or eight bombs and torpedoes.

The Nevada was moored at head of a group of mooring quays known as "battleship row." Her captain and many of the senior officers were ashore. The officer in charge aboard was a reserve lieutenant commander.

It was the practice of the time to leave ships "cold iron," that is, all boilers and engines down, when ships were in port with shore power available.

However, that morning, the Nevada was preparing for engine tests, and had one of her boilers on line. As the attack begin, the lieutenant commander ordered all boilers lit and--muscling every ounce of power from the ship's one boiler--got underway.

Sailors with axes scrambled to cut mooring lines. The chief quartermaster, in an amazing feat of seamanship, managed to steer the Nevada away from the quay into the narrow channel of Pearl Harbor and toward the open sea. All this without tugs or pilot and in the midst of an air attack.

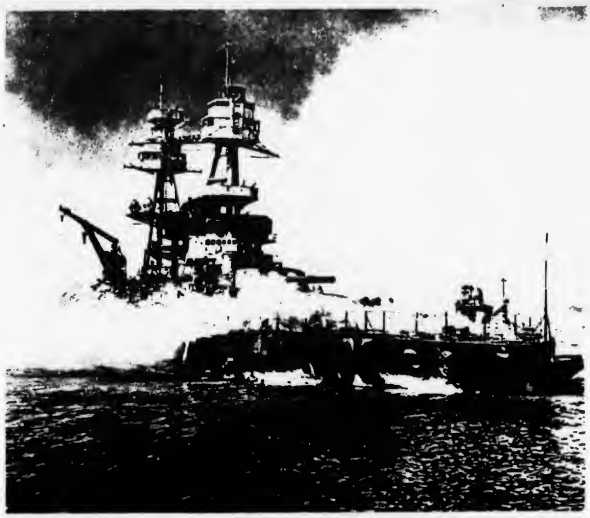
As the Nevada passed abeam of the southwestern point of Ford Island, the water around her erupted in huge geysers from the attack by Japanese dive bombers. She had now become the focus of the attack.

The Nevada emerged with her superstructure on fire and her hull a series of gaping holes. But, she was still underway.

So as not to risk sinking and blocking the channel, she was ordered beached and was deliberately run aground in the shallow water and on the hard sand bottom of a point of land that now bears the name Nevada Point.

The Navy's first oil burning ship and one of the oldest at Pearl Harbor, the Nevada was repaired there and then modernized at the Bremerton shipyard.

And she came back to distinguish herself through the rest of World War II.



She was sent to the Aleutians for short while. Then it was through the Panama Canal to take part in the invasion of France. She then went back to the Pacific for the bloody battles of Iwo Jima, Okinawa and the American occupation of Japan.

In 1946, the Nevada became a "guinea pig" for the Bikini atom bomb tests.

She survived two atomic bomb blasts, gunfire from the 16-inch guns of the battleship Iowa and repeated attacks from Navy dive bombers and torpedo planes. She finally succumbed to a torpedo from one of the latter.

She was a "made in Quincy," a tough old ship, a proud chapter in the annals of the Fore River shipyard.

(Rev. John Swanson is pastor of Union Congregational Church, Wollaston, and a former Navy chaplain.)

THE USS NEVADA under attack by Japanese planes at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

The Casualties At Pearl Harbor

Navy casualties at Pearl Harbor were 2,718-more than 2,000 of them fatal.

The battleship Arizona suffered the heaviest loss in personnel. The bodies of more than 1,100 are still entombed today in the sunken hull of the vessel, now a memorial to all American servicemen killed at Pearl Harbor.

The Army casualties that day were 600, over 200 total.

There were 94 vessels in Pearl Harbor the morning of the attack. Of these, eight were battleships, nine cruisers, 31 destroyers, five submarines and the others, auxiliary ships.

Eighteen of them were damaged or sunk.

All but three of them were eventually repaired and went back into action to help win the war in the Pacific.

Fire Museum, CPSS, Quincy Hospital Big Float Winners

Floats by the Bare Cove Fire Museum, Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, and Quincy Hospital were the big winners in the 46th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade which attracted an estimated 100,000 spectators Sunday.

Children and adults of all ages lined Hancock St. from Quincy Center to North Quincy High School to watch this year's event, which featured more than 80 bands, floats, color guards and specialty units. A Quincy Police Department spokesman estimated the crowd at 100,000.

Grand marshal was 104-year-old Alfred Benedetti of Quincy, the oldest marshal in the parade's history.

Following the parade, an awards ceremony was held at North Quincy High School for the float, band and color guard winners.

The float entered by Hingham's Bare Cove Fire Museum took the grand prize of $1,500 cash and the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy.

Quincy's Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore received the $1,000 first prize for its float.

Quincy Hospital won the Mayor's Trophy for Best Quincy Float.

Other cash winners included floats by Quincy High School, second prize, $750; Woodward School, third prize, $500; Star of the Sea Parish, fourth prize, $250; and Quincy First Night, fifth prize, $250.

Jack Conway Company's float won the commercial category trophy.

Quincy Day Care won the Chairman's Trophy for best specialty float.

The awards ceremony also featured presentations to the top bands and color guards. Band winners included:

•Division I: Pittsfield High School, first place; Bourne High, second place and Lawrence High, third place.

•Division II: Immaculate Heart of Mary, first place; Abington High, second place; Douglas High, third place.

•Division III: Dave Prouty High, first place; North Quincy High, second place. No third place award was given.

•Division IV: New Bedford High was the sole entry.

The Quincy Police Department took first place in the senior color guard category. Other winners were the Ladies VFW, second place; Silver Dolphins, third place; Rockland Police, fourth place; Quincy Fire Department, fifth place; Bryan Post, sixth place and Morrisette Post, seventh place.

Agnes Trillcott of Quincy, who was in charge of costumed characters, received the Christmas Festival Committee Chairman's Award for her work on the parade.

The theme of this year's parade, "The Sights and Sounds of Christmas," was submitted by Ann Lovaas of Scituate who was among those who rode in the event.

QUINCY HOSPITAL won the Mayor's Trophy for Best Quincy Float in Sunday's Christmas Parade for this entry.

SHRINERS ALEPPO TEMPLE had 14 units in this year's Christmas Parade, including this group of old-time cars. (Sun photos/Robert Noble)

America Reads Challenge Celebration At ENC Dec. 8

Work study students from Eastern Nazarene College and Quincy College are reading with Quincy Public Schools students in the America Reads Challenge.

ENC, located at 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, will host a celebration of the tutors, students and their parents Monday, Dec. 8 at 7 p.m.

Six ENC work study students and two Quincy College students are reading after school with children at the Lincoln-Hancock, Beechwood Knoll and Merrymount schools three days a week. They also meet weekly at the Wollaston Library to choose books for the students. In addition, two retired Gillette employees are working with students at the Parker School.

Mary Beth Anglin, director, has arranged for children in the Quincy After School Day Care program to meet with their tutor for a half-hour each day.

Leslie Sandler, who is supervising the Quincy College students, has arranged for them to meet with Julie Rines at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

At the Dec. 8 program, Julie Rines will read to the children and turors will be recognized for their work in the America Reads program.

DR. DANIEL KARP of Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore in Quincy recently spent three weeks studying at the Xi Yuan Hospital in Beijing, China. With him at right is Dr. Xu Hongtao.

Dr. Daniel Karp Studies In China

Daniel Karp, licensed acupuncturist of Acupuncture Associates of the South Shore in Quincy, recently spent nearly three weeks in Beijing, China observing and studying traditional Chinese medicine at the Xi Yuan Hospital.

The hospital, located near the Summer Palace, is the oldest and largest research-based hospital for Chinese medicine in China. It specializes in traditional Chinese medicine and bears the national tasks of research, teaching, and health care services. The hospital has over 80 teaching professors who speak various languages.

Karp had the opportunity to see and practice acupuncture in an inpatient hospital for chronic or intractable pain, post-stroke paralysis, and other disabling disorders. Acupuncture was used in conjunction with Chinese herbs, massage, and Qi Gong exercises designed to make the patient feel less stressful and more at peace with himself and his place in the universe.

Karp also observed and treated people on an outpatient basis at the hospital. They came in for such problems as migraine headaches, TMJ, trigeminal neuralgia, low back pain, tendonitis, bursitis, and arthritis, along with may other conditions.

The outpatient clinic would handle as many as 10 different acupuncture treatments at the same time. While that was going on, there would sometimes be as many as 30 patients waiting in the corridor for their turn. The treatments would last 20 minutes, and patients would return daily until their problems were cured. Cost per treatment was 16 cents.

In addition, Karp had the opportunity to witness the removal of a gallbladder with only acupuncture used an anesthesia.

"The patient was completely comfortable and was able to leave the hospital later in the day," said Karp.

Qi Gong exercises are practices to increase the circulation of energy in the human body. They are designed to make people feel peaceful, relaxed, and free from stress. Chinese medicine is above all preventive medicine, and Qi Gong is emphasized for the well-being of the body and spirit of the people.

Every morning at sunrise, Karp got up with patients and practiced the Qi Gong exercises with them. The exercises are not just done by hospital patients; Qi Gong is a way of life for millions of Chinese people.

Chinese herbal medicine is an integral part of traditional Chinese medicine and herbal remedies were filled at the hospital pharmacy. Tuina, a Chinese form of massage, is also a prominent part of the Chinese medical treatment at Xi Yuan Hospital.

Karp said many difference are noticeable between the medical treatment of the Western culture and that offered in the Eastern tradition.

"This was an enlightening experience," he said. "I believe that there is certainly a place for traditional Chinese medicine in our own culture. This three-week experience confirmed my belief that combinations of both cultures afford patients excellent treatment and care."

Montclair-Wollaston Assn. Holiday Social, MBTA Meeting

The Montclair/-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet today (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at Work Inc., 3 Arlington St.

New Officers are, Kevin Coughlin, president; Greg Newton, vice president; Dick Rawson, secretary and Howard Crowley, treasurer.

The meeting will feature a holiday social with entertainment provided by students from the Montclair and Wollaston Schools under the direction of Quincy Public Schools musical instrument instructor Richard Striano.

In addition, Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott has invited Mark Dickinson and Robert Walsh, partners in Technology Park Associates, to discuss their proposed development at the North Quincy MBTA station. The project, still in its early stages, will add 500 parking spaces and 265,000 square feet of commercial office and retail space to the area.

McDermott has expressed concerns that the development will affect the traffic flow along West Squantum St. and has requested more traffic analysis and mitigation to meet the needs of the Montclair/North Quincy community.

Those invited to attend include State Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Michael Bellotti, Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath.

Candlelight Vigil In Quincy Center

The Quincy Center Candlelight Vigil II will be held Saturday, Dec. 13 from 4 to 6 p.m.

Participants should meet at the public lot opposite Quincy District Court. The vigil will be held outside of United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The event is being held in recognition of the thousands of children who will not see their parents, grandparents and/or other relatives because of the use of protective orders as by overly strict visitation orders. Participants are asked to bring warm clothing, candles, or flashlights for the children.

Santa and Mrs. Claus will be in attendance. Rain date is Dec. 20. For more information, call 376-9987.

Red Cross To Offer Infant, Child CPR Course

The American Red Cross, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will offer an Infant and Child CPR Course Tuesdays, Dec. 9 and 16 from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m.

The course will offer information on how to help a child that may be choking has stopped breathing or is in cardiac arrest and may need CPR.

Cost is $47. To register, call 770-2600.

Public Hearings Scheduled For New Underground Electric Cables

The Massachusetts Energy Facilities Siting Board and the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities have scheduled two public hearings.

The purpose of the public hearings is to receive public comments on the underground electric cable project proposed by Massachusetts Electric and its affiliate New England Power.

Both state agencies need to approve Massachusetts Electric's project before any construction can begin.

The electric cables will connect Boston Edison's Dewar Street substation with Massachusetts Electric's and New England Power's North Quincy substation. The distance is about 3.5 miles. Two routes have been identified for the cables (see map).

The new underground cables primarily will improve the reliability of the electric supply in Quincy by providing a second source of electric power. The new cables also could be used to support the electric needs of Dorchester.

NQHS Advances To State Academic Decathlon Finals

Nine students from North Quincy High School advanced to the statewide finals of the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon recently by competing against more than 185 students from 21 schools at a regional competition held in Franklin.

The students will spend the next few months studying the theme "Globalization of the New Economy" in preparation for the statewide finals in March, where they will compete against 15 other Bay State teams for a chance to represent Massachusetts in the U.S. Academic Decathlon.

The nine students are: seniors Doha Aboubakr, Derrick Almond, Jeff Marks, Chi Pham and Nawal Saffarini; juniors Rubin Garcia, Michael Spencer and Shirley Wu; and freshman Jamie Kettleson.

The students teams have been preparing for the event since the start of the school year.

The winner of the statewide competition, to be held March 7 at Wellesley High School, will represent Massachusetts at the U.S. Academic Decathlon in Providence, R.I. in April.

Participating high schools each entered a team of nine students from Grades 9 through 12, including three "A" (3.75-4.0 GPA) students, three "B" (3.00-3.74 GPA) students and three "C" (0.00-2.99 GPA) students, with each team member competing with students of the same grade level in all events.

Besides North Quincy High, teams that will compete in the statewide competition are: Acton-Boxborough, Austin Prep (Reading), Cambridge Ringe and Latin, Framingham, Franklin, Granby, Hopkinton, Lexington, North Reading, Pittsfield, St. John's (Shrewsbury), Walpole, Waltham, Wellesley and Weymouth.

The coordinator of the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon is the Massachusetts Secondary School Administrators' Association (MSSAA), the oldest educational association in the United States.

Making life better is our life's work.™

We're happy to say our test results have come back positive.

Sheets Plans 18 More Spaces At Hancock Parking Lot

Mayor James Sheets is hoping to have 18 more parking spaces at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center by the end of next week.

Sheets, after consulting with Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, said that late next week is a realistic goal for the spaces, which are being added following the demolition of an old comfort station in the lot earlier this year.

The mayor said the work, which will include putting down some subgrade, blacktopping, painting of white lines and the addition of bumpers, will likely be done by Derbes Bros. of Quincy although he was not sure at press time.

Bernie Reisberg Elected President Mass. Harbormasters Assn.

Bernie Reisberg of Quincy was elected president of the Massachusetts Harbormasters Association at an organization meeting Monday night.

Reisberg, a Quincy Point native who now lives in the Merrymount section of the city, has served as Harbormaster for the City of Quincy and treasurer of the Association for the past 14 years. He has been in the Harbormasters department for 25 years.

"I'm quite proud that my peers throughout the state found the confidence in me to represent them," said Reisberg, who was elected to the post by a nomination committee.

BERNIE REISBERG

The Association is a legislative and educational organization for all Harbormasters. Reisberg and a number of other Harbormasters recently completed a rigid nine-week training program called Mass. Harbormaster Academy.

In addition to his Harbormaster duties, Reisberg also serves on the Governor's Boating Safety Advisory Board with the Environmental Police.

A Quincy businessman for 50 years, Reisberg is the owner of Bernie's Formal Shop, located at 1586 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

He served three terms as president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and remains a board member.

City To Receive $50,000 Grant For Cemetery

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin announce that Quincy will receive a $50,000 Historical Landscape Preservation Grant.

The grant will be used for the replacement of trees at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

"The grant process in 1997 was extremely competitive, with 73 applications requesting a total of nearly $3 million," said Tobin.

"Only 18 proposals were selected for a total of $523,700 in grant awards," added Bellotti, "one of which was Quincy's proposal for the cemetery."

The program has $1 million to be allocated as a grant over a two-year period.

"The grant is in the first of a two-year pilot program funded by the Department of Environmental Management (DEM) in cooperation with the Historical Landscape Preservation Grant Program," said Morrissey.

The Historical Landscape Preservation Grant Program is responsible for reviewing a grant proposal and administration of funds.

"The goal of the grant program is for the restoring and preserving historical parks and landscapes in both urban and rural communities," said Mariano.

The legislative delegation pledged to continue to work and support valuable conservation, environmental and historical preservation programs.

Peter Ehrlich Completes Mediterranean Deployment

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Peter J. Ehrlich, a 1993 graduate of Quincy High School, has completed a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Hue City.

Ehrlich is one of more than 350 sailors aboard the ship, which departed its homeport of Mayport, Fla., in April as part of the USS John F. Kennedy Battle Group.

During the deployment, Ehrlich's ship participated in multinational exercises which were designed to test air, surface and subsurface capabilities.

Ehrlich visited several ports of call including France, Greece, Israel, Italy and Spain. In addition, sailors from Ehrlich's ship participated in community outreach projects in the host communities.

Ehrlich joined the Navy in November 1993.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

HITTING ON A NERVE

Some kinds of pain, you just can't ignore. A case in point occurs when a nerve under the weight-bearing part of the foot becomes pinched or trapped between skin and bone over a period of time, resulting in a protective growth called a neuroma. This thickened nerve typically will eventually grow to press on nearby bones, resulting in the symptoms described variously as burning, stabbing, pins-and-needles, cramping, or shooting pain. Unlike a passing muscle cramp, the discomfort of a neuroma does not cause the toes to change position. While neuromas can be terribly painful, effective home treatment, a change in footwear, and possible use of orthotics (prescription inserts) can often relieve the condition.

P.S. Neur means "nerve," and oma means "tumor," but a neuroma is actually a thickening of nerve tissue, not a true tumor.

Do you have any pain in your foot? As podiatrists, we handle a full range of foot care. We look forward to meeting with you and to making you more comfortable. Any other foot problem such as ingrown toenails, corns, or calluses should also be treated by a professional. Remember your feet need attention every once in awhile just like your teeth, your eyes and the rest of our body. Our office located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

Candlelight Christmas Concerts At ENC

The Eastern Nazarene College A Cappella Choir and Madrigal Singers will present their annual Candelight Christmas concerts Friday, Dec. 12 and Saturday, Dec. 13 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 14 at 4 p.m.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the Cove Box Office at 745-3715 or by sending a check or money order to: Candlelight Christmas, Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

The Candlelight concerts feature Christmas music as well as classical arrangements that celebrate the Holy Nativity. This year marks the choir's 60th Diamond Anniversary Celebration.

The A Cappella Choir tours regularly, presenting concerts for the congregations of many different churches. The choir presented a special concert at Boston's historic Jordan Hall this past spring.

The Madrigal Singers, an honors ensemble of the choir, perform selections from the chamber literature. In January, the Madrigals toured England, Wales, Ireland, Scotland and France, making appearances in Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral of London.

The Candlelight Christmas performances will be held in the Lahue Center of Eastern Nazarene College. Tickets are $6, $5 for students and $4 each for groups of 20. For more information or tickets, call 745-3715.

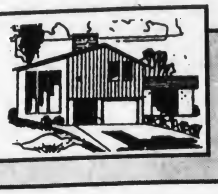
Ayers Collecting Toys For Drive

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers announces he will be collecting and distributing toys for his annual toy drive.

Anyone wishing to participate in the drive should contact Ayers at 472-9877 or feel free to drop off toys at his place of business at 440 East Squantum St. or at the Atlantic or Squantum Community Centers.

Ayers has been working with Barbara Arnold, Grade 3 teacher at Squantum Elementary School during the past few years on the annual toy drive.



Deadline for donating names and/or toys will be Dec. 19.

Multi-Family Home Sales Up

Sales of two-, three-, and four-family homes rose 1 percent in Massachusetts during the third quarter of 1997, increasing from 1,500 units closed in the three months from July to September 1996 to 1,514 in the same period this year, according to data compiled by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

The increase marks the ninth consecutive quarter in which multi-family home sales have improved in the Bay State over the same period one year earlier.

"The multi-family market has continued to perform remarkably well this summer, despite the fact low-interest rates and healthy inventory levels have pushed home sales in the single-family market to near record levels," said MAR President Richard Dils. "Two-family properties are especially popular right now, particularly among first-time buyers looking for alternatives to today's high-priced, low vacancy rental market."

Steady sales growth occurred in the Central, South Shore and Cape Cod and the Islands regions during the third quarter of 1997, while sales were essentially flat in the Greater Boston and Northeast regions and declined by 9 percent in the West and Southeast regions versus the same period last year.

On the Cape and Islands, activity doubled over the past year from 8 percent sales in the third quarter of 1996 to 17 percent in the same quarter this year. Additionally, sales on the South Shore rose 35 percent between the third quarters of 1996 and 1997, and improved 31 percent in the Central region during the comparable period.

The MAR report also found the total dollar volume for multi-family homes sales decreased 13.1 percent in the third quarter, slipping from $201,656,820 one year ago to $175,312,490 in 1997. Since price comparisons are not available for two-, three- and four-family homes separately, this decline in dollar volume suggests a great number of smaller, two-family homes sold in the third quarter this year versus 1996, rather than being an indication of any measurable decline in value.

"The multi-family market is proving to be a great entry point into home ownership for many first-time buyers who need some extra income to meet the monthly mortgage payment," Dils said. "Investors, too, will be drawn into the market in the months to come as the phase-out of rent control and passage of a lower capital gains tax rate take full effect."

Charter School Students Studying Habitat Project

A group of students from the South Shore Charter School in Hull are studying South Shore Habitat's Granite Village project, a 10-home neighborhood that will be built in Quincy beginning in December.

The site is located behind Roche Bros. on Bower Road in Quincy Point.

Approximately 15 students are studying income demographics and housing needs in the area, the technical aspects of designing and building a house, and the process of raising money to make it all happen, among other topics. Aside from the classroom work, the students will be on site helping to build a home with a Quincy family in need.

Construction of the first three of the 10 homes is expected to begin in December, and the students will work with Habitat throughout the process.

South Shore Habitat is a non-profit, ecumenical Christian ministry dedicated to building decent, simple homes in partnership with South Shore families in need. To date, the group has built 14 homes throughout the South Shore.

Lisa Johnson Asst. Property Manager At Grossman Companies

Lisa J. Johnson of Quincy has been promoted to assistant property manager for The Grossman Companies Inc., a commercial real estate management and development company based in Quincy.

The announcement was made by Louis J. Grossman, company president and Ted Arend, property manager.

Johnson, who has been with the company for five years, will have overall property management responsibility for two of the company's South Shore buildings: the 60,000-square-foot Quincy Granite Place retail shopping plaza that is home to TJ Maxx, The Big Party, and Boston Market, among others; and 240 Ivory St., a 38,000-square-foot retail/office building that houses Dunkin Donuts, the National Check Protection Service and other tenants. She has a commercial real estate license and has studied business administration at Fisher College.

Johnson is in her eighth year with the Army National Guard where she is a staff sergeant responsible for coordinating training requirements at the Mass. Army Regional Training Institute (MARTI) at Camp Edwards. While in the Army, she was stationed at the Pentagon, then spent three years in Panama as secretary to the Commanding General of the U.S. Southern Command.

Earlier this year, she helped organize the Grossman team that participated in the Great Mass. Getaway 150-mile bike ride to raise money to fight multiple sclerosis. The team was one of the top 10 fundraisers in the event.

The Grossman Companies owns and manages a portfolio of 35 office, retail, residential and industrial properties in five states.

Late TD Run Sparks Presidents To Fourth Straight Win Over NQ

'Dream' Comes True For DoRosario, Quincy

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Sparingly used offensively, Nathan DoRosario made the most of his opportunity to carry the ball and the Quincy High School football team on his shoulders.

With 45 seconds left, DoRosario bounced off a defender and scored on a 1-yard touchdown run, lifting Quincy to a memorable 7-0 Thanksgiving Day win over North Quincy before a packed house at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

After scoring his first touchdown of the season, DoRosario said, "I can't explain how I feel right now. I prayed we'd win, that's all. This is everyone's dream, to win the game."

A junior running back who also plays nose guard, DoRosario raced 32 yards on a key third and six play to give Quincy a first down at North's 13-yard line. North senior defensive back Jay Turner, DoRosario's cousin, saved a sure touchdown by knocking DoRosario out of bounds.

Quincy senior tailback Shaun Faherty (16 carries, 64 yards) lost a yard on the next play, then eluded tacklers for a 13-yard run down to the 1, setting up DoRosario (four carries, 42 yards) for the winning score.

"Nathan broke that long run, and we felt he'd be a good runner in these (windy) conditions," said Quincy head coach Peter Chella, who improved his record to 3-0 on Thanksgiving. "He's about 5-6, 190 pounds and all muscle. He is very hard to bring down."

Not about to lay down and die, the Red Raiders put together a solid drive of their own but came up short on the game's final play.

Junior quarterback Chris Bregoli (6-for-12, 81 yards) connected on four of six passes on the drive, including a 12-yarder to tailback Turner, a pair of passes to senior wide receiver Mark Stanton for 26 yards.

A penalty against Quincy (4-4 Old Colony League, 5-5 overall) gave North (3-5, 4-6) a first down at Quincy's 17 with just 11 seconds to play. Looking for Stanton in the end zone, Bregoli lofted a pass that was knocked away by President senior defensive back Bryan Dunn.

That left North with one final chance with five seconds left. Unable to find an open receiver in the end zone, Bregoli tossed a short pass to senior tight end Frank McNamara, who lateraled the ball to keep the play alive. The ball was fumbled around and eventually recovered by Quincy as time ran out.

"This was a tough one," said North Quincy head coach Ken McPhee, whose team hasn't won on Thanksgiving since 1993. "We played real well defensively but couldn't do much offensively. We had a little spark at the end, but it wasn't enough to get it done.

"We're getting a little tired of the same old same old. It's starting to grate on us. You have to give Quincy credit; they played hard and for some reason seem to own this game. Next year, we'll have another shot. The good thing is this (rivalry) will go on forever."

Earlier in the fourth quarter, before Quincy scored the game's only touchdown, NQ took over on its own 32 and moved the ball deep into Quincy territory. Bregoli opened the drive with a 25-yard pass over the middle to senior wing back Matt Kane, followed by a 12-yard run by Turner (16 carries, 49 yards) and a holding penalty on Quincy.

Two short runs by Turner set up a third and six at Quincy's 22. Fading back to pass, Bregoli was sacked for a 10-yard loss by DoRosario, setting up a fourth and long scenario. After NQ decided to go for it, Bregoli barely avoided the rush of senior defensive lineman Dan Nichol and found senior fullback Mike Powers (14 carries, 50 yards) for a 16-yard gain and a first down.

Two incomplete passes, a short run by Turner and a delay of game penalty resulted in another fourth and long situation for North. This time, the Raiders opted for the field goal attempt by Powers, but the kick was blocked by senior Steve Maze and recovered by senior Jim Quigley at Quincy's 40.

Neither team managed much offense in the first half as North punted three times and Quincy committed three turnovers.

Quincy's first miscue, a fumble by senior quarterback Kevin Moore (8 carries, 37 yards) was recovered by Powers at his own 28. On their next possession, the Presidents took over at the Raiders' 33, but on the first play, Moore was intercepted by Kane, who leaped into the air and came down with the ball at his own 12.

Again, North's offense could not get a first down and had to kick the ball away. A time-consuming, nine-play drive by Quincy screeched to a halt when Faherty fumbled the ball at

Car owners who believe that the poor condition of roads in their area pose a threat to the condition of their automobiles are not alone. According to a study recently released by two public interest groups, deteriorating roadways are a widespread problem that takes its toll on cars. According to researchers at the Surface Transportation Policy Project, which sponsored the study in conjunction with the Environmental Working Group, American car owners spend $4.77 billion each year on shocks, wheel alignments, wheels, tires, and other repairs. That dollar amount is nearly four times the amount of $1.3 billion that state highway departments spend each year on road repairs. Most of their time and money goes into building new roads.

HINT: If bad roads are a problem in your area, be sure to have your car's suspension components checked on a regular basis.

The Curse Of Chella

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Well, it's happened again.

Last week, and for the third consecutive year, the Quincy High School Presidents won a game they shouldn't have on Thanksgiving Day, defeating the North Quincy High School Red Raiders, 7-0. And I think I know why.

It's the Curse of Chella.

Confused? Well, let me explain.

Quincy has actually won four consecutive Turkey Day contests, but the last time the Presidents won outright was in 1994, when they defeated the Raiders, 21-14. A well-played game on both sides, it was the last hurrah for former Quincy coach Jack Raymer.

In 1995, Pete Chella, one of Raymer's assistants, took over the reins as Quincy's head coach. And since then, Quincy has racked up a 3-0 record against North, although the way they've done it has been downright eerie, with more than a little luck helping their cause.

Let's have a look back:

1995: Sometimes a team can completely outplay its opponent and still lose. North led, 7-6, with the fourth quarter virtually over. The Raiders had dominated both the game and the clock, preventing Quincy from executing what would have been a go-ahead two-point conversion in the process. Yet one long (and yes, lucky) pass play set up Tim Santos' field goal with 13 seconds left as the Presidents won, 9-7.

1996: Sometimes a clearly superior team can play a weaker opponent and still lose. The Red Raiders, 7-2 on the season prior to its game with the Presidents, went up against a Quincy team that sported a nifty 3-6 record going into the Thanksgiving Day matchup. The Raiders' offense featured Brian Walsh, who rushed for nearly 2,000 yards on the season and is a lock for the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame. But two unbelievable (almost supernatural) plays by Andrew Byrne, younger brother of former Quincy Sun sportswriter Kerry Byrne, sparked the Presidents to victory. The younger Byrne took the opening kickoff 68 yards to the North 12-yard line--setting up the Presidents' first score--and then returned a third-quarter punt 85 yards for the winning touchdown. Quincy won, 12-7.

PETE CHELLA
Practices Voodoo?

1997: Sometimes neither team deserves to win and yet one can still lose. North and Quincy both played like the 4-5 teams they were, with neither squad owning a true advantage. North didn't move the ball that well; Quincy, only a bit better, turned it over almost every time they did. Yet somehow, a 32-yard gain on one rushing play (need I mention that it was lucky, again?) brought the ball to the North 13-yard line and ultimately set up a Quincy touchdown from the 1-yard line with less than a minute left in the game. (Nathan DoRosario, known primarily as a defensive player, had both the game-breaking play and the score.) That broke a scoreless tie and Quincy won, 7-0. The Presidents had four turnovers and did not complete a pass in the game.

This is getting out-and-out bizarre. The last three years should have resulted in two North wins and a tie, yet there have been three Quincy victories. And even some Quincy alumni have confided to me that they think last year's victory was a complete joke.

So there's only one explanation: Chella has cursed the Red Raiders. Call it black magic, voodoo, whatever you like. There's no other way he could be possibly be 3-0 lifetime as a head coach against North. You know it, and I know it.

What, then, is the solution? Obviously, North coach Ken McPhee has to invest some money in a book of spells so he can work some magic of his own. I'm as much of a sportsman as anyone else but, Good Lord, the Curse of Chella has got to be broken.

[Assistant Editor Michael Whalen, a 1985 graduate of North Quincy High School, was a little disappointed with the result of this year's Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day game.]

North's 5, recovered by Turner shortly before the half.

Late in the third quarter, North senior defensive back Manny Vasquez picked off a Moore pass, but the Red Raiders could not capitalize and punted the ball for the sixth time.

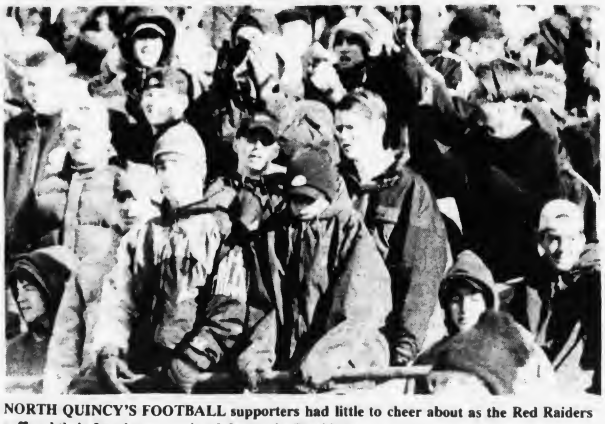
The Presidents, who now lead the series 32-27-5, became the first team to win four straight Thanksgiving games since Quincy claimed five in a row from 1954 to 1958.

Including the most recent victory, Quincy has won the past four showdowns by a combined score of 49-28, though each game was decided by seven or fewer points.

"I thought our luck would run out, but we managed to hang on," said Chella. "Winning this game is always the big thing."

Quincy senior lineman Steve Wiltshire, who never experienced a Thanksgiving Day loss in his high school career, was thrilled to end his playing days with a triumph over North.

"To win this game in my senior year is tremendous," he said. "We worked hard for four years and it's great to go out like this."



TAKING THE HANDOFF from quarterback Chris Bregoli (14) is senior fullback Mike Powers, who rushed for 50 yards against Quincy.

QUINCY SENIOR TAILBACK Shaun Faherty, who rushed for 64 yards against North Quincy, tucks the ball away as he finds some running room.

QUINCY FOOTBALL FANS showed their appreciation for the Presidents' effort during their fourth straight triumph over the Red Raiders.

NORTH QUINCY'S FOOTBALL supporters had little to cheer about as the Red Raiders suffered their fourth consecutive defeat to the Presidents.

Bobby Orr At Opening Of Renovated Shea Rink

Former Boston Bruins great Bobby Orr helped celebrate the opening of the newly renovated William T. Shea Memorial Ice Rink on Willard St. last Saturday.

Orr, a member of the National Hockey League's Hall of Fame, signed autographs for Quincy Youth Hockey players.

Joining Orr at the opening were state Sen. Michael Morrissey, state Rep. Michael Bellotti, Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) Commissioner David Balfour and MDC Recreation Director Gary Doak.

The MDC, which manages the 35-year-old rink, has applied over $500,000 in improvements to Shea over the last few years. The money came from a state bond bill.

Among the renovations were four new locker rooms, a new entrance and new boards. The playground outside the rink also was rebuilt.

The MDC is completing other improvements to the rink, including a new Zamboni room, hot water boiler, gas line, microprocessor and dehumidifier.

Also, two dilapidated tennis courts outside the rink will be converted to street hockey and basketball courts in the spring.

Imran Moin (goal, assist) led a long list of scorers for The Quincy Sun in an 8-3 triumph over Burgin Platner.

Adding a goal apiece for the winners were Eddie Laura, Matt Quigley, Paul McLean, Jason Amato and John McClintock, while Ryan O'Keefe dished out three assists, Mike MacPherson and Jim Callahan each chipped in two assists and Pat Mullen, Dan Reggiannini and Kevin Nee each collected an assist. For BP, Matt Tobin notched a hat trick, Joe Sweeney had two assists and Brendan Clifford and Bryan Donelin each dished out an assist.

Justin Thorley's six-point performance (hat trick, three assists) propelled M. Sugarman to an 8-3 win over Keohane's.

Other big scorers for Sugarman were Mike McKeon (two goals, three assists), Paul Fasoli (three assists) and Eric Kenney (two goals), while Bobby Newcomb scored a goal and Cory Bythrow, Katelyn Nee, Jake McQuinn and Dennis Magaldi each had an assist. Goal scorers for Jonathan O'Connor, Mike Giordani and Ryan Barter, with three assists from Brendan Mulcahy and one assist from Matt Giordani.

Mite A's Fall

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A's, sponsored by Rep. Michael Bellotti, lost tough battles to Belmont, Triboro and Wellesley.

Last Saturday, the A's fell to Belmont, 7-3, despite a solid effort in net by goaltender Frankie "France-Roy" Sorrento. Johnny "Big John" McInnis paced Quincy with two goals, while Jimmy Fitzpatrick added a goal and an assist and Dana Lopes chipped in an assist.

In earlier action, a hat trick by Fitzpatrick was not enough as the A's fell to Triboro, 7-6. Other offensive standouts for the A's were Jonathan Conso (goal, two assists), Tom Pasquantonio (goal, assist), Stephen McDonagh (goal), McInnis (two assists) and Lopes, Teddy "Ballgame" Walsh, Brian Sullivan and Chris Rooney (one assist apiece).

In a 7-5 loss to Wellesley, Quincy's McInnis popped in four goals and Fitzpatrick and Walsh each dished out two assists. Joey Canavan added a goal and Lopes collected an assist for the A's.

Squirt A's Knock Off Triboro, 4-1

In a battle of unbeatens, the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's faced Triboro and came away with a a 4-1 victory.

The A's, sponsored by Quincy Firefighters, improved to 6-0-1. The loss dropped Triboro to 6-1.

Scoring for the A's was the Paydirt line of Kevin "Mr. Yes" Richardson (two goals, two assists), Matt "Snipes" Tobin (goal, assist) and "Big Mike" McKeon (goal, two assists).

Coach Richardson was quick to point out this was a total team effort, as the solid backchecking of "Super Dave" Oronte, Jonathan O'Connor, Brendan Clifford, Alex Shaffer, Justin Thorley and Paul McLean frustrated the Triboro forwards.

Once Triboro entered Quincy's zone, they were met by Quincy talented blue liners: Matt "Flash" Haskins, Andrew "The Iron Duke" Patten, Paul "Tomahawk" Fasoli, Paul "Crusher" Noonan, Paul "Rock" Graham and Pat "Stonewall" Malone.

Though Triboro was able to mount several forays through this formidable defense, A's goaltender Pat "The Toaster" Maloney played his finest game of the year between the pipes, continually frustrating Triboro's forwards.

ENC Men's Volleyball Team Captures First Tourney Win

The Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team picked up its first tournament win of the season with a victory over Boston University.

Four former North Quincy High School players start for the Crusaders: Mat Groom, Bob Johnston, Jim Rendle and Mike Johnston, all of whom were Boston Globe All-Scholastic players at North.

Other members of the team are: Ryan Andrews, Jeff Ayres, Joe Eynon, Jeff Judd, Rob McEwan, Darrin Parry, J.R. Polson, Andy Rohrbaugh, Phil Rotz, Steve Spangenberg, Jay Spencer and Dan Wybomey.

In the first game of the tournament, ENC drew Boston College, one of the tournament favorites. However, the Crusaders rolled over BC, 15-5, 15-7, and moved on with victories over UMass-Lowell, University of Rhode Island and Stonehill in pool play.

The semifinals started out a little shaky for ENC, which lost the first game to Tufts. The Crusaders roared back with 15-10 and 15-8 victories to seal the win.

In the championship match, ENC's offense was too much for BU to handle as the Crusaders went on to win, 15-7, 15-12.

Crusaders coach Derek Schmitt has an optimistic outlook as his team prepares for upcoming tournaments at ENC and BC.

Quincy's Janis Deagle Finishes Sixth At Ariat National Adult Medal Finals

Janis Deagle of Quincy placed sixth in the prestigious 1997 Ariat National Adult Medal Finals recently held at the Capital Challenge Horse Show in Washington, D.C.

The finals were comprised of 30 riders representing 16 states who came from as far away as Texas, Colorado and California.

Deagle qualified for the finals by placing 12th in the Ariat national point standings for the 1997 program year.

Deagle, who has been riding for eight years, trains with Carl Catani and Abby Greer at River Wind Farm in Pembroke. During the 1997 show season, Deagle rode her horse, Woodstock, a 17-year-old chestnut Hanovarian, to qualify. Deagle, whose future plans include becoming a riding instructor, is a student at Quincy College.

John O'Brien New Probation Commissioner Of Trial Court

John J. O'Brien of Quincy has been appointed commissioner of probation for the Massachusetts Trial Court effective Jan. 1, announces Chief Justice for Administration and Management John J. Irwin, Jr.

O'Brien will succeed Donald Cochran who is retiring.

As commissioner of probation, O'Brien will be responsible for supervising probation services throughout the state.

"I look forward to expanding those programs that have been the most effective in the area of community supervision and also have proven very effective in the enforcement of special conditions of probation and the supervision of high risk offenders," he said.

O'Brien currently is the executive director of the Office of Community Corrections where he has been developing a statewide program of community corrections, working in consultation with the Massachusetts Sentencing Commissioner, the Department of Correction, the Parole Board and the county sheriffs.

"The probation service in the immediate future is facing the challenge of getting probation officers into the community to effect closer and more frequent supervision of probationers, and, at the same time, developing uniform standards for scheduling judicial hearings for probation violators," Irwin said. "Mr. O'Brien possesses the knowledge and experience, as well as the professionalism, to accomplish these and other initiatives to keep the probation service at a level of performance that assures the public safety and addresses the needs of those offenders placed on probation."

O'Brien has served more than 15 years as a line probation officer and as an assistant chief probation officer in Boston. He has also served as regional coordinator for the Superior Court and as coordinator of Intergovernmental Relations for the Administrative Office of the Trial Court.

A Boston native, O'Brien is married to Laurie Haines O'Brien. They have three children, Genevieve, 15; Kelly Rose, 14; and Brenna, age 11.

O'Brien graduated from Boston College in 1979 with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology.

SHOOFITZ & WEAR IT recently opened for business at 127 L Street, South Boston. Curry Hardware To Go Online

Robert Curry who has three Curry Ace Hardware locations on the South Shore, says he is bringing his company into the 21st century, setting up shop on the World Wide Web and searching eastern Massachusetts for a new "superstore" location.

ROBERT CURRY

Curry recently announced the opening of HomeTownStores.com, a new buying market offering more than 100,000 items on the Internet. Located on the World Wide Web at HomeTownStores.com, he said the site will be up and running in early 1998.

"If someone wants a special piece of equipment, why should that customer have to go 40, 50 miles to get it when you can just order through your computer?," Curry said. "We picture this becoming much bigger than all of our stores."

Principals of the new venture are Curry, his son Sean, who is also a partner in Curry Ace Hardware and Mark Vassalli, who runs Curry Ace Hardware's West Quincy location.

Sean Curry said the web site will start off with three separate "stores," one for hardware, another for telephones and a third for casters, the small wheels mainly used for the bottoms of office furniture. The hardware store will carry about 45,000 items, as opposed to the average Curry Ace Hardware store, which has an inventory of about 5,000. The site will run off of a complex database that has taken two years to complete.

"This will be a completely interactive site," said Vassalli. "Here at HomeTownStores.com, we're open for shopping all the time."

Vassalli added that HomeTownStores.com will be expandable, accepting links or offering products from businesses that cannot afford to take the plunge into on-line retailing.

Sean Curry said the web site will be different from the usual "cybermall" counterparts found on the web today, which bombard the senses to give a sleek look.

"This is for the average consumer," he said. "It's going to have a hometown feel to it."

Robert Curry also is looking to expand his retail business that exists outside of cyberspace, looking at property on the South Shore and the North Shore to set up a 12,000-square-foot store, at least three times the size of any of his current locations.

To help with his business expansion, he has sold his store on Billings Road on North Quincy, the only one of his locations where he did not own the property. Curry's other two stores at 370 Copeland St. in West Quincy and 190 Quincy Ave. in Braintree will remain open.

Cheney Proposes New 10-Story Height

lar plan in the past, added that any project that does not properly address parking needs will be rejected by the City Council. The proposal calls for any project currently allowed under Business "C" zoning to be approved as long as a special council permit is granted.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and Michael Kenealy of Key Realty both spoke in favor of Cheney's proposal at Monday night's meeting.

Cheney also proposed Monday night the increase in the height limitation of structures in Industrial "B" zoning from four to eight stories. The limitation used to be 10 stories but was subsequently reduced in the 1987 after the citizens task force recommendations, and Cheney said the extra space is now needed for economic development.

Quincy 2000's Mannarino also spoke in favor of that proposal.

Cheney's proposals will be voted on by the council at a later date.

Beechwood Center Music School Staff Increased

The Music School at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, has increased its staff by two.

Greg Mag, professional music educator and drummer in the band M3, has joined the music school faculty as drum instructor.

Mag, a graduate of Boston University, has been teaching professionally since 1989. He has studied with Gary Chaffe, Alan Dawson, Tommy Campbell and Alan Hall and has performed with other bands besides M3.

In addition, violinist and music educator Kerstin Westerburg has returned from Germany and resumed instruction at the Music School.

Westerburg, a Quincy resident, teaches violin to all ages at the center. Previously, she has run a violin studio and taught music in Germany, taught a summer program featuring chamber music for children and teens, and performed in professional orchestras and chamber music groups in the United States and abroad.

She holds a teaching degree from Germany, a performance degree from the Mozarteum in Austria, and a master's degree in performance from the United States.

A Thought For The Week

It's not a choice most people like to think about, but the selection of a funeral home is a key decision for a family in bereavement. Nothing can erase the loss of a loved one, but it eases the burden when the arrangements are carried out by trained professionals who are sensitive to the needs and concerns of bereaved people. Many people now make such choices by electing to purchase per-need plans.

We invite you to learn more about the thoughtful advantages of pre-planning and funding the funeral service. Our pre-arrangement literature will be helpful to you, as well as those close to you. In quiet privacy, we shall be pleased to provide informed counsel and attentive answers concerning pre-arrangement.

Any discussion is in the strictest of confidence and under no obligation, of course...

Please Join With Us And Help Decorate The Fourth Annual Deware Funeral Home Holiday Memorial Tree

Bring an ornament to put on our tree in memory of a loved one. For each ornament put on the tree, The Deware Funeral Home will make a donation to a local charity. This year our charity is the Esther Sanger Center for Compassion (formerly Quincy Crisis Center). If you do not have an ornament, we will provide a holiday ribbon for you to place on the tree.

"Everyone Is Welcome"

You can place an ornament on the Holiday Memorial Tree at The Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock Street, Wollaston.

Council Approves Tax Rate Increases

$141,000 increased from $2,049 to $2,105.

Under the new rates, business owners will pay about 33 percent of Quincy's tax levy of $85.3 million. As was the case last year, the city opted to tax CIPP at 169 percent of the levy which is less than the maximum of 175 percent required under state law.

Homeowners will pay about 67 percent of the levy, despite the fact that residential property accounts for about 78 percent of the total value of real estate in the city.

Total commercial property valuations will rise from $963.9 million in FY97 to $987 million in FY98. Residential values will rise from $3.41 billion to $3.5 billion.

Property taxes are the largest single source of revenue for the city's budget (approximately 60 percent) which was $149.6 million this year. The rest comes from local receipts, including sewer and water bills, excise taxes and other fees as well as state aid.

On Monday night, the council held a public hearing on the tax rates. Only one person spoke against the increase while no one voiced support.

Mateo Panarelli of 21 Taylor St. complained about the tax hike, saying property taxes should not go up if the city has a surplus of funds.

After Board of Assessors Chairman Marion Fantucchio told the council the next two to three years should see a smaller tax increase--largely due to anticipated new growth in the city--Panarelli said, "My concern is not next year; my concern is this year. It's we the taxpayers who have to keep digging deeper into our pockets. I hope our pockets will hold out."

However, City Council members have responded to such comments in the past by noting that any surplus the city possesses at the end of a fiscal year must be used for other purposes and has nothing to do with the budget.

Fantucchio added that the city could have increased the tax rates by a considerably larger amount if it chose to do so and only prudent financial planning by Sheets and the council made the increase passed Monday night possible.

Community Policing Program Gets Funding

The chief said the $90,636 will cover the cost of three new police cruisers, three computers, cellular phones, pagers, and other equipment.

In October, Frane told councillors that West Quincy and Quincy Point were selected for the community policing program after a citywide analysis indicated those were the neighborhoods most in need.

Councillors who have been vocal in their support of the program include Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee and Councillors-at-Large Timothy Cahill and Michael Cheney.

Frane has also noted that initially, some department members seemed a bit skeptical about the program. But he said that like the city's domestic violence program--which now serves as a national model--community policing has steadily gained support.

Community policing is a concept that harkens back to the "cop on the beat" of past years who intensely concentrated on an assigned area and got to know personally area residents and business owners in order to be able to help them with their problems.

The City Council's funding of the program comes five months after it voted to create a community policing commission designed to assist police in identifying trouble spots before they become sources of serious crime.

Raymondi initially proposed the commission last spring and later amended his plan following criticism from police department members who said the original version gave the commission too much authority over department policy.

Mayor James Sheets has yet to appoint the 20-member commission, which will include clergy, school personnel, social workers, Quincy District Court personnel and others. The group is expected to begin meeting early next year, and Frane said he wants the community officers on the streets around the same time.

CITY OFFICIALS and others were on hand Tuesday for the announcement in front of St. Joseph's Church that part of Washington Street in Quincy Point has been designated a Commercial Area Revitalization District by the state. From left are Mayor James Sheets, Norfolk County Commissioner and former City Clerk John Gillis, Planning Director Richard Meade, Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi. Fr. 'A Great Day' For Quincy Point

Washington Street Gets Vital State CARD Designation

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The state has designated part of Washington Street in Quincy Point as a Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD).

The designation will make the area eligible for federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds as well as participation in several programs offered by Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, according to Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

Raymondi made the announcement along with other city officials Tuesday during a press conference in front of St. Joseph's Church. Mayor James Sheets, Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and others were in attendance.

"This is a great day," Raymondi said shortly after the conference. "I'm very excited. I worked very hard on this for six to eight months, as did others.

"We are looking at a tremendous revitalization of Quincy Point. This gives us the mechanism to make significant changes."

Because the CDBG program runs on the same fiscal year schedule (July 1 to June 30) as the city, the impact on the designated section of Washington Street--which runs from Southern Artery to the Fore River bridge--will not be felt until next year.

However, Raymondi said he believes that between the CDBG program and Quincy 2000, millions of dollars in improvements will be made in Quincy Point over the next five to 10 years. That will include at least $400,000 in CDBG funding alone, he said.

He added that the return of shipbuilding to the shipyard would result in another $4 million for the area because of the CARD designation.

Improvements to be made include new improved parking and lighting, aesthetic and structural changes to local businesses, and more. Raymondi said he hopes make Washington Street "more pedestrian-friendly" and attract new businesses to the area.

Changes made possible through Quincy 2000 will include "(business) signage and facade improvements and other such things," he said.

The City Council endorsed Raymondi's plan to apply for the CARD designation, as well as the related Quincy Point Action Plan, in October. The Action Plan, which was developed by Quincy 2000 along with a special task force and consultants Alice Boelter and Associates, Bergemeyer Associates, and Pilot Development Partners, calls for many of the improvements for which Raymondi is planning.

Raymondi said the Action Plan was used as the basis for the CARD application submitted to the state. He noted that the city tried and failed to get the same designation for the Quincy Point area in the 1980s.

"This was not an automatic designation by any means," he said. "That's why it's so significant."

Shipyard Reopening Deal May Be Closed Friday

A deal to provide $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the reopening of the Fore River shipyard could be completed by the end of this week.

Both Mayor James Sheets and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi told The Quincy Sun at press time Tuesday that the deal could be closed as soon as Friday, three days before the target date of Dec. 15.

Sheets made his comments after touching base with the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), which must approve the guarantees.

"We're preparing for an event for when we've closed, but we want to have the documents signed before we have any kind of announcement," he said.

MARAD gave shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil a letter of commitment for the loan guarantees last year, shortly after Congress passed a budget resolution allowing loans to a closed shipyard.

Emmanouil, who wants to build six double-hulled tankers at the yard--which closed when General Dynamics left in 1986--is still awaiting a decision on another $240 million in guarantees that will allow him to build the tankers.

Emmanouil hopes to lay the keel for the first tanker by next fall and says his $322 million project will create 1,000 jobs for the first contracts and as many as 2,000 for future shipbuilding.

Helping Hands For Those In Need

Community Leaders To Man Downtown Salvation Army Kettle

Community leaders including city and state officials are teaming up to ring the bell in downtown Quincy to help the Salvation Army to help those in need this holiday season.

Thirty six volunteers, including Mayor James Sheets who has proclaimed "December Quincy Salvation Army Month" will man a "Celebrity Kettle" throughout the day tomorrow (Friday) and Thursday, Dec. 18.

The kettle will be located in front of Ryder's Curtain & Drapery Store, 1489 Hancock St.

Money raised will go directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St. to aid local families.

"We are most grateful to all of these people taking time from their busy schedules to help us," said Major Robert Klenk, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps.

(Cont'd on Page 12)

SALVATION ARMY MONTH--Mayor James Sheets signs proclamation designating December as Salvation Army Month in Quincy. With him are Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun and Salvation Army Advisory Board member; Major Robert Klenk, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps, Isobel Bertman, Rogers Jewelry and Advisory Board member and Anthony Agnitti, Agnitti Insurance Company and chairman of the Advisory Board.

Cheney Asks Reconsideration On Shaw's Beer-Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board was told Tuesday in a letter from city solicitor Steve McGrath that they no longer have jurisdiction over the reconsideration of Shaw's Supermarket's application for a beer and wine license at their North Quincy store.

At Tuesday's board meeting, Chairman Joseph Shea read the letter from McGrath stating that because the appeal is now with the Alcoholics Beverage Control Commission (ABCC), the local license authority does not have to take further action until a decision has been rendered by the ABCC.

The license board denied Shaw's the license on Nov. 18 with a 3-2 vote. They referred the matter to McGrath.

After reading Mc Grath's letter, Shea read a letter from Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney opposing McGrath's stand.

Cheney said he contacted Maureen Trainor, administrative assistant to the state board of Alcohol Beverage Commissioners who said the local license board can reconsider Shaw's application. In the event the license is granted, Shaw's could withdraw their appeal.

Cheney said Shaw's had agreed to limit the checkout counters for beer and wine to five specified checkouts. Based on this new information, Cheney said, he would again submit his request for reconsideration of Shaw's application. He added that Shaw's customers should enjoy the same convenience as other food businesses.

Shea said he would give Cheney's letter to McGrath and said "I'm going to listen to the city solicitor." and added the board would also abide by the ABCC's decision.

Stating that he always wants to "protect the process as much as I can and follow parliamentary procedures," Shea said the board would "go forward in an orderly way."

There has been no date set for the Shaw's hearing.

Following Main Break

2 Million Gallons Of Water Back Up Traffic

Two million gallons of water crashed down Quincy Shore Drive at the beginning of the Neponset River Bridge and caused delays in rush hour traffic following a water main break Tuesday.

Two of the three northbound lanes were closed as a result of the break, the exact cause of which is still unknown. The 12-inch main ruptured around 4:30 a.m.

Officials said traffic backed up for a quarter-mile on Quincy Shore Drive but continued to move, and those who chose Hancock Street as an alternate route in Boston found the traveling even slower.

Quincy Water Department crews had trouble finding the shutoff for the main and took jackhammers to a section of Newport Avenue to look for it on the assumption that access to the valve had been paved over. An unknown number of homes and businesses lost water service, and low water pressure was reported in Squantum and North Quincy.

Buildings affected by the break included the eight-story Edgewater Place apartments. Flowing water blocked an exit to one of the parking lots.

A second 12-inch main later burst less than a mile away near the intersection of Hancock Street and Newport Avenue. Officials said water was shut off quickly and the flooding was minor.

Quincy Water Supt. George Clark said it is unlikely weather caused the two mains to rupture. He added that the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority over the past two weeks has noticed spikes in water pressure in North Quincy, and has been trying to determine the reason.

Clark said it may be that a large business is turning its water off at certain times during the day, unintentionally causing a dramatic increase in pressure on the mains.

The water from the first main break flowed about 30 yards onto a ramp connecting Quincy Shore Drive and Commander Shea Boulevard, forming a puddle up to 2 feet deep. Officials said catch basins handled the flow without causing the water to back up.

No traffic problems were reported, although police blocked off the ramp. However, one state trooper on the scene said the road was slippery and several cars skidded, so the road was sanded.

Running water also blocked off the parking lot of J&J Cleaners next to the leak. The business is located at 60 Quincy Shore Drive.

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano said the problem was repaired and water restored to most homes around 4 p.m.

QUINCY SHORE DRIVE was turned into a swirling river Tuesday when a 12-inch water main ruptured, spilling an estimated 2 million gallons of water and snarling traffic before it was repaired. This photo was taken on the Neponset ramp in North Quincy.

Fire Alarm System At NQHS May Be Replaced

Problems with the fire alarm system at North Quincy High could result in the installation of a new system next summer, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

The mayor said it was recently discovered that the present system, which is over 20 years old, was not functioning properly. Although it was quickly repaired, Sheets, after consulting with School Supt. Eugene Creedon and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, said he has decided research on the matter should be done to determine if a new system is needed.

Sheets said the research will be done by Bob Campbell of the city's fire alarm division, who will file a report by the end of the school year. If it is determined a new system is needed, the work will be done this summer so classes are not disrupted.

Sheets added that he could not estimate what a new system would cost.

22 New Parking Spaces Open At Hancock Lot

Twenty-two new parking spaces are now available at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday that the work has been completed on the new spaces, which were added following the demolition of an old comfort station in the lot earlier this year. Initially, 18 were planned but the city was able to get an additional four spots working with the space available, he said.

Sheets said the work was done by Derbes Bros. of Quincy and included putting down some subgrade, blacktopping, painting of white lines and the addition of bumpers.

In a related matter, the mayor said jersey barriers in the lot that were recently moved--allowing parking spaces usually reserved for those with monthly passes to be used by others--have been put back in their proper positions. Sheets said he does not know why they were moved in the first place.

Tobin Mulls D.A. Bid

There could be a Quincy candidate in the Norfolk County district attorney race after all.

Steve Tobin.

Maybe. Maybe not.

S. TOBIN

"I have not ruled it out," says Tobin, state representative from the Second Norfolk District.

"I have given it some consideration and I will make a final decision just after the holidays. That has been my timetable for a final decision."

If Tobin did get in, it wouldn't be welcomed news for those already off and running for the Democratic nomination.

That would be Jack Corrigan of Brookline, William Keating of Sharon and William O'Donnell of Norwood.

And, if he got into it and won the nomination it wouldn't exactly be great news for Jeffrey Locke, who now holds the job. Locke, a Wellesley Republican, was picked in January by then Gov. William Weld to fill the term of William Delahunt who went off to Washington as a Congressman.

Quincy is considered a major--if not the major--battleground for the D.A. race. It has the biggest registered vote in Norfolk County.

Keating, O'Donnell and Corrigan each has a well-known Quincy political figure in his corner trying to deliver that crucial vote.

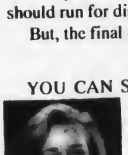
Senator Michael Morrissey is with Keating, County Commissioner John Gillis, long-time city clerk, is with O'Donnell and Atty. Tom Kiley is with Corrigan.

Coming from Quincy, the three are valuable keys to the Quincy vote--but they are not running themselves.

An actual Quincy candidate like Tobin would have a good shot at that big Quincy vote. He has deep residential and political roots. His father, Arthur Tobin, now Quincy District Court clerk magistrate, is a former mayor, state representative and senator. There's a lot of political clout there.

And, because when it comes to a county election, many vote geographically, a Quincy candidate would also do well in neighboring key towns like Weymouth, Braintree and Milton.

Tobin, who is in his fifth term as state representative, is chairman of the House Criminal Justice Committee.



That committee will be working on legislation in the spring session calling for sentencing guidelines for judges to follow which should get a lot of attention after the furor over the Louise Woodward case.

"People have been encouraging me and think I should run for district attorney," Tobin says.

But, the final decision will be his.

YOU CAN SCRATCH the name of Christine Cedrone from that list of potential candidates for the First Norfolk District state representative seat.

CEDRONE

"My plate is full right now," she says. "And I love what I am doing."

And, full it is.

She is a member of the school committee which will be dealing with the $73.1 million School Building Needs recommendations which include a new Quincy High School. She's a Quincy Housing Authority Commissioner dealing with the selection of new executive director.

She's also active as a member of the Quincy Lions Club board. And, she's going full time to New England Law School.

"I really don't have the time for anything else," she says.

But, maybe sometime in he future. She's one of the Republican party's rising stars.

MEANWHILE, Michael Bellotti, who is giving up that First Norfolk District seat to run for sheriff, is doing well building a warchest for his campaign next year.

BELLOTTI

For example: His recent $50 per head function at Pat Flanagan's reportedly raised over $30,000 with ticket receipts still coming in.

Bellotti, incidentally had a good representation from the Quincy Police Department attending the event to show their support.

LOCKE

A FUNDRAISER FOR Dist. Atty. Jeffrey Locke is set for Monday, Dec. 15, 6 to 8 p.m. at Mando's Italian Bistro, Hancock and Maple Sts., Quincy Sq. Tickets are $75 and will be available at the door.

McFARLAND

THOSE ROTARIANS ARE still at it. Mike McFarland, paid a "Happy Buck" at a recent meeting for the privilege of telling fellow Quincy Partnership member Mark Bertman of Rogers Jewelry that he "wore the ugliest pants" in the Christmas parade.

All in fun. The Happy Bucks pile up and go to the club's worthy causes.

ALWAYS SOMETHING DOING with Sal Giarranti. The political activist, former school committee candidate and columnist for a Boston weekly is now a panel member on the "Southie Hour" on WUNR (1600 AM) Tuesdays between 7 and 8 p.m. He invites you to tune in.

GIARRANTI

The other night, Giarranti, who lives on Atlantic St., almost had his car stolen. Two teenagers made so much noise trying to steal it at 2:30 a.m., they awoke him and he frightened them off.

"I don't know why they wanted it," he says. "It's 10 years old."

Giarranti, who is a sergeant with the Department of Mental Health Police, was also recently honored for his 25 years service.

Knowing his love of politics, they couldn't resist a citation that read in part, something like this: "We have managed to survive your 25 years of political bull. . . "

Sal took it in stride.

"Well," he says. "A citation is a citation."

DAVE LUBARSKY, whose knowledge and memory of sports facts--local and national-- earned him the reputation of "a walking sports encyclopedia," is now a resident at the Quincy Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, 11 McGrath Highway.

Lubarsky can still rattle off the scores of all the Quincy-North Quincy football games and who scored the touchdowns. Not only that he can tell you how many people were in the stands and what the temperature was.

His old friends out there might want to drop him a card. (He could probably tell you the last time you could mail one for a penny.)

Scenes From Yesterday

55119 Panorama of Houghs Neck, Mass.

THIS ANTIQUE POSTCARD is a turn of the century view of Houghs Neck taken from the old observatory on the top of Great Hill. On the left is Raccoon Island with the old summer school building and camp run there at the time by the Stigmatine Fathers. In the right center the large building was the Pandora Hotel with its salt water lake. To the left of the hotel the flat roofed building was Moore's Summer Ballroom and to its left can be seen a trolley on Sea Street. The empty area in the center was recently purchased by the MDC as part of the proposed new public boat ramp at Harvey's Landing. Notice the overall lack of trees. They were burned for firewood.

A Tribute To Fr. Gerald Dever

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was saddened upon hearing of the death of Fr. Gerald Dever at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston.

I have been in the Department of Mental Health over 25 years and I am a supervising sergeant for the DMH Police in Metro Boston but I still have to work weekends. I go to Sunday Mass early at St. Ann's on the way into town.

Fr. Dever had a really bad year after celebrating his 25th anniversary to the priesthood last year. He had cancer and fought long and hard showing his Southie roots but in the end, the cancer won as it usually does. This last year was his Gethsemane year.

Someone once told me it isn't how long you live but how well you live. Fr. Dever had only 53 years but used them well.

We all learn by example. By the folks around us. As parishioners of St. Ann's watched Fr. Dever over the past year, hopefully we all learned a little more about ourselves too.

All of us have our time. It is a gift and must be used wisely. The other day I heard Rev. Billy Graham on one of his televised crusades and listened as he said, "Our religious beliefs are not a giant leap of faith into the dark." I thought how true and to the point that was.

The world is a far more dangerous place than ever before. As much as we await the 21st century, I mourn for the old days of my childhood when we felt so much safer. Someone else once called religion a set of handcuffs because it sets the rules of right and wrong, but religion was always much more than rules: it was a set of values that instilled in us the power to love one another or at least not to kill each other as headlines show today.

Fr. Dever seemed to instill those simple values by how he lived and by how he died. Life is much more than simply going to work each day. Life understanding our relationship with each other and with that greater force we call God. No matter the struggle, living is a lot easier than dying. We should do the best with our time because it's the only time we'll ever have.

When I go to Mass next Sunday, I'll be thinking about Fr. Dever and the life he lived. We all struggle and fail on a daily basis but we keep trying. It all started with Adam, Eve and a shiny red apple. We don't give up. We fight to improve. We remember to remember who put us here. We mourn the dead and fight to do what is right.

As long as we still have our time, we have no alternative, eh?

Quincy High Team Displayed 'Never Say Die' American Way

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The article in The Quincy Sun of Thursday, Dec. 4, 1997 entitled "The Curse of Chella," written by your assistant editor, Michael Whalen, has prompted me to write you.

Your assistant editor, a 1985 North Quincy graduate, shows his disappointment in the article by downplaying the Quincy High School football team and their superb coach, Peter Chella, in their great win over the North Quincy Red Raiders on Thanksgiving Day.

The dominant factor in this game was not just luck or the exercise of voodoo or curses by the Quincy High team or their coach. It was a combination of the players' display of the American Way: never say die with the will to win no matter what the odds may be. And also the fine judgement and correct decisions by their coach.

Quincy High's football team and their coach should be commended. Their win this year, like those in the last two years, is a display of greatness. The odds and statistics were against them. But the Quincy High football team prevailed. They came through when it was needed the most. This was because the Quincy High team and their coach had the will and determination to win.

Congratulations to you, Coach Chella, and your great Quincy High football team.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Expanded Stadium Seating Urged

Dec. 11 - 19
1953
44 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Former Mayor Thomas Burgin wrote to School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, urging the School Committee to construct new concrete stands on the easterly side of Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Burgin's letter was prompted by the huge crowds at the annual QHS-NQHS football game. Many of the 12,000 spectators were crowded onto the wooden stands and temporary bleachers, raising safety concerns by the former mayor

The stadium was constructed during Burgin's administration.

TAXPAYERS' GROUP ISSUES ULTIMATUM

The Quincy Taxpayers Association issued an ultimatum to the city council in its recent edition of "Tips on Taxes."

Calling it a "do-nothing council," the QTA gave the council until Jan. 6 to resolve a number of critical issues.

The QTA called for the acquisition of land behind city hall for municipal purposes, a decision on incineration, removing the cemetery designation from Broad Meadows, and the construction of a new junior high school on the easterly side of Broad Meadows.

George Yarrington, executive director of the tax group, also suggested that the council meet weekly, rather than twice a month.

SHEET METAL WORK 'SIDELINE' SEEN

City Manager William Deegan visited the United Sheet Metal Company in Columbus, Ohio to see if sheet metal fabrication could be a "sideline" to ship construction at Fore River.

Deegan wanted metal panels constructed at the yard, similar to those that were currently being used in the new demountable addition to the Squantum School.

If such school construction provided to be successful, Deegan said there would be a huge demand for the metal panels. By 1960 he predicted there the need to construct 775,000 new classrooms nation-wide. Officials from Bethlehem Steel, operators of the shipyard, had no comment on Deegan's plan.

'Celebrating The Holiday Season' At Historical Society Dec. 14

The Quincy Historical Society will present a special program surveying the history of the American Holiday Season, from the Puritans to the 20th century, through stories, poems and music Sunday, Dec. 14 at 1 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Actress Marianne Donnelly will present some of the best-loved of America's Christmas and Hanukkah stories and poems. Singer-guitarist Ben Tousley will take the audience through a program of favorite seasonal songs and folk tales.

There will be refreshments and traditional holiday decorations. The program is appropriate for school-age children and adults. There will be "stocking-stuffer" type holiday presents for all children attending. Admission is free and everyone is welcome.

Donnelly, a Boston actress, is a favorite performer at Quincy's First Night celebrations. Her extensive credits include a highly-regarded one-woman show on Louisa May Alcott in which she has toured nationally. Tousley is a respected Boston-based folk singer who has performed throughout the nation and earned the praise of no less an authority than Pete Seeger. He has recorded three albums of original songs.

The full program is expected to last slightly under two hours.

Also, on display Dec. 14 to Jan. 9 is an exhibit tracing the 19th-century development of the classic American Christmas celebration.

Down Memory Lane

A TOUCH OF NOSTALGIA--Arthur Gabel of Park St., Wollaston submitted this "yesterdays" photo of the Quincy Jewish Community Center Hebrew School graduating class of 1964. FOR WOMEN ONLY

When Prince Charming eased Cinderella's foot into that glass slipper, she probably muttered a pained "Ouch!" under her breath. These days, glass and foot-binding are out of fashion, but a host of new challenges is in. More women are spending time on their feet at jobs outside the home, and that time is often logged in nylon pantyhose and shoes with pointed toes and high heels. Among the problems often directly linked to wearing high heels are Achilles tendinitis and metatarsalgia. Nylons can trap moisture next to the skin, encouraging the growth of fungal infections, plus constrict the toes, leading to ingrown toenails and hammertoes. Bunions tend to be inherited, but shoes with narrow toe boxes can trigger them.

P.S. Swelling and hormone production during pregnancy can aggravate existing foot problems as well as bring on new ones.

Winter is nearly here and with it can come many foot problems. Of all the human problems none has more "home cures" or "false claims for relief" than conditions of the human foot. For many years of foot comfort, consult the best friend your feet can have . . . your podiatrist. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

With Second Phase Of 'Walk Of Names'

WWII Memorial Planned Near Veterans Stadium

The city is sending out a request for proposals to contractors interested in working on a project that will include a new World War II Memorial near Veterans Memorial Stadium and the second phase of the "Walk of Names" in front of City Hall.

Planning Director Richard Meade said he believes the memorial, which will be located on Southern Artery, will be similar to the Korean War Memorial in front of the stadium. It will include about 8,000 engraved bricks, he said.

The project ties in with the reconfiguration of Southern Artery, Fenno and Hancock Streets and Standish Avenue and will not be completed until that change is completed, he said.

Meade said the second phase of the "Walk of Names," which he estimated at a current number of 4,000 to 5,000 engraved bricks, will include about 3,000 more. That work could be complete earlier, possibly by the end of next summer, he said.

Proposals from contractors are due by Jan. 15. For more information, see the legal notice on Page 30 of this week's Quincy Sun.

UNICEF Cards Available

UNICEF cards are on sale at Pier 1 Imports, 1591 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

UNICEF volunteers in Quincy are making it easier for their friends, neighbors and colleagues to buy the cards that provide clean water, vaccinations, education, and nutrition to millions of children around the world.

"Our New England volunteers help UNICEF build the safety net hugging the world's children," said Ed Mitchell, executive director of the New England office. "Their effort has helped UNICEF vaccinate 80 percent of the world's children, bring clean water to most of them, and cut infant mortality from 70,000 a day to 33,000."

The purchase of a single card will buy enough vaccine to immunize seven children against measles. Purchasing two packs of greeting cards will buy a large chalkboard and school supplies for children in a developing world classroom.

For more information, call UNICEF New England at 277-3334.

Planning Consultant Tells QCBPA

Downtown Has A 'Real Live Heartbeat'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Former Quincy Planning Director James Lydon says that the city's downtown business district is stronger than most similar shopping areas across the country.

He also stresses, however, that there is still room for improvement in Quincy Center.

Lydon, who served as the city's planning director under Mayors Arthur Tobin and Francis McCauley before leaving Quincy in 1986, made his comments Tuesday at a meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

After working as a consultant for and executive director of the Boston Fenway Group as well as economic development director of the Boston Redevelopment Authority, Lydon is back on the South Shore, having recently accepted a job at the Daylor Consulting Group in Braintree.

He told QCBPA members Tuesday that Quincy Center, while not in the same position of strength as in past years, is still better off than most downtown business districts in the United States.

"Compared to other downtowns across the country, Quincy's downtown is alive and well and has a real live heartbeat," said Lydon. "Quincy is a very exciting community, very much admired by folks outside of Quincy. It's a community on the cutting edge."

Still, there are ways to make the downtown even stronger and better-positioned for the future, he said.

First among the city's priorities should be the Quincy Center Concourse, the downtown roadway that, when constructed, will link Hancock Street with Burgin Parkway. That project will create better access to the downtown and allow the Hancock Parking Lot to be developed, Lydon said.

"The Quincy Center Concourse is the most important thing this city should be about," he said.

Lydon said the combination of the presence of the concourse and increased office and multi-family space in and around the downtown are the key ingredients to Quincy Center's revitalization.

Lydon also said increased parking should also be something on which the city focuses, noting that access and parking are two major reasons Quincy eventually "lost the war to South Shore Plaza" in Braintree.

Asked about a recent proposal by City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney to increase the height limitation on buildings in the downtown shopping district, Lydon said he sees that as something that also could help Quincy Center.

"By limiting height, you're limiting development," he said.

Another course of action Lydon thinks would help the downtown would be to take advantage of the presence of the nearby Harbor Islands National Park. He noted that Quincy is actually closer to the Boston Harbor Islands than Boston and could provide a "gateway" to the island park.

"No one's really taking advantage of it," said Lydon. "We really need something fun in this community."

Building on top of the assets the downtown already possesses could prove to be quite profitable in the future, he added. Lydon said in addition to the commitment of city officials to work toward revitalization and the prestige of several historic sites, Quincy Center has two other things working in its favor: the presence of two institutions of higher learning--Quincy College in the downtown and Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston--and access to mass transportation via the MBTA.

Colleges "contribute a hell of a lot to the community" through students and their visiting friends and relatives who shop in local stores and eat in area restaurants, he said. On the subject of transportation, Lydon noted, "Transportation is everything in relation to real estate development."

Planning Board Meeting

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

There was to be a public hearing on a request for a special permit for Site Plan Review filed by Lincoln Property Company CSE Inc. The applicant has proposed construction of a three-story, 40-915-square-foot office building on a parcel of land consisting of 104,458 square feet at 2100 Crown Colony Drive.

The meeting also was to include discussion of several proposed zoning amendments recently introduced by City Councillor Michael Cheney--including the establishment of a new business revitalization zone in Quincy Center--and other business.

Quincy Naval Reserve Center Reopens

By Lt. PETE GALAMAGA

In a dedication ceremony that took place this past Sunday, the renovated Naval Reserve Center in Quincy was formally presented to the public.

Rear Admiral Henry F. White was the keynote speaker and emphasized what he sees as a "paradigm shift" in the Navy.

"Today's Navy requires flexibility," said Admiral White, Deputy Assistant Chief of Naval Operations Total Force Integration. "That flexibility is provided by having trained and ready Reservists. That's because today's Reservists are on the front line providing critical support to their active duty counterparts."

With the closing of the Naval Air Station in Weymouth by the Base Realignment and Closure Committee, funds were appropriated to renovate the Quincy facility. The Reserve Center now supports 18 Reserve Units composed of 565 Drilling Reservists and 25 full-time Support Personnel.

Referring to the nearly two years that the Reserve Center was closed by a previous base realignment, Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano said, "The Navy never left our hears. The citizens of Quincy look forward to working with the Navy in a continuing partnership."

"Like the Phoenix, Quincy (Reserve Center) keeps coming back," said Captain James J. Quinn (USNR), Commander of Naval Reserve Readiness Command Region ONE. Captain Quinn is a Boston native and a former Commanding Officer of the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy.

Representatives from CQ Construction, the company that completed the renovations, were present at the ceremonies, including Company President Lorenzao Quinones and Vice President Lee Carroll.

Commander Paul M. Molloy, Commanding Officer of the Naval Reserve Center, cited the positive and professional working relationship the company had maintained with Navy personnel. He recalled the first time he entered the Reserve Center in Quincy many years ago and "felt like it was a cave."

Commander Molloy credited CQ Construction with producing a technologically up-to-date facility as well as an aesthetically pleasing one.

Also in attendance were City Council President Peter Kolson and Councillor-at-Large Paul Harold.

PARASITES: POSSIBLE FOR ANYONE

When you come across the word "parasite," you might think of the family pet that had to be wormed, or someone you know who picked up a strange "bug" while traveling abroad. If you're like most Americans, it probably doesn't cross your mind that intestinal parasites are a potential health risk to virtually anyone living just about anywhere. That's because they can come from contaminated soil, food, or water--and there's usually no quick way of spotting the contamination. Signs of an infestation are often vague and confusing, and depending on the type of parasite may include diarrhea, nausea, abdominal cramps, a swollen liver, and/or pneumonia-like symptoms. Stool or blood tests can confirm a diagnosis.

P.S. Careful hygiene (washing hands thoroughly after using the toilet and before eating) is the best safeguards against parasites.

Sometimes you can pick up a parasite when traveling, so if you are experiencing any discomfort after an adventure abroad, it's not unwise to be checked out. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. 'Getting Pretty Close'

Quarry Search May Be Nearing Completion

Police divers may be getting closer to locating the body of a woman in the Granite Rail Quarry in Quincy.

John Blackadar, head of the Quincy Police Department's underwater recovery team, said at press time Tuesday markers that had been lost after the woman was initially sighted have been found.

"I think they're getting pretty close," said Blackadar, whose divers are assisting a private company that is continuing to probe the site with a special underground camera and sonar equipment. "I imagine we'll be hearing something any day now."

The search is now entering its fourth week. At one point, a woman's body was discovered, as was the body of P.J. McDonagh, an Irish student missing since 1994.

But while divers were able to recover McDonagh's body two weeks ago, they have been unable to locate the woman since the initial sighting because the markers were lost.

Authorities have said a Quincy man awaiting trial in the 1994 murder of Stoughton teenager Sonia Leal told police the whereabouts of the unidentified woman's body.

Shawn T. Kane, 22, tipped authorities to the decomposed body in an effort to make a deal with prosecutors in the death of Leal, a prostitute whose body was recovered from the quarry three years ago.

Kane is scheduled to go on trial Dec. 15 in the Leal case. Two companions--Kevin Lynch, 32, and Robert Larkin, 22, also of Quincy--are serving life sentences for the murder of Leal.

Authorities said Kane implicated Lynch and Larkin in the death of the second woman, whose body was located on a ledge 175 feet below the quarry by an underwater camera but has yet to be brought to the surface. A local law enforcement source also said Kane had nothing to do with the murder of the unidentified woman.

While it was once believed the body in the quarry could be that of Karen Hammond, 21, of South Boston, who has been missing since January 1995, authorities have said subsequently they do not believe that is the case, although they cannot be sure until the proper tests are conducted.

Once recovered, the body will be taken to the state medical examiner's office in Boston where forensic pathologists will use several methods to identify the bodies, including comparing dental records, examining clothing and testing DNA.

Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci said last week the state will help fund the recovery effort if necessary. The district attorney's office is paying for the services of the underwater camera company, a cost of $2,000 to $3,000 a day.

Community Leaders To Man Downtown Salvation Army Kettle

"And, of course, we are grateful to the others who are volunteering their services elsewhere in other areas."

With the help of the community leaders, the Quincy Temple Corps hopes to overcome a $30,000 shortfall last year.

"In 1996," Klenk said, "the Salvation Army in Quincy fell $30,000 short of its Christmas Bell Ringing Campaign goal.

"The $30,000 is not just money, but people. It is rental assistance, heat, food, utilities--all the essentials of life.

"Working together, we can make a difference."

The 36 community leaders will man the downtown kettle from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Thursday, Dec. 18 in one hour shifts, two to a shift.

They are asking friends to come by and "help fill the kettle" to help the many who are in need.

The schedule:

TOMORROW (FRIDAY)

9 A.M -10 AM: Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church after whom Fr. Bill's Place is named, and Linda Stice, chairman of the Quincy Commission on the Family and school committee member.

10 A.M. - 11 A.M.: Ronald Mariano, state representative and school committee member, and Michael Cheney, city councillor and director of Quincy's First Night celebration. Cheney will present a $10 First Night button to every 20th person donating $1 or more during that hour.

11 A.M. - NOON: Arthur Tobin, clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court and former mayor, and City Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

NOON - 1 P.M.: Robert Curry, community activist and owner of the Curry Hardware stores, and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth, a member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board.

1 P.M. - 2 P.M.: State Senator Michael Morrissey and Daniel Flynn, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and president of the Daniel J. Flynn real estate company.

2 P.M. - 3 P.M.: State Rep. Steve Tobin and School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

3 P.M. - 4 P.M.: Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of Quincy College and City Council President Peter Kolson.

Beechwood Sponsors Quincy Aviation History Event

Quincy's Aviation History Info Center at Beechwood on the Bay recently sponsored a "trip back" through Quincy's aviation history.

Eighty-five aviation history buffs and others from Quincy and New England boarded two Bean Town Trolleys at the center and rode over the historic trolley line to the sites of the city's aviation history.

For three year aviation history enthusiasts have been meeting at the center to share and learn about the center's site and its historical significance.

Frank Delear, former Quincy resident, long-standing aviation historian and published author drafted a single page "history map" that guided the first trolley trip. Delear also served as one of the trolley guides.

Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals said, "We drove over a stretch of the former trolley line on East Squantum St. - from the site of the Dennison Airport (1927-34) - our to the site of the U.S. Naval Air Station runways (WW II); over to the former site of the U.S. Naval Seaplane Base (1920's/30's) the Victory Plant (WW II) and to the "Birthplace" of New England aviation history: (the site of the 1910,11, and 12 Airmeets)."

Aviation History Info Center Advisory Council members assisting were Frank Delear, Peter O'Connell, George Burke, Tom Galvin and Sharron Beals. The event began at Beechwood with a presentation of original photographs and artifacts dating back to 1910. Participants included two who saw the 1912 air show and pilots who flew from the Dennison, the USN Seaplane base and USN Naval Air Station.

Later, Arthur Casey and Peter O'Connell hosted a finale at Marina Bay, inviting participants to visit the specially-designed "Aviation History Room" at 300 Victory Rd.

For more information about the Aviation History Info Center and future events, call Beals at 471-5712.

Holiday Safety Tips

This holiday season, don't let the spirit of giving lull you into giving burglars, muggers, and pickpockets a better chance to do their dirty work. Crooks love the holidays as much as everyone else, but chiefly because it's an opportune time for crime.

Homes jam-packed with glittering gifts. Stores, malls and downtown streets teeming with unsuspecting shoppers. People rushing around, stressed out and careless, looking for last-minute gifts, trying to get everything done. It's enough to make a crook giddy with holiday joy.

If You're Traveling

- Get an automatic timer for your lights
- Ask a neighbor to watch your home, shovel snow, and park in the driveway from time to time.
- Don't forget to have mail and newspaper delivery stopped. If it piles up, it's a sure sign you're gone.

If You're Out For The Evening

- Turn on lights and a radio or TV so it looks like someone's home.
- Be extra cautious about locking doors and windows when you leave, even if it's just of a few minutes.
- Don't display gifts where they can be seen from the outside of your home.

If You're Shopping

- Stay alert and be aware of what's going on around you.
- Park in a well-lighted space, and be sure to lock the car, close the windows, and hide shopping bags and gifts in the trunk.
- Avoid carrying large amounts of cash; pay with a check or credit card whenever possible.
- Deter pick-pockets and purse-snatchers. Don't overburden yourself with packages. Be extra careful with purses and wallets. Carry a purse close to your body, not dangling by the straps. Put a wallet in an inside coat or front pants pocket.
- Shopping with the kids? Teach them to go to a store clerk or security guard if you get separated.

If A Stranger Comes To The Door, Beware

Criminals sometimes pose as couriers delivering gifts. And it's not uncommon for people to try to take advantage of others' generosity during the holidays by going door-to-door for charitable donations when there's no charity involved. Ask for identification, and find out how the funds will be used. If you aren't satisfied, don't give. Help a charitable organization you know and like instead.

Last but not least, don't let holiday stress get the best of your holiday spirit. Make time to get together with family, friends, and neighbors. And think about reaching out in the spirit of the season and helping someone who's less fortunate or lonely.

Do your part to make the holidays a safe and happy time for everybody - except the criminals.

Take A Holiday Inventory

The holidays are a good time to update - or create - your home inventory. Take photos or make videos of items, and list descriptions and serial numbers. If your home is burglarized, having a detailed inventory can help identify stolen items and make insurance claims easier to file. Make sure things like, TV's, VCR'S, stereo equipment, cameras, camcorders, sports equipment, jewelry, silver, computers, home office equipment, and power tools are on the list. Remember to check it twice.

On behalf of Chief Thomas Frane, a the entire Quincy Police Department, I wish you a Happy, Safe, and Sober Holiday Season.

$300,000 State Grant To Help Launch New 'Parent To Parent' Program

The state Department of Education, through the Massachusetts Family Network, has awarded a $300,000 grant to several local agencies to serve newborns to three-year-olds over the next 18 months.

The grant was announced at a press conference Monday in the office of Mayor James Sheets.

The Quincy Family Network, chaired by parent Ann Beyer Lunny, was one of only five groups to receive funding out of 22 groups that applied state-wide.

Quincy Community Action Program, the Asian American Service Association, the city's Commissioner on the Family, the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Germantown Neighborhood Center, Houghs Neck Community Center, and South Shore Mental health Center's Step One Program will share the funding.

Among the new services will be the city's first newborn home visiting program. Tentatively called the "Parent to Parent" program, this new effort will recruit experienced parents as volunteers to reach out to the family of every newborn in Quincy. The program will be administered by the Commissioner on the Family.

"Having a new baby is one of life's greatest joys, but also a time that most new parents need lots of information about what is available in their community for themselves and their new arrival," Sheets said.

He noted the city will publish the "Pink and Blue Pages," a baby and toddler version of the Quincy Purple Pages, for all parents of newborns.

Family Commission Executive Director Linda Stice said she plans to recruit 20 parent volunteers to visit the homes of newborns, bringing a gift for the baby, the Pink and Blue Pages, and a listening ear.

"We want to give each new baby in Quincy a board book and bring some small gift for older siblings, but most of all, we want new parents to know that they are not alone, that there are many people that have gone through what they're going through, and if they need some help, we're here," Stice said.

Funding will also help the neighborhood centers purchase new equipment for newborn to three-year-old and enable the start of several parent-run support groups. The literacy and language needs of Asian parents of young children will be addressed through ESL classes provided by the Asian American Service Association.

For more information on volunteering to be a newborn home visitor, call Stice at 376-1421.

THE CITY WILL launch a new 'Parent to Parent' program for newborns to three-year-olds after receiving a $300,000 grant from the state Department of Education. On hand for the announcement were, front row from left, Linda Stice, executive director of the Quincy Commission on the Family; Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director, Quincy Community Action Program; Mayor James Sheets and Carol McNeil, Mass. Department of Education. Back row, Barbara Papile, chairperson of the Quincy Family Council; Rev. Public Hearing Tonight On Underground Cable Project

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Massachusetts Energy Facilities Siting Board and the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities on the Dorchester to Quincy underground electric cable project proposed by Massachusetts Electric and its affiliate, New England Power.

Both state agencies need to approve the project before any construction can begin.

Massachusetts Electric and New England Power propose to install two 115,000 volt electric cables which will connect their North Quincy substation with Boston Edison's Dewar Street substation. The distance is about 3.5 miles. Two routes have been identified for the new cables, which primariiy will improve the reliability of the electric supply in Quincy by providing a second source of electric power.

The hearing will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Anyone who wishes to comment on the project, but is unable to attend the hearing may send written comments to Jolette Westbrook, Hearing Officer, Massachusetts Energy Facilities Siting Board, 100 Cambridge St., Room 104, Boston, MA 02202; or to Mary Cottrell, Secretary, Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, 100 Cambridge St., 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02202.

Copies of the applications for approval that Massachusetts Electric and New England Power filed with the state agencies are available for public viewing at the offices of the Siting Board; at New England Power; at the City Clerks' offices in Boston and Quincy; at the Boston Public Library (Main Branch–Government Publications; Fields Corner; Adams Street; and Lower Mills); and at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Reference Room, in Quincy.

As part of the review process, adjudicatory proceedings also will be held at a later date.

For more information, call David Tedone at 491-8010.

Sisters Of St. Joseph Celebrate 125th Anniversary In Archdiocese

SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH recently celebrated their 125th anniversary in the Archdiocese of Boston, a milestone recognized at a special ceremony at St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point. Among those attending were, front row from left, Sr. Josephine Perico, Sr. Edna Bradley, Sr. Catherine Gorman, Sr. Lois Connor, Sr. Jeanne Leahy, Sr. Catherine Ginty, Sr. Agnes Keating and Sr. Catherine Coyle. Back row, Sr. Prudence, Sr. Rosalia Marie, Sr. Peggy Lowell, Sr. Rosemond, Sr. Mary Loretto, Sr. Zita Fleming, Sr. Denise Kelly, Sr. Barbara King and Sr. Florence Kahler.

Beechwood Collecting Toys, Foods For Christmas

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., is collecting toys and foods for families in need during the holiday season.

Beechwood Seniors are collecting toys to assist the Koch Club in its annual holiday toy drive. Toys and games are needed for all age groups, especially for 10 and 11-year-old children. Gifts should be wrapped and marked with the appropriate age group, and if it is for a boy or girl. All gifts are for Quincy families.

Beechwood also collects foods for local pantries. December collections will assist the food pantry at Protestant Social Services.

Beechwood has set up bins in both the Building lobby and the Senior Center.

The Koch Club will be picking donations up toy donations by Dec. 15. For more information call 471-5712. Food collections continue throughout the month.

Red Cross To Offer Infant, Child CPR Review Course

The American Red Cross, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will offer an Infant and Child CPR Review Course Thursday, Dec. 11 from 6:15 to 9:15 p.m.

The course is available for anyone who needs to renew a one-year certification. The course reviews the signs to look for and how to help an infant or child that may be choking, has stopped breathing or is in cardiac arrest and may need CPR.

Cost is $33. To register, call 770-2600.

TREAD WEAR INDICATIONS

Not only should car owners keep their tires properly inflated, but they should take note of irregular tread-wear patterns when doing so. These may provide clues to front-end problems. For instance, feather-edge wear occurs when toe-in is incorrectly set, resulting in the tire being dragged sideways. Toe-in is the difference in distance between the front and rear edges of the two front tires, as measured at hub height. If the inner third of the tire is worn smooth and the outer third still has sufficient tread, it is an indication of camber misadjustment. Camber is the inward or outward tilt of the wheel. Negative camber results in excessive inner-tire wear.

HINT: The problems described above can be corrected with a wheel alignment.

Slick Tricks For Homeowners

(NAPS)—Does your door squeak? Is your bike chain a mess? Are your tools rusted? Does your car need a good cleaning? Has your child drawn in crayon all over your kitchen floor?

Every day there are simple problems that challenge you to find the right products for those "fix it" needs—products that provide long-lasting lubrication and other valuable benefits in order to prevent the same problems from occurring in the future, and solve them when they do.

Many Americans don't realize how special these lubrication products really are until they make a list of the tasks these products have conquered. There was the sliding door in the living room that wasn't working right, the rusted gardening shears that weren't able to cut roses, and the swivel chair in the office that was making a loud screeching noise.

There are likely many more nuisances on the list, but now you can cross a few off. The door glides shut, the rose bushes are neatly pruned and work is very productive now that your chair is squeak-free.

There are millions of products out there that promise quick results, but do they really work? Indeed there are two that everyone can count on for lubrication needs—WD-40® and its new, heavy-duty sidekick, T.A.L. 5™, a product that complements WD-40 for deeper, longer-lasting lubrication.

Over the years, fans of WD-40 have written thousands of letters claiming that WD-40 can be used for everything from removing stickers and adhesives from glass to removing crayon marks from walls and floors to cleaning your car. While fans were thrilled with the many uses of WD-40, they often requested a stronger lubricant for heavy-duty applications.

Consumers can now find the answer in T.A.L. 5, which stands for "Triple Additive Lubricant." It is an extra-strength spray lubricant which resists breakdown due to five factors: corrosion, friction, temperature, load, and motion. T.A.L. 5 differs from WD-40 in that it is designed as a heavy-duty, long-lasting lubricant, whereas WD-40 is a light lubricant, with numerous other multi-purpose applications, including cleaning, penetrating stuck metal parts, displacing moisture, and preventing rust and corrosion.

T.A.L. 5 was originally designed with the professional in mind and has worked very well on numerous applications in the automotive do-it-yourself markets. It is used for everything from lubricating garage doors and bicycle chains to maintaining standard transmission gearing on automobiles.

So the next time you make a "fix-it, clean-it, lube-it" list, grab your tool chest filled with WD-40 and T.A.L. 5.

Sponsored by the Hingham High School Boys' Boosters Club, the jamboree will also feature teams from Rockland High School and Oliver Ames High School.

At 6 p.m., Rockland will take on Oliver Ames, followed by Rockland against North Quincy at 6:40 p.m. Hingham will play Oliver Ames at 7:20 p.m., then Hingham will battle North Quincy at 8 p.m.

Each team will play two 20-minute halves.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for students.

Players' Response To 'The Curse Of Chella'

By JIM QUIGLEY

On Dec. 5, The Quincy Sun published an article by Michael Whalen declaring that in the past three years, the victories by the Quincy Presidents over the North Quincy Red Raiders were decided by a supernatural act created by head coach Peter Chella.

Whalen demanded that the coach of the Presidents was using voodoo to curse the Raiders which therefore resulted in three Raiders losses. After Whalen made his stand on the voodooism theory he then backed away from it (probably in fear of being committed to a mental institution for such comments) and developed a new theory for the Presidents victories: that luck steered the Presidents to four straight.

Whalen writes in his article that the last time the Presidents won outright was in 1994, the year before Peter Chella took over the job. Whalen calls the way the Presidents have won in the last three years as being "downright eerie." Whalen tries to prove his reasoning by pointing out moments in the Presidents last three victories that were "lucky." He even called the 1996 win a "complete joke." Now I will take my turn in pointing out why Whalen was wrong about the past three years.

1995: A game where Whalen claims the Presidents were completely "outplayed" by North Quincy up until the final minutes of the fourth quarter. He makes this claim although North only had a one point lead with a minute left to go in the game. It was also a game where most observers will tell you that it was an evenly played game throughout. Then it happened, Quincy completed a long pass to the 3-yard line on a fourth. This play helped set up Quincy's winning field goal. Big play number one.

1996: Here Whalen writes that the Red Raiders, 7-2 entering the game, were the completely "superior team" over the Presidents "who sported a nifty 3-6." Making the statement about the teams' records is acceptable but the way he went about writing it was an insulting act of sarcasm directed towards the Presidents players and their coaching staff. If his sarcastic statement was true and the Red Raiders were clearly the superior team, then why did the Presidents effectively execute their game plan and win the game? Why then did the Presidents special teams score one touchdown and help set up another (and it was not a supernatural play by one Quincy player because if you have watched the game you would have seen good blocking by all Quincy players)where the Quincy defense stepped up and stopped North on fourth and goal from the 1, and when given the opportunity early in the game the offense was able to step up and score. The end result was a 12-7 Presidents victory for the sole reason that the Presidents were able to make the big play when they had to. So much for this game being a "joke" as Whalen has previously stated.

1997: A game where both defenses were able to keep the opposing team's offense from moving with any form of consistency. North Quincy was the first team to really make its move offensively but

Have Earned Success Against Red Raiders

The Presidents Deserved To Win

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy High School Presidents deserved to win the Thanksgiving Day football game, 7-0, against the Red Raiders of rival North Quincy High.

As a North graduate, I am mildly pained by having to write that. Sometimes the truth hurts.

Why, then, say anything?

Because last week, I wrote what was supposed to be a tongue-in-cheek piece about how Peter Chella, Quincy's head coach, has used some kind of black magic to make North lose every year in the Turkey Day contest. The Presidents have won four straight over North, including the last three under Chella, who took over as Quincy's head man in 1995.

It turns out that not everyone shares my (admittedly somewhat offbeat) sense of humor. Chella, as well as several players and parents, have expressed emphatically that they were not amused.

For the record, I don't really believe that Chella practices black magic or voodoo. I realize that he's not a magician, a witch or a warlock. He doesn't cast spells. He's simply a coach who does his best to prepare his players for Thanksgiving Day and the other nine games on the schedule.

PETER CHELLA
Deserved To Win

Secondly, I do believe that Quincy has deserved their recent success against North. Football, like any other team sport, is not brain surgery. The concept is relatively simple: the team that outscores its opponent deserves to win--and does. And Quincy (please, North fans, no hate mail) has earned its victories in 1994, 1995, 1996 and 1997.

So why write a column suggesting otherwise?

Quincy's last three Thanksgiving victories have all come in the closing minutes of The Game. Since each of those wins came under Chella, who hasn't yet lost to North as a head coach, I thought it would be amusing to suggest he had cursed the Red Raiders to give them bad luck.

Truly, my intention was to make people laugh. I figured North fans could use a good laugh or two right about now; I figured Quincy fans, who have witnessed four straight victories over their rivals, could afford to laugh. I honestly didn't think the Quincy faithful would care one bit about what some geeky newspaper guy wrote.

But I was wrong. It's possible, perhaps, that I overstepped the bounds of good taste. And to anyone who may have been offended or upset, I offer a sincere apology.

North Opens Season Dec. 19 At Taunton

BC-Bound Brian Ross Raiders' 'Go-To' Guy

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

From last year's 13-9 tournament squad, the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team returns just one player to its starting lineup. That player, however, happens to be one of the most talented in eastern Massachusetts--senior center and captain Brian Ross.

"Brian is the best player in the Old Colony League," said North Quincy head coach Ted Stevenson, whose team opens the regular season Friday, Dec. 19 at OCL foe Taunton. "You don't get a scholarship to BC (Boston College) without being a real good player."

Ross, who towers over the competition at 6-8, averaged 23 points, 11 rebounds, three blocks and five assists as a junior and will be the go-to guy for the Red Raiders again this winter.

"He's obviously our No. 1 option," said Stevenson, now in his 11th year at the helm at North. "He already showed what he can do down low, and now that he's improved his outside shooting, he'll be even tougher to contain."

Realizing that opposing defenses will focus on keeping the ball away from Ross, Stevenson will rely on North's starting forwards, seniors Mark Stanton and John Sullivan, to pick up some of the slack.

Stanton, who is 6-5, spent most of last season with the JV squad but also saw action with the varsity. Sullivan, who is 6-3, is the only other NQ player besides Ross with significant varsity experience. This duo replaces forwards Matt Bromley and Jim Finn, seniors on last year's squad.

"Those two are going to have to take some of the scoring load off Brian," said Stevenson. "They also give us good size down low and should help out Brian on the boards."

Two forwards who will provide a spark off the bench, senior Matt Norton and junior Frank McNamara, are making the jump to varsity from the JV squad.

At the guard position, seniors Brian Linskey and Jason Turner will get the starting nods. Linskey, like Stanton, spent most of last season with the JV squad but also got a taste of varsity action. Turner was a JV player all last season. Linskey and Turner take over the reins from departed guards Chris Erler and Mike Johnston.

Backing up the starting guards will be junior Matt McCann and freshman Adam Woo, who Stevenson said has "looked real good and is going be a real fine player for us."

Other reserves who will see action include seniors Steve Wilson and Colin Shea, junior Adam Goodrich and sophomores Justin Drysdale and Brian Deptula.

With all the new faces making the transition to the varsity level, Stevenson knows returning to postseason will not be a simple task.

"We have a lot of work ahead of us," he said. "Other teams will have trouble keeping us from scoring, but our main problem will be keeping other teams from scoring.

"We're very inexperienced at the varsity level, so Brian and John will have to show the others the way until they get their feet wet."

Despite this lack of experience, Stevenson believes the Red Raiders will contend for the OCL title.

"I think we'll be near the top of the league," he said. "I'd be disappointed if we're not in the top three and if we don't make the tournament. We have a good shot at winning the league. We are young, but I expect them to mature fast.

"They're a fun group, a great bunch of kids who work hard and come to practice ready to play. Naturally, it's a wait and see game, but I'm confident they can step in and start playing. It might take a few games, but it will come. I'm very optimistic; I think this is our year."

Quincy Begins Season Dec. 17 At Taunton

Presidents A Blend Of Veterans, New Faces

By LIAM FITZGERALD

This year's Quincy High School boys' basketball team will have a decidedly different appearance compared to last season's deep tournament squad.

While the Presidents' backcourt remained intact with the return of senior Jared Downey, junior Jim Munchbach and sophomore Dan Kelly, the entire frontcourt was depleted following the graduation of starters Bob Walsh, Geoff King and Carmen Lorenzano.

"We lost some key people in our frontcourt, but having those experienced players in the backcourt will help tremendously," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini, whose team opens its season next Tuesday, Dec. 17 at 7 p.m. against visiting Taunton. "They're the only three back with any significant varsity experience, so a lot of our focus will be on them."

Kelly, a standout as a freshman, will resume his point guard duties and Downey will start at the other guard position. Providing backup along with Munchbach will be a number of first-year varsity players, including seniors Steve Clark, Steve Maze and Kevin Moore, a swingman who will also see action at forward, and sophomore Chase Clark.

The Presidents' brand new frontcourt will feature seniors Jim Quigley, Rob Downey and Manny Ashford, junior Dennis Palardy and sophomores Joe Kearney and Sean Fitzpatrick.

"We do have a lot of new people, but I'm optimistic that we'll have a good season," said Franceschini. "Our new guys are all good athletes; they've proven that at the JV level. They've worked hard in the offseason and will get better as the season goes on."

Franceschini added that due to the competitive nature of the team, he may play eight to 10 players on a consistent basis, which would also keep fresh legs on the court to pressure opposing offenses.

Quincy's captains, seniors Jared Downey and Quigley, will be looked upon to provide leadership and set an example for the younger players to follow.

"Jared and Jim are two kids we think tremendously of," said Franceschini. "Jared is an All-Scholastic and is coming off a great soccer season and Jim just finished a strong football season. They'll be two of our leaders, without question."

Can this blend of veteran guards and rookie forwards result in a second consecutive tournament berth? Franceschini believes it can.

"The tournament is definitely an obtainable goal for this team," he said. "I've been impressed with how well they've worked together in a short period of time. They've looked great in the preseason and are all focused in the right direction."

"It's a nice mixture of old and new," he said. "I think they'll come together as a team the more they play together. We don't have a lot of size, but we do have a lot of quickness, which we'll utilize a great deal. We don't want to allow our opponents to set up on us, so we'll need to play good defense."

As always, the Presidents will generate offense from their defense, which will pressure opposing offenses the entire court.

"We'll rely heavily on our defense to create turnovers and get some transition baskets out of it," said Franceschini. "We had a lot of success doing that last year and hopefully that will continue this season."

Another strength of last season's Quincy squad was its accurate shooting, connecting on 40 percent of its field goals and 72 percent of its free throws.

"Those numbers are goals we set for this year as well," said Franceschini. "If we can equal or better those percentages, we'll be in a lot of games. We'd love to pick up some wins early and build on that. That would give us a lot of confidence heading into the second half of the season."

Players' Response To 'The Curse Of Chella'

failed to score their field goal attempted was blocked by Steve Maze late in the fourth quarter. The blocked field goal setup the winning touchdown in Quincy's ensuing drive that would prove to be the decisive score. In that drive Quincy did not throw a pass but was still able to set up its score with great blocking and hard running in both the 32-yard gallop by Nathan DoRosario and the yard sprint by Shaun Faherty (who on that run went over 1,000 yards for the season) key blocks set up the runs. Quincy then scored a one-yard burst by DoRosario that sealed Quincy's fourth straight victory over North. A win that like the others, was set up by Quincy's ability to make big plays when called upon.

Quincy, in the past three years, has been able to compile a 3-0 record against NQ, a record completely earned without the help of luck. Whalen wrote that Quincy should have no wins two looses and tie over the past three years ("You know it, and I know it"). No one knows that to be true, even Whalen. For you see, he wrote the article as a fan who was distressed and jealous, a fan who completely ignored the efforts and heroics of the Quincy Presidents. Those of us who have been a part of the Quincy High Football program the past three years have practiced and prepared very hard to defeat the Red Raiders.

While we respect our opponents, we do not respect the idea that it was all luck and voodoo. That thought diminishes all of the hard work by coaches and players that went into those victories.

The Presidents Deserved To Win

It's been suggested that I lack respect for the Presidents. Well, I have nothing but respect for a team that won four straight Thanksgiving contests (or, for that matter, a team that lost four straight; both deserve respect, always). The Quincy players, particularly the seniors who have never known Turkey Day defeat, can and should hold their heads high. To everyone on the team, and everyone affiliated with Quincy High in any way, I say: congratulations. You deserve it.

To prove I'm sincere, I'd like to direct your attention to the other article that starts on Page 22 that basically accuses me of being a total schmuck. Believe me, The Quincy Sun has nothing against Quincy High. In fact, I'm outnumbered three-to-one in this office by Quincy alumni.

The Quincy-North Quincy rivalry is one of the great ones. There have been 33 Quincy victories, 27 North victories, and five ties. Both teams have always had great players and great fans.

Both schools also have shown their true dignity by uniting on a number of occasions. When North defeated Arlington in the Super Bowl game at Boston University in 1992, I saw a number of Quincy High faces in the crowd, including (then) head coach Jack Raymer. And when Quincy's Matthew Messing, 16, died of cardiac arrest after playing in a Quincy-North Quincy hockey game, the two schools were brought closer together than ever before, and we were all reminded that any team sport is just a game.

The rivalry will continue, however, especially on the football field at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Thanksgiving Day. I'm already looking forward to next year's game, and I wish both teams the best of luck.

And believe me, whatever the outcome, I won't be writing about it.

Quincy Recreation Department, Quincy Elks Co-Sponsor National 'Hoop Shoot' Free Throw Contest

The Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest.

The first round will be held Wednesday, Dec. 17 at 3 p.m. at the Parker School gym; Saturday, Dec. 20 at 10 a.m. at the Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Daniel Webster, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Wollaston school gyms; and Monday, Dec. 22 at the Lincoln-Hancock gym.

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three age categories: 8-9, 10-11, and 12-13. The contestants' age is determined by their age on April 1, 1998.

Each participant is award points for successful free throws. The boys and girls in the age 8-9 group will shoot from four feet in front of the regulation foul line.

The program will be supervised by Recreation Department leaders assigned their regular recreation programs in that area. The program is free and contestants may participate even if not previously enrolled in the recreation program. Participants may choose any of the various times or sites, but may only compete in one Quincy qualifier.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks "Hoop Shoot" Chairman is Ed Miller, former North Quincy High School basketball player and head coach, now the athletic director at Marshfield High School.

Kelly Duggan Of Quincy Babson Athlete Of The Week

Kelly Duggan of Quincy, a sophomore at Babson College and a member of the women's cross country team, was recently named Babson's Athlete of the Week.

A North Quincy High School graduate, she ran cross country, indoor track and outdoor track at North. She was a captain of her teams and was named an Old Colony League All-Star.

Duggan is in her first season on Babson's cross country team after focusing on academics as a freshman. Ranked fourth in her class, she is also member of the judicial "J" board and the Admission Assistant Program and a Student Quality Specialist member.

ENC Men's Volleyball Captures BC Invitational

The Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team captured this past weekend's Boston College Invitational with a victory over the University of Rhode Island.

In the first game of the championship match, URI jumped out to an 8-4 lead and things looked bleak for ENC but they slowly climbed back into the game. Some great defensive digs and blocks seemed to light a fire and the momentum changed in ENC's favor, which won the first game, 15-12.

The effort and tension of the first game caught up to the Crusaders as URI took the second game, 15-12. The tournament championship would be decided in one final rally point game. With the score tied 8-8, ENC's Jim Rendle, Bob Johnston, Jeff Judd and Jeff Ayres started to hit and they jumped out to a 12-9 lead. With the score 14-13, Matt Groom set Mike Johnston, who hammered a shot off a URI player for the tournament win.

At the BC Invitational, UMass Amherst and Yale emerged as the best teams in Pool A. ENC defeated Providence College, UMass Lowell, Wentworth but lost to URI in Pool B. In the semifinals, the Crusaders defeated UMass Amherst, 15-11, 15-13. In the other semifinal match, URI defeated Yale setting up a rematch between ENC and URI in the finals.

In earlier action, ENC placed second at the recent Eastern Nazarene College Invitational.

The Crusaders defeated Wentworth, Stonehill, University of Connecticut and University Rhode Island but lost to MIT in the finals, 15-11, 10-15, 13-15.

A 4-2 Victory Over Triboro Halts Squirt A's Losing Skid

YOUTH HOCKEY

After losing two games, the Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's rebounded with a 4-2 triumph over Triboro, a team looking to avenge a previous loss to Quincy.

The A's, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, opened the scoring early when Kevin "Mr. Yes" Richardson scored an unassisted goal 47 seconds into the game on a breakaway.

Later in the first period, Quincy's Shark line tallied when Justin Thorley lit the lamp with assists from Alex "Wheels" Shaffer and Paul "Crusher" Noonan. Triboro battled back in the second, scoring twice to knot the game at 2-2.

Midway through the third period, the A's broke the tie when the Shark line scored again. This time it was Shaffer netting the goal, assisted by Thorley and Pat "Cruiser" Malone. With less than four minutes remaining, Richardson intercepted an errant Triboro pass and moved in alone for another unassisted score.

Coach Patten praised blue liners Matt "Flash" Haskins, Andrew "The Duke" Patten, Paul "Rock" Graham, Noonan and Brendan "Tiger" Clifford, who turned away numerous Triboro offensive threats, especially near the end of the game when Quincy was a man short.

Marylou's News Olindy's Jr. All Star Kid's Bowling Leader

Marylou's News leads the Olindy's Jr. All Star Kid's Bowling League with a 53-19 record.

Cecilia N. Anderson, 108
City's Oldest Resident; Seamstress

A funeral service for Cecilia N. Anderson, 108, of Quincy, the city's oldest resident, was held Dec. 4 in the Faith Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Anderson died Dec. 1 at the John Scott House, a nursing home.

She married Joseph William Anderson in 1916 and they were married for 58 years before Mr. Anderson died in 1974. They never had any children.

She took care of herself in a two-family house at 65 Revere Road, where she lived for over 85 years until she was 95 years old. She then decided to move into the Friel Nursing Home.

She enjoyed several activities including baking, crochet, sewing and even playing the guitar.

Twenty U.S. presidents have led the nation since she was born May 1, 1889, on a farm in Sweden. She was one of 10 children.

She came to the U.S. in 1914 at the age of 25 on a steamship.

As a domestic for an Argentine family, she never quite broke the language barrier. Instead, she went on to become a seamstress for the Lutheran Church.

She is survived by a niece, Jeanne V. Johnson; and several nephews in the United States and Sweden.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the Faith Lutheran Church.

Josephine O'Connor, 99

Josephine (O'Connor) O'Connor, 99, of Quincy, a homemaker, died Wednesday at Quincy Hospital.

She was born, raised and educated in Tuam, County Galway, Ireland. She came to the United States at the age of 22 and settled in Boston where she lived most of her life until moving to Quincy 20 years ago.

Wife of the late Frank O'Connor, she is survived by a brother and a sister, Arthur O'Connor and Cecilia Moran, both of Ireland; and a niece, Josephine Stephenson of Quincy. She was the mother of the late Mary J. O'Connor, who died in July.

Private funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"Nowdays it isn't the little red schoolhouse one comes upon, but the little-read schoolboy." Cy N. Peace

Reading is magic. It enables us to experience and ponder the past. It helps us to live more happily and wisely in the present. And it permits us to cope with the future...

A library, to modify the famous metaphor of Socrates, is the delivery room for the birth of ideas - a place where history comes to life...

Dwight D. Eisenhower, some years back, was quoted as saying...

"History records how the living ideas of civilization were saved and nourished behind a wall of books. Our libraries today serve the same cause, for the defenders of freedom must remain strong in mind and heart. From the famous metropolitan libraries of America to the bookmobiles that serve our rural areas, books guard the wisdom of the past and kindle the ideas of tomorrow.

To the little-read schoolboy may we say...There may be very few little red schoolhouses left in America today, but remember... so long as there exist public libraries and dedicated librarians there is access to cures, to truths, to understanding, to peaceful pursuits and to new challenges in the American tradition.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You go on a shopping binge early in the week without paying any attention to your budget. Fortunately, your purchases are practical and affordable in the long run. Some bring work home over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Work of a creative nature is inspired. A niggling relationship problem reaches a happy conclusion. Avoid being domineering with family members during the weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You and a loved one disagree on a decorating matter. Although pleasure interests are accented for the weekend, you must be careful with money. Love relationships bring much joy.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Some friction at work with a co-worker is irritating, but a positive outcome is assured. Agreements are reached later in the week. This weekend, do something different socially.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your thinking is inspired as well as down-to-earth. Don't just spout off ideas; act on them. A domestic matter is of some concern over the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Financial news is good. However, you still feel it wise to be frugal, which is the correct course. You and a loved one are in sync over the weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) One thing after another falls into place in business this week. However, dealings with family or co-workers could be somewhat touchy. News that comes this weekend makes you very happy.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You begin the week upbeat, charming and positively glowing. A major breakthrough befalls you on a particular work project. A close friend is in no mood for joking this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected financial windfall comes in handy. At work, avoid forcing the issue and ease up on that co-worker. Later in the week, avoid an urge to pick an argument just for the sake of it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You are blessed with a sudden inspiration on a project that has been baffling you. Although you're popular on the social scene, take some time for yourself over the weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Something that has been on the back burner picks up steam. Expect a happy upturn in your financial picture. A friend decides to back out of a planned weekend social outing.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're basking in your business success, but someone is looking at you with jealousy. A friend is very thoughtful and considerate. Making plans for weekend travel is favored.

'Best Trip I Ever Took'

Asst. Harbormaster Enjoys 11-Day Journey To Florida

By MICHAEL WHALEN

If you're a football player, being in the Super Bowl is probably the greatest experience you could ever have.

If you're someone who's been around boats all your life, it would have to be--cruising down the East Coast over a grueling 11-day period?

Quincy's Ike Kravetz says yes.

"This was the best trip I ever took in my life," he said of his recent excursion from Bay Point Marina in Quincy to Florida aboard the 46-foot, 37-ton, custom-steel trawler Sea Camel.

Kravetz, 72, now retired from the trucking business, is a charter boat captain and has been Quincy's assistant harbormaster for 32 years. In addition, he served in the Coast Guard Auxiliary for a quarter-century prior to his retirement. Kravetz knows a little something about boats.

So he jumped at the chance to help old friend Capt. Thomas Quinn of Hull bring his trawler down to the North Side Marina in Stuart, Fla. Quinn, a former Marine and Quincy Point resident, recently retired as a NYNEX executive, and Kravetz said Quinn's wife Nancy will join her husband in Florida for some cruising in January following her own upcoming retirement.

IKE KRAVETZ

THE SEA CAMEL, a 46-foot, 37-ton, custom-steel trawler is the vessel on which Quincy Assistant Harbormaster Ike Kravetz and three other men traveled on an 11-day adventure from Quincy to Florida. Kravetz said "the best trip I ever took in my life" was hard work but had its lighter moments as well.

Kravetz and Quinn were joined on the trip by two other friends: Mark Lovell of Hingham, a diesel engineer and Paul MacAlister of Stoughton, a refrigeration engineer, both of whom took time off from work to be there. Because the Sea Camel--which was built for its original owner, a charter boat captain, in Rhode Island in 1981--is an 8-knot boat (travels only eight miles an hour), four men were needed for the journey.

The boat left for Florida Oct. 2. Kravetz said the crew members paired up and did three-hour shifts around the clock: while two men slept, another was steering the boat and the fourth was navigating. Constant vigilance, including radio communications and radar monitoring, was required for those on shift.

"I got very tired," he said. "It was mostly nose to the grindstone. But this was a very professional crew, really good. In all my years, I've never seen better."

At times, the trip could be tedious. In addition to working the constant shifts, the men had to stop the Sea Camel's engine every 18 to 20 hours to check the boat's oil level. They also needed to refuel in Virginia after traveling for 63 hours, and encountered "some very rough weather" between Charleston, S.C. and Jacksonville, Fla.

But Kravetz, who became something of a celebrity nine years ago when he bottled and sold polluted water from Boston Harbor, said there were also some light moments during the trip. At one point, during an oil check off the coast of North Carolina, "I jigged up a grouper (fish) that weighed about 10 pounds, and we ate it," he said.

The trawler arrived in Florida Oct. 13, and the crew--as they had during an overnight stay in Charleston--"had a few pops" to celebrate, Kravetz noted. He, Lovell and MacAlister flew home the following day.

He said it is an experience he'll never forget.

"What made it so enjoyable was the comradeship, the adventure, and just the excitement of an old guy like me being around those younger guys," said Kravetz, who noted that each of his crewmates is in either his 40s or 50s. "It was just a great time.

"I don't think I'd ever do it again, because I'm getting too old for it. But I'm glad I did it."

Quincy Public Schools Receive Community Service Learning Awards

QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS recently received the first Community Service Learning Awards during a ceremony at the South Shore YMCA. Every school in the system received an award for its commitment to Community Service Learning. Committee members for the event, front row from left, are Dr. Janet DiTullio, director of curriculum; Laura Bogan, principal of Atlantic Middle School; Gail Murphy, School to Career coordinator and Angela Avery, director of occupational education. Back row, Arthur Keough of Quincy School Community Parnerships, Jon Simons of YMCA Community Services, Asst. School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro, Joseph Kintigos Jr., youth liaison for the Quincy Public Schools and Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill.

COORDINATORS OF the Celebrating Community Service Learning booklet are, from left, Paul Talkowski and Tiffanie Williams of Excel Marketing, Asst. School Supt. Richard DeCristofaro, School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Kristen Williams of BankBoston and Paula Rowe of Impressions Plus. The booklet, which will be distributed to all Quincy businesses, highlights Community Service Learning programs within each school and celebrates the efforts of students and volunteers. It was created through a partnership with the Quincy Public Schools, BankBoston, Excel Markteting and Impressions Plus.

Council On Aging Receives State Top Service Award

The Quincy Council on Aging has earned a 1997 ROSE (Resources Organized to Serve Elders) Award from the Executive Office of Elder Affairs.

Brian Buckley, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, received the annual award on behalf of the council at the annual conference of the Massachusetts Association of Councils on Aging and Senior Center Directors. The conference was held recently at the Sea Crest Ocean Front Resort and Conference Center in Falmouth.

More than 250 elders and advocates applauded after Emmett Schmarsow, Elder Affair's program manager for 347 Councils on Aging and Senior Centers, read a profile of the council and awarded Buckley a handsome engraved plaque.

An independent panel of judges reviewed applications from across the state before naming Quincy a co-winner in its category (best use of non-traditional resources in a community with more than 1,000 elders). Waltham shared top honors with Quincy.

In announcing the award, Secretary Frank Ollivierre said Quincy's hard work and persistence helped turn a bold vision into what may be a nation-wide first: the conversion of 27 acres of vacated US Naval property into 175 elderly housing units.

"This ROSE Award reflects how Quincy is filling the many needs of its elder community," Ollivierre said. "Part of this conversion plan includes dedicating land for a new senior center. When it comes to the innovative use of non-traditional resources, Quincy is a statewide leader."

Elder Affairs created the ROSE Awards in 1994 to recognize Councils on Aging that demonstrate innovative, cost-effective means of meeting the needs of elders. The awards aim to draw attention to the wide range services that councils provide to more than 410,000 people across the state.

19 More Community Leaders To Man Salvation Army Kettle

Nineteen more community leaders will ring the bell in downtown Quincy today (Thursday) to help the Salvation Army brighten the holiday season for those in need.

The 19 volunteers, including Mayor James Sheets who has proclaimed "December Quincy Salvation Army Month" will man a "Celebrity Kettle" in front of Ryder's Curtain & Drapery Store, 1489 Hancock St.

They will be there from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on hourly shifts.

Eighteen community leaders manned the kettle at the same location last Friday with friends and passersby filling it three times.

Money raised goes directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St. to aid local needy families.

While helping those in need, the Quincy Temple Corps also hopes to overcome a $30,000 shortfall suffered last year.

"It is not just the money, but people." said Major Robert Klenk, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps. "It is rental assistance, heat, food, utilities--all the essentials of life.

The Celebrity Kettle schedule for today (Thursday):

9 A.M. - 10 A.M.: Robert Guarnieri, president of Colonial Federal Savings Bank, and Donald Uvanitte, president of Quincy 2000 and community activist.

10 A.M. - 11 A.M.: John O'Connor, regional president Citizens Bank and City Clerk Joseph Shea.

11 A.M. - NOON: Dist. Atty. Jeffrey Locke and Maralin Manning, executive director Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

NOON - 1 P.M.: Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister United First Parish Church and City Councillor Paul Harold.

1 P.M. - 2 P.M.: Edward Keohane, president of the Quincy Partnership and president of the Keohane Funeral Home, and City Councillor Patrick McDermott.

2 P.M. - 3 P.M.: City Councillor Michael D'Amico, David Ezickson, chairman of the Concourse Advisory Committee, founder and past president of the Quincy Jewish Committee, and Charles Sweeny, member Board of Registrars and former school committeeman.

3 P.M. - 4 P.M.: Mayor James Sheets and James (Jay) Asher, president of radio station WJDA and former Quincy Rotary Club president.

First Phase Of $73M Plan

Council Approves $15.5 Million For Schools Project

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council has unanimously approved a $15.5 million bond issue for the first phase of a $73 million school construction and renovation plan.

The bond will cover the costs of the design/architectural work and land purchase for a new Quincy High School--to be located behind Bradlee's on Quincy Avenue--as well as the conversion of Point-Webster Elementary School into a middle school and renovation work on the current Quincy High, which will eventually become the new Central Middle School. The old Central will be closed when its replacement opens.

The bond was approved by the council at its meeting Monday night.

Also voicing support of the school plan were School Supt. Eugene Creedon, School Committeewoman Jo-Ann Bragg and Citywide Parents Council President Debbie Brandano. The School Committee voted to back $15.5 million first phase last week.

Several City Council members, including Councillor Timothy Cahill, said the renovations and additional work is needed badly.

"I do think it's an excellent plan," said Cahill. "Financially, we have been careful."

Creedon thanked the council for its support.

"This is an extremely historic occasion," he said. "The plan, I think, has tremendous educational merit. It's a dream come true."

However, Sterling Middle School parent and former Citywide Parents Council President Sherry Henkin said the long-term construction program--which includes work on all of the city's schools--is slighting Sterling, which has been moved down the list of needed renovations from 1998 to 2006.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico also voiced disappointment and said he will talk to Mayor James Sheets about the matter.

Bragg, however, said other work will be done on Sterling and other schools before the major renovations begin.

"We will be putting money into buildings like Sterling," she said.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton added that the Sterling work has to be done as part of the overall project so that Quincy will qualify for a 63 percent reimbursement from the state.

Sheets: Shipyard 'A Done Deal'

A deal to provide $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the reopening of the Fore River shipyard will be completed this week, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets told The Quincy Sun at press time Tuesday that the deal "definitely" will be closed by Thursday or Friday.

Sheets made his comments after touching base with officials from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), which must approve the guarantees, as well as federal Department of Transportation officials and and representatives from the office of Sen. Edward Kennedy, who is assisting in the effort to revitalize the shipyard.

"The shipyard (deal) will be closed this week," said Sheets. "It's a done deal. I'm confident it will happen Thursday or Friday; I just don't know which day yet."

MARAD gave shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil a letter of commitment for the loan guarantees last year,

First Night Gets License Board's Blanket Permit

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board granted a blanket permit to First Night Quincy to conduct all events on Dec. 31-Jan. 1.

First Night Quincy which begins at 4 p.m .is a multi-cultural, alcohol and drug free event that has been held for the past five years on New Year's Eve.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney who is chairman of First Night said he was expecting the weather to be "balmy" and said he was "looking forward to having a sixth year of success".

He said the Festival of Lights Parade will be held at 6:30 p.m. and streets in the area will be closed at noon on Dec. 31.

He said there will be 21 indoor locations for entertainment and foods by many vendors in Quincy all within walking distance of one another.

The international food festival at the Quincy Vo-Tech Gym offers a wide variety of food at a reasonable cost.

Cheney said that "public safety is our utmost concern" and that there is always ample security by the Quincy Police Department and internal people who are trained.

Free parking locations are provided in the Ross Parking Garage on Granite Street, the Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court, Presidents Place and the garage behind Stop & Shop's corporate headquarters.

The Bean Town Trolley Bus will pick up passengers at First Night Bus Stops located throughout the event area. The bus will run a continuous loop throughout the night beginning at 6:30 p.m . and ending at 11:45 p.m. Admission is a First Night button or $1 without a button.

Cheney called it "remarkable" that with about 30,000 persons attending the event for the past five years, there has not been "one incident".

He said there will be a seven minute spectacular fireworks display at midnight.sponsored by Roach Brothers. Over 1,600 fireworks shells will be set off by hand using a giant flair. The fireworks will be coordinated by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

First Night buttons cost $7 ($10 if purchases at the event), and children six years of age and under are admitted free.

They can be purchased at the Stop & Shop Supermarkets, Quincy City Hall, Dunkin Donuts, Shaw's Supermarkets, Osco Drug, Roche Brothers Quincy store, Quincy Center Business and Professional Assoc. 1416 Hancock St. and the Harbor Express.

Height Limitation Doubled In Industrial 'B' Areas

The City Council unanimously passed Monday night a proposal by Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney to increase the height limitation of buildings in areas zoned Industrial "B" from four to eight stories.

The limitation used to be 10 stories but was reduced to four in 1987 following recommendations from a citizens task force.

Cheney has said while the four-story limit was adequate at the time, extra space is now needed for economic development.

Industrial "B" areas in the city include the Fore River shipyard, Crown Colony, Ricciuti Drive and parts of West Squantum Street and Old Colony Drive.

Childbirth Class At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., will offer a first-time childbirth class in January.

The class will be held Wednesdays, Jan. 7-28 from 7 to 10 p.m. It covers labor and delivery, breathing relaxation, post partum and baby care.

Cost is $100. Advance registration is required, and space is limited. For information on additional classes or to register, call 376-4018.

After 13 Years

Cheney Steps Down From City Council

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Michael Cheney has ended his 13-year career on the Quincy City Council, carrying with him a reputation as one of the hardest-working and outspoken councillors the city has ever known.

Cheney, who chose not to seek reelection in November, spoke of his years as a councillor during his last meeting Monday night. He twice was given a standing ovation from residents and others in the crowded City Council Chambers.

Among those in attendance were his wife Tish, son Michael, 22; daughter Kristy, 19; son Shaun, 17; parents Thomas and Barbara, and sister Kathy.

First elected Ward 1 councillor in a special election in 1984, he served nearly three terms in that capacity before being elected to the first of four terms as a councillor-at-large in 1989. He served as council president in 1994 and 1995.

Cheney began by thanking all those affiliated with the city who have worked with him over the years, including Mayor James Sheets and former Mayor Francis McCauley, numerous Quincy officials and department heads, and all other city workers.

He said that, in particular, he has enjoyed serving with all of his City Council colleagues, past and present, over the years.

"You might not always agree, but that doesn't mean you have to be disagreeable," he said.

Cheney also thanked the voters for their support ove the years.

"I've enjoyed serving you, and I hope to serve you in some capacity in the future," he said.

Cheney then touched upon a number of issues the council has addressed during his tenure:

•The environment. Cheney said pressing matters when he was first elected, such as the state of Nut Island and local marshlands, were successfully handled by the council. He noted that the island is to become the site of a park and the marshlands have been restored.

•Education and public safety. Cheney said the council always did its best to make Quincy a leader in both areas, citing its support of a major school bond issue Monday night and recent backing of an expanding community policing program as evidence.

•Development. The city consistently has supported development, Cheney said, and his proposal to increase the height limitation on buildings in certain areas--which he says will increase jobs and tax revenue--is indicative of that.

•Various Quincy agencies. While he said he applauds the efforts of those who work for service organizations, Cheney noted it is sad that even today, Quincy must provide a shelter for the homeless. "I hope I live to see the day when Father Bill's Place is no longer necessary," he said.

•The Fore River shipyard. The yard, closed since 1986, will reopen to build ships in the near future and create at least 1,000 new jobs, Cheney said.

Fellow councillors praised Cheney for his hard work and dedication to city issues since he was first elected.

"You've never been afraid to speak out on many, many different issues," said Council President Peter Kolson, who presented the outgoing councillor with a clock bearing Quincy's city seal. "You've certainly left your footprints in the sand."

Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill, who has served with Cheney on the council for 10 years, said

FAMILY MEMBERS on hand for Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney's last meeting included his son Michael, 22; son Shaun, 17; father Thomas; daughter Kristy, 19; wife Tish and mother Barbara. Cheney's sister Kathy also was in attendance.

Council On Aging Honored By City Council

The Quincy Council on Aging was honored by the City Council Monday night for receiving the ROSE (Resources Organized to Serve Elders) Award from the state Executive Office of Elder Affairs (EOEA).

The award is the highest honor the EOEA can bestow on the 347 Councils on Aging in Massachusetts. It was awarded in the category of Non-Traditional Use of Resources for the council's proposal to convert Naval housing at Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace, expanding its transportation program and building a senior center on the same site.

Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley and Chairman John Noonan said the award belongs not only to them, but also to the council's board of directors as well as Mayor James Sheets, City Council members and other officials who helped with the cause.

"It really is a team award," said Buckley.

"It certainly is teamwork," agreed Noonan.

City Council members, including Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, extended their congratulations.

In addition, Buckley told councillors that senior housing plans at the Squantum site are "right on schedule." He said six units already are filled and that 15 should be filled by the end of January and even more by February.

Farewell (For Now), Mike

Mike Cheney said his good-byes Monday night. It was his "farewell address" at his final city council meeting, closing out 13 always-something-doing, never-dull years of service.

CHENEY

Question: Is he politically gone forever?

Answer: Don't bet on it.

The feeling is that he will be back. Either on the political scene or in some appointed capacity.

But there's one thing sure: the city council meetings won't be quite the same without him.

You could always expect him to come up with something new and--sometimes--controversial.

He's never been what you would call a shrinking violet. The "T" in his middle name is for Thomas, not Timid. He always told it the way he believed it was. Never ducked behind a "no comment."

You might not have always agreed with him on issues or the way he approached them, but even those who did disagree with him agreed on one thing: when it came to work, he worked. He rolled up his sleeves and got to it.

He proudly called himself a "blue collar councillor" who got his hands dirty as an MBTA mechanic. And, he felt he knew what blue collar workers thought about things because he was one of them.

Serving on the city council was no political picnic for him. He had to do a lot of juggling with time to do it.

As an MBTA mechanic, he worked nights. Which meant that at the end of the Monday night council meetings he would go to work instead of to home and to bed.

And, after working all night, he usually stopped by City Hall in the morning for messages from constituents or to check on the latest status of a developing issue.

He freely handed out his home telephone number. And if he wasn't there when someone called, he made sure to get back to them.

It wasn't unusual for him to get caught up in things and not make it to bed until late in the day. Then, after a little sleep and trying to squeeze in some time with the family, if was off to work again. His life got to be a merry-go-round that never seemed to slow down or stop.

So, earlier this year as family and personal matters needed more attention, he decided to get off that merry-go-round by giving up his council seat.

But election night there were mixed emotions as he watched the returns come in on Quincy cable TV. The returns were coming in for the first time in 13 years, without any of them for a candidate named Mike Cheney.

"It felt a little sad to be out of it," he said later.

As a councillor and head of Quincy's popular First Night and Arts in the Parks, Cheney has been a workaholic with tiger-in-his-tank-energy.

He would still like to be mayor someday. He had a ball for himself while council president in 1994 and 1995 as acting mayor on several occasions when Mayor James Sheets was out of state.

He didn't content himself with cutting ribbons or greeting visitors. He actually made executive decisions.

"I love it," he said at the time. "I really enjoy it. Serving as acting mayor gives me a real insight on the job and new respect for it."

He was a councillor who was always there for a constituent. If someone had a major emergency and needed a snowplow, a bulldozer or boat, Cheney was the type who not only would find one, in a hurry, but ride it to make sure it got there.

It's doubtful he will disappear from public view. It's his nature to be seen and heard.

It wouldn't surprise anyone to find him in the audience at future city council meetings standing up and giving his opinion--or argument--on an issue.

Meanwhile, Mike, you can say you gave it your best shot. And, your aim was usually on or around the bull's-eye.

TOY FOR TOTS, will get a helping hand at Pat Flanagan's Parkingway, Monday, Dec. 22.

An unwrapped children's toy or a $10 contribution will admit an adult for dancing to the music of "The Marsals" starting at 5:30 p.m.

The event, with an assist from Pat Flanagan's, is being put together by Phil McCue, Quincy College Governor and assistant clerk magistrate at Dedham District Court, and Sean Barry of the college's marketing and recruitment office and school committee member.

SPEAKING OF BARRY, he was in San Antonio, Tex. last week for a college marketing conference and kept bumping into Quincy "connections."

BARRY

First while walking over a bridge near the city's historic riverwalk, he spotted a plaque honoring a Mayor Tobin. (This one was John, not Arthur). Then, shipping some gifts home, a woman remarked, "Oh, Quincy! I nearly went to college there." (Eastern Nazarene).

"Later, during the marketing conference," says Barry, "a woman told me to say hello to Jim Sheets. Two of her children had attended ENC and she fondly recalled Quincy."

ARTHUR TOBIN is one of those people who keeps getting mistakened for someone else. He's been called Mr. Bellotti (as in Frank) and Walter (as in Hannon).

A. TOBIN

And last Friday while he and Councillor Dan Raymondi were doing their stint at the Celebrity Kettle for the Salvation Army in front of Ryder's, someone made a donation and said, "How you doing, Frank." (As in McCauley).

Tobin and Raymondi made a dynamic duo ringing the bell. The kettle got filled during their hour. (And, it did twice more during the day.)

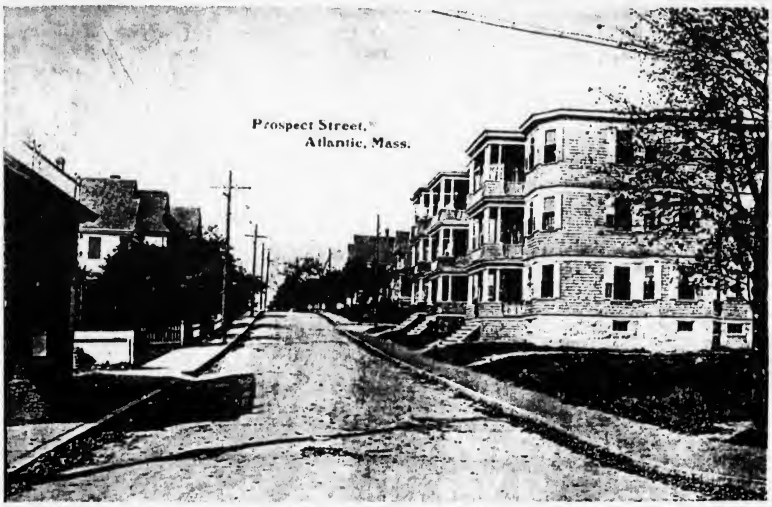
YOU MEET A lot of nice people standing in front of a Salvation Army kettle. Like the woman who came by while Bob Curry and I were there. She fumbled in her pocketbook and came out with a contribution.

"Is this a $1 bill," she asked. "I can't tell. I'm legally blind."



We told her it was and she pushed it into the kettle.

She wanted to do her part as did so many other nice people who stopped by.

Community leaders will be back at the kettle today (Thursday) in front of Ryder's Curtain & Drapery store, 1489 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Stop by for a very worthy cause.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS is a 1915 postcard view of Prospect Street in Atlantic. This view is north from Sagamore Street. Conveniently located just a few steps from the old Atlantic Railroad depot this neighborhood was built up with multi-family housing to accommodate the burgeoning population of Quincy at that time. Between 1900 and 1920 the number of dwellings in Quincy doubled to keep up with the population which more than doubled in the same period. In fact growth was so rapid for several years Quincy became known as the "Fastest Growing City in Massachusetts." Most of the growth came from immigrants. According to 1920 U.S. Census data, 30% of Quincy's residents had two foreign born parents and another 12% had mixed parents one native and one foreign. Today the population of Quincy has stabilized but this old neighborhood still provides homes for those seeking the American dream.

Presidents Won Because Of Dedication, Pride, Hard Work

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This letter is in response to a story written by Michael Whalen in the Thursday, Dec. 4, 1997 issue of The Quincy Sun.

In the story, he calls the last three wins by Quincy over North on Thanksgiving "games they never should have won" and also "The Curse of Chella."

This is not only insulting to Coach Chella, it is also insulting to the players and coaches of both teams. According to Mr. Whalen, all you need to do is put a spell on the other team, and forget about the three months of hard work by the coaches and players of both sides to get ready for games during the season and especially the Thanksgiving Day game.

Being around the team for seven years, in that time the one speech from coaches to players is you have to "step up and make the big play" and the seniors ask the underclassmen to do the same.

Take the three games starting in 1995: senior Mike Sheffer made a great catch and run to set up a field goal by Tim Santos, a junior. In 1996, senior Andy Byrne makes two great returns of kicks, one setting up a touchdown, the other a touchdown. Junior Steve Wiltshire makes a game-saving tackle inside the 10-yard line on the last play of the game. In 1997, senior Steve Maze blocks a field goal attempts that leads to junior Nathan DoRosario's touchdown. Later, senior Bryan Dunn makes a great defensive play in the end zone, knocking down a pass.

Mr. Whalen did both players and coaches a real disservice knowing how hard they worked in practice and on Game Day. He owes coach Chella, the rest of the coaching staff and the players an apology.

It is not a curse or voodoo. It is DEDICATION, PRIDE AND HARD WORK!

Quincy's Yesterdays

Kennedy Gift To 'Y' Project

By PAUL HAROLD

Joseph Kennedy, head of the Kennedy Foundation, announced a donation of $5,000 to the proposed new YMCA building.

In a letter to Paul Hurley, Y board member and local insurance man, Kennedy noted that while the purpose of the foundation was to assist retarded children, he made an exception for the Quincy Y.

Dec. 18- 24
1957
40 Years Ago

Kennedy wrote, "because of my friendship with your father (the late Dr. William Hurley) and because I did have some association with Quincy in the old days" (as assistant general manager at Fore River from 1917-191), an exception was made to assist the Y building campaign.

SALE OF WESTACRES ORDERED

The State Housing Authority ordered the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) to sell Westacres by June 30 with Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa saying the QHA should revise its budget, funding the housing project operations for six rather than the full 12 months.

Under state law the QHA was required to sell the nine, four-unit buildings built in 1948, five to six years after completion. They were built at a cost to the city of $40,000 with $20,000 paid off.

The QHA was planning to get an extension on the sale, noting that the city should hold off the sale until the Southeast Expressway was completed.

SAFETY 1ST IN LONG BEACH CONSTRUCTION

Dudley Haff, spokesman for Bethlehem Steel, addressed the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Y, noting safety was the first concern in the construction of the U.S.S. Long Beach. The Long beach, under construction at the Fore River shipyard, was the first nuclear ship to be built from the keel on up.

He noted each reactor component was subject to extensive testing. When completed, he said the ship would play a significant role in the national defense.

QUINCY-ISMS

Post Office Supt. Frank Anselmo said Quincy would handle five million pieces of mail this holiday season, an increase of 22 percent over last year. . . Starting Thursday of this week, all car registrations from the Quincy region would be issued from the Hancock St. armory, with no 1958 renewals issued from the Registry of Motor Vehicles. Some 37,500 registrations were already issued by the Quincy registry, an increase of 8,000 over last year. . . Rex Trailer and Pablo were the featured guests at the annual children's Christmas party at the Neighborhood Club. . . Former QYC commodore Edger Emery died. . . Rev. William Gray, pastor of the First Church of Squantum, said he would oppose the Nickerson Post's application for a club liquor license, for the Post located at the corner of Huckins Ave. and East Squantum St. "We haven't had any liquor licenses in Squantum before and we don't want one now," he said. City Clerk Donald Crane said there was no requirement for a public hearing, but he would schedule one if abutters requested one. . . James "Pete" Ricciuti was the new president of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association. Cong. Richard Wigglesworth was the speaker at the association's 78th annual meeting at Sherry's Restaurant. . . The School Committee, on the commendation of Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, changed the name of the expanded college-level program to "Junior College." Gossard said that the Governor's group on community colleges was expected to give Quincy permission to award a two-year degree. The program operated with one part-time director and one part-time clerk, with a budget of $15,750. . . Girl Scout Troop 42, at the First Presbyterian Church, staged a Christmas show with Cynthia Smith, Carol MacDonald, Priscilla Casna and Bonnie Alchorn. . . Judge James Mulhall released a juvenile to the custody of his parents after they agreed to pay $67.65 for the 30 windows he broke at the Hancock School. . . Christmas carols greeted students before school at the new Broad Meadows Junior High School. Music was broadcast over the public address system from 8 to 8:30 a.m. . . Mrs. Theresa Hadad was in charge of entertainment for St. Joseph's Sodality. . . Mrs. Domenic Consolazio played Santa for the Democratic Women's Club holiday party.

QCBPA To Sponsor Three Caroling Parties

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association will host three Traditional Caroling Parties for shoppers this week.

Tonight (Thursday), the Sacred Heart School Junior CYO from North Quincy will carol from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., making frequent stops along Hancock Street in Quincy Center.

On Saturday at 11 a.m., a CYO Group from St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point will spend about an hour on a similar route. From 2 to 3 p.m., the Quincy Choral Society will treat afternoon shoppers to impromptu concerts.

Member merchants will host the groups at the conclusion of their strolls. The QCBPA will make a Christmas donation to the organizations who spend time with them entertaining local shoppers.

Sponsoring the event is part of the association's effort to reacquaint residents with the "pleasure of shopping local."

Senior Citizens and Chiropractic

People who are older can benefit from chiropractic care. Less muscle strength from lack of regular exercise and joint instability could affect an older person's balance and range of motion. The vertebrae (bones of the spine) are more likely to lose their normal position or motion from falls or slips, poor posture... The nervous system could then be irritated causing back and neck pain, arthritis...

Regular chiropractic adjustments can help improve flexibility, increase range of motion and improve overall health.

Oney Moran Receives AMVETS Pilgrim Award

Oney R. Moran of Quincy recently received the Pilgrim Award for Rehabilitation from the AMVETS.

The award was presented in recognition of his outstanding achievement in volunteer work with veterans at the Boston VA Medical Center, as well as for his service and conduct towards his fellow man.

Moran began his volunteer work with veterans over 20 years ago and he is currently a representative to the medical center for the Army/Navy Union and the 40&8. He enjoys facilitating veterans back into the mainstream of life through diversional programs and support.

"Mr. Moran has been instrumental with raising funds for various programs at the medical center," said Michael Ashe of the voluntary and recreation therapy department.

Moran has also been instrumental in raising funds for a blind children's camp for over 20 years, as well as for many different service organizations, senior citizen organizations and youth support in the Quincy area.

The Boston VA Medical Center is part of a comprehensive, integrated system of health care, providing high quality clinical programs and services to veterans throughout New England. The medical center, which is affiliated with the Boston University School of Medicine, also consists of two outpatient clinics located in Boston and Lowell.

Girl Scout Council Names Phyllis Godwin 'Leading Woman'

Phyllis Papani Godwin, president and CEO of Granite City Electric Supply Company, has received a "Leading Woman" Award from the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council.

Godwin has expanded her company from a single location in 1969 to eight existing locations in eastern Massachusetts. During her career, she has been a strong advocate for women in business, using her experiences to inspire, motivate, and assist other women in paths that have not always been open and accepting of women.

She has been the first woman to serve on numerous boards and organizations, including the boards of the National Association of Electrical Distributors and the Bank of Braintree.

In 1996, Godwin was the first woman elected chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and she immediately founded the Women's Business Connection to increase the visibility and participation of women in the business community.

Godwin was one of 12 women this year to win the "Leading Woman" Award.

GOUT IS A SOMETIMES THING

The good news about gout is that it can usually be controlled. The bad news is that there is no cure, and once you have had one episode of the characteristic pain and swelling, it may come and go throughout your life. Gout is a chronic disease in which crystals of uric acid (a chemical produced by the liver) settle in the kidneys and blood vessels, around tendons, and in joints, rather than being disposed of via urine. Feet, especially the big toe, often become targets of gout, perhaps due to the constant pressure of walking. Treatment may include preventative drugs, anti-inflammatory drugs, and medications that control the body's uric acid. Surgery may be an option for joints severely damaged by gout.

P.S. "Pseudo-gout," with gout-like symptoms, may be caused by sudden weight loss, use of diuretics, or destruction of tumors.

Everyone may experience a foot problem at one time or another, especially women. Rely on a podiatrist. Whether there is a simple solution to your particular problem such as medication, prescription orthotics, or if a condition requires surgery, we will do whatever is necessary to get and keep each patient on their feet without pain. Our office is located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite 18 (773-4300).

Arthur Chandler Re-elected QC-WP Assn. President

Arthur M. Chandler was re-elected president of the Quincy Citizens & Wollaston Park Associations at the civic group's 30th annual meeting and Christmas Party at the Common Market Restaurant.

Other chair officers re-elected for the 1998 term are Frank Rines, first vice-president; Dominic Falcetta, second vice president, John G. Digilio, treasurer, and Dorothy C. Kelly, secretary.

Guest speaker, Frank McCauley, City Councillor-elect, and former mayor and member of the School Committee, told members that he is looking forward to actively participating in Quincy government and is especially interested in the new school building program. He said he hopes the proposed shipbuilding operation at Fore River will be a success, but he anticipates it will be a "struggle."

Chandler urged Quincy residents not to be apathetic and take a more-active interest in local government, because in 1998 zoning changes will be proposed, such as increasing building height limits which he said will be detrimental to the suburban character of Quincy.

Wal-Mart To Open Jan. 28

The long awaited new Wal-Mart store on 301 Falls Boulevard will finally open on Jan. 28. The store is in the area of Roche Brothers Supermarket.

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Wal-Mart Store, Inc. 301 Falls Blvd, to store 4,000 gallons of combustibles, 2,000 gallons of flammables and 200 pounds propane cylinders.

The board also revoked a propane license earlier issued in the event that there would not be a natural gas line. However, according to Atty. Dennis Harrington, representing Wal-Mart, Boston Gas is supplying gas so that there is no longer a need for propane.

Harrington said the combustibles include anti-freeze and various cosmetics.

The inventory storage of the combustibles will be on the retail floor of the store.

Harrington said the ammunition locker is in place with a gun locker to be built soon.

He said a snack bar will also be in effect at a later date.

A temporary occupancy permit has been given ton Wal-Mart so that they can stock the store.

A parking lot plan will be submitted before the opening, Harrington said.

E911 System To Serve As Model For Others In Mass.

Quincy Fire Department members told the City Council Monday night that communities across Massachusetts are hoping to use Quincy's planned Enhanced 911 (E911) system as a model.

Quincy was the last of the city's 351 communities to switch from the old 911 system in September. But since the state Legislature passed a home-rule petition to allow the city to have a second E911 emergency-call site three weeks ago, it is also the first to modify the standard single-site system that usually uses civilian call-takers with police supervisors.

Firefighters have pushed for the added site since last winter, saying a monitoring site at the main station on Quincy Avenue will cut response times to accidents and other emergencies.

Firefighters Union President William Arienti told councillors Monday night that other communities could have two E911 sites as early as next year.

He said communities such as Boston, Braintree and Weymouth are among those that are interested in filing legislation for the change, but the Legislature likely will wait to see how the modified system works in Quincy before taking further action.

It is unknown at this time exactly how much it will cost to modify Quincy's E911 system, although Arienti estimated it would be between $50,000 and $100,000.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE
You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.
Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.
Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.
Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.
Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.
Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.
Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

Two B.C. High Students Named AP Scholars

John J. Flibotte and Stephan G. Gildea, both of Quincy, are among 28 students at Boston College High School who have been named AP scholars by the College Board.

They received the honor in recognition of their exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement (AP) examinations.

Approximately 10 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP examinations. Only about 13 percent of the more than 581,000 students who took AP examinations in May 1997 performed at a sufficiently high level to merit such recognition.

MediaOne Launches Broadband Network

MediaOne, the Broadband services company, has launched its new Broadband network, bringing new channel offerings to customers in Quincy.

MediaOne has modified its program channel line-up in Quincy to a new channel line-up which features channels arranged in groups by programming type (news, sports, movies, family) to help customers easily find the programs they want to watch.

Customers will be able to choose from new, optional entertainment packages featuring some of the most requested channels, such as The History Channel, Sci-Fi Channel, fx:Movies from Fox, Comedy Central, Cartoon Network, and Starz!/Encore.

In addition, MediaOne will add new channels to its Standard Service line-up, including Fox News, Animal Planet, and Outdoor Life. As a result, Home Shopping Network and Country Music Television will no longer be available, and the following channels will be shown on a part-time basis, upon switching to the Broadband network: International Channel, Portuguese Channel and TV Italia.

MediaOne will also introduce its innovative MediaOne Entertainment Plans to Quincy customers. Plan options include SmartGuide, an instant interactive program guide with on-screen program descriptions, look-ahead schedules, program selections by category, parental control options and remote volume control. Also available is SmartRecord, a feature that virtually eliminates the confusion of programming a VCR and makes possible one-touch recording of any program.

For more information, call Chris St. Jean at 449-7080, ext. 3005.

Council Votes To Keep Downtown In Historic District--For Now

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council has blocked a plan to remove a portion of Hancock Street in Quincy Center from the downtown historic district.

The council, with little discussion, voted 5-2 against the proposal Monday night.

Councillor Paul Harold made the motion to block the plan, which was proposed by outgoing Councillor Michael Cheney.

Harold said while he is not opposed to readdressing the historic district issue in the future, he wants a new sign ordinance currently pending before the City Council to be passed first. He reasoned that if the proposed portion of Hancock Street was removed from the historic district first, the city's existing sign ordinance would allow signs "inappropriate" for the downtown to be used in Quincy Center.

Harold was supported by Council President Peter Kolson, Councillor Timothy Cahill, Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

Only Cheney and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers voted for the plan. Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico were not present for the vote.

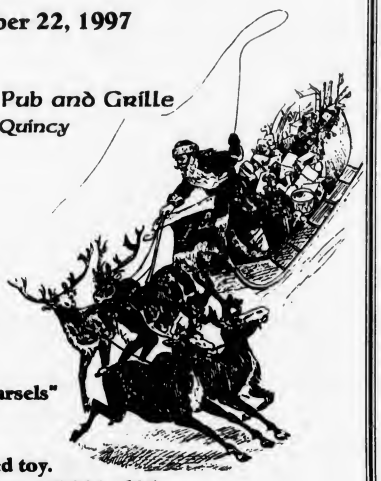
Cheney, who is not seeking reelection and was attending his final council meeting Monday night, said two months ago the area in question--Hancock Street from Granite to School streets--should not be part of the historic district. He argued that there is nothing historic about the area and that restrictions imposed for being in the district discourage new businesses from locating in the area.

Cheney had received support for his proposal from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) Board of Directors, which wanted the area returned to a non-historic status to get it out from under the thumb of the Quincy Historical Commission.

The board had also said it feels the new signage ordinance, which was designed by a special committee over a two-and-a-half year period, is strict enough and appropriately calls for enforcement by the city's building inspector.

In addition, the QCBPA board had asked the City Council to limit the role of the Quincy Historical Commission pertaining to signage on only buildings of true historic value when located in an established historic district.

The Quincy Center Historic District was created by a city ordinance in 1974 and originally included Adams Street to Dimmock Street down Hancock Street to Granite Street, where it ended.



In 1989, 15 years later, the district was extended to include Hancock Street from Granite to School streets, where it ended.

The city also has another historic district, the Adams Birthplace District on Independence Avenue and the surrounding area.

A LUMP IN THE THROAT

Few things can send a chill down your spine so quickly as the discovery of an unexpected lump somewhere in your body. This can be especially true when the lump is located in the neck, often feared as a site for spreading cancer. While lumps on the throat are relatively common, though, they are rarely cancerous, frequently turning out to be harmless thyroid nodules. Still, it's important to have any unexplained lumps checked out by your doctor. The exam may start with a thorough health history, followed by a physical check of the lump and neck, including the thyroid gland. Among the tests that may be recommended are a thyroid scan and an ultrasound.

P.S. It's estimated that as many as half the people in the U.S. have small, harmless (non-cancerous) thyroid nodules.

Today, early detection makes all the difference, so don't minimize your discovery when you find an unexpected lump. Most such lumps mean little, but information is your best prevention against unwanted illness. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, at 700 Congress St., Quincy, we specialize in heart disease. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. You find that we care about you and it shows in everything we do.

Cheney Steps Down From City Council

although the two sometimes disagreed on issues, "I never stopped respecting him for a moment, and we never differed in terms of what we wanted for the city. I'm a better councillor and a better person for having worked with him."

"Clearly, Mike Cheney is a doer," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. "He's someone who has incredible energy. This is clearly a family (Cheney's) that cares about Quincy."

"He's a very, very hard worker, someone who takes his job as a city councillor very, very seriously," said Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin.

Younger council members, including Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico also praised Cheney and thanked him for advice he offered while serving with them.

Cheney said his family has been very supportive during his years on the council, helping him answer phone calls, stuff envelopes, hold political signs and deal with a number of issues.

While discussing the many hours and hard work he has put into the council, he relayed a story that he said made all the effort worth it. He spoke of a little girl named Karen he met luring the first Kids Voting Quincy drive two years ago who said she voted for him "because you got my father a job."

"If that doesn't put a lump in your throat, I don't know what does," he said. "And that's my reward."

Cheney, an MBTA employee who has applied for the position of Quincy Housing Authority executive director, did not discuss his plans for the future.

He will be replaced on the council by McCauley, who won the open seat in last month's election.

$50,000 Appropriated For WWII Memorial

Plans for a World War II Memorial near Veterans Memorial Stadium on Hancock Street has taken a leap forward with support from the City Council.

On Monday night, the council unanimously appropriated $50,000 from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account for the project. The memorial will be located at Hancock Street and Southern Artery, opposite the Korean War Memorial in front of the stadium.

The two co-chairmen of the committee behind the project, Leonard Morris and John Donlan, spoke briefly on behalf of the memorial and urged the council's support.

Councillors who voiced support of the endeavor included Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney, Ward 5 Councilor Stephen Durkin and Ward 6 Councilor Bruce Ayers.

The city has sent out a request for proposals to contractors interested in doing the work for the project, as well as the second phase of the "Walk of Names" in front of City Hall. The deadline for proposals, which are sent to the Quincy Planning Department, is Jan. 15.

'Historic Quincy' Prints At Hospital

Prints of "Historic Quincy" are being offered for sale through the Quincy Hospital Health & Education Foundation.

Proceeds will benefit the hospital.

"Historic Quincy" is an original watercolor lithograph by local artist Bill Beyer. Each lithograph is individually signed and numbered by the artist. The painting depicts an array of historic sites in Quincy, such as the USS Salem, Granite Railway, the Adams birthplace and mansion and others. A copy of the framed print is available to view in the gift shop in the hospital's main lobby.

Prints are available at a cost of $35 unframed; $125 framed.

The framed version is available in a choice of two different frames and mats.

To order a print, or for more information, call Jean Parker at 376-5495.

Two Residents Enrolled at Harvard College

Vivian Chan and John J. Flibotte, both of Quincy, have enrolled as members of the Class of 2001 at Harvard College in Cambridge.

Chan, the daughter of Allen Yiu Ming Chan and Lilia Lai Ha Chan, graduated from North Quincy High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society and National Foreign Language Honor Society, a recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award, and a National Merit Commended Scholar.

Flibotte, the son of Joseph and Eileen Flibotte, graduated from Boston College High School where he was a John H. Dempsey Science Award and University of Rochester/Xerox Award winner, a three-time Gold Medalist in the National Latin Exam, and a Red Ribbon winner in the National Greek Exam.

Those who live in North Quincy, Wollaston, Montclair and Squantum are eligible to apply for help.

Donations also are being accepted from businesses, families, churches and schools. A $35 donation will give a family a turkey dinner with all the fixings and a present for everyone.

Donations may be sent to the Atlantic Neighborhood Association Inc., 12 Hunt St., North Quincy, MA 02171. For more information, call Pat at 376-1381.

Beechwood Children Collecting Socks For Needy

The children at Beechwood On The Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy, are collecting winter socks for the homeless and less fortunate.

The idea came to the center's After School children after one of the children, Angela Baglione of the Wollaston School, said, "Socks are the least donated clothing item that people who are in shelters get."

A holiday collection box is at the center. All socks will be routed to local shelters.

For more information, call 471-5712.

Lighting Safety Tips For Your Home Over The Holidays

Quincy Chief City Wire Inspector Thomas Purpura has cautioned residents about holiday lighting safety.

"Improper installations or faulty equipment could present an electrical shock or fire hazard. We want all of our residents to enjoy a safe and happy holiday season, so we urge caution when installing holiday lighting," he said.

Purpura offers the following suggestions:

•Check lighting set and extension cord wires for damage, such as exposed copper conductor or cracks in insulation. Discard lighting sets and cords that are damaged or in poor condition.

•When purchasing new sets, look for lighting sets and cords that have a listing mark such as UL, ETL, CSA, etc. These sets have been tested and meet safety standards. Also look for sets with a fuse in the attachment cap (plug). If you are using older sets there are new extension cords that have a fuse in the attachment cap. If this type of cord is used ahead of the older sets it will greatly improve their safety. Follow the manufacturer's instructions when installing lighting sets.

•If lights are installed outside, they should be plugged in an outlet that is GFCI (Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter) protected. If you do not have this type of receptacle outlet it is recommended that you have an electrician install one outside your home. If you rent there are plug in portable GFCI units available in many hardware and department stores. GFCI's will greatly reduce the shock hazard of outdoor lighting.

Helpful Household Ideas

(NAPS)—Here are some pretty good ideas from Home & Garden Television (HGTV) to help make your home beautiful and keep it that way:

• Drilling into plaster or wallboard creates a powdery mess. Tape a small paper bag or coffee filter to the wall just below the drill hole.

• To keep wood from splitting from nails, blunt the nail's sharp tip. The nail crushes the wood fibers instead of shearing and splitting it.

• To re-use the yarn from an old sweater, unravel the yarn and wrap it around a cake pan. Dip the pan in water. Allow the yarn to air-dry and magically straighten out.

• To keep an extension cord untangled, wrap it around a cardboard tube and stick the plug inside the tube.

NQHS Girls' Track Team Honored By City Council

The North Quincy High School girls' track and cross country team was honored by the City Council Monday night.

The Red Raiders were recognized for qualifying for the state finals for the first time since 1993.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, a North Quincy High graduate, applauded the girls for their efforts and presented them with City Council commendations and pins.

"As a former Red Raider, I know I can say we're all proud of your accomplishment," said Ayers.

Geoff Hennessy, team coach, said his players' achievements this year are particularly noteworthy since the team is comprised of freshmen and sophomores.

Team members include sophomores Amy Cheung, Sarah Houghton, Christine Marre, Genevieve O'Brien and Lynda Wilson and freshmen Linda Nguyen and Kelly Rose O'Brien. The other coaches are Jeremy Gott and Sherrin Quintiliani.

New Restaurant At Quincy Point Marina

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

In the spring, there will be a new restaurant at the Quincy Point Marina on 64 Washington Court to be known as The Inn At Bay Pointe.

The Quincy License Board granted a common victualer-all alcoholic license to Damian Pettinelli, owner of Edwin Cabot Limited Partnership, at Tuesday's meeting.

The manager will be Kevin Hynes, part owner of Isacc's in Plymouth, Paisano's in Kingston and the Inn On The Green in Whitman.

Atty. Robert Fleming told the board that the 4600 square feet 160 seat restaurant will not be a "barroom", but a food service operation.

He said neighborhood meetings were held at the Fore River Clubhouse and showed the board a petition with 270 signatures signed in support of the establishment..

One abutter said she was concerned about the odor, the noise and the drinking. She said she was afraid that down the road the owners would ask for an entertainment license and said she feared it would be another "tent like Marina Bay."

Fleming emphasized that the Quincy Point restaurant is a entirely "different operation" than Marina Bay which has a capacity of 1,500.

He said the owners have invested about $750,000 and have spent money clearing the area disposing of old boats, old buildings and said the area has "become a very attractive site".

Chairman Joseph Shea said he didn't expect the place not to be clean with such a large investment. He said he was concerned about the entrance of Washington Court as being on a "small city street" and said he will revisit the area with City Engineer Jack Gillan and Police Chief Thomas Frane.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue asked abut the dumpsters and how often there would be emptied. Hynes said the dumpsters would be emptied every day and that the stove hoods would have automatic scrubbers to diminish the strong odors..

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, while acknowledging some of the abutters "uneasy feelings about alcohol in the Washington Street area" said a significant amount of people are "excited" about the restaurant and said "we don't have a restaurant like this in Quincy"

Raymondi said his concern was the access to Washington Court as being on a "very small street."

Raymondi said he felt as though the "quality restaurant, qualified managers and food would be able to "control what is happening in and out of the restaurant."

He said if things "change down the line, he would then "rely on the license board to take immediate action.

Shea who called the site of the restaurant a "hidden jewel" said the request would be sent to the ABCC and told the owner and manager that it usually takes "five or six weeks" to be processed.

Members of Grades nine and ten business class students at North Quincy High School attended the meeting to observe how licenses are procured for new businesses.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a transfer of a common victualer-all alcoholic license from White Barn Corp., doing business as Rouillard's Cafe, 139 Copeland St., to Mi Ni Lin Corp. doing business as Rouillard's Cafe. New owners are Michael and Nancy Repucci.

•Allowed the transfer of stock and change of corporate name of Pizza Hut Of America, Inc. in conjunction with the restaurant at 627 Washington St.

•Granted a common victualer license to Kenneth Clinton, owner of Serendipity Cafe, 2 Hancock St. from Antebellum Foods, Inc.

•Granted a request from Mohammed Shuman of Quincy Auto Service, 305 Quincy Shore Drive, for a Motor II License

•Allowed Loretta DeGrazia, owner of East coast Petroleum Corp., 235 Atlantic St. a permit to store 10,000 gallons of #2 heating oil stored in the trucks at the site.

•Granted a permit to Dave Scales, Norwest Group, Inc. owner of Auto,Truck and Trailer, 10 Independence Ave., to store 100 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of five vehicles at the site.

Chairman Joseph Shea asked Scales to attend a historical meeting because the site is across the street from the Adam's Houses.

City Council Briefs

The City Council took the following action at its meeting Monday night:

•Accepted a gift of $10,000 from the Disabled American Veterans for chandeliers in the City Council Chambers in memory of Joseph and Marguerite Harold.

•Accepted a gift of $5,000 from the Copeland Family Foundation for the Quincy Animal Shelter.

•Accepted a gift of $400 from Peabody Properties for elder services transportation.

Presidents To Feature Quickness, Athleticism

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Winners of just four games over the past two seasons, the revamped Quincy High School girls' basketball team is poised to put together a memorable 1997-98 campaign.

"These girls have made the commitment to improving as individuals and as a team," said Presidents' head coach Bob Noble, now in his third year.

"A lot of them played all summer and in a fall league and are ready to play. They've made the effort and worked very hard, and I hope it pays off for them. They certainly deserve it."

Among the players who will have an impact are the four players back from last year's team: seniors Kerry Duffy (point guard), Pam Gray (forward) and Becky Mackey (guard) and junior Jess DiBona (guard).

"Kerry, who's one of our captains, is a three-year starter and our team leader," said Noble, who will carry 10 seniors, two juniors and a sophomore on the varsity. "She runs the show and will do a very good job for us. Our other captain, Pam, will also start for us.

"They've both done a great job getting the team prepared to play. Becky started for us on occasion and is a fine defensive player, while Jess was a starter last year and is a good outside threat."

Joining Duffy in the starting backcourt will be senior Lucisette Piloto, a first-year player who impressed Noble with her play in the preseason. Senior Amy Groleau, also in her first season, will back up Duffy at the point.

The Presidents received a huge dose of good news when senior Erin Barry, a varsity starter as a freshman and sophomore, decided to return after a year's absence. Barry will start at center for Quincy this winter.

"Erin's one of the top if not the top female athlete at Quincy High, and we're thrilled to have her back," said Noble. "She's an All-Scholastic volleyball player who brings a lot of athleticism and toughness to the team. With her varsity experience, she's a valuable addition."

Starting at forward alongside Gray will be sophomore Colleen Nichol, a member of the 15-3 freshman team a year ago.

"She's going to be an outstanding player for us over the next few years," said Noble. "She's done very well so far and is only going to improve the more she plays."

The biggest question Noble and his staff face heading into the new campaign is finding a proven scorer, a reliable player who can deliver in the clutch.

"Right now, we don't have a go-to player, someone who will step up and be a consistent scorer," he said. "We're going to play 10 to 12 players on a consistent basis, so hopefully that player will emerge."

While last year's team revolved around its size and strength inside, the current squad is smaller but much quicker–a valuable trait in the Old Colony League.

"We're quicker now than we were a year ago," said Noble. "That should translate into more of a fast break style of offense, with easier transition baskets. Last year, we were very big but not very fast, and had a tough time against quicker teams.

"That won't be a problem

North Quincy Girls' Hoop Season Opener Friday

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team, under the guidance of head coach Ken Panaro, opens its 1997-98 season Friday at 7 p.m. against visiting Old Colony League foe Taunton.

The Red Raiders, who finished under .500 last season, lost senior tri-captain starters Jill Picardi (forward), Dawn Kohler (center) and Kerry Ginty (point guard), but retained starters Laurie Flynn (forward) and Kristen Keohane (guard), both seniors.

Next Tuesday, Dec. 23 at 7 p.m., the Red Raiders visit OCL opponent Barnstable, then participate in the NQHS Christmas Tournament next weekend.

(NQ head coach Panaro was unavailable for comment as of press time.)

For D&H, Mike Marshall tallied twice, Thomas Henry scored a goal, John Kurpeski chipped in two assists, and Mike Lebel, Tom Keefe and Kevin Bossart all dished out an assist.

Offensive Balance The Key For Squirt A's In 5-2 Victory

Quincy Youth Hockey's Squirt A's recently faced off against Dorchester's Squirt A's and came away with a 5-2 victory.

Balance was the key for Quincy, which got goals from five different players. Quincy opened the scoring in the first period with "Big Mike" McKeon netted a goal, assisted by Kevin "Mr. Yes" Richardson. Dorchester tied the game later in the period on a breakaway.

In what Quincy coach Patten called the play of the game, Paul "Tomahawk" Fasoli fed the puck to Paul "Rock" Graham, who missed the pass. Instead of stoping or slowing down, Graham raced down to Dorchester's end, beating the defensemen and forcing the goaltender to come out to get the puck. Though it appeared the goaltender would easily handle the puck, Graham never stopped skating and when the goaltender misplayed the puck, Graham slammed it home into an open net.

Later in the first, Richardson intercepted an errant pass in Dorchester's end and beat the goaltender top shelf for a 3-1 Quincy lead. Dorchester stormed back in the second to cut Quincy's lead to 3-2. Quincy answered when Jonathan O'Connor controlled a loose puck in Dorchester's zone and from the top of the face off circle rifled a shot by the goaltender for an unassisted tally.

Quincy increased its lead to 5-2 in the third when Justin Thorley scored off assists from Andrew "The Iron Duke" Patten and Richardson. Quincy coach Richardson was impressed with the overall play of Paul "Crusher" Noonan, Graham, Fasoli, Patten and Matt Tobin.

Richardson Sparks The Sun; Malone Lifts Dodge; Newcomb And Thorley Sugarman Standouts

SQUIRT HOUSE

Bobby Newcomb and Justin Thorley each netted two goals as M. Sugarman skated past Burgin Platner, 7-3, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League action.

Also contributing to Sugarman's cause were Jake McQuinn (goal, two assists), Chris Garvey (goal, assist), Cory Bythrow (goal), Steve Bythrow and Mike McKeon (two assists apiece), and Ian McRae, Katelyn Nee and Kevin Barry (one assist each). For BP, Steve Maggio, Matt Tobin and Tim Lally were the goal scorers, with single assists from Joe Sweeney, Mark Lewis, Danny Poggi, Matt McHugh and Marissa Deegan.

Pat Malone's two goals and two assists helped Westminster Dodge get past Keohane's, 9-7.

Paul Gavaghan (two goals, assist), David Tapper (two goals), Andrew Patten, Brian Carney and Evan Harrington (one goal apiece), along with Donald Gardiner, James Spellman, Dave Finnegan and Mike Faherty (one assist each) also pitched in offensively for WD. Doing the scoring for Keohane's were Matt Giordani and Mike Gibbons (two goals, one assist apiece), Brian Sorenson and Alex Shaffer (one goal, one assist each), Brendan Mulcahy (four assists), Mike Barter (two assists), Mike Giordani (goal) and Paul Lennon (assist).

Kevin Richardson's hat trick sparked The Quincy Sun to a 5-4 triumph over Pat Foley Painting.

Eddie Laura and Sean McCormack each netted a goal, Mike MacPherson collected two assists and Robby Gagliard, Dan Reggiannini and Jim Callahan each dished out an assist for the Sun. For Foley, Matt Haskins and Sean Warwick each picked up a goal and an assist, Kristina Manganaro and Terrence O'Connell each notched a goal, Paul Noonan had two assists and Mike Lohnes added an assist.

ADHERING TO MAINTENANCE SCHEDULES

Owner's manuals show that today's cars require less maintenance than those of only a decade ago. After the initial break-in period, most new vehicles require a major checkup every 15,000 miles, with oil changes and tire rotations about every 5,000 or 7,500 miles. While schedules vary, a typical 15,000-mile checkup will likely include a check of fluids, valve adjustment, cooling/heater hose inspection, fluid or exhaust leaks, tires and brakes, a lubrication check, and inspection of drive belts, throttle linkage, and suspension and steering systems. In addition, checkups at 30,000-mile intervals will include filter and plug replacement, cooling-system flush, repacking the wheel bearings, and replacement of the timing belt (when indicated).

HINT: Vehicles that are subjected to "severe" driving conditions, such as repeated short trips, stop-and-go driving, driving on dusty roads and towing, require stepped-up maintenance.

Red Raiders A Mixture Of Talented Veterans, Promising Newcomers

VOLLEYBALL

With 27 athletes returning from last year's squad joined by 11 promising newcomers, the outlook is bright for the North Quincy High School girls' indoor track team.

"We're balanced, experienced and talented," said North Quincy head coach Geoff Hennessy, in his 10th season at the helm. "If we stay healthy, we'll give anyone a go."

The Red Raiders, who finished third in the Old Colony League with a 4-3 mark last season, lost just three athletes to graduation, all valuable members of the squad: Wingsze Yuen (Boston University), Lauren Molloy (Bryant College), Casey Ngo (Brandeis University).

Six returning seniors lead a deep Raider squad: Nicole Bertone (shotput), Sarah Beston (highjump), Kristy Deptula (shotput), Jasmine Gonzalez (600), Sharon Lee (600), Claire Quilty (shotput). Beston was the Class B Champion in the highjump, and Gonzalez qualified for Allstate in 600.

Back for another season are eight juniors: Liz Bennett (300), Dorothy Cronin (mile), Chrissy Duncan (shotput), Nancy Gardner (mile), Melissa Griffin (shotput), Kellie Johnston (300), Kelly Lockhead (hurdles) and Shirley Wu (mile).

Returning for their sophomore season are Amy Cheung (mile), Charlene Cote, Sarah Houghton (2-mile), Elisabeth Hunt (300), Liz Leuchte (50), Christine Marre (1000), Heather Meighan (mile), Genevieve O'Brien (1000), Sarah Price (hurdles), Ha-Le Tran (50), Mieke Van Halsema (50), Lynda Wilson (2-mile) and Lena Yuen (shotput).

Among the newcomers are junior Kim Huerth (hurdles); sophomores Rebecca Chan (hurdles) and Joanna Cook (shotput). Freshmen on the squad are Ellen Blaney (300), Colleen Lahar (300), Clare Lee (hurdles), May Ling Luc (300), Heather Lynch (hurdles, highjump), Melissa McKenna (600), Linda Nguyen (1000) and KellyRose O'Brien (1000).

Hennessy noted the following athletes to keep an eye on: Beston in highjump and hurdles; Johnston in 300; Gonzalez in 600; Cronin, Wilson, Nguyen, the O'Brien's, and Houghton in distances; Deptula and Quilty in shotput; and the 4x400 relay team of Johnston, Lee, Huerth and Gonzalez.

Joining Hennessy on the staff for her ninth season is assistant Maureen Fallon, along with first-year volunteers Sherrin Quintiliani and Heather Rendle.

The Red Raiders, who move up to Class A this year, opened their OCL schedule at Taunton Tuesday. They will bring 12 girls to Saturday's Brandeis Invitational.

Quincy, NQ Open Hockey Seasons

HOCKEY

The Quincy High School and North Quincy High School hockey teams, which took distinctly different routes last season, opened their 1997-98 campaigns this week.

Under the tutelage of head coach Bob Sylvia, the Presidents finished 14-3-4 and reached the Div. 1 state tournament for the first time since 1978.

In Monday's season opener, Quincy battled visiting non-league opponent Hull to a 4-4 tie.

Trailing Hull 3-0 after the first period, Quincy rallied with two second-period goals. After tying the game at 3-3, the Presidents' Scott Mattson scored with just five minutes left to give the home squad its first lead. The vistors quickly retaliated, scoring a late goal to earn the tie.

Other goal scorers for Quincy were Chris Haidul, Brian Nolan and Didier Alther. Goalie Chris Burns stopped 20 shots for Quincy.

The Presidents (0-0-1) are back in action Saturday at 7 p.m. at Dennis-Yarmouth, then host Bridgewater-Raynham next Monday, Dec. 22, at 7 p.m. Both games are Old Colony League contests.

The Red Raiders, meanwhile, are coming off a 5-9-6 record and will look to turn things around under first-year head coach Bob Doyle. North's JV coach last season, Doyle replaces Tom Benson, who left to take over the head coaching position at Newton North.

North Quincy opened its season yesterday (Wednesday) at 5:30 p.m. at Plymouth South. North hosts Falmouth Saturday at 7:45 p.m., then visits Barnstable next Monday, Dec. 22, at 8 p.m. All three are OCL games.

(Neither head coach was available for comment as of press time.)

this season. We should be able to run with pretty much everyone. We're also more athletic and should be a fun team to watch."

Noble also realizes that while the Presidents are not in the class with OCL powerhouses like Silver Lake and Bridgewater-Raynham, he does believe they can compete in--and win--their share of games.

"We'll be competitive," he said. "We're still not at the level we want to be, which is at the top of the league, but we should sneak up on the lower echelon and pick up some victories. Are we better than last year? Yes, we are better."

The Presidents opened their season Tuesday at Taunton. Friday at 7 p.m., they host Barnstable. Next Tuesday, Dec. 23 at 7 p.m., they visit Plymouth South.

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You are in somewhat of a rut on the job and need to find ways to stimulate your creativity. A family member doesn't comprehend your views. Tend to domestic concerns this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unexpected household expense catches you by surprise, but it's a minor one. Someone you deal with this week is unsympathetic and crude. Warmth and understanding rule this weekend in romance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An inconsiderate friend has you cooling your heels as you wait for this person early in the week. Don't let this interfere with all your plans for the week. The situation improves as time goes on.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) No matter how hard you try, delays and mix-ups are the order of the week. Try not to let too much frustration build up. Chalk this up to "just one of those weeks."

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Despite all your efforts, your hands are tied in a particular work situation. By the same token, another project goes smoothly. A co-worker pitches in to help.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your misgivings about a friendship are warranted, but try not to be too judgmental. In romance, it's a time of heightened rapport and understanding. A financial delay occurs later in the week.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone unexpectedly does a favor for you at work. Advice received is so contradictory, you find you must rely on your own thoughts. Tune your inner ear to your intuition this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Indecision and uncertainty mark the early part of the week. Some find that children bring unexpected responsibilities. Special joy comes through artistic endeavors this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You are called upon to shoulder additional responsibilities on the home front. A family member doesn't see eye to eye with you about one of your plans. The weekend is made special by a romantic outing.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) If you continue to worry so over trivialities, you're liable to develop permanent frown lines. Lighten up and try to gain perspective. A minor delay could cause you to go into a tailspin.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You spend much of your week trying to make plans for a special get-together with a friend. Unfortunately, your schedules are not in sync. At work, help comes from an unexpected source.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Avoid a tendency to sell yourself short. You derive more pleasure from friendships than business. A close friend in particular is thoughtful and giving.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Of all God's gifts to man, laughter is one of the most subtle and is one of the most precious. It has neither nationality nor religion. As an equalizer, it has no equal.

Laughter is one of the greatest contributions that has been given to mankind, and is one of the best things that one person can give to another. Comedians try to give that gift to us by telling jokes or humorous stories, but we don't always need an entertainer to make us laugh. We can give laughter to others; others can give laughter to us; and best of all, we can give it to ourselves.

When was the last time you had a good laugh at yourself? When was the last time you were in an embarrassing situation and didn't know what to do or say? And when you thought about it later, you realized the joke was on you and you could have just laughed! Laughing can make you feel better in an embarrassing situation and it certainly is better than crying. . . So keep it as an important part of your life. As the saying goes: When you laugh, the world laughs with you; when you cry, you cry alone . . .

Put A Lock On Your Company's Info

Think before talking about the details of your job or working on sensitive projects in public places such as restaurants, airplanes, classrooms, and gyms.

Know who's on the other end of the line - telephone, modem, fax - before giving out any sensitive information. It could be a competitor or trade journalist looking for helpful employees who are too eager to give out information about their employer.

Keep your work area clear. When you'll be gone for a few hours and at the end of the day, put your papers in a drawer or file cabinet.

Think about what's on a piece of paper before you toss it into the trash. If it's sensitive information tear it up or use a shredder.

Challenge strangers who enter your work area. Call a supervisor or security for help.

Protect identification badges, office keys, and codes as you would your own credit cards and keys. When you are away from the office, don't let anyone see or overhear your phone card codes.

Use the password system on your computer to prohibit unauthorized users from accessing your computer. Avoid using personal information and change your password frequently.

Will Resume In Spring

Search For Body In Quarry Called Off

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke has called off the search for a second body in the Granite Rail Quarry in Quincy.

Locke said last week poor visibility and increasingly colder water at the site have made conditions too dangerous for police divers to continue but the search will resume in the spring.

The search began five weeks ago. Although authorities at first told divers to search for a missing woman after receiving a tip, they eventually recovered not a female body but that of P.J. McDonagh, an Irish student missing since 1994.

A woman's body also was located at one point but could not be relocated after markers left by divers fell.

Divers were hindered throughout the search by the water depth, treacherous terrain, and debris. Rains also stirred up silt, making visibility poor.

Locke said the colder water was the final factor in the decision to suspend the search, saying divers' equipment was beginning to freeze and they faced an increased risk of frostbite.

Fore River Watershed Association Hires Executive Director

The Fore River Watershed Association (FRWA) announces the hiring of Kristen Phelps of Quincy as executive director.

Phelps will assist with organizational administration, manage current activities, and pursue and develop new initiatives in accordance with the Association's goals.

She holds a masters degree in environmental policy and management and has been working with the International Environment Program at Harvard University's Institute for International Development for the pat year and a half.

Phelps is a volunteer for and member of the Association. "Since my earliest involvement with the FRWA, I have been continually impressed with their work and by the vision and commitment of Association members, I was extremely flattered by their offer and am looking forward to working with the organization in this new capacity," she said.

The FRWA is a community organization, comprised primarily of residents of Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth, working to protect and enhance the resources of the Fore River and its tributaries, Only in its second year, the FRWA has been recognized for its stewardship of the watershed and its resources by both the US Environmental Protection Agency and American Rivers.

Recent accomplishments include working with state and local agencies to resolve a sanitary sewer overflow problem occurring in Smelt Brook; installing interpretive signs at Watson Park in East Braintree; conducting a comprehensive shoreline survey to assess the assets and problems within the watershed; and initiating a fisheries study to determine the status of herring populations in the Monatiquot River.

In the upcoming year, the Association will continue to undertake activities aimed at restoring and enhancing the watershed, and plans to expand its reach by developing collaborative relationships with other organizations in the area.

BUSINESS

Citizens Net Income Increases

Citizens Financial Group, Inc. ("Citizens") has reported record net income of $184.6 million for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1997, a 44 percent increase over the $128.2 million earned in the year ended Sept. 30, 1996.

The increase reflected continued improvements in the company's core banking business, a full year of operations of its New Hampshire bank and a $27 million after tax gain on the sale of its third party mortgage servicing portfolio.

For the fourth quarter, Citizens reported net income of $42.3 million, a 51 percent increase over the $28.0 million earned for the fourth quarter of 1996.

"We continue to build a powerful and successful New England franchise by focusing on our employees, customers and communities. We have great momentum as we enter 1998 and look forward to continued record growth" said Citizens Chairman, President and CEO Lawrence K. Fish.

Assets for the four-state bank holding company rose to $16.2 billion at Sept. 30, 1997 compared to $14.5 billion a year ago, reflecting completion of the acquisitions of Farmers & Mechanics in March 1997, The Bank of New Haven in New Haven, Conn., in August 1997.

Crestview Nursing Center Receives Perfect Survey

Crestview Nursing & Rehabilitation Center in Quincy has received a perfect annual survey from the Massachusetts State Department of Public Health in November.

The skilled care center is owned and operated by Logan Healthcare Management Group, a Weymouth-based provider that has served the South Shore for almost 40 years.

The extensive multi-day survey covers all aspects of nursing care and administration and is intended to monitor the care provided within the state's skilled nursing care industry. Typically, only a small percentage of those surveyed receive a zero defect rating.

This is the third year out of the last four that Crestview Nursing & Rehabilitation Center has received a perfect rating, an achievement that has been matched by only a few nursing centers in the state. Crestview is a 50-bed facility, whose executive director is Joel K. Logan.

Direct Deposit

By LAURIE ZASTROW

It won't be long. The cold winds of winter are just around the corner. If you sign up for direct deposit now you can sit at home this winter, warm and cozy, and know your money is in the bank every month. Direct deposit is the safe, convenient way to receive your Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits.

You don't have a bank account? Contact your bank, credit union or savings & loan. They'll be glad to help you. If you already have a bank account, contact your bank or call Social Security toll-free, 1-800-772-1213. If you call Social Security, the representative will need to ask you a few questions to determine your identity.

If you have an account, you can call your bank or Social Security to switch to direct deposit. You'll need your bank statement or personal check, and your Social Security number. You can expect your benefits to be deposited in your account within 30 to 60 days. We'll send you a letter telling you to expect your benefits to be in your bank account.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Council Approves $15.5 Million For Schools Project

converted into a middle school to relieve overcrowding at Sterling. It will open in September 1999, a year after students are transferred from there to the new Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point.

Because the city has been forced to pay skyrocketing costs for special education students--as well as other reasons--maintenance funding has been limited in recent years.

Creedon noted that some of the projects are particularly needed, especially the conversion of Quincy High School into the new Central Middle School. The current Quincy High was built in 1924 but with repairs will be fine as a middle school, he said. The current Central Middle School is 103 years old.

Sheets: Shipyard 'A Done Deal'

shortly after Congress passed a budget resolution allowing loans to a closed shipyard.

Emmanouil, who wants to build six double-hulled tankers at the yard--which closed when General Dynamics left in 1986--is still awaiting a decision on another $249 million in guarantees that will allow him to build the tankers.

Sheets said those guarantees should be approved shortly after the $55 million for the modernization of the yard is approved.

Emmanouil hopes to lay the keel for the first tanker by next fall and says the shipyard reopening will create 1,000 jobs for the first contracts and as many as 2,000 for future shipbuilding.

Although the date of the deal's closing has been changed several times, Sheets said it is competition from southern shipyards for the guarantees combined with the complexity of the paperwork involved--and not problems with Emmanouil's finances--that has caused the delays.

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT was among the officials who spoke at last Thursday's press conference announcing that the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has approved $55 in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the Fore River shipyard. Seated from left are John Graykowski, acting MARAD administrators; former Congressman Gerry Studds, Sen. Edward Kennedy, shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, Acting Gov. For Construction Of Tankers

$249M In Guarantees Next Step For Shipyard

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city must now await approval of $249 million in federal loan guarantees needed to help finance six tankers to be built at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

The guarantees would be the final step for the shipyard, where a press conference was held last Thursday for the announcement that the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has approved $55 million in guarantees that will allow shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil to modernize the site.

Officials hope the yard, which has been closed since the departure of General Dynamics in 1986, can be reopened and operating by the end of next year, when Emmanouil plans to lay the keel for the first of the six tankers to be built for Mare Maritime Co., which is based in England. The reopening is expected to create at least 1,000 new jobs.

Mayor James Sheets said at press time he expects the loan guarantees for the tankers to be approved within six months. The process leading up to that approval, he noted, is nowhere near as complicated as that which led to the modernization loans.

"It's a very simple process," he said. "The process of capitalization of ships will not be a repeat process of the modernization. They're totally different."

The first ship completed will be christened the Mare Quincy, or "The Sea of Quincy," according to Sheets. ("Mare" is the Greek word for sea.) The vessel should be completed by the beginning of the year 2000, he said.

Sheets added that he believes by the middle of next year, Emmanouil will have enough work lined up to keep the shipyard open for at least 10 years.

While the city awaits MARAD's approval of the final loan guarantees, the modernization of the shipyard, which will include the installation of robotic equipment and more, will get underway.

Federal, state and city officials were on hand for last Thursday's press conference at the shipyard.

Sheets opened the ceremonies by saying that the "renovation and mobilization" of the shipyard by Emmanouil's Swampscott-based company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), "allows us to reconnect with our great shipbuilding past. It provides a foundation on which future generations can build."

U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy gave a rousing speech that praised Sheets and Emmanouil for their efforts to reopen the shipyard and even offered some words of congratulations for the state's most prominent Republican for his work on the project.

"(Acting Gov.) Paul Cellucci walked the walk, he didn't just talk the talk," he said.

Kennedy, who noted that the shipyard employed 32,000 people at its peak, added that MARAD's news is especially appropriate for this time of year.

"We deserve this kind of Christmas present," said Kennedy. "It's something about the future."

Emmanouil was all smiles as he briefly traced the history of his project: President Clinton signed a commitment to release loan guarantees to the shipyard in December 1993; Emmanouil submitted his loan application to MARAD in November 1995; MARAD gave final approval to the $55 million in modernization guarantees last Thursday morning.

"We did it," said Emmanouil. "We're going to make it."

Former Congressman Gerry Studds, who has been named MHI's executive director as a result of his efforts on behalf of the shipyard, voiced similar sentiments.

"It's been a long, hard road, but we've finally done it," said Studds, who noted Emmanouil has exemplified "perhaps the most extraordinary perseverance I have ever seen in my life" over the last couple of years.

Cellucci also was on hand for the ceremonies.

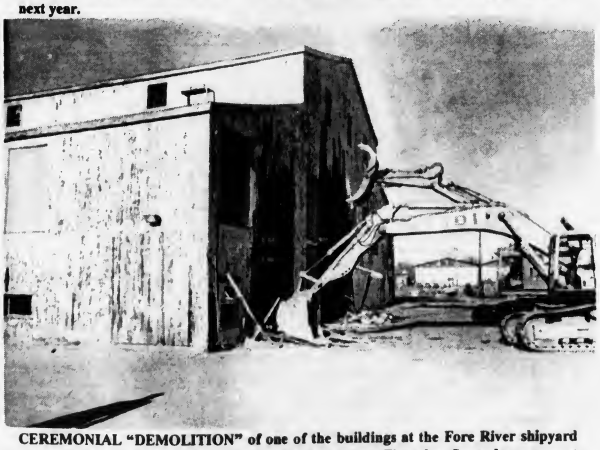
"What a great day for the City of Quincy, what a great day for the South Shore, and what a great day for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," said the acting governor. Cellucci also spoke of Sheets' role in the project, referring to the mayor as "the quarterback who completed the pass that got the ball over the goal line."

U.S. Sen. John Kerry expressed eagerness to get the shipyard open as soon as possible.

"The partnership we renew today has existed a long time, and has produced some of the great names in Naval history," he said. "This (MARAD's announcement) means the work will begin. Let us move on."

John Graykowski, MARAD's acting administrator, said although the process in securing the initial loan guarantees was a long and complicated one, "anything is possible when you put together this group of folks (at the press conference)."

Graykowski added that he also was impressed with Emmanouil's commitment and that he personally wanted to help "put Quincy back on the map and back into shipbuilding."



Congressman William Delahunt, a Quincy resident, said the shipyard news is "very, very special," especially for those who live in the city.

"This day can best be described as a watershed in the industry," said the Congressman, who noted that shipbuilders in the nation now total less than 100,000 even though there used to be

SOTIRIOS EMMANOUIL (right), owner of the Fore River shipyard, is congratulated by Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci and Sen. Edward Kennedy prior to last Thursday's press conference. Emmanouil hopes to have the shipyard reopened and operating by the end of next year.

CEREMONIAL "DEMOLITION" of one of the buildings at the Fore River shipyard followed the speaking portion of the press conference last Thursday. Several strucures at the site will be razed as part of the shipyard revitalization.

Distributing Food, Gifts To Needy

They're Making The Holidays Happier

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Service organizations and social clubs throughout the city are exemplifying the Christmas spirit by providing food and/or presents for the needy.

Among the groups doing their part to help the less fortunate this holiday season are The Salvation Army, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Father Bill's Place, the Koch Club, and the Quincy Crisis Center.

Maj. Kathleen Klenk, co-commander of The Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, said food vouchers have been mailed to more than 200 families serviced by the organization. Every child belonging to one of those families also was invited to drop by the Army's headquarters at 6 Baxter St. last Friday to choose a toy.

"We use vouchers because that way, they can get whatever (food) they want," she noted.

In addition, Klenk said, more than 20 families that The Salvation Army decided "need an extra boost this year" are being sponsored by individuals or groups that approached the organization with an interest in doing something extra.

"The sponsors provide the families with food, toys, and sometimes items that are individually requested, such as ice skates," she said. "I think by actually getting to know the families, it makes it more personal for them than just making a donation."

Daniel Keating, exalted ruler of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, said his organization distributed about 150 baskets to numerous locations in Quincy, as well as a few sites outside the city, on Sunday.

"It's a little bit more than last year," said Keating, who added that those who request baskets from the Elks usually do so through their church or community center.

In addition, the Elks are assisting a number of veterans during the holiday season, according to Tom Shepherd, chairman of the Elks' V.A. Committee.

Shepherd said the organization recently held a Christmas Party for the V.A. Hospital in Jamaica Plain. Food baskets and gifts also were distributed at the hospital, as well as the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston and the Soldiers Home in Chelsea, he said.

Joseph Finn, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, which operates Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter said the QISC is prepared to serve around 200 meals at its annual Community Dinner on Christmas Day from 1 to 3 p.m. at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave.

Finn emphasized, however, that meals will be served not only to the homeless but also to others in need, senior citizens, the volunteers who help with the meal and anyone else who wishes to attend.

"There wouldn't be 200 homeless people in the area for us to serve," he said. "All are welcome. In a way, it's an opportunity for us to pay back the community for their support."

Shut-ins who would like to receive a meal should call Father Bill's Place at 770-3314.

Koch Club President Thomas Koch said his organization delivered about 40 food baskets to local families, as well as toys and gifts for about 160 children, on Monday. The club has been organizing the holiday program for more than four decades since it was begun by his father, the late Quincy Park Department Executive Director Richard Koch.

"I'm 34, and it's been going on a lot longer than I've been around," he said. "Well over 40 years."

Merritt Nielson, executive director of the Esther R. Sanger for Compassion--which includes the Quincy Crisis Center as well as the Mary-Martha Learning Center in Hingham--said the QCC delivered food baskets and three or four gifts per child to about 200 families at Thanksgiving "and I think we'll match that at Christmas."

Deliveries began last Thursday and were expected to be completed by Dec. 23, Nielson added at press time.

He also said he and the others involved are glad to be able to carry on the work of Esther Sanger, founder of the Quincy Crisis and Mary-Martha Learning centers, who died two years ago.

"We're very conscious of her philosophy, her spirit and her drive," he said. "Esther's concern was to reach people who fell through the cracks, and that's what we're going to continue to do."

Those interviewed for this story expressed gratitude toward the volunteers who make their holiday events possible as well as the individuals, church and school groups, and social organizations that make food and monetary donations.

They also discussed how

PAL's Children's Party Shows 'The Spirit Of Christmas'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The spirit of Christmas has never been as evident as it was in the eyes of the 130 special needs children that attended the Police Athletic League Christmas Party on Saturday, Dec. 6 at Pat Flanagans's on the Parkingway. It was a day of joy and magic for all of the children.

Detective Clark is to be commended for all of his efforts in planning and presenting "the perfect Christmas Party." He and his fellow officers have given of their time and efforts in a way that speaks to the quality of the Quincy Police Department. They were caring, gentle, and everything that a police officer represents.

In a time when negativity is the norm, the Quincy Police Department and Detective Clark should be recognized for all of their wonderfully positive efforts. On behalf of the children that attended the party on Saturday, I should like to with the officers and their families peace and joy.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Dear Santa

Dear Santa:

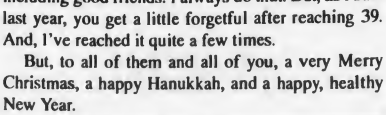
It's me again. Late again. As usual.

I know I keep promising to write sooner but don't. I guess being late just comes natural to me. You should see me trying to keep appointments.

But, I will make a real special effort to write earlier next year. In fact, I'm going to make it one of my top New Year's resolutions. And, I promise to keep it. I know, there I go promising again. But, I'm really going to make a special effort.

Anyway, Santa, most of these gifts this year--as in the past--are being asked for a in a humorous vein and, of course, a few in a serious.

I know it's late, but I would really appreciate it if you would do your best to deliver as many of these gifts when you get to Quincy.



And, just a reminder, Santa. It's pronounced Quin-zee, not Quin-cee. We're a little fussy about that here. But you probably learned to pronounce it correctly when you delivered toys to little John Quincy Adams when he was a boy many years ago. (He not only grew up to be President but he's a hero right now in that new movie "Amistad.")

So, Santa, please drop off the following to the following:

Mayor JAMES SHEETS, an invitation to lay the keel for the first tanker at the re-opened Fore River shipyard. And, an invitation and a bottle of champagne for his wife, JOANN, to do the christening honors when the ship is completed. I asked for that tanker last year, Santa, but nothing happened. I know this is going to be the year. . . And, to all the mayoral hopefuls, a ton of patience each while they wait for His Honor to step down. Better make that two tons. . . .A lucky coin for former Congressman BRIAN DONNELLY to flip to help him decide on whether to run for Governor. He'd have a head start in the South Shore. . . Councillor MIKE CHENEY, comfortable temperatures for his sixth First Night New Year's Eve celebration. And, fond memories of his 13 years as a councillor. . . Councillor BRUCE AYERS, the right decision on whether to run for state rep. . . Former School Committeeman FRANK ANSELMO, now in his 99th year and still going strong, another five gallons from the Fountain of Youth. . . Congressman BILL DELAHUNT, a reception at the Adams National Historic Site honoring him as the first Congressman from Quincy since JOHN QUINCY ADAMS. . . Councillor PAT McDERMOTT and School Committeewoman CHRISTINE CEDRONE, an "A-plus" on all of their law school exams. . . Councillor DAN RAYMONDI, the designation of Washington St. as "Dan Raymondi Square." . . . JAY ASHER, JOHN NICOLSON, ROY LIND, JOE CATALANO, DEBBIE LOGAN, CHARLIE ROSS, TERRY FANCHER, TOM WILLIAMS and all the gang at WJDA, another 50 outstanding years. . . School Supt. GENE CREEDON, snow only on Saturdays and Sundays. . And make that just a light dusting for Public Works Commr. DAVE COLTON. . . Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation, Senator MIKE MORRISSEY, and Reps. MIKE BELLOTTI, RON MARIANO and STEVE TOBIN, continued political clout to give Quincy a fat share of State House goodies. Like maybe 90 percent reimbursement for the $73 million school construction and needs project. . . New Police Chief TOM FRANE, a year without major crimes and Fire Chief TOM GORMAN, a year without fatal fires. . . Former Councillors TED DeCRISTOFARO and GEORGE McDONALD, PETE RICCIUTI, who was JIM McINTYRE'S right arm, EDNA ABBIATTI, retired school teacher, JUDY KOLSON and JIM DeCRISTOFARO good health. . . Fr. WILLIAM McCARTHY and JOE FINN, continued success helping the homeless at Fr. Bill's Place. . . Major BOB KLENK, commanding officer of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, filled-to-the-brim kettles with which to help the needy. . . GEORGE BURKE, a special autographed photo from you Santa. George has been a generous Santa himself to make worthy projects possible. . . Former Mayor FRANK McCAULEY, an eventful two years as he returns to the City Council. . . City Council President PETER KOLSON, a deserved "well done" for spearheading the renovation of the City Council chambers. The new "old look" is beautiful. . . JOE MANNARINO, executive director of Quincy 2000, a hot prospect or two or three, for the downtown area. . . Quincy District Court Magistrate ARTHUR TOBIN and Emergency Management Deputy Director TONY SICILIANO, a large package each of deserved thanks for all the nice things they do for people each year. . . PAUL HAROLD, MIKE D'AMICO and PAT McDERMOTT, the city council's three eligible bachelors, an arrow from DAN CUPID. (His aim wasn't very good last year). . . TOM GALVIN, a trunk full of new Quincy postcards to keep his many Quincy Sun fans happy. . . MARALIN MANNING, executive director and MARIE WATTS, secretary, a "Dynamic Duo" citation, for all the above-and-beyond-the call-of-duty extra work they do for the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. . . City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA, a 100% voter turnout at next year's state elections. Ditto for HAROLD CROWLEY, the executive director of Kids Voting, with all the kids turning out to vote. . . TOM GILMARTIN, a large bottle of Windex to keep the old crystal ball in focus. . . Certificates of Merit for making the effort in this year's city elections to: DAVID McGILLICUDDY, TRACY WILSON, KEVIN COUGHLIN, BRIAN McNAMEE, STEVE HAWKO, JOSEPH NEWTON, JOHN RODOPHELE, LINDA TRACY, SABINA KAVANAGH STENBERG, ROBERT BOUSSY, GRETCHEN GRANT and JOSEPH KASPARIAN. Challengers willing to give their time, help make the Democratic process work. . . Santa, I'm really stumped about what to give my good friend, former School Committeeman CHARLIE SWEENY. Last year I asked for a citation for him for kicking the nicotine habit. Now, reliable sources in Quincy and Braintree say he's been sneaking a few. So, Santa, when you get to his house on Ames St. check one of his closets. If you smell cigarette smoke maybe you should leave a lump of goal in his stocking. If the air is clear, leave him your autographed picture with the inscription: "Atta, boy, Charlie!" And to DOROTHY, GAIL, LINDA, DONNA, DOLLY, BOB, FRED, JIM, AMY, MICHELLE, KIM, BRIAN, KELLIE, LINDSAY and JAY, my love.

Santa, I know I've again forgotten some people, including good friends. I always do that. But, as I said last year, you get a little forgetful after reaching 39. And, I've reached it quite a few times.

But, to all of them and all of you, a very Merry Christmas, a happy Hanukkah, and a happy, healthy New Year.

Entertainers born on Christmas Day include singers Jimmy Buffett, Amy Grant, Barbara Mandrell and Tony Martin and actor Gary Sandy.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Roast Stuffed Pork

Before each holiday at our house, I take a telephone poll as to what the favorite dinner will be.

Usually, it coincides with what I like to cook so there is hardly a problem.

On Christmas Day we are having a stuffed roast pork plus a pasta dish and also what some of the guests are adding to the dinner. If you find a good meat market man like our friend Joe Previte of Previte's Market who cut a butterfly on the side of the roast, it would be nice.

Roast Stuffed Pork

4 to 5 pound boneless pork roast
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
4 slices of soaked bread
1/2 teaspoon Bell's seasoning (or thyme)
1 small onion (chopped)
1 egg
grated cheese
2 stalks celery (chopped)
2 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 cup white wine (optional) use water in place

In the hot oil, saute the onion and celery. Add the wine and all the other ingredients. cook covered slowly until blended. Place stuffing in the pocket. (I cover that portion with aluminum foil to keep it in place). Put uncovered in a baking pan with a small cut up onion and a cup of water at a 350 degree oven (20 minutes to the pound). Cook longer if needed. Cool and slice. Merry Christmas!

Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.

They are available at the Fruit Basket next to Star Market, Previte's Market on Sumner Street, Quincy, Nanci's Barber Shop, 21 Elm St., Braintree, Harvest Moon Restaurant, Scituate Harbor, the Cherry Gift Shop at Quincy Hospital, and Samoset Pharmacy on Sea Street.

DIANE PURDY'S Children's Theatre Workshop is rehearsing for five shows to be presented at The Woodward School in January. Shown are Quincy residents in the cast of "Citrus City Calamity," which will take place Jan. 11 at 7 p.m. From left are Caitlin Munkley, Jaclyn Murphy, Danny Harrold, Laura Sweeney, Leah Tangney, Patrick Dunlea and Colleen Munkley. LOCKER ROOM LESIONS

Now that the kids are back in school and back in gym classes, they're likely to bring home unwanted foot problems. Both athlete's foot and plantar warts are contagious skin ailments which flourish in the warm, moist environment of the locker room floor, and in the equally warm, moist atmosphere of a sneakered foot. Athlete's foot or Tinea Pedis, is caused by a fungus. In early stages, fluid filled blisters occur on the soles or sides of the feet or in between the toes. Later, these areas develop red, dry, scaly cracks, and fissures. Secondary infections are common and can be dangerous. Plantar warts look like small calluses on the soles of the foot, but have dark, hard centers. They are caused by a virus, and are similar to the raised warts which can develop elsewhere. The pressure of walking drives them inward, causing severe pain. The podiatrist can treat both of these conditions.

P.S. To prevent such problems, keep feet clean and dry. Avoid going barefoot.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

Holiday Story Concert At Library Dec. 27

Storyteller Davis Bates and musician Roger Tincknell will present a story concert entitled "Celebrating the Season: Stories and Songs for the Holidays" Saturday, Dec. 27 at 10 a.m. in the Children's Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The family program will involve the audience, through song and story, in the cultural traditions of Christmas, Hanukkah, Kwanzaa and the winter solstice. It will include folk tales, regional oral history narratives, and stories from Davis' family. There will be sing-alongs, carols, and songs accompanied by a variety of instruments.

The program is sponsored in part by the Quincy Cultural Council and the Massachusetts Cultural Council. The library will try to provide an American Sign Language interpreter. For more information, call 376-1304.

New Year's Eve Sleep Over At Y

Boys and girls ages 6-12 are invited to celebrate New Year's Eve at the South Shore YMCA's New Year's Eve Sleep Over.

The special countdown celebration will include swimming, movies, games and arts and crafts. Cost is $35 per child ($30 for additional family members). The night begins at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 31 and lasts until 9:30 a.m. New Year's Day.

Space is limited. To sign up or for more information, call Jack Rothschild at 479-8500, ext. 109.

Altrusa Club Holds Christmas Party

The Altrusa International Club of Quincy held its annual Christmas Party at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy following a recent dinner meeting.

A Yankee Swap followed.

Altrusans filled 29 Christmas stockings that were delivered to the American Red Cross office for distribution to the needy. Members of Altrusa also acted as hostesses at the Thomas Crane Library house tours, a fund-raising effort for the Library Building Fund.

In addition, Altrusans adopted two needy families, an annual event for several years. Altrusans purchased and wrapped Christmas gifts for all family members to be distributed in time for the holiday.

The club's next dinner meeting will be Tuesday, Jan. 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. An auction will follow.

Secretaries Meeting Jan. 13

Members of the South Shore Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will meet Tuesday, Jan. 13 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, Glendale Rd.

Sheree Cardoos, president of Sheree & Company, will be the program speaker. As president of a customer-focused training company, Cardoos will share her ideas on "The Art of Creating Extraordinary Customer Experiences."

Cardoos has spent 22 years in retail management, teaching and inspiring people to create great customer experiences. As a member of Toastmasters International, she is active in several community clubs and schools, promoting public speaking skills as a way to increase both personal and professional success.

All office professionals living or working in the South Shore area are invited to attend. Networking with other office professionals will begin at 6 p.m. and will be followed by dinner and the program.

Cost is $24. Reservations may be made by contacting Eleanor Fusoni, CPS, P.O. Box 41, Accord (Hingham), MA 02018 or by calling 749-5728.

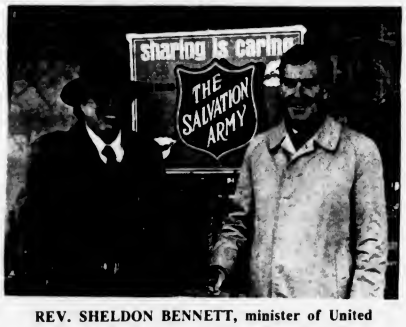
Ringing The Bell For The Salvation Army

EIGHTEEN MORE community leaders manned a Salvation Army kettle in front of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery store in downtown Quincy last week. Eighteen others manned it the week before. Together they raised almost $1,600 to help the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps help the needy this holiday season.



DON UVANITTE, president of Quincy 2000 and representative of Allied American Agency, and Robert Guarnieri, president of Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

CHARLES RYDER, former president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and owner of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery store, and John O'Connor, regional president of Citizens Bank.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY Jeffrey Locke and Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

REV. SHELDON BENNETT, minister of United First Parish Church, and City Councillor Paul Harold.

CITY COUNCILLOR Patrick McDermott and Dennis Keohane of the Keohane Funeral Home.

FORMER SCHOOL Committeeman Charles Sweeny and City Councillor Michael D'Amico.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS and James (Jay) Asher, president of radio station WJDA.

(Maralin Manning photos)

TIM CAHILL, city councillor and Norfolk County treasurer, and Christine Cedrone, school committee member Quincy Housing Authority commissioner.

TONY AGNITTI, president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club and chairman of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, and Isobel Bertman of Rogers Jewelry, member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board and the South Shore YMCA board, with Agnitti's son, Mando.

Jonathan Yip Appointed Affirmative Action Officer

The city has a new Affirmation Action officer.

Jonathan Yu Chi Yip, 36, has been appointed by Mayor James Sheets to replace Janet Ellis, who retired three months ago after serving in that capacity for a number of years.

Yip began the City Hall post last week.

Sheets said he selected Yip for the $37,320-a-year job because he felt it was important for a member of Quincy's largest minority population to hold the position.

"It just seemed as though the time was right to appoint an Asian-American to that position," said Sheets. "We let folks in the Asian community know that we were looking, and he came highly recommended."

Yip said he was happy to be appointed.

JONATHAN YIP

"I think the city has moved forward, in a sense of inclusion of all types of people," he said. "The city is working to make the community a better place, and I hope my office can contribute toward that."

Yip, who is fluent in Cantonese, Mandarin and English, worked most recently as a research associate for Boston University.

He also has been active in Sunday School interpretation (English/Cantonese), Sunday School teaching and Youth Fellowship at Wollaston Lutheran Church.

Yip lives in Cambridge with his wife Linda and children Timothy, 6 and Dorcas, 4.

Felix Holt Deployed On Duty In Japan

Holt joined the Navy in October 1995.

South Shore Mental Health Starts Buckman Memorial Fund

South Shore Mental Health (SSMH) in Quincy has started a memorial fund in the name of Susan Buckman.

Buckman, a Randolph resident and a nurse at South Shore Mental Health, was found murdered in her home last Friday.

A nurse at SSMH for five years, she oversaw the health needs of 38 adults with developmental disabilities at 10 residential sites in Quincy, Weymouth and Randolph.

According to co-workers, Buckman often brought clients who had no families to her home to celebrate the holidays. Two clients celebrated Thanksgiving with her, and a few others were slated to join her on Christmas.

Donations may be made to The Susan Buckman Fund, c/o South Shore Mental Health, 6 Fort St., Quincy, MA 02169. Contributions to the fund will benefit the care of patients at the SSMH facility during the holiday season and throughout the year.

City Hall Opened For Bus Patrons

Dec. 25 - 31
1942
55 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Following his "final request" to E. Mass. Street Railway officials for a waiting room in Quincy Square, Acting Mayor William Jenness opened City Hall nights and Sundays to shelter bus and street car riders from the sub-zero weather.

The suggested site for the waiting room was in the Faxon Building on Hancock St., between Depot and Saville Streets.

In a related matter, Jenness asked E. Mass. managers about the confusion during the recent air raid drill, and their understanding of state regulations requiring the evacuation of buses and street cars.

GAS SHORTAGE LOOMS

Most gas stations in the city had already posted "no gas" signs, as the supply of gasoline in the city had nearly run out, with no prospects for new supplies.

Part of the shortage was the result of unqualified persons purchasing gas for "emergencies."

Officials in Washington clarified that "emergencies" applied only to purchases by defense workers, doctors and policemen, with a limit of three gallons.

NEW SCHOOL PROGRAM FOR SENIORS

Supt. James Muir announced that beginning Jan. 14, a new program would be available for high school seniors, to ease their transition into military service. Seniors were only months away from induction following their graduation, and the new curriculum would help make them better soldiers and sailors, Muir told the School Committee.

In place of the traditional subjects, such as Latin and the study of English classics, seniors at both high schools could take aeronautics, mapmaking, communication, etc.

QUINCY-ISMS

The unusually cold weather froze New Haven trains on the track... Deputy Fire Captain Peter Creedon entered the Navy with broad gold stripes of a lieutenant. He was given his commission based upon his service in World War I, experience in the Merchant Marine, and long career in the fire department. He was the father of six children. His oldest son, John, who played football for NQHS, would be of military age in May... The mayor named 47-year-old Capt. Thomas Gorman as Creedon's military substitute... Flavin and Flavin advertised a five-room house in Adams Shore for $3,500... Frank Remick was among the sponsors for the new Boy Scout Air Squadron... Western Union on Maple St. advertised for messenger boys, at $2.40 a day. They had to have a bicycle... Men's Bible Class held its 600th session at the Adams Theater on School St... A 7 a.m. Mass at the Squantum Mission Church was held at the Naval Air Base... The license board suspended the liquor permits for five resorts, all on Sea St., for failure to make necessary improvements to prevent the tragedy of the Coconut Grove fire. Those suspended were Al's Dine and Dance, Besser Restaurant, Louie's Lunch, Joe's Hofbrau and Manet Lunch... Caroling by the Wollaston Baptist Youth Fellowship was cancelled because of the cold weather... Harold Bertoni of Quarry St. was in the Air Force, stationed in Lincoln, Nebraska... Dr. Joseph Leone, superintendent of the Quincy City Hospital, issued an SOS for professional blood donors... With the election of Charles Ross as mayor, the Burgin regime was ready to leave city hall. First to leave was assessor William Callahan... Clan MacGregor offered shelter at its building for persons without heat in their homes... Gen. Douglas MacArthur sent a telegram from Australia to the men and women in the industrial front, working at Fore River... Food inspector Clarence Edwards reported to the board of the salvage committee the collection of fat was falling off... Newly formed Quincy Hockey League admitted seven teams: Wollaston Hockey, Montclair Eagles, Pendergast's Wollaston Team, North Quincy Red Hawks, Merrymount Crusaders, Old Colony Demolay, and the West Quincy Hockey Club. The Holy Name of Houghs Neck was not admitted. With the introduction of "gasless Sundays," it was decided travel to Houghs Neck was too far... Robinson's in Quincy Square advertised the latest hits: "I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Canteen," Kalamazoo," and "Serenade In Blue."... Carl Mybeck, a charter member of the Quincy Gun Club, bagged a 150-pound Spike Horn buck.

Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 13th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Olin Taylor was honored for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love."

He was selected from 40 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Wednesday, Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below in this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Those nominated the past 12 years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient. Again, deadline for nominations is Wednesday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Catholic Youth Ministry Serves Meal To Fr. Bill's Place Residents

The Quincy Catholic Youth Interparish Ministry, which was formed in October, recently prepared, cooked and served a hot meal with dessert to over 70 people at Fr. Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter.

The meal was the first interparish service event of the ministry program, which involves high school youth and adult volunteers from Quincy's nine parish churches. More than 20 young people from the parishes participated with several adult volunteers.

Some of the tasks were divided among the parish volunteers while others, such as cooking and serving, were accomplished by teaming up and working together. All nine parishes participated to make the service event a success.

Jack Harrington, ministry coordinator said those at Fr. Bill's expressed their gratitude as well as excitement over the fact that the ministry plans to prepare another meal for the shelter's residents next year.

Harrington added that the ministry is grateful for the assistance of Jim Carras, kitchen supervisor and volunteers David and Jessie Minkofsky during the event

THERESA HARTEL prepares to serve meal made by Quincy Catholic Youth Interparish Ministry members to residents of Fr. Bill's Place.

SEAN DONOVAN carries salads to be served with meal for Fr. Bill's Place residents that was prepared by Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry members.

PREPARING THE MEAL for residents of Fr. Bill's Place are Quincy Catholic Youth Interparish Ministry members Lynda Wilson, Lisa Snow, Paul Donovan and Sean Donovan. The meal included meatloaf, potatoes, salad and more.

the events touch them personally.

Klenk said The Salvation Army's total number of volunteers who help with Christmas efforts, including those who man the collection kettles at various locations around the city, is about 200.

"When we give those toys to the kids, I think it's my favorite day of the year," she said. "It's fabulous."

Keating said "20 to 25" volunteers, mainly Elks members and their spouses or girlfriends, deliver the lodge's holiday baskets.

"The Elks have been doing this for 90-something years," he said. "And when you deliver them, you sometimes get tears in your eyes when you think about how lucky you are."

Shepherd added that the Elks' efforts to help veterans is made possible by about 20 volunteers--including members of the Quincy Emblem Club, the lodge's women's division--as well as lodge members and companies that donate gifts.

The Koch Club's efforts, Koch said, would not be possible without club members, who deliver food baskets and presents; Beechwood on the Bay, the South Shore YMCA and the Catholic Woman's Club of North Quincy, which donate food, toys and other items; and financial supporters such as the family of the late Thomas E. Healy, the Quincy Traffic Supervisors, Robert Woods, Atty. David Mahoney, Jack Collagan and "a lot of other folks."

"Without the people and organizations that support us, we wouldn't be able to do it," said Koch. "It's a joy to do, especially because of the folks who help us out."

Thirty to 40 volunteers help with the Quincy Crisis Center's Christmas drive, Nielson said. In addition, churches, individuals and businesses donate toys, money and food to help with the cause.

"I'm amazed every year at how helping people is a sense of renewal," said Nielson. "It's not a drain, it's a time of inner renewal and strength."

According to Finn, "conservatively 100, probably more" volunteers help with the food preparation, setup, serving, cleanup and other efforts connected with the QISC's Community Dinner.

"It's pretty impressive," said Finn. "It's a very festive atmosphere. But it's also a reminder of how far we have to go in dealing with issues like homeless and hunger."

Nielson voiced similar sentiments, saying the belief that problems such as homelessness are beginning to disappear is a misperception.

"There seems to be more need (rather) than less," he said.

There are other Quincy organizations that also do their part during the holiday season. For more information on efforts within the city to help the needy, call the Quincy Commission on the Family at 376-1421.

NewYear's Eve Liquor Establishments Closing Extended

The Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to extend the hours of on site drinking establishments from 1 a.m. to 2 a.m. New Year's Eve.

Chairman Joseph Shea said this is the same policy used for the past 10 years, and that letters have been sent out to all owners of liquor licenses..

700 Presents Collected And Distributed To Headstart Students

WJDA Giving Tree Makes Merrier Christmas For Needy Children

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

About 250 needy children from four communities, including Quincy, will have a merrier Christmas thanks to radio station WJDA and the goodwill of area businesses and residents.

The second annual WJDA Giving Tree program delivered approximately 700 Christmas presents this week to children whose families participate in the Quincy Community Action Program, Headstart. Headstart serves low income pre-school children, ages 3-5, in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Hull.

This year's response more than doubled last year's inaugural effort, said program coordinator Debbie Logan of WJDA.

"The response from people in the community has been overwhelmingly positive," Logan said. "Most people say they like this program because it's so personal. They have the name of a specific child and a specific Christmas wish.

"And the wishes range from socks, shirts and underwear to games, teddy bears and bikes . . . so really, anybody can participate.

"The generosity people show us is truly astounding," Logan said. "On behalf of everyone at WJDA, I'd like to thank all of you who participated in any way.

"Because of your effort and generosity, there are 250 children on the South Shore who will have a merrier Christmas. Thank you for embracing the true spirit of Christmas and Happy Holidays."

Nancy Topping Tailby, director of QCAP Headstart, praised the program for touching the lives of those less fortunate.

"This is what Christmas is all about. We have children who unfortunately have very little. Of our 15 classrooms, seven of them meet the federal poverty guidelines; they're oppressed economically. The other classrooms are children of low to moderate working poor.

"This (the gifts) is going to make a very nice Christmas. They're so grateful. It's a wonderful program," Tailby said.

Logan said she got the idea for the program from her church where every year gifts are collected for families in need. She said she's noticed other places have similar programs.

"I would look at the tree and the gifts piled around it and think to myself this is just one little parish. Imagine what WJDA can do reaching the whole South Shore," Logan said.

She approached station owner Jay Asher with the idea last year. "He thought it would be a wonderful way to reach out to the community so we went for it. . . and then it took on a life of its own," Logan said.

Planning begins in mid-September and everyone at the station is involved in some way.

"This year, we doubled what we were able to do last year. And, I'm already planning on increasing our goal for next year," Logan said.

Here's how the program works:

A number of trees are scattered around the South Shore at various businesses which experience high foot traffic or are conveniently accessible by car. Each tree contains ornaments with a specific small gift request for a specific child.

Tailby said the children decorate the ornaments, but their present requests are added later. "They just thinking they're making pretty ornaments," she explained.

Customers can take an ornament from the tree, purchase and wrap the gift using the ornament as a tag. The gift is placed under the tree, or brought to WJDA.

"Last year, our first year, we collected more than 400 gifts with just 14 tree locations," Logan said.

The goal this year was to collect enough presents so that each participating child would receive more than one gift.

Besides WJDA, the following businesses served as giving tree locations:

Braintree Cooperative Bank, Harbor Express, Weber Dodge, Bank of Canton, Petar's Automotive and Eric's Autobody, Bank-Boston, Bridgewater Credit Union, The Hibernia Saving Bank, Peter and Paul Hair Stylists in Braintree, South Shore Savings Bank, I Design Hair Company in East Weymouth, Dawn 'til Dusk in South Weymouth, The Weymouth Club and Bobby Hackett's in North Pembroke.

Other businesses that helped:

Almquist Flowerland (trees and bows); Kertzman's (truck for gifts pick-up); Hancock Tire and Appliance (truck and delivery); Billy Budd's Sub Shop (donated Christmas trees to Headstart families) and an anonymous donor of trucks and other toys for the children.

ATTENTION QUINCY RESIDENTS

$249M In Guarantees Next Step For Shipyard

over 1 million.

Douglas MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority--which sold the shipyard to Emmanouil--said he is pleased "the MWRA will be a tiny page in the middle of the history of the Fore River shipyard" and offered his congratulations.

Leo Breitman, chairman and CEO of Fleet Bank-Massachusetts, was the day's final speaker. He described the bank's cooperation with Massachusetts Heavy Industries in the shipyard deal as "a wonderful private-public partnership."

The bank's assistance has been crucial. Emmanouil now has three sources of money available from Fleet: $55 million in modernization loans, a $35 letter of credit, and $1.1 million in startup money.

Although Emmanouil and Sheets received most of the credit, all of the day's speakers emphasized that the entire process has been a team effort that also has involved the work of MARAD, Kennedy, Kerry, Cellucci, Studds, Delahunt, Quincy's State House delegation, the City Council, Fleet Bank, the MWRA and others.

A ceremonial "demolition" of one of the buildings at the shipyard followed the speaking portion of the press conference. Several structures at the site will be razed as part of the shipyard revitalization.

City and state officials who did not speak at Thursday's ceremonies also offered their thoughts on the significance of the day.

State Rep. Ronald Mariano and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi, both Quincy Point residents and a number of whose relatives have worked at the shipyard, said the shipyard reopening is part of a continuing resurgence in Quincy Point that also includes a new elementary school that will open next fall and other development including the Roche Bros. Supermarket, a Wal-Mart store scheduled to open next month, and more.

"It's good news for Quincy and the economy of the region," said state Rep. Stephen Tobin, who praised the mayor, the State House delegation and the City Council "for the vision they displayed" in helping to bring the shipyard revitalization to this point.

"It's a very, very proud day for me," said City Councillor Michael Cheney. "The shipyard will offer good, decent-paying jobs with benefits and will tie in with the school system and other things happening here in the community. It's absolutely fantastic."

Col. Forrest Smith Honored By Korean War Allies Assn.

COL. FORREST SMITH

Col. Forrest E. Smith of Quincy was among 80 United States Forces Korea service members honored by the United Nations Korean War Allies Association.

Smith works with the U.S. Air Force at Yongsan, Korea.

Smith and other honorees have served more than 100 months in the Republic or are descendants of Korean War veterans. Each received a plaque of appreciation in recognition of his or her efforts in maintaining peace on the Peninsula.

Quincy To Receive $596,881 For Homeless

U.S. Sen. John Kerry has announced that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has awarded over $33 million to help alleviate homelessness in Massachusetts, including $596,881 for Quincy.

HUD notified Kerry recently of the 59 individual Supportive Housing Program and Section 8 Housing Program grants. The senator is the top Democrat on the Senate Subcommittee on Housing Opportunities and Community Development.

"I am pleased to announce these monetary awards to help alleviate the problem of homelessness in Massachusetts," he said. "Homelessness is a serious problem that continues to grow in our country. These grants will help people get back on their feet and find a place to live."

The Supportive Housing Program and the Section 8 Housing Program assist homeless providers to acquire, build, renovate and operate facilities that serve homeless families and individuals and offer homeless people the housing and supportive services they need to move out of homelessness and achieve independent living.

the NO MORE EXCUSES MORTGAGE

You've put off buying your first home long enough. We just eliminated the excuses.

Excuse 1. We don't have enough for a down payment. Not any more. With our No More Excuses Mortgage, first-time homebuyers need just 10% down to avoid PMI.

Excuse 2. But low down-payment mortgages require Private Mortgage Insurance. Nope. Our No More Excuses Mortgage requires no PMI — saving you lots of money on monthly payments.

Excuse 3. Adjustable rates are too risky ...we need to know we can afford our home. Good news...our No More Excuses Mortgage is available in a fixed rate version — for 30 years.

Excuse 4. No-PMI loans have too many restrictions. Not here. No income limitations. And you can borrow as much as all our other mortgages.

Excuse 5. Closing costs could be expensive. Say no more — we'll give you $300 towards your closing costs.

Enough excuses? Why not stop by our office and ask about our No More Excuses Mortgage — or any of over 200 other varieties of home mortgages available.

lights the way to the spirit and brotherhood of Christmas

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. The first census took place while Cyrinus was governor of Syria.

And all were going each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a Manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger,"

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Fifth graders in Quincy public and parochial schools this year were invited to submit articles for the Christmas, Hanukkah and New Year's holiday season.

The theme: "If I could have one wish come true this holiday season, it would be..."

The Sun is happy to share these young thoughts with you this season. Publishing these articles has become a tradition that all of us at The Sun look forward to and, we hope, you do too.

We want to thank Janet DiTullio, Director of Curriculum for again coordinating the public schools' participation, and the principals and classroom teachers of the participating public and parochial schools.

To all who took part, we extend season's greetings and wishes for a happy, healthy New Year.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

It would be to give lots of toys and clothes to kids and people who don't have anything for Christmas.
Alicia Mullen

Missed Chances Cost NQ Against Falmouth

Red Raiders Host Silver Lake Saturday

HOCKEY

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Coming off a road victory in its season opener, the North Quincy High School hockey team hosted a strong Falmouth squad last Saturday night and dropped a 3-0 decision.

The Red Raiders (1-1-0) visited Barnstable Monday night and travel to Durfee for an 8 a.m. contest today (Wednesday). NQ hosts Silver Lake Saturday at 7:45 p.m. and New Bedford next Monday at 7 p.m.

In the Old Colony League loss to the visiting Clippers, both teams had their chances offensively, but North could not solve the tough Falmouth keeper.

"The key to the game was Falmouth capitalizing on rebounds out front at crucial points, and we didn't capitalize on our chances," said NQ head coach Bob Doyle, in his first varsity season after eight years of coaching North's junior varsity squad.

"They kept it in our zone and made it difficult for us to mount an offensive attack. They also responded well to our forechecking and took us out of our game."

The Red Raiders fell behind, 2-0, after one period. Falmouth's Hunter Greeley opened the scoring at 3:48 of the opening period, collecting a rebound and sending the puck past junior goalie Chris Carthas.

The Red Raiders, meanwhile, had their share of opportunities, including a one-on-one rush by junior left wing Ryan Barrett, but could not even the score.

With just 49 seconds left in the first stanza, the Clippers slipped the puck by Carthas for a 2-0 advantage.

Neither team scored in the second period, though North had numerous chances to get on the board. Senior captain and center Mike Powers carried the puck the length of the ice, but had his shot turned away. Soon after, Powers came in with the puck but again came up empty.

North's Paul Markarian, a junior who plays both offense and defense, skated in with the puck, only to knock the net off its moorings as he entered the crease.

The Clippers pushed their lead to 3-0 early in the third period when Greeley netted his second goal, again off a rebound in front of the net. The tally came at the 13:57 mark of the final stanza.

Again, the Red Raiders pressured the Falmouth goalie but were unable to get on the scoreboard. Junior right wing T.J. Wilson, senior left wing and captain John Barron, senior right wing and captain Bill Walker, Powers and Markarian were all denied in the third.

"I was encouraged by the fact that our kids never surrendered," said Doyle. "Even after the third goal, when they easily could've rolled over and given up, they kept at it. If they keep plugging away, more good things will come.

"We're trying to instill a sense of discipline and return to an aggressive style of hockey. We're also stressing teamwork and keeping a positive attitude. We don't have a whole lot of size and strength, so we'll have to outwork and outhustle our opponents. We have a lot of young, hard workers who are contributing in every game."

The Red Raiders were shorthanded due to the absence of sophomore defenseman Bill Griffin, who missed the game for academic disciplinary reasons, according to Doyle.

"Not having Bill hurt us because we had to use Paul (Markarian) more on defense, which took us out of our offense a bit," he added.

Earlier in the week, the North opened its season with a 5-2 OCL victory at Plymouth South last Wednesday night.

North got on the board first when Walker scored on a feed from Powers less than eight minutes into the first period.

Late in the second, Powers set up sophomore defenseman Ross O'Driscoll for a power-play goal and a 2-0 lead. North scored two quick goals early in the third, the first by junior left wing Chad Fitzpatrick. Powers also netted a goal for the Red Raiders.

The Panthers battled back, scoring twice to cut NQ's lead to 4-2. Barron, though, sealed the victory with an empty-net goal with 25 seconds left in the game.

Carthas excelled in between the pipes for North, turning away 20 shots and holding Plymouth South scoreless until late in the third.

Joining Doyle on the staff are first-year assistants Mark Boussy, who will coach the JV, and Chip Foley, who will guide the freshman squad. North's volunteer assistants are Tom Bourque, a social studies teacher at NQHS, along with Larry Costello, Andrew Vermette and Dennis Pateras.

Sean Joyce Earns Second Trinity Football Varsity Letter

Sean Joyce of Quincy, a sophomore at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., earned his second varsity letter as a member of the 1997 Trinity College football team.

The Bantams finished the 1997 season with a 5-3 record, its 18th consecutive winning mark.

Joyce started all eight games for the Bantams at free safety, intercepting four passes and collecting 45 tackles (18 solo). He also broke up six passes, had one quarterback pressure, and returned a kickoff for five yards.

His best effort came in a 27-22 come-from-behind win at Middlebury College, when he registered seven tackles and had two interceptions.

A graduate of Boston College High School where he was All-Catholic Conference, All-Scholastic and a Boston Globe All-Star, Joyce is the son of Delia and John Joyce.

Haidul (Four Goals) Sparks Presidents

HOCKEY

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Cruising to a 7-2 Old Colony League victory at Dennis-Yarmouth last Saturday night, the Quincy High School hockey team increased its unbeaten streak to three games to start the season.

The Presidents (2-0-1) hosted OCL opponent Bridgewater-Raynham Monday night, then are off until Saturday, when they visit Durfee for a non-league contest at 6 p.m. Next Monday at 12:30 p.m., Quincy visits Plymouth South.

In the triumph over D-Y, senior captain Chris Haidul increased his team-leading goal total to seven with a four-goal performance. He has netted at least one goal in each of the first three games. Teammate Scott Mattson collected a goal and three assists.

"Chris is off to a good start," said Quincy head coach Bob Sylvia. "He's one of our top scorers back from last year and has picked up where he left off.

"His line's been carrying us. What we need is some scoring from (Joe) Vallatini's line and the third line. You need balanced scoring, because otherwise teams will just focus on stopping that one line."

The Presidents, according to Sylvia, are a team that usually gets off to slow start and plays better as the game progresses. Saturday night, they played solid throughout and allowed Sylvia and the coaching staff to insert a number of players into the game.

"As far as the win goes, this is a team we should beat," he said. "We played a lot of kids and got to see them in pressure situations. It's good to do that early in the season so they'll be prepared when they face it later on."

Their early success has also given the Presidents the luxury of using all three of their goaltenders--senior Chris Burns, junior Jeff Langille and sophomore Ryan Krueger--all of whom are "varsity-caliber goalies," said Sylvia.

"We're lucky in that we have three talented goalies, all of whom could play for any team in this league," he added. "We make sure all of them get playing time. Jeff played well in the Taunton game and Ryan came in for Chris against D-Y when the outcome wasn't in doubt and saw some good playing time."

Quincy picked up its first victory last Wednesday night, doubling up visiting OCL foe Taunton, 6-3.

Sparking the offense were Haidul and junior assistant captain Joe Vallatini, each netting two goals. Also scoring for the Presidents were Chris Lumaghini and senior defenseman and captain Derek McTomney.

A 3-3 tie through two periods, the Presidents erupted for three third-period goals to secure the home triumph.

The kids are working hard," said Sylvia. "They outshot Taunton, 32-12, but didn't get any real goals until the third. If there's one thing we need to improve on, it's finishing off our chances."

Among those returning from last year's squad are senior defenseman and captain Steve Verlicco, senior defenseman Tim Lewis and Burns.

"I like our defense, with McTomney, Verlicco and Lewis back to spearhead our defensive effort," said Sylvia. "Mattson, a transfer from Rockland, should help us out."

Last season, Quincy finished 14-3-4, qualifying for the state tournament for the first time in nearly two decades. However, the Presidents were eliminated by Xaverian in the opening round, something Sylvia and the team hope to rectify this season.

"We feel we're one of the teams to beat in the OCL, along with Silver Lake and Falmouth," he said. "We want to qualify for the tournament again and do better than we did last year. This team is a nice mix of veterans and young kids and has its own personality and a great attitude.

"They put in a lot of time over the summer and are very serious about what they want to accomplish. We're all looking forward to an exciting season. These kids know how to win and expect to have a good year."

Ross & Co. Dominate Taunton In Opener

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The season opener could not have gone any better for the North Quincy High School boys' basketball team.

Not only did the Red Raiders dominate Old Colony League foe Taunton, 67-46, but they did it on the road and received significant contributions from a cast of players.

"I'm very happy with this win," said North Quincy head coach Ted Stevenson. "We played particularly well in one of the toughest gyms in the league. Brian (Ross) had a real nice game, and Mark Stanton and John Sullivan played real well up front.

"I was also pleased with the play of our guards, Brian Linskey and Jay Turner. Brian didn't let their pressure bother us and Jay had a real good first varsity game. Most of his points came on steals that led to easy layups. He anticipates well and got in the passing lanes to create a number of turnovers."

Ross, a senior captain, showed why he's headed for Boston College next fall, pouring in 28 points, collecting 16 rebounds and blocking eight shots to spark the Red Raiders (1-0). Turner, a senior, scored 18 points and Stanton, also a senior, added 12 points and 10 rebounds.

"It was nice to see our guys take some of the scoring burden off Brian's shoulders," said Stevenson. "That was one of the things we were concerned about, and the kids responded. Hopefully, we'll keep this up. It would make us tough to stop if we had a lot of scoring threats."

North Quincy was back in action yesterday (Tuesday) at 7 p.m. against visiting Barnstable.

This coming Sunday and Monday, the Red Raiders play in the Boston Latin Christmas Tournament. Sunday at 5:30 p.m., NQ takes on Stoughton. If NQ wins, it plays the winner of Boston Latin-O'Bryant Monday at 7. Sunday's losing teams play each other Monday at 5:30 p.m.

Presidents Misfire, Fall To Barnstable

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Free throw shooting woes plagued the Quincy High School team last Friday night, resulting in an 80-55 Old Colony League defeat to host Barnstable.

The Presidents (1-1) looked to get back on the winning track last night (Tuesday) against visiting Plymouth South at 7 p.m.

This weekend, Quincy participates in the Marshfield Cranberry Classic with Marshfield, Rockland and Plymouth South.

Saturday at 5:30 p.m., the Presidents take on Rockland. The winner of that games takes on the winner of Marshfield-Plymouth South on Sunday at 7:15 p.m. The consolation game will be Sunday at 3:45 p.m.

In the loss to Barnstable, Quincy connected on just six of 30 free throw attempts, missing 11 in the first half and 13 more in the second half of action.

"That was the bottom line--missed free throws," said Quincy head coach John Franceschini. "That allowed them to maintain a 10 or 12-point lead the entire game.

"We were down nine points at the half, so we were still in it until we continued shooting poorly in the second half. We played hard, but we just weren't getting rewarded on the offensive end."

Quincy did not shoot well from the field, either, finishing at 33 percent from the field. Despite the team's shooting problems, sophomore point guard Dan Kelly scored 22 points, while senior guard Jim Munchbach chipped in with 10.

The Presidents opened their season on a positive note, holding off visiting Taunton for a 51-45 OCL victory last Tuesday night.

"It was a nice win," said Franceschini. "This was the first varsity game for a lot of our players, so they were untested before this. This was another step closer to where we want to be."

Quincy struggled from the floor throughout, shooting at just a 32 percent clip, but contained the Tigers' offense to maintain the lead.

"Offensively, it was a very sloppy game," said Franceschini. "We shot poorly from the field, but we played very good defense which kept us ahead throughout. That's great to see from a young team. They didn't let down defensively."

Quincy led, 28-26, at the half and started to pull away with 10:50 remaining in the game. At that point, the game was tied at 36. The Presidents started to control the ball and forced Taunton into numerous fouls, resulting in Quincy free throws.

Senior forward Jim Quigley, who grabbed 14 rebounds, scored an important hoop for Quincy to push its lead to 49-41 with four minutes left. The Tigers rallied with four straight points, but two free throws by Kelly (10 points) iced the opening night triumph.

Munchbach led Quincy with 16 points. Franceschini also commended the efforts of senior guard Steve Clark, senior forward Kevin Moore and junior forward Dennis Palardy.

"Those guys came off the bench to provide the spark we needed," he said. "It's great to have players like those to rely on when the starters are struggling a bit. It give us some depth, which is always a plus."

Local Gyms Extend Hours For Youths During Vacation

Beginning Friday, 10 neighborhood gymnasiums will be opened by the Quincy Recreation Department for a combined 250 hours of free supervised recreation during the school vacation period.

According to Barry Welch, director of recreation, "These programs are in addition to the regular evening and Saturday open gym programs which will still be conducted except for Christmas Eve, Christmas, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day."

A variety of gym games included relays, floor hockey, basketball, and dodge ball are played at each location. The gyms that will be open are: Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Point-Webster and Wollaston.

The schedule will be the same Monday, Dec. 29, Tuesday, Dec. 30 and Friday, Jan. 2. On Wednesday, Dec. 31, the schedule will be 9 a.m. to noon.

The youth attend at different times according to their grade in school. The time schedule is as follows:

•Elementary (age 8 through Grade 5): 9 to 10:15 a.m.

•Middle School (Grades 6-8): 10:15 to 11:30 a.m.

•High School (Grades 9-12): 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All of the above gyms will operated according to their regular Saturday schedules this Saturday and on Jan. 3.

The following gyms will be open on their regular evening schedule, which is from 5 to 7 p.m. for elementary age 8 through Grade 5 and from 7 to 9 p.m. for Middle and High School Grades 6-12: Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Montclair, Parker, Snug Harbor and Point Webster on Dec. 29. On Dec. 30, Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor and Squantum.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Five Quincy Volleyball Players Named To New England Playdate

Five volleyball players from Quincy were selected to play in the 16th annual New England Playdate.

Erin Barry and Mary Chenette were selected from Quincy High School, while Megan O'Donnell, Kerry Skehan and alison Haddad were chosen from North Quincy High School.

These five athletes were picked from over 100 top high school volleyball players from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire.

The New England Playdate gives these players a chance to play in front of over 40 college coaches from the New England and New York area. These coaches come to scout and possibly recruit the best volleyball players in the area.

Extended Pool Hours

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an expanded day schedule of swimming at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School during the school vacation period.

The pool will be open Friday, Dec. 26, Monday, Dec. 29, Tuesday, Dec. 30 and Friday, Jan. 2 from 1 to 3 p.m., in addition to its regular evening programs.

Children ages 6 through high school and adults who accompany children may swim during this period. Regular pool membership can be used for these swims or participants may pay a guest fee at the time of the swim.

The complete schedule of swim supervised by the Recreation Department during the holiday season is as follows:

•Regular schedule of programs yesterday (Tuesday).

•The pool is closed today (Wednesday) and Thursday.

•On Friday, the pool will be open from 1 to 3 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. (Family Swim at 6 p.m., Senior Citizen Swim and Adult Swim at 7:55 p.m.)

•On Sunday, youths ages 6-18 can swim at 1 p.m., Family Swim at 2 p.m., Senior Citizen Swim at 2:55 p.m. and Adult Swim at 3:55 p.m.

•Monday, Dec. 29, the pool will be open from 1 to 3 p.m. with Family Swim at 6 p.m., Scuba Class at 6:55 p.m. and Adult Swim at 7:55 p.m.

•Tuesday, Dec. 30, the pool will be open from 1 to 3 p.m., with Family Swim at 6 p.m., Senior Citizen Swim at 6:55 p.m. and Adult Swim at 7:55 p.m.

•Sunday, Jan. 4, regular schedule resumes.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Balanced Attack Key To NQ's Early Success

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

A balanced attack and solid all-around effort have been the keys to the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team's early-season success.

"We're getting contributions from a lot of the girls, most of whom didn't play much or at all for the varsity last year," said North Quincy head coach Ken Panaro. "We're not where we want to be, but we're definitely getting there."

The Red Raiders (2-0), coming off an impressive victory over visiting Taunton last Friday night, visited Barnstable last night (Tuesday) for a 7 p.m. tilt.

This weekend, NQ hosts a Christmas Tournament with teams competing from East Boston, Chelsea and Weymouth. Saturday at 7 p.m., North takes on East Boston. Next Monday, North plays either Chelsea or Weymouth. Monday's consolation game is set for 5:30 p.m., followed by the championship game at 7 p.m.

In the 64-57 triumph over Taunton, senior captains Kerry Skehan (17 points) and Laurie Flynn (14 points) sparked the Red Raiders' offensively.

"The kids played well against a very physical team," said Panaro. "They hung in there and played tough. Kerry hit a lot of big shots and Laurie made four clutch free throws in a row in the last minute or so to seal it."

Panaro also commended the play of junior point guard Kristen Bowes, saying "Kristen played extremely well. She played solid defensively and came up with some big steals. She's also improved her shooting and is definitely going to be a force."

Last Tuesday night in their season opener, the Red Raiders romped over visiting East Boston, 80-40. Flynn and Bowes each scored 12 points, while sophomore guard Jill Nicholson added 11 points and junior center Deirdre Jacobs grabbed 10 rebounds.

Assessing where the Red Raiders will be come state tournament time, Panaro believes North can be a participant in postseason play, if things fall into place.

"We're very close," he said. "We looking for at least 10 wins. We have some good experience, but after the first five, that experience drops off. The ones who are back have been in the pressure cooker, they know what it takes to win.

Flynn is a four-year varsity player, while Keohane and Skehan are both in their third varsity season and Bowes is in her second year on the varsity.

"As the new players get more experience, they'll be more confident in key situations and will come through for us," added Panaro. "We need to win the games we're supposed to win and be real competitive in the other games."

Backing up Bowes at the point will be junior Rachael Powers, who moved up from the junior varsity. Other guards who will see action are Nicholson and Ashley Murphy.

Giving starting forwards Flynn and senior captain Kristen Keohane a breather will be junior Lauren Liuzzo and sophomore Kaitlin Powers (no relation to Rachael). Backing up Jacobs at center will be senior Kelly Shaw.

The Red Raiders began the season with three forwards sidelined with injuries. Ali Haddad, who sprained her ankle in a volleyball tournament, will miss at least three weeks, according to Panaro.

Seniors Kelly Fernandez and Bri Kline, a transfer from California, both suffered injuries in the first scrimmage. While Fernandez should be ready to play this week, Panaro said Kline may need a little more time to return to game action.

Sacred Heart Travel Hoop Teams Off To Flying Start

YOUTH BASKETBALL

Two travel teams from the Sacred Heart/CYO North Quincy Basketball program have opened their seasons in fine fashion, combining to win five of six games.

Sacred Heart's Bantam Boys have been particularly impressive, winning their first three games by an average of 35 points. Daryl Costa scored 20 points to pace Sacred Heart to a 60-21 victory over St. Leonard's of the North End. Dave Jaehnig and Brian Lynch netted eight points apiece while Mark Tobin and Steve Reardon each added five points.

Sacred Heart rolled over St. Brendan's of Dorchester, 49-16, sparked by Dean Sandonato's 11 points, Jim Burke's 10 points and Dave Jaehnig's 10 points. Chris Marinelli collected seven rebounds to help the cause.

The Bantams improved to 3-0 with a 56-22 win over St. Gregory's of Dorchester. Andrew Bronske and Dean Sandonato each scored 10 points. Ryan Farnham and Ryan McHugh chipped in with eight and seven points, respectively.

Steve Williams has been the unsung hero for the Bantam squad, leading the team in rebounds and assists while averaging five points a game.

Meanwhile, Sacred Heart's Cadet Boys have had to work quite a harder to earn their 2-1 record.

The young Sacred Heart squad fell behind 12-1 before rebounding to post an exciting 51-46 triumph over St. Vincent's of South Boston. Mark Maher played an outstanding all-around game, scoring 12 points while dishing out seven assists. John O'Connell led the victors with 14 points while Patrick Jaehnig scored all seven of his points in the first half to key the comeback. Brian Ferrara (four points), Tom Buckley (four points), Matt Donovan (three points) and Dennis Thomson (two points) helped the offensive effort.

Sacred Heart's Cadet squad fell to a strong St. Agatha's team of Milton, 50-42. Quincy native Kevin Weeks scored all of his 11 points in the second half to fuel the St. Agatha triumph. Patrick Jaehnig (12 points), John O'Connell (11 points) and Brendan Bowes (10 points) kept Sacred Heart close but it wasn't enough. Justin Hall played well defensively.

The Cadets rebounded with a 45-40 win over St. Anne's of Neponset. Mark Maher paced an excellent team effort with 11 points while John O'Connell scored 10, Pat Jaehnig scored seven, Chris Ham netted seven and added some strong defense. Brendan Bowes and Brian Ferrara collected four points each while dominating the boards. John Fidalgo and Matt Donovan collected two points apiece to round out the scoring.

Quilty Third At Brandeis; NQ Opens Season With Win

At the Brandeis Invitational last Saturday, North Quincy High School girls' indoor track athlete Claire Quilty placed third overall in the shotput with a best ever 32'7 1/2".

Other participants from North Quincy High included Liz Leuchte, Ha Le Tran, Kellie Johnston, Kim Huerth, Linda Nguyen, Kristy Deptula and Lena Yuen.

North's girls' indoor track team won eight events en route to a 59-32 opening day victory over host Taunton last Tuesday.

Double winners for North (1-0) were Jasmine Gonzalez (relay and 600) and Dorothy Cronin (relay and Mile). Surprise of the day, according to NQ head coach Geoff Hennessy, was the first-place finish by freshman Colleen Lahar in the 300.

North's Nguyen captured top honors in the 1000, Lynda Wilson was the winner of the 2-Mile race, Sarah Beston earned first place in the highjump and Quilty won the shotput event.

Quincy Seeks First Win After Two Straight Defeats

Losing its first two games, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team looked to pick up a victory yesterday (Tuesday) when it traveled to Plymouth South for a 7 p.m. game.

The Presidents (0-2) next play this weekend in the Marshfield Cranberry Classic along with Marshfield, Abington and Milton. Saturday at 2 p.m., Quincy takes on Abington. Sunday, they will play either Marshfield or Milton.

Last Friday night, the Presidents lost to visiting Old Colony League foe Barnstable, 62-43. Among the highlights for Quincy was sophomore forward Colleen Nichol, who scored 10 points and collected 10 points, both team highs.

In their season opener, the Presidents traveled to Taunton and came out on the losing end of a 66-28 score last Tuesday night.

Squirt A's Edge Brighton, 2-1; Knock Off Needham, 5-3

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A's, sponsored by Quincy Firefighters, faced off against Brighton in a single elimination state playdown game last Saturday and came away with a 2-1 victory.

Quincy coach Richardson pointed to the play of goaltender Pat "The Toaster" Maloney for his effort between the pipes as the difference in the game.

In the first period, Quincy opened the scoring on a nifty move by "Big Mike" McKeon, assisted by Kevin "Mr. Yes" Richardson and Matt "Snipes" Tobin. Quincy added to its lead in the second when Alex "Wheels" Shaffer netted a goal, assisted by Justin Thorley and Pat "Cruiser" Malone.

Brighton continued to press, mounting numerous forays into Quincy's zone but strong backchecking by Quincy's forwards, tough play by Quincy blueliners Paul "Tomahawk" Fasoli, Andrew "The Iron Duke" Patten, Paul "Crusher" Noonan, Brendan Clifford, Matt "Flash" Haskins, Paul "Rock" Graham and inspired netminding by Maloney thwarted Brighton through two periods.

Midway through the final period, Brighton scored to cut the Quincy lead to 2-1 and with less than two minutes to play and Quincy a player down, pulled its goalie for an extra attacker. However, overall team defense and the tenacity of "The Toaster" stymied Brighton and sealed the win for Quincy.

The A's played their Greater Boston League (GBL) game next, beating Needham. 5-3. Needham jumped out to a 1-0 lead and held it for two periods until Quincy tied it up in the third on a goal by Richardson, assisted by Graham.

Quincy then took the lead when Richardson netted his second goal, assisted by Thorley and Haskins. Needham came right back to tie it, 2-2. Richardson completed the hat trick with his third goal to give Quincy the lead again, with a pass from Malone, before Needham rallied to tie the game again.

Thorley put Quincy ahead for good with a goal assisted by Malone, followed by an insurance goal by Shaffer, assisted by Malone and Haskins with three minutes to play. Quincy coach Patten was pleased with the overall play of Malone, Noonan, "Super Dave" Oronte and Paul McLean.

Squirt B Bulldogs Defeat Southie And Dedham, Fall To Charlestown

YOUTH HOCKEY

An all-out effort by Quincy Youth Hockey's Squirt B "Bulldogs" resulted in a recent 1-0 victory over South Boston. Matt Giordani scored the game's only goal, assisted by blueliners Rose Devlin and Mike MacPherson.

Quincy goaltender Ryan "The Beezer" Barter frustrated the Southie forwards with his top-notch goaltending and the blueliners maintained their tight defensive play throughout the game.

"Stevie" Bythrow was everywhere, backchecking, pushing the puck up ice. Glen "Gibba" Gibbons did a great job getting the puck in front of the Southie net. Mike Giordani and James "don't call me Jimmy" Sheehan worked very hard at both ends. Pat Devlin was particularly effective on defense. All 17 players contributed to the win with their unselfish play and solid effort.

In the recent state district playdown series at Quincy Youth Arena, the "Bulldogs" defeated Dedham, 4-1, staying in control from the opening face off.

At 11:48 of the first, Quincy's Kevin Shinnick put a shot into the left side of the net for the first goal, assisted by Ray Marchand and Dan "Reggie" Reggiannini. Soon after, "Reggie" put one of his own into the net, assisted by Mike MacPherson.

The second period saw Shinnick light the lamp again, with an assist from MacPherson. Not to be outdone, "Reggie" lofted his second goal by the Dedham goalie unassisted.

Quincy's defense was draped over the Dedham attackers throughout most of the game. The blueliners--Pat and Rose Devlin, Bryan Donelin, Steve Maggio, MacPherson, Dan Poggi and Chris Tierney--kept the game in the Dedham so much that Ryan "The Beezer" Barter, Quincy's goalie, was seriously considering going to the snack bar for a cold drink.

Special mention goes out to Brendan Mulcahy for his great backchecking and James Sheehan for his consistent effort. Kudos also to coaches Barter, Coscia and Giordani for a well-coached game.

In earlier action, the "Bulldogs" came up short in a 3-2 loss to Charlestown. Seconds into the game, Mulcahy weaved his way through Charlestown defenders and lifted the puck into the right hand corner of the net for the first "Bulldog" goal. He was assisted by Mike Giordani and Chris Tierney.

Marchand lit the lamp with a late second-period tally, assisted by MacPherson. In a tight defensive game at both ends, Charlestown matched Quincy's goals. Barter made some great stops and the blueliners in front of him helped keep the game close. The "Bulldogs" pulled out all the stops to forge a tie, but the clock was the sixth player for Charlestown and the Quincy effort fell short.

REAL ESTATE

Joanne Condon-Walsh Realtors Assn. President

Joanne Condon-Walsh, owner of Condon & Walsh Realtors in Quincy, was officially installed as president of the South Shore Association of Realtors during recent ceremonies at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Condon-Walsh was joined by family and friends who were given special recognition before the crowd of over 200 members and guests.

JOANNE CONDON-WALSH

Mary Crowley, 1998 president of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, was the installing officer for the 1998 leadership team. Serving with Condon-Walsh are Toni Manning, 1st vice president; Robert Bell, 2nd vice president; Richard Lannon, secretary/treasurer; and directors Joyce Baker, Richard Coughlin, Mary Dawson, Richard Hemingway, Lorraine Ingenito, Lorraine Lalli, Ronald McKee, Richard Murray, Phillip Murphy, Elizabeth Rowe, Robin Stella, and Patricia Sullivan.

The new president, in her remarks, invited all members in attendance to get involved in their association--an association and industry that has changed and will continue to change at a very fast pace. She cited the new continuing education law for all realtor members as an important step to assist realtors working with people in a professional and personal manner. She called upon all those present to work together, sharing knowledge and combining skills, in order to build the future together.

Condon-Walsh will begin her term of office on Jan. 1, succeeding Richard Coughlin of Weymouth, who served as president during 1997. Coughlin, after receiving a plaque in recognition of his term of office, thanked the officers, directors and members who worked with him and helped the board during his year.

First Time Homebuyer's Workshops Begin Jan. 13

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., an approved MHFA first time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold First Time Homebuyer's Workshop series beginning Jan. 13.

It will continue on Jan. 20, 27 and Feb. 3. All four workshops will be held at the Weymouth Tufts Library, community room, 43 Broad St., Weymouth Landing.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs and other financing options.

Agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Fee for this workshop is $36 per household.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, housing coordinator, at 479-8181, ext. 115.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Department of Housing and Community Development.

Deck The Halls, And Doors And Decks

[The following is from ERA Central Real Estate, 128 Mayor McGrath Highway, Quincy.]

The holiday season is fast approaching, and when it arrives, be sure to greet it with open and festive arms.

You can create the perfect ambiance to the season of giving by decorating the outside of your home--specifically, your front as well as your deck.

However, giving your home's interior a holiday makeover can be a rewarding, but time-consuming, event. And don't forget the hours of shopping for gifts and baking for your loved ones.

That is why the following simple and enjoyable steps will not leave you left out in the cold, as far as time and cost, when getting your house's exterior decorated for the holidays. Where can you start? How early should you begin decorating? What decorating material should you use?

Most houses on the block usually display a warm and festive wreath on their front door. However, some homeowners go a step further in their quest for an outdoor holiday festive setting.

Don't forget the backyard when bringing the holidays outdoors. The backyard deck can be the perfect place to drape your excess tinsel and spectrum of lights. If you have any leftover time and energy, decorate your outdoor trees and shrubs like the one you've spruced up indoors--minus the presents, of course.

Although bright lights and scintillating wreaths capture the eyes of onlookers, you can make them smell the holiday season approaching as well. When guests and carolers approach your front porch, greet them with wintergreen or peppermint potpourri either hanging from a chime or in a festive vase or another inviting, but durable, container.

When the colder air arrives for the year, try not to let the temperature restrict your outdoor decorating abilities. Let passersby share in your festive desires by admiring your front door holiday decor. Show your family and valued friend that you're truly in the holiday spirit from the view of your patio window.

The holidays are indeed a time of giving, and giving your outdoor surroundings a holiday makeover is definitely a gift that nobody can exchange for a different size or color.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"I will honor Christmas in my heart, and try to keep it all year." So wrote Charles Dickens, for whom Christmas was a favorite topic . . .

Not only Dickens, but almost every writer, from the little-known to the famous, has been inspired at some time in his career to "honor Christmas." . . . "At Christmas play and make good cheer, for Christmas comes but once a year." . . . Thomas Tusser. . . "I heard the bells on Christmas Day - Their old familiar carols play - And soft and sweet the words repeat, "God is not dead, nor does He sleep." . . . Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. . . "So shall we learn to understand - The simple faith of shepherds then . . . And clasping kindly hand in hand. Sing, "Peace of earth, good will to man." . . . James Russell Lowell

We at the Deware Family Funeral Homes add our voice - wishing you and yours the finest of holidays and Best Wishes for 1998. . . . We wish for your good health and well-being . . . for your happiness and freedom from worry . . . for your prosperity and good fortune . . . for more than your share of good days, good times and good laughs . . . for everything that increases your enthusiasm for living . . .

Your Horoscope
by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Good cheer abounds this week as you go about your holiday activities. You get a lot done around the house as well. This weekend, you're in a rather nostalgic and reflective mood.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You certainly are in the holiday spirit this week, lending enthusiasm to others. Much of your time is devoted to various holiday domestic tasks. This weekend, a loved one has surprising good news.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll enjoy yourself better if you get into the holiday swing of things. Later in the week, you're in the mood for a party and plunge right in. Financial prospects improve.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a bit hectic as you go about trying to get that last-minute shopping done before the holiday. As a result, you don't make as much progress as you'd like with certain tasks. This weekend, a special holiday invitation comes your way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you feel this isn't the time to worry about money, do try to think ahead. Your holiday expenditures could be getting out of hand. Home-based activities are highlighted this season.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Because of the holidays, you're not ready to make a decision about an investment matter. Waiting until the new year makes sense. The weekend is tailor-made for holiday fun and socializing.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There's a lot going on now, both on the domestic scene and on the job. Most of it is holiday-related. Loved ones reach out to you this season with new understanding.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be careful as you rush around doing holiday preparations that you don't forget someone on your list. Happily, you're in a partying mood as the holiday approaches. This weekend, if you don't go to a party, plan your own special entertainment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Because of everything that must be done before the big day, you get an early start this week on tasks which must be done. You come up with new business strategies as you discuss concerns with loved ones.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Before you sit down to that holiday feast, be sure that all is in place and no one has been forgotten. Don't despair if a family member isn't cooperative. This person soon comes around.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're socializing before the holiday even begins. However, there are some tasks at work which need to be cleared up. Not everyone is as celebratory as you are.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your holiday plans are still up in the air, thanks to a cantankerous family member. By the time the big day comes, however, everyone is back on speaking terms. Enjoy this special time.

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

HEART ATTACK OR HEARTBURN?

You suddenly have sharp chest pains. Breathing becomes labored, and you break into a sweat. An intense burning feeling seems to take over your chest. Your mind races: Is this a heart attack or a harmless case of heartburn? Thousands of people rush to emergency rooms every year with just that question, and there are no easy answers. Here are some tip-offs, though. The pain of cardiac arrest is often felt as more of a crushing, rather than burning, sensation. Also, heart attack pains may radiate to the neck and arms, while heartburn is localized to the chest and possibly throat. Heartburn is also frequently accompanied by an acrid taste at the back of the mouth; heart attack isn't.

P.S. Ignoring a heart attack, shrugging it off as heartburn, can be fatal. Seek professional help fast if you have any question.

If you have concerns about these symptoms, don't fool around. See your physician promptly, and get the help you need. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to help. We are at 700 Congress St., Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS.

LEGAL AD

The City of Quincy is soliciting contractual proposals under the "Uniform Procurement Act," Chapter 30B of the Massachusetts General Laws to assist the Assessors in their Triennial Update for Fiscal 1999.

PROPOSAL SPECIFICATIONS

Computer Assisted Valuation: Analyze existing residential models. Build, test and apply market and cost adjustments to residential, commercial and industrial properties for Fiscal 1999. Develop Capitalization Rates. Assist in developing and certifying the three acceptable approaches to value with the Massachusetts Department of Revenue for Fiscal 1999.

Requirements: Must show extensive experience in computer valuation modeling for residential and commercial/industrial properties. Should be familiar with the City's residential system which currently resides on a IBM RIS 6000 Computer. Knowledge of applications of the RRC TRAC Commercial and Industrial Software, which resides on the City's IBM RIS 6000 Computer.

Proposals must be submitted no later than Monday, January 5, 1998 by 4:30 p.m. at the Board of Assessors, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169. Sealed "Price" and "Non-Price" proposals must be submitted in separate envelopes and placed in a larger envelope marked on the outside: "PROPOSAL FOR FY '99 VALUE UPDATE." For any questions, please call the Board of Assessors at 617-376-1171/1172/1173.

Over 13,000 Trees Recycled

Christmas Tree Mulching Program In 9th Year

The Quincy Evergreen Program will once again accept Christmas trees in need of mulching.

Trees may be dropped off at the Recycling Center in the rear of the Quincy Department of Public Works Building, 55 Sea St.

The program, which is in its ninth year, is sponsored by Jay Cashman Inc. of Boston, formerly of 77 Federal Ave., Quincy. Mayor James Sheets' office also assists with the effort.

Program Chairman Leo Kelly said the program collected and mulched about 1,200 trees last year, bringing the total number since it started to over 13,000.

"It's been an extremely successful program," said Kelly. "I'd like to thank Mayor Sheets and Jay Cashman for their help, because we couldn't do it without them."

He added that it is important that people participate in the program, which prevents clutter in landfills through the recycling of trees and contributes to the environment by way of the evergreen plants participants receive.

Everyone who brings in a tree will receive a coupon for a live 10-inch evergreen plant which will be available in April. Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

Kelly noted that he knows of a number of program participants who planted the evergreens and have watched them develop over the years into full-grown trees.

"People see me and they say, 'Leo, my tree's doing great,'" he said.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the DPW building Monday through Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. beginning Dec. 26 and ending Jan. 10.

The program is open to Quincy residents only.

For more information, call 376-1252.

Morrissey Holiday Brunch Sunday At Sons Of Italy

State Senator Michael Morrissey will host a holiday brunch Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Donations are $15 per person and $30 per family. For more information call 376-0900.

GIANT EVERGREEN TREE in the yard of Ruth and Richard Wainwright of 97 Manet Ave. stands approximately 12 feet high, considerably taller than Mrs. Wainwright and Leo Kelly, Quincy Evergreen Program chairman. Mrs. Wainwright received the tree, now 7 years old, as a 10-inch evergreen plant for her participation in the program's second year.

Last Chance To Nominate

Nominations Close Today For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations for The Quincy Sun's 13th annual "Citizen of the Year" award will close today (Wednesday).

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Olin Taylor was honored for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love."

He was selected from 40 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on this page below.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Remember, nominations should be postmarked no later than today (Wednesday).

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by 3 p.m. today (Wednesday).

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended and a longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Those nominated the past 12 years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

4 P.M. To Midnight Celebration

30,000-35,000 Expected At Quincy First Night

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city's sixth annual First Night celebration is expected to attract an estimated crowd of 30,000 to 35,000 people to Quincy Center tonight (Wednesday).

First Night Chairman Michael Cheney is expecting a larger crowd than last year's because of increased First Night Button sales and the fact that a clear night with above-freezing temperatures is being predicted.

"I'd like to remind people that all of our sites are heated, including the outside tents," he said. "We have a number of great attractions, and anybody who attends is promised to have a good time."

The event drew more than 21,000 people last year, Cheney said. He noted that about 500 volunteers have worked to help organize this year's festivities, including those who will work at the event itself.

First Night '98 will include a wide variety of musical, theatrical and performance festivities offered as a safe, inexpensive and alcohol and drug-free celebration for the whole family.

Activities will begin at 4 p.m. and conclude with a midnight fireworks display over Quincy Center. A First Night Store, which will offer First Night buttons, mugs, T-shirts, sweatshirts and other souvenirs will be open at Presidents Place, the Quincy Center for Technical Education, and outside "roving carts."

Cheney said the reason for the store is not to make a profit on First Night, but to help cover the cost of holding the event, which will exceed $100,000.

No vendors will be allowed at the celebration.

First Night '98 will be spread out over 21 locations throughout Quincy Center. Performance sites include Adams Academy, Bethany Church, Bank of Boston, Central Baptist Church, Central Baptist Church Hall, New City Hall Atrium, New City Hall Second Floor Conference Room, Old City Hall, outdoor face painting, Presidents Place Atrium, Presidents Place National Park Service, Quincy Center for Technical Education, Quincy High School Theater, South Shore Buick, Tent One, United First Parish Church basement, United First Parish Church Sanctuary, Thomas Crane Library upstairs, Thomas Crane Library downstairs, Wood-

A Year Of Achievement While Focusing On Needs For New Century

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Nineteen ninety-seven: it was a year Quincy laid down a solid foundation for the future with accomplishments and projects that will impact the city into the next century.

The impending reopening of the Fore River shipyard and a new elementary school in Quincy Point, the opening of Squantum Gardens as a senior facility, and bond issues passed for the Quincy Public Schools, Thomas Crane Public Library and the city's water pipes were just some of the year's major stories.

Highlights included:

•February: The City Council approved a $7.2 million bond issue to cover most of the cost of the planned Crane Library addition scheduled to open in 1998. State and private monies will pay for the rest.

•May: A "topping off" ceremony was held for the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point, named after the late Norfolk County sheriff, which will open in September 1998.

•July: The City Council gave the green light to the city's plan to convert Squantum Gardens into a site for senior housing. After details were worked out with the Navy, then owner of the property, the city began moving filling the units there by the end of the year.

•August: Capt. Thomas Frane was selected by Mayor James Sheets to replace the retiring Francis Mullen, who served as Quincy's police chief for seven years. Frane immediately announced plans to expand the city's community policing program and work with a related commission approved by the City Council a month ear-

Inaugural Ceremonies Monday

Sheets To Take Fifth Term Oath, Considering A Sixth

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets, who will be sworn into his fifth term next week, is already eyeing a run for a sixth term in 1999.

The mayor, who said he considers his fourth term his most successful so far, will take the oath of office during his fifth inauguration Monday, Jan. 5 at 10 a.m. in the auditorium at Quincy High School. He said he is giving a sixth term serious consideration because there are projects he would like to see finalized before he leaves office.

Following Sheets' inauguration, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is expected to be relected City Council president and Linda Stice is expected to be elected vice chairwoman of the School Committee during organizational meetings held by those two elected boards.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley will be sworn-in as a councillor-at-large, replacing Michael Cheney who did not run for reelection this year. Michael McFarland, former executive secretary to Sheets, will replace McCauley on the School Committee.

Sheets said at press time he feels more has been accomplished during his fourth term than any of his previous three. His inauguration speech will focus mainly on the success of the past two years.

"This has been such an event-packed two years," he said. "I would say it's been my most successful (term) in terms of bringing such a variety of projects to fruition."

Among the projects Sheets cited that have become a reality are the opening of the Old Colony commuter rail service and of Squantum Gardens as a senior citizens facility, completion of a plan for construction and renovations involving all of the Quincy Public Schools, including a proposal for a new Quincy High School; the upcoming opening of the Fore River shipyard, an addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library, and a West Quincy golf course; and others.

But because not of all those projects have been finalized, Sheets said a sixth term he something he is strongly considering.

"There'll be a lot of things falling into that place that third year," he said. "I would like to be around to see them happen after all of the hard work on them. And I think another two years would be enjoyable. I certainly would like to be mayor of Quincy as we move into the 21st century."

Sheets said two areas of concern he will touch upon during the inauguration are Quincy Hospital and the need for a downtown hotel.

The hospital has had to endure a lot over the last two years, the mayor noted, including the resignation of CEO/Director Ralph DiPisa (who was recently replaced), the failure to merge with Carney Hospital (a new health care partner is still being sought), and publicity caused by botched medical procedures. The institution will need greater stability in the future, he said.

A Quincy Center hotel, he said, is still a crucial part of the downtown's future revitalization. Sheets has been pushing for such a hotel for a number of years.

May the holiday season bring good cheer for you and yours, today and always.

We wish you peace, love and happiness.

Thank you for your continued patronage.

A SERIOUS LUMP IN THE THROAT

There are two extremely common kinds of lumps in the throat: the ones you choke back at the end of a mushy movie, and the harmless little nodules that often form on the thyroid gland. The thyroid, located in the front of your neck just below the Adam's Apple, goes about its job of producing the hormones that control the body's metabolism – most of the time. Occasionally, though, a lump on the thyroid turns out to be a site where cancerous cells have taken hold. Fortunately, if a lump is discovered on the thyroid, today's testing techniques are usually highly effective in determining whether or not the lump is cancerous. Such techniques start with a thorough health history and physical examination of the neck. Other tests may include blood work, a thyroid scan, and a biopsy performed with a small needle.

P.S. Thyroid cancers tend to grow slowly, and are often completely curable with prompt treatment.

If you have excessive tiredness that persists, it may be a thyroid problem. If you have questions about this or any other condition you notice as unusual, consult your physician. At AFFILIATED MEDICAL GROUPS, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I listen to your concerns. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550.

D'Amico, Time And Politics

This is the time of year you find yourself thinking of time.

The years that have gone by. The years ahead. And that new century that is now rushing toward us like an oncoming freight train.

And, if you are thinking of time and politics you might want to think of Mike D'Amico. He has the luxury of time in his favor and the political ambition to go with it looking to the future.

D'AMICO

He's now only 22, the city's youngest elective office holder. He was only 20 when first elected Ward 4 councillor in 1995, unseating incumbent Tom Fabrizio.

That made him not only the youngest ever elected to the city council, but the youngest ever to any Quincy elective office.

Younger than such political giants as Tom Burgin and James McIntyre when those two future mayors were first elected to the city council. Burgin was 22 and McIntyre, 25.

BURGIN

McINTYRE

Don't overlook or underestimate D'Amico in future political campaigns. At 22 he has already fought three political wars and won two of them. He lost the first--a close one--to Fabrizio in 1993 as an 18-year-old. He is politically astute--and as already mentioned, politically ambitious.

He looked at the state representative seat Michael Bellotti is vacating to run for sheriff. And was tempted to run for it.

But, then he looked at the numbers. Only two of the 12 Quincy precincts in the First Norfolk District are in D'Amico's ward. Five of the precincts are in Councillor Bruce Ayers' Ward 6. D'Amico is expected to support Ayers if the latter runs and it appears he will.

D'Amico has time on his side as he looks to future political opportunities. And, he's looking.

Ask him what his political goals are and he will tell you point-blank: "State senator or mayor."

Last election night there was speculation D'Amico might challenge Michael Morrissey for the senate seat next year or in 2000.

"Don't know how that got started," he says. "But you never know."

Whether he would challenge Morrissey, only time--that word again--will tell.

But time might give him a shot at the mayor's office. With the way incumbent James Sheets is rolling along, D'Amico might just be the right age when Sheets decides to call it a political career and go fishing. Sheets will be starting his fifth term next Monday. He is indicating he will run for a sixth which would take him into the new century as mayor. And who knows, he could be thinking about even a seventh term.

SHEETS

The longer Sheets stays in office, the closer D'Amico gets to mayoral age.

Quincy's youngest mayor, Russell Sears, was only 27 when he took office. Charles Francis Adams was 29. Tom Burgin was 33 and James McIntyre was 35.

Don't count D'Amico out of a run for state senate, mayor--or any other campaign.

Time and ambition can do a lot for a politician. Especially a young one.

AMONG THE GIFTS former Mayor Frank McCauley gave his wife, Sandra, this Christmas was a nameplate inscribed: "Sandra J. McCauley, Administrative Assistant."

McCAULEY

McCauley, who is returning to the City Council next Monday, explains: "Sandra does a lot of typing and other paperwork for me."

But, Sandra says she wants to do a little negotiating before accepting the job.

She knows first hand his talent for pinching pennies.

BRIAN BUCKLEY, executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging, kept his celebrity Christmas card series intact this year.

CARTER and BUCKLEY

Posing with him was former President Jimmy Carter whom he met in Chicago. Buckley earlier this year was attending the National Council on Aging meeting and Carter was speaking at a World Trade Conference. They were staying at the same hotel.

What was Carter's reaction when Buckley asked him to pose with him?

"Sure," Carter said. "That'll be fine."

"He's a real gentleman," says Buckley.

In fact, most of Buckley's Christmas card celebrities have been accommodating. Among them: O.J. Simpson lawyer Robert Shapiro (last year), Ray Charles, Shaquille O'Neal, Johnny Cash, Bobby Hull, Lee Trevino, Rafer Johnson, Chris Ford, Bill Fitch, Monty Hall, Marjorie Vincent (Miss America, 1990), Jerry (The Beaver) Mathers, Jack Nicklaus, Reggie Jackson, George Wendt, Burt Reynolds, Bob Hope, Bo Derrick, Carroll O'Connor, Bobby Orr, Rodney Dangerfield and Nick Nolte.

Only two have turned him down: Gene Autry and Penn State football coach Joe Paterno. Paterno could be forgiven. It was just before kickoff. (Maybe Autry was on his way to feed his horse).

WENT TO THE Point-Webster Holiday Concert to see my granddaughter Kellie make her singing debut with the pre-schoolers.

A great time. The Point-Webster Chorus, the band and the different grades singing groups deserved the applause.

It was nice for an old Glenn Miller fan to see youngsters in the band playing instruments like the saxophone, clarinet, trumpet, etc. and that the guitar hasn't taken over the musical world.

Musical Director Barbara Christianson, Instrumental Director Frank Rull, Principal Philip Connolly and Assistant Principal William Bloomer--and the kids--all deserve a "well done."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN EARLY 1950's postcard view of Quincy Square. They took this view just a few years after the Eastern Mass Street Railway replaced the street trolleys with buses. The bus here is parked outside the Eastern Mass waiting room that was on the right next to the Waldorf Cafeteria. Saville Street on the right ran down to the railroad depot. The highway sign on the left shows Route 135 that was the main connecting route between Quincy and Dedham through Milton until they built the present Route 128 highway. The trees on both sides of the church have grown now to the point where you cannot read the time on the clock.

Shipyard Owner Thanks Supporters

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I should like to take this opportunity to thank the people of the South Shore and all of Massachusetts for their strong support in our effort to bring the Quincy shipyard back to life and to restore commercial shipbuilding to the United States.

Our success is due in no small part to the almost universal appreciation of the historic importance of shipbuilding to this region and a passionate determination to see it flourish here once again.

Within a year, Quincy will be the world's most modern shipyard, fulfilling President Clinton's commitment that it become a state-of-the-art facility for the construction of world-class commercial vessels for export.

We have a firm order for our first six ships, and we have initial letters of intent for many more from potential customers from all over the world.

So to the men and women who will work here--and to their elected officials at all levels of government who have been extraordinarily supportive of our endeavors--I wish a joyous holiday season and the happiest and most productive of new years.

Proposed World War II Memorial Needs Deep Study

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was appalled to discover recently that plans for another World War II memorial are so far advanced that the Quincy City Council found reason to appropriate a huge sum of money to further such a proposal.

Those of us who served in World War II feel adequately honored by the existing memorial in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, which notes the services of our ground, naval and air forces in last recognition of the men and women of the City of Quincy who served.

Engraved on that memorial are the names of hundreds of Quincy citizens who gave their lives to this grant nation so that we might enjoy its bounty. May they rest in honored glory.

Frivolous and uncalled for additional memorialization of these great Americans will tend only to denigrate that which already exists so reverently and appropriately.

I would suggest that before any further action is taken and any money spent on this proposal, the Veterans Services director of the city be asked to direct a deep study of the matter with the assistance of veterans' organizations and individuals who might have any interest in such a project.

The City Of Quincy Wins The Thanksgiving Game

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It has been with interest that I've read The Sun over the last few issues about the Quincy-North Quincy football game and the so-called "curse" that has fallen on North Quincy the last four years. Let me just say it's taken a lot of ink and paper for a non-story.

Quite simply, the game comes down to 44 minutes on the field. Whoever makes the most points wins the game, simple as that. So Quincy has won four in a row and Peter Chella is 3-0 in the big game against Ken McPhee. I admire both men as coaches who demand the best of their athletes and get it every game.

As a person who watched a few of these games over the years, I say that the City of Quincy wins the game every year. North and Quincy can be proud of the people who are involved in the game. The experience of having an involvement in this game changes everybody who experiences it for the better. Maybe for two hours a year the city is divided, but at noon it goes back together until next year's game.

Take a look at the number of coaches, teachers, parents and families that have connections with both schools. I congratulate Quincy for its recent success in the game. I also congratulate North for its hard effort and know that its time will come in the future. I think that we're lucky in Quincy to have a series that goes back and forth from year to year. How would you like to be Abington High School, who probably has not won five Thanksgiving Day games in the last 20 years against Whitman-Hanson?

Curse, I don't think so. Each team puts their best out on the field and usually somebody comes out a winner. The story is a work in progress. There's another chapter to be written titled 1998. The game is part of Thanksgiving. Thanks to all involved for all they give each and every year no matter what the outcome.

Quincy Designated As 'Open City'

Dec. 31, 1954 - Jan. 7, 1955 43 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy was one of eight cities in Massachusetts designated this week as an "open city" by the U.S. State Department, allowing Russians to visit here. One quarter of all the U.S. and most of Massachusetts was off limits to the estimated 500 Soviet citizens living in the country.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was surprised to hear of Quincy's designation and said, "After all, we have some mighty vital defense operations here in our shipyard, our various electronic factories and the like. I think Quincy should be a closed city."

A spokesman for the State Department said that although Quincy was "open," it would be impossible for a Russian to visit the city legally without the U.S. government knowing about it.

SQUANTUM BASE DECLARED SURPLUS

The Defense Department declared the Squantum Naval Air Station as surplus, and planned to turn it over to the General Services Administration (GSA) for sale.

Squantum had earlier been deactivated with the expansion of the South Weymouth Naval base two years ago.

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce was interested in the future use of the property and had already set up a subcommittee to make recommendations to the federal government.

One person expressing interest in the base was Fred Amershadian, an officer of Mass. Boys' Town who wanted to establish a training home on the site.

10,000 TREES COLLECTED FOR BONFIRE

Arthur Porter, chairman of the collection and burning committee, announced that 10,000 Christmas trees had been collected and would be burned at a bonfire behind the city stables, near the police station.

The project had the endorsement of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman as the most effective way of reducing fire hazard.

An awards ceremony was scheduled for city hall, with a bicycle donated by the Bargain Center as the first prize for the boy who collected the most trees. Those who collected 50 or more trees would receive passes to either the Strand, the Wollaston or the Lincoln Theater.

QUINCY-ISMS

Quincy began the new year with its best safety record in years with no auto accidents or drunk driving arrests. Chief William Ferrazzi cited several factors, including use of sober drivers, clear and dry weather, advance notice of police enforcement and the 500 cups of coffee served at a free coffee bar at the police station. . . On the crime front, however, the city began the New Year with $450 stolen in four breaks. The largest amount, $300, was taken from the Dorothy Muriel shop on Beale St. Another $100 was taken from Elsie's Cafe on Beach St., where robbers took time out to have a drink from the bar. Also hit was Russell's Diner on Adams St. and Mike's Sunoco at Southern Artery and Furnace Brook Parkway... Bids were advertised for the new Great Hill School. . . George McDonald presided at the meeting of the Snug Harbor Improvement Association at the school auditorium... Former Fore River employee Lawrence Parrish of Quincy was called before Sen. Joseph McCarthy's investigating subcommittee, only two hours before the expiration of the 83rd Congress... A son was born on New Year's Day to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doyle of Riverbank Rd. . . One hundred persons attended the New Year's Party at the North Quincy K of C bungalow; John Bassett was chairman. . . Clark Saville of Greenview St., president of the Quincy Historical Society, was struck by a car on Saville St., the street that was named for his family. . . At the request of Councillor David Crowley, the city would study the purchase of voting machines. . . A heated two-bedroom apartment at Meadowbrook was $100 a month. . . The parents' association of the Drum and Bugle Corps at Christ Church studied the re-organization of the baton twirlers. . . QHS basketball's "ace playmaker" Dick Ruggles was out with a broken thumb... A 1946 Ford sedan was $95 at Bargainville on the Southern Artery... Mrs. Vincent Murray was president of the Quincy Democratic Women's Club. . . Mrs. Marcella Frazier was president of the Gold Star Mothers. . . Held in committee was a proposal by Councillor Alfred Helfrich to ban motels, cabins and outdoor camps in the city.

Penne With Fiery Sauce
1 pound penne (or a favorite pasta)
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion
2 cloves garlic
1 can of crushed tomatoes
1 can of plum tomatoes
salt and pepper to taste
1 small chili pepper or 1 teaspoon crushed chilies (hot pepper flakes)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Heat the oil and saute the chopped onion and garlic. Add the chopped chili pepper and fry gently. Add the tomatoes with their juice, salt and pepper to taste. Cook uncovered for about 30 minutes stirring occasionally.

Just before serving, add the chopped parsley. They say grated cheese doesn't go well with this kind of sauce, but at our house we add it to all of our pastas regardless. Happy New Year!

Marie D'Olimpio has written a cookbook containing recipes that have been printed in The Quincy Sun.

They are available at the Fruit Basket Next to Star Market, Previte's Market on Sumner Street, Quincy, Nanci's Barber Shop, 21 Elm St., Braintree, Harvest Moon Restaurant, Scituate Harbor, the Cherry Gift Shop at Quincy Hospital, and Samoset Pharmacy on Sea Street.

Media One Restores Asian Programming

Media One will restore Asian American programming to is Quincy, Milton and Randolph cable stations.

The announcement was made by State Sen. Michael Morrissey, Selectman Dan Lam of Randolph, Tackey Chan, Chairman of the Quincy Asian American Association, and Mary McLaughlin, counsel and director of Government Affairs for Media One.

Quincy's Asian community totals approximately 16,000 and Randolph has a population of 2,000.

"The majority of these people are bilingual or only speak their native language," said Chan. "Asian families purchase cable television just to get native language programming on the International Channel."

On Dec. 9, Media One changed the channel members to their cable station, added additional channels and consolidated other foreign language stations onto a single channel. One of the channels consolidated was the International Channel (channel 27). The time schedule reduced the International Channel air times from 24 hours to under 12 hours. The remaining hours are shared with Italian language television.

The agreement with Media One restores the majority of the International Channel's Chinese Filipino and Vietnamese programming. The new schedule gives additional air time for International Channel programming and programming time will also allow Chinese movies to be shown.

"To many people this is the only source of news about their home country," said Lam. "Working people and many elder residents look forward to watching native language programming and is the reason why they purchase cable television."

Morrissey, Lam and Chan have been working with Media One to resolve the issue.

"Media One have very responsive to the concerns of the community," said Morrissey. "They understand how important Asian language programming is to the Asian community and worked with us to keep the programming."

"The group was able to get a commitment from Media One to restore the majority of Asian programming aired on the International Channel.

"Media One is committed to its customers and as a result responded to the Asian communities needs," said McLaughlin. "We are happy that a solution was reached swiftly and programming will soon be restored," added Morrissey. The restoration of these times slot is expected to occur within the next two weeks.

For more information about the broadcast schedule, call 1-888-MediaOne.

SIX SOLUTIONS TO PLANTAR WARTS

How can you get rid of those hard little spots that occur on the bottom, or "plantar," area of the foot? Your doctor may offer a number of choices. Chemical removal involves a series of treatments with caustic agents to destroy warts. In surgical curettage, a small scoop, or "curette" separates the wart from the foot, often followed by cauterization to discourage regrowth. In addition to traditional surgery (removal by incision., closure with stitches), laser surgery uses high-frequency laser light to destroy wart cells by vaporizing their moisture; cryosurgery calls for liquid nitrogen and carbon dioxide to destroy the tissue. Surgical galvanism, or electrolysis, uses electrical current for wart removal.

P.S. Although plantar warts are most common on the bottom of the foot, they can also appear on the foot's sides or tops.

If you are suffering from these or any other foot related complaints call us at (617) 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Pkwy., Suite #18, Quincy and are affiliated with Carney, Quincy and South Shore Hospitals.

QCAP Food Center Thanks Supporters With Holiday Party

The Emergency Food Center of Quincy Community Action Programs recently celebrated the holiday season with a party to thank the community for their support of the program's efforts to feed hungry people.

The centerpiece of the event was the completion of a wall mural depicting the activities of the Emergency Food Center with the theme of "neighbors helping neighbors." The mural was designed and painted by students at Quincy High School whose talent, vision and artistic abilities, along with their hard work and commitment, are immediately evident in the painting.

Students who contributed to the mural were Bill Barrett, Youssef Abou-Zaki, Aaron Chan, Eric LePan, Jeremy Tang, Linda Wallace and Rosie Marini, with guidance from Janet Meade, art teacher at Quincy High, and Martha Turner, community service coordinator.

Other Emergency Food Center supporters who attended the event and who made contributions included Joe Hajjar of the Yard Rock Blues Club, and the IBEW Local 1505 Women's Committee.

Food and holiday toys for children of the families served by the Center were donated by employees of Braintree Medical Associates and Stop and Shop, residents of Avalon Apartments, Grace Murphy, Mary Glazier, Barbara Preble and family and the Quincy Family Network as well as many year-round supporters.

A Year Of Achievement While Focusing On Needs For The New Century

FIREWORKS DISPLAY lights up the sky over Quincy Center during the First Night Quincy '97 celebration in January that was attended by over 21,000 people.

lier.

•September: The long-awaited Old Colony Railroad opened to the public, with one of the stops located in Quincy Center adjacent to the MBTA station.

•October: The city unveiled plans for $63.5 million in repairs to the city's water pipes to be done over 30 years, and the City Council approved a $7.9 million bond issue for the first phase.

•November: A plan for a long-term, $73.1 million plan for the Quincy Public Schools--which called for, among other things, a new Quincy High School--was unveiled by city officials. The City Council approved a $15.5 million bond issue for the first phase a month later. Plans for the Quincy Center Concourse also moved along in November, with the council approving necessary landtakings for the project.

•December: The U.S. Maritime Administration approved $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the Fore River shipyard. In addition, the state designated part of Washington Street in Quincy Point a Commercial Area Revitalization District, paving the way for future development.

Politically, the city welcomed back former Mayor Francis McCauley, who was elected a councillor-at-large and former Mayoral Executive Secretary Michael McFarland, who was elected to the School Committee. Quincy also gave a fond political farewell to Michael Cheney, whose decision not to run for reelection after 13 years paved the way for McCauley's election. (McFarland won the open committee seat McCauley vacated to run for City Council.)

There were other hellos and goodbyes.

William MacMullen, director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum, resigned in February. Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer retired in April. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, one of the city's two school superintendents, retired at the end of the school year, as did longtime Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin in the fall. Quincy Hospital Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa resigned in August and was replaced by Jeffrey Doran of Hale Hospital in Haverhill in October. Quincy Hospital Walter White of Milton was sworn-in as the city's first inspectional services director in November, the same month Sheets named former Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan to replace retiring Data Processing Director Robert Brennan. Jonathan Yip replaced retired Affirmative Action Officer Janet Ellis in December.

The New England weather, as usual, also provided its share of news stories: one Saturday in February reached a high of 65 degrees, while the April Fool's Day Blizzard caught everyone by surprise, dumping 20 inches of snow on the city.

There were some tragic stories as well, including those of Broad Meadows Middle School teacher Robert Garner, 57, and student Jonathan Barrieau, 16, who were killed in an automobile accident in August; Thomas Roberts, 26, who drowned after diving into the Granite Rail Quarry that same month; and Jason D. Moriarty, 28, who was killed in a kayaking accident in December.

Other deaths included Muriel J. Goudey, 92, longtime Quincy Public Schools teacher, in August; Gerald S. Gherardi, 85, retired Quincy Public Schools guidance counselor and 1990 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year," in November; and Rev. Gerard V. Dever, 53, of St. Ann's Parish, in December.

Here's a look back at the major Quincy new stories of 1997:

January

More than 21,000 people attended the city's fifth First Night Quincy celebration in Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets, during his fourth mid-term address, predicted a bright future for the city and outlined a number of his plans for the future, including preparation for special events to be held in commemoration of the upcoming millennium.

Other plans mentioned during the address, including implementation of senior citizens' programs, revitalization of the Fore River shipyard, expansion of the Thomas Crane Public Library and others had previously been outlined by Sheets.

Quincy retailers enjoyed a successful 1996 holiday season, according to a survey by The Quincy Sun.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi proposed increasing the two-year limit on the amount of time a councillor could serve as council president. Raymondi suggested that the term could be made unlimited or limited to eight years.

Sheets Plans $9.9 Million Bond Package

Sheets announced plans to send a $9.9 million bond package to the City Council, including a $6.7 million bond issue for the planned Crane library addition. Council members, before an official vote on the package was taken, told The Quincy Sun they would support the library bond.

Sheets and other state and city officials attended President Clinton's second inauguration in Washington, D.C. Horses from the Quincy Police Department's Mounted Patrol Unit marched in the parade. Clinton also spoke briefly with Sheets about plans to revitalize the shipyard and reiterated his support for the proposal.

Olin Taylor, a longtime supporter of veterans, ill children and the less fortunate, was named The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1996.

Congressman William Delahunt announced Quincy would receive a $360,000 federal grant to fight domestic violence.

Former Mayor Walter Hannon underwent triple bypass heart surgery in Boston and recovered successfully from the operation.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy was named "Legislator of the Year" by the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

Olympic bronze medalist Karen Cashman of Quincy began physical therapy after suffering a broken left ankle and ligament damage during a speedskating competition in Milwaukee.

Police Chief Francis Mullen urged residents to work with the police department in reducing traffic fatalities and issued a list of drivers and pedestrians alike to follow.

A specialist on downtown development said Quincy has the tools to become a great success story in years to come.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley, a member of the Quincy School Committee, announced he would run for the City Council as an at-large candidate in the fall.

Deaths in January included: Mable F. Pratt, 89, North Quincy High School teacher for 37 years; Richard E. Donovan, 69, former major league pitcher; Bruce W. McLain, 48, writer, editor and reporter; Mary M. Fallon, 80, Woolworth Co. bookkeeper; James A. Fabrizio, 79, former shipyard outside machinist.

TEMPERATURES SOARED to 65 degrees on Feb. 22, allowing Quincy residents such as Melissa Meador and Jeff Wilson to enjoy a stroll down Wollaston Beach.

Former Principal Bequeaths Over $1 Million For Scholarships

February

The City Council unanimously passed a site plan review process for new buildings, or additions to older ones, totaling 15,000 square feet or more. The process was proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

William MacMullen, citing the need for a change, resigned as executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum in Quincy Point.

The City Council voted to have a planned Enhanced 911 phone system installed both at the Quincy Police Station and at the Quincy Fire Department headquarters. An earlier version of the E911 plan called for the system to be based solely in the police station.

The Department of Public Works unveiled a plan for a 15-mile, $100,000 bikeway throughout the city. City Council President Peter Kolson and other residents of Ward 1 said they did not want any part of the bikeway to be built in their neighborhoods, saying it would be too disruptive.

Raymondi proposed that the city study the feasibility of providing trash pickup to residential condominium owners in Quincy.

Police Chief Francis Mullen announced his department would hire 10 to 12 more officers in April.

A new courier business, Courier Dispatch Corp., received a permit from the Quincy License Board to occupy part of the old Jordan Marsh Warehouse in Squantum.

A group called the Quincy Retiree Association Inc., dedicated to protecting the rights of retired city workers, announced plans to hold its first public meeting in April.

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association received $562,500, the first half of an endowment bequeathed by Harry Beede, a former principal at three Quincy schools who died in 1996.

The Quincy Planning Board backed a proposal by Raymondi to rezone the site of the Shaw's Supermarket on Quincy Avenue from Business "B" to Planned Unit Development.

Liability Consultants Inc., a Sudbury-based firm, completed a report based on its analysis of the safety and security of public buildings in Quincy. Among the numerous recommendations made was that identification badges should be worn by members of the Quincy School Department and Thomas Crane Public Library staffs.

Raymondi proposed creation of a Community-Oriented Policing and Problem-Solving (COPPS) Commission that would work in conjunction with the Quincy Police Department to prevent crime.

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association proposed that the comfort station at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center be razed so that 12 new parking spaces could be installed in its place.

The City Council passed a $7.2 million bond issue that would provide the majority of the necessary funding for a planned addition at the Crane library.

Deaths in February included: Peter S. Pantages, 84, Coconut Grove fire survivor; Michael E. Faherty Jr., 74, retired State Police captain; Helene P. Tempesta, 49, floral designer, in automobile accident; Mary G. Foy, 97.

Mullen To Step Down As Police Chief

(Cont'd from Page 10)

March

The city mailed the annual city census to 43,000 residential dwelling units in Quincy. For the first time, the city paid the $9,000 return postage cost for the census.

The City Council voted not to hold any more meetings the night before any municipal, state or federal election.

Officials at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center announced half the building will be closed for 16 months during construction of a planned addition.

The council unanimously backed plans for a 15-mile bikeway that would be built throughout the city excluding Ward 1, where residents opposed the project.

Officials announced at a groundbreaking ceremony at the Fore River shipyard that shipbuilding would return to the site by the fall.

A groundbreaking was held for a planned 2,540-square-foot addition to Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter.

The School Committee voted unanimously to name a new elementary school in Quincy Point, then under construction, after the late Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

Officials announced that Sailors Home Pond in Wollaston was beginning to become healthy again following nearly four years of work by the city and a local Citizens Advisory Committee.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's proposal to allow the City Council president to be able to serve two two-year terms instead of only one was approved 5-4 by the council.

The Esther Sanger Center for Compassion embarked on its first-ever capital campaign with a goal of $425,000.

The council announced that a 24-hour tax bill drop-off box would be placed outside City Hall.

A tribute to Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church, celebrating the 45th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, raised more than $50,000 for Fr. Bill's Place and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

Olin Taylor of Taft Street was honored as The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1996 at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

Police Chief Francis Mullen announced he would retire from the Quincy Police Department following his 65th birthday in August.

Quincy 2000 awarded a contract to Alice Boelter and Associates of Boston for the preparation of an action-oriented master plan for Quincy Point similar to the one devised to revitalize the city's downtown.

More than 500 people joined the Quincy Retiree Association Inc., a new group designed to protect the rights of retired Quincy city workers, before its first general meeting was even held.

Mayor James Sheets had a cataract successfully removed from his right eye.

Sen. Edward Kennedy was honored with two awards at a ceremony held by Impact Quincy.

Congressman William Delahunt asked the National Park Service to have the Josiah Quincy House, one of the city's tourist attractions, named a National Historic Landmark.

Deaths in March included: Edith K. Coulman, 104, longtime Quincy High School librarian; Grace E. Barry, 97, retired Quincy nurse; L. Paul Marini, 89, attorney and longtime chairman of the Crane Library Board of Trustees; John F. Mahoney, 76, Wollaston letter carrier.

FATHER BILL'S PLACE, the city's homeless shelter, held a groundbreaking for a planned addition in March. Locals from the South Shore Building Trade Unions donated labor and materials to the project. From left are Tom Chirillo, Laborers Local 1333; Tom MacKay, Pipefitters Local 537; Rose DiPietro, vice president of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, which operates the shelter; School Committeeman Francis McCauley, Mayor James Sheets, Fr. William McCarthy of St. John the Baptist Church, for whom the shelter is named; Robert Rizzi, Bricklayers Local 52; Carolyn Nash, a guest at Father Bill's Place; QISC Board of Directors President Jim Conley; Quincy Department of Public Works Operations Manager Lester Gerry and QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn.

April Fool's Day Blizzard No Joke

APRIL FOOL'S DAY Blizzard kicked off the fourth month of 1997 memorably. The storm dumped 20 inches of heavy, wet snow on the city.

(Sun photo/Robert Noble)

April

The April Fool's Day Blizzard began the month memorably, dumping 20 inches of heavy, wet snow on the city.

City Councillor Michael Cheney, citing family reasons, announced he would not be seeking re-election in the fall.

The City Council approved Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's plan for a Senior Work Abatement Program that would allow seniors to work for the city in exchange for credits on their real estate bills.

The city received nearly $500,000 in federal funding under the 1994 Violence Against Women Act to be put toward strengthening Quincy's domestic violence program.

The City Council approved a home-rule petition to implement the Enhanced 911 phone system in Quincy.

Quincy Hospital created a new partnership with Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston that resulted in a new chairman of surgery taking over at Quincy Hospital.

More than 200 residents overfilled the City Council Chambers at City Hall for a public hearing on Raymondi's proposal to have the city provide trash pickup for residential condominium owners in Quincy. The proposal received numerous support and no opposition.

Citing personal reasons, Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer announced his retirement upon his 65th birthday.

Comer received the Probus Award, Work Inc.'s highest honor, for his work in helping people with disabilities.

The fifth and final phase of the restoration of the city's seawalls began in Quincy's Houghs Neck section.

Former Cape Cod resident John Anthony "Tony" Diaz, 28, was sentenced to life in prison without parole for the July 1993 murder of 25-year-old Dawn Brown of North Quincy.

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association asked the City Council to remove the downtown business district between Granite and School Streets from the historic district.

Joe Monahan, 30, of Houghs Neck, raised $10,000 for the South Shore YMCA's Partnership Program by competing in the wheelchair division of the Boston Marathon.

Mayor James Sheets proposed a Fiscal Year 1998 municipal budget of $149,642,395, a figure 4.3 percent or $6,131,080 increase over the FY97 budget.

Four historic books stolen from the Adams National Historic Site in November 1996 were recovered by the FBI, although authorities still had no suspects.

A 30-day license suspension imposed on the Point Pub in Quincy Point was overturned by the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission because a woman involved in an alleged disturbance at the pub committed perjury.

The International House of Pancakes on Washington Street, a landmark in Quincy for more than 20 years, was taken over by Bickford's Family Restaurant.

Richard A. Hennebury, 43, died after being struck in a hit-and-run accident in Quincy.

Other deaths in April included: David J. Maloney, 70, former assistant harbormaster in Quincy; James P. Kennedy, 31, lawyer; William W. Burr, 60, Quincy firefighter; Nancy S. Siukola, 68, Quincy Hospital billing clerk; Ruth J. Abbiatti, 93, retired Quincy teacher and principal.

Volunteers Clear 3,000 Tons Of Debris

May

The Quincy Public Schools joined a newly-formed coalition consisting of 15 school systems from across Massachusetts designed to look into ways to help boost student achievement.

Citing personal reasons, Michael McFarland announced he was stepping down as executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets. The mayor announced that John Keenan, a Quincy attorney, would replace McFarland July 1.

About 1,400 volunteers cleared almost 3,000 tons of debris throughout the city during the eighth annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy cleanup.

The City Council voted 8-1 to approve a five-year, 100 percent tax abatement for the Fore River shipyard to assist Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil in reopening the yard. Councillor Paul Harold dissented, saying he needed more detailed information before he could voice approval.

The council unanimously approved an interim lease between the city and the Navy that would allow senior citizens to begin moving into planned senior facilities at Squantum Gardens in the fall.

The city's Household Hazardous Waste Collection was postponed until Oct. 18 because of concerns over a request for proposals and a subsequent contract connected with the event.

Four men affiliated with Quincy churches comprised one-third of a class of 12 who were ordained priests by Cardinal Bernard Law in Boston.

Councillor Timothy Cahill proposed a plan that would allow the city to raise funds for a Thomas Crane Public Library addition and other projects through the use of a special credit card. The council unanimously passed a resolution backing the proposal.

The City Council raised the city's handicapped parking fine from $50 to $100 and also approved increases in fines for various types of dog behavior as well as boarding fees for canines brought to the Quincy Animal Shelter.

The council passed an ordinance that slaps a $200 fine on owners of private buildings who do not have graffiti removed from their property within 30 days.

Ten new police officers were sworn by City Clerk Joseph Shea during a City Hall ceremony.

The plans for senior housing at Squantum Gardens received an overwhelming majority of support during a City Hall public hearing.

A "topping off" ceremony was held at the site of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point scheduled to open in January 1998. The school was named after the late Norfolk County sheriff and Quincy resident.

The owners of The Patriot Ledger announced they would be selling the 160-year-old, Quincy-based newspaper. The owner of The Boston Herald was among the first to express interest in buying it.

Irving Isaacson, past commander of three Quincy veterans' organizations, was keynote speaker at the city's Memorial Day ceremonies in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

A five-alarm fire started by an electrical problem caused an estimated $500,000 damage to the Dependable Cleaners store in Wollaston. No one was injured, but 13 people at an apartment building next door were left temporarily homeless.

Deaths in May included: George D. McEachern Sr., 79, retired Quincy Fire Department captain; Mary F. Lewis, 93, former glass business owner; Robert E. Pruitt, 83, former Quincy Public Schools superintendent; Mildred W. Classon, 80, Quincy City Hospital secretary for over 30 years; Raymond E. Papile Sr., 73, longtime copppersmith.

City Budget Up $6.1 Million

June

The Department of Public Works announced plans to begin a $6.5 million sewer improvement project in the northern part of the city to be paid for with no-interest loans from the state.

City Auditor Robert Foy was reappointed to another three-year term by the City Council.

A bronze statue of Abigail Adams and her son, John Quincy Adams, was dedicated in front of United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

City officials announced that plans to redesign the Quincy Center Concourse bridge were expected to delay the construction of the downtown roadway by up to three months.

The City Council unanimously passed a Fiscal Year 1998 municipal budget totaling $149,616,795. The amount was about $6.1 million more than Quincy's FY97 budget.

Seventeen teenagers were arrested for drug-related charges--mostly possession of marijuana--following an undercover operation at Quincy High School and in North Quincy spearheaded by John "Butch" Mahoney, social health coordinator of the Quincy Public Schools.

Mayor James Sheets submitted a $4.4 million bond package for improvements to public buildings, roadways and sidewalks, and other city projects to the City Council.

The City Council presented Police Chief Francis Mullen with a handmade clock in honor of his 41 years of service to the Quincy Police Department. Mullen would retire in August.

Fallon Ambulance Service was awarded a three-year contract to provide 911 municipal and ambulance services to Quincy.

The City Council approved a city application for a state "economic opportunity area" grant for the Fore River shipyard. The grant would make Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil eligible for a larger investment tax credit and a extra business deduction for the modernization of the shipyard.

Mullen appointed Sgt. Robert Perchard to replace Sgt. Richard Laracy as the city's liquor inspector. Laracy would retire at the end of June.

Sheets accepted, on behalf of the city, a Blue Ribbon Award from the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development while attending the U.S. Conference of Mayors in San Francisco. The city was honored for its innovative housing programs.

Renovations totaling $175,000 began at two of the Adams National Historic Site's locations.

A public hearing held by the City Council on a proposed ban of dogs from city parks and school playgrounds drew mostly opposition from about 80 people in attendance.

A memorial stone was dedicated in front of the Beechwood Knoll School in memory of Lance Cpl. Brian P. Ahern, 20, of the U.S. Marines who was killed in Vietnam.

Deaths in June included: Robert G. Cugini, 62, longtime Quincy police officer; R. Violet Pace, 83, secretary to three Quincy mayors; Charles E. Shea, 90, Grossman Co. foreman; Harry J. Fifield Jr., 77, distribution representative; Joseph A. Albasini, 64, electrical contractor and drowning victim.

Downtown Landmark Woolworth's To Close

July

Mayor James Sheets said he hoped a planned senior complex at Squantum Gardens could be ready to receive its first tenants by October.

Sheets said the city was considering taking legal action against Boston to stop the continued use of a gun range on Moon Island.

City Councillor Paul Harold announced plans to introduce an ordinance that would prohibit the city from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in Myanmar, also known as Burma, as a sign of protest against human rights violations in that country.

The mayor said the delayed opening of the Fore River shipyard was nothing to be concerned about. The reason for the delay was because the U.S. Maritime Administration had not yet approved needed funding for the project. Sheets said he still expected the shipyard to open by early 1998.

Four Quincy District Court probation officers were suspended with pay while the Norfolk County district attorney's office investigated the finances of a non-profit company associated with the four men.

A fire caused $160,000 damage to the home of Daniel Gorman, brother of Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Jane Reikard, executive director of the city's Rent Grievance Board, was evicted from her Burgin Parkway apartment. Reikard said the landlord had no grounds to evict her and appealed the action in court, but lost.

The City Council passed a $4.4 million bond package submitted by Sheets for improvements to public buildings, roadways and sidewalks, and other city projects.

Also passed by the council was Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's proposed ordinance to establish a Community-Oriented Policing and Problem-Solving (COPPS) Commission.

FOURTH OF JULY was celebrated at various locations throughout Quincy. Marissa McGough, 2, took part in the Doll Carriage Contest sponsored by the Ward 2 Civic Association at the Fore River Field.

The City Council approved the plan by Sheets and the Quincy Council on Aging to utilize Squantum Gardens for senior facilities.

Downtown business representatives said they saw the impending closing of the Woolworth's store in Quincy Center as a blow but also an opportunity for something positive at the site in the future. Woolworth's announced earlier in the month it was closing all of its stores.

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci announced the state would build its first public access boat ramp to Boston Harbor in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy.

Quincy College announced plans to rent 12,000 square feet at The Heritage Building in Quincy Center for classroom and faculty office space.

The Quincy Sun learned that Capt. Terence Kelly of the Quincy Police Department was the top scorer on the Civil Service examination for the city's police chief. Kelly received a grade of 89 while Capt. Thomas Frane, the only other person to take the test, received an 85.

State Rep. Michael Bellotti, a Quincy resident, announced he would run for Norfolk County sheriff in the fall.

Harold asked Sheets to meet with him to discuss the possibility of putting on hold a five-year tax abatement plan for the Fore River shipyard. Sheets said he would be willing to discuss the matter but could not place the abatement, which was passed by the City Council, on hold.

The City Council Downtown Committee endorsed Quincy 2000's Quincy Center Signage Program, part of the organization's Quincy Center Action Plan.

Deaths in July included: Mary M. McAdam, 96, state employee for 40 years; P. Edward Comi, 95, drive-in theater pioneer; John E. Praetsch, 73, Quincy firefighter for 32 years; Sarah M. Glazer, 86, nurse and co-founder of Beth Temple El; Brenda L. Scott-McSweeney, 34, Creative Cakes owner; Lorraine R. Hill, Key to Elegance and Decorating owner; Thomas J. August

Broad Meadows Middle School teacher Robert Garner, 57, and Quincy High School student Jonathan Barrieau, 16, were killed in an auto accident on the Maine turnpike following a rafting trip.

Officials said the Grossman's building at 152 Parkingway, Quincy Center, was being considered as the home for the new, separate Norfolk Division of the statewide Juvenile Court Department.

The expansion of the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center ceremoniously began with the demolition of two nearby buildings on Washington Street.

Thomas Roberts, 26, drowned after diving into the Granite Rail Quarry. City Council President Peter Kolson proposed filling the quarry with a mesh covering to prevent further accidents.

A survey of local realtors showed that there was not a lot of available housing to buy or rent in Quincy.

The city's annual census showed that Quincy's population was 88,781, up nearly 1,000 from 1996.

The Navy retrieved its cargo carrier the USS Southern Cross from the Fore River shipyard. Mayor James Sheets said it was not a crucial loss to the shipbuilding museum at the site.

Capt. Thomas Frane, a 26-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, was selected by Mayor James Sheets to succeed Francis Mullen as the city's police chief.

Sheets said the city would take legal action against the City of Boston to stop the continued use of a gun range on Moon Island.

The mayor said a groundbreaking for the planned Quincy Center Concourse might take place in November.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin proposed state legislation that would designate a "senior safety zone" on Clay Street in Wollaston following a hit-and-run accident.

Chemicals in a science class that were ignited by the summer heat resulted in a fire that caused $5,000 damage to a classroom at Broad Meadows Middle School.

Quincy Hospital Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa announced he was resigning to take a job in Brockton. Sheets said the hospital would move as quickly as possible to replace him.

Other deaths in August included: Josephine E. Ferriter, 100, New England Telephone operator; Geraldine E. Della Barba, 77, shipyard draftsman; Kelly E. Mullaney, infant; Marion E. Turkington, 84, Eastern Nazarene College dean; Muriel J. Goudey, 92, longtime Quincy school teacher; Marion Nilsen, 101, secretary to the Quincy school superintendent.

$3.1 Million For Concourse

September

A state proposal for a new regional juvenile court, first unveiled in August, was drawing both support and opposition from city officials and merchants.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, one of Quincy's two assistant school superintendents, retired after 29 years with the Quincy Public Schools.

More than 2,000 people attended a Colonial reenactment at Pageant Field.

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association merged with Quincy Hospital in an effort to strengthen medical services offered by both agencies.

Records showed that Mayor James Sheets, Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico, and School Committee candidate Linda Tracy were the top spenders in the year's city election campaign.

A new program director, Jim Graham, was hired for the Teen Get-Away, the city's supervised recreational youth center.

Sheets said the state would make available $3.1 million for the planned Quincy Center Concourse on Oct. 1. The balance, a total of about $6 million, will be made available in October 1998, he said.

Former Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien announced he would run for the First Norfolk District state representative seat held by Michael Bellotti, who had announced a run for Norfolk County sheriff earlier in the year.

Applications for the 48 units at Naval Terrace in Squantum that will be used for senior citizens housing became available.

The Quincy Firefighters Union asked for changes in the city's new Emergency 911 telephone system, saying it was too slow.

Winners in the city's preliminary election: Ward 1, City Council President (and Ward 1 Councillor) Peter Kolson and Gretchen Grant; Ward 3, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Tracy; and Ward 6, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and Brian McNamee.

Major renovations at the Quincy Post Office at 47 Washington St. in Quincy Center were announced by Jim Lundrigan, manager of the facility.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon announced he would increase the length of training for school bus driv-

Condon, 57, state elevator inspector for 35 years; Helen H. Lahage, 71, Quincy College teacher.

Community Policing To Be Expanded

October

The City Council's Finance Committee voiced support of landtakings necessary to make way for the first phase of the planned Quincy Center Concourse.

The city unveiled plans to spend $63.5 million over 30 years to fix and replace Quincy's water pipes.

The City Council appropriated $250,000 for the elimination of a soil contamination problem in the city's Penn's Hill section.

Officials announced that The Patriot Ledger had been sold to the owners of The Brockton Enterprise and that the sale would be complete within three to four months.

Councillor Paul Harold proposed the formation of a Capital Needs Advisory Committee to study the short and long-term capital needs of the city.

Sheets named Walter White of Milton as the city's first director of inspector services.

Officials announced the opening of the Clifford Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point, originally slated for January 1998, would not open until the following fall.

The newly-renovated City Council Chambers, made to look like how they first appeared in the late 1880s, were reopened during a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Massachusetts Secretary of State William Galvin cut the ribbon.

The Quincy Point Action Plan funded by Quincy 2000 was endorsed by the City Council.

Councillor Michael Cheney proposed that the downtown business district between Granite and School streets be removed from the historic district.

The City Council honored The Quincy Sun for beginning its 30th year in the city.

Mayor James Sheets said he was unconcerned that the U.S. Maritime Administration missed an Oct. 20 deadline to complete paperwork for the reopening of the Fore River shipyard. The mayor said the deal could still be done by the end of the month.

The annual Harvest Family Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association was a great success despite poor weather.

The City Council passed an ordinance prohibiting the city from purchasing goods or services from companies doing business in the Asian country of Myanmar, also known as Burma, because of its history of human rights violations.

The council endorsed a plan by Police Chief Thomas Frane to expand the city's community policing program into West Quincy and Quincy Point as well as continue it in Germantown.

John O'Rourke of Merrymount was honored by the council for his efforts in saving the lives of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman's brother and sister-in-law from a two-alarm fire at their home in July.

A proposed pistol and rifle range in the heart of downtown Quincy drew strong opposition from residents, merchants and city officials at a meeting of the Quincy License Board.

McCauley, McFarland Win Council, School Seats

November

Former Mayor Francis McCauley and Michael McFarland won the vacant City Council at-large and School Committee seats and all incumbents were reelected in Quincy's citywide election.

Members of Quincy's State House delegation expressed support of a bill to bring the death penalty back to Massachusetts, but the measure eventually was defeated by one vote in the House of Representatives.

Walter White of Milton was sworn-in as the city's director of inspectional services during a City Hall ceremony.

Joseph Brooker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter was guest speaker at the city's annual Veterans Day ceremonies.

Mayor James Sheets announced a Fiscal Year 1998 tax rate plan that would result in a $94 increase in the average Quincy homeowner's tax bill as well as an increase for commercial property owners.

The City Council approved Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's plan to have the city provide pickup of trash and recycables to individual condominium owners in Quincy.

Quincy's nine Catholic parishes collaborated to form the Quincy Catholic Youth Ministry.

The City Council approved landtakings necessary to make way for the planned Quincy Center Concourse.

Frank McLaughlin, Quincy's longtime tree warden, retired after 39 years on the job.

A major renovation project, with an estimated cost of $2 million to $3 million, began at the Quincy Post Office, 47 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Avalon Properties of Braintree donated $50,000 to be used to help fund various projects in Quincy Point.

The Quincy License Board denied a request from Shaw's Supermarket on the North Quincy-Wollaston line for a beer and wine license. The board agreed that enough such licenses already exist in the area.

David Taylor Jr. and David Polvere, two Quincy firefighters, were honored by the City Council for saving lives while off duty in two separate incidents.

The City Council approved a Planned Unit Development permit for the proposed Meadows at Marina Bay apartment complex.

Quincy's Alfred Benedetti, 104, became the oldest grand marshal in the history of the Quincy Christmas Festival Parade.

Former Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan was named by Sheets to replace the retiring Robert Brennan as the city's data processing director.

A new Quincy High School was among the recommendations in a $73.1 million schools renovation and construction plan presented to the City Council by the Mayor's Building Needs Task Force.

As a result of the appointment of new Police Chief Thomas Frane in August, three Quincy Police Department members were promoted to a higher rank and five new police officers were sworn-in.

The Quincy High School Presidents defeated the North Quincy High School Red Raiders, 7-0, for their fourth consecutive victory in the annual Thanksgiving Day football game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

To Expand Parking At St. Joseph's
Washington St. Building Sold To Archdiocese

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc.'s Commercial Real Division recently sold the retail building located at 544 Washington St. in Quincy Point.

Daniel Flynn, president of the company, represented the building's owner, Therese Abouzeid. The property, which featured two retail stores and apartments as well as a one-story brick retail building, sold for $285,000. The buyer, the Archdiocese of Boston, plans to utilize the 8,116-square-foot site for additional parking for the abutting St. Joseph's Church.

Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's, said the church needs the additional parking for events such as weddings and funerals "to keep the traffic off Route 3A." He also noted that it will provide six to eight more handicapped parking spaces, which would more than double the current number of spots for the disabled.

"That would be a help," he said.

Abouzeid's business, Hancock Upholstery, has moved across the street with the purchase of the building located at 531 Washington St. Jay Nuss of Flynn & Co. represented the owner of that property in the transaction.

"This transaction provides the best possible scenario for the community," said Flynn. "The redevelopment of the 544 Washington St. site will help in beautifying the area and will provide a great service to parishioners as well as the general community."

$55 Million Green-Light For Shipyard Reopening

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT speaks during press conference earlier this month where it was announced the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) has approved $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the Fore River shipyard. Seated from left are John Graykowski, MARAD acting administrator; former Congressman Gerry Studds, Sen. Edward Kennedy, shipyard owner Sotirios Emmanouil, Acting Gov. Paul Cellucci, Mayor James Sheets and Sen. John Kerry.

December

The City Council appropriated over $300,000 for the expansion of the city's community policing program.

City Councillor Michael Cheney, citing the need for downtown development, proposed the creation of a Business Revitalization Zone in Quincy Center and a zoning change that would increase the height limitation in buildings in the same area from six stories to 10 stories.

The City Council unanimously approved Mayor James Sheets' tax classification rates for Fiscal Year 1998.

Norfolk County District Attorney Jeffrey Locke called off the search for a woman's body in the Granite Rail Quarry in Quincy, saying the effort would resume in the spring when weather conditions improve.

The proposed condominium development known as The Landing at Marina Bay was approved by the City Council.

The state designated part of Washington Street in Quincy Point as a Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD).

Two million gallons of water crashed down Quincy Shore Drive at the beginning of the Neponset River Bridge following a water main break.

Sheets said problems with the fire alarm system at North Quincy High School would like result in the system being replaced in the summer of 1998.

Twenty-two new parking spaces opened at the former site of a comfort station at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Former Quincy Planning Director James Lydon said the city's downtown business district is stronger than most across the country.

The city announced plans for a World War II Memorial near Veterans Memorial Stadium. The City Council appropriated $50,000 for the project later in the month.

The Quincy Naval Reserve Center was reopened during a public dedication ceremony.

The City Council approved a $15.5 million bond issue for the first phase of a $73.1 million citywide schools renovation and construction project.

Cheney, who did not seek reelection in 1997, was honored by colleagues at his final City Council meeting after serving as a councillor for 13 years.

Cheney's proposal to raise the height limitation of buildings in areas zoned Industrial "B" from four to eight stories was passed by the council.

The council recognized the Quincy Council on Aging for receiving the highest award from the state Executive Office of Elder Affairs for putting together the city's plan to utilize Squantum Gardens as a senior housing site.

Officials announced the long-awaited Wal-Mart store in Quincy Point will open Jan. 28.

The City Council voted down Cheney's plan to remove a portion of Hancock Street in Quincy Center from the downtown historic district. Councillor Paul Harold said he would be happy to readdress the issue after a new sign ordinance pending before the council is passed.

The U.S. MARAD Administration approved $55 million in federal loan guarantees for the modernization of the Fore River shipyard. Federal, state and city officials announce the approval during a press conference at the site.

Jonathan Yip of Cambridge was named by Sheets to replace retired Quincy Affirmative Action Officer Janet Ellis.

Deaths in December included: Jason D. Moriarty, 28, landscaper, in a kayaking accident; Rev. Gerard V. Dever, 53, of St. Ann's Parish in Wollaston; John J. Ridge, 66, retired police officer; Olive H. Tompkins, 91, Quincy Art Association member; Edward A. Kusser, 77, retired Quincy police sergeant; Bridget E. Foley, longtime hairdresser; A. Josephine Decelle, 100, retired Quincy Hospital baker.

1997 Interesting, Exciting In Sports

Plenty Of Highlights For High Schools

By LIAM FITZGERALD

It was an interesting and exciting year in sports in the city of Quincy, to say the least.

Among the highlights included one team achieving its postseason dreams for the first time ever (North Quincy High School girls' soccer), while another squad had not reached the state tournament in nearly 20 years before qualifying this season (Quincy High School hockey).

Another memorable accomplishment was the turnaround by the North Quincy baseball team, which transformed a sub-.500 campaign into its first tournament berth in the 1990s.

The year also saw the perennial contenders, North's boys' basketball team and Quincy's and North's boys' and girls' volleyball teams, secure tournament berths again this year. Quincy's boys' hoop squad also participated in postseason play.

Also, one of the top athletes in the area, North Quincy basketball standout Brian Ross, signed a four-year full scholarship to attend Boston College beginning next fall.

And finally, another noteworthy sporting event in 1997 was the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown between the football teams from Quincy and North. The 65th meeting between the two rivals came down to the wire, with Quincy notching its fourth straight victory over North on a late touchdown by an unheralded running back.

Back in late February, the Presidents' hockey team, guided by head coach Bob Sylvia, capped a solid regular season by qualifying for the state tournament for the first time since 1978. Quincy entered its first round matchup with Xaverian sporting a 14-2-4 record, but relinquished a two-goal, third-period lead and fell to the Eagles, 4-3, in overtime.

Meanwhile, the boys' basketball teams were gearing up for their postseason contests following 13-win regular seasons. The Red Raiders, despite the efforts of Ross (24 points, 13 rebounds) and teammate Matt Bromley (14 points), lost to West Roxbury, 56-44, in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional.

The Presidents fared no better, losing in the first round to Old Colony League powerhouse Bridgewater-Raynham, 74-58. Freshman Dan Kelly, who emerged as Quincy's floor leader, scored a team-high 19 points.

A few months later, three more teams made postseason appearances, including the surprising North Quincy baseball team, which won nine of its last 13 games to capture its first tournament berth of the decade.

The Red Raiders opened the season with six losses in their first seven games, and the situation looked bleak. But to the team's credit, said head coach Dave Perdios, the players kept battling to turn their season around.

"The kids never gave up, never stopped hustling and trying to win every ballgame," said Perdios. "They earned this tournament game and I'm very proud of them."

In a preliminary-round tournament game against Stoughton, senior ace Ryan Herlihy took the mound for the Red Raiders and despite a valiant effort, North came out on the losing end of a 5-3 score.

Over on the volleyball courts, the Presidents' and Red Raiders' boys' squads clinched tournament berths with room to spare.

The Red Raiders, making their sixth consecutive tournament appearance, entered the postseason on a roll. However, North's season ended when it dropped its opening round match at Newton South, 3-2, after missing an opportunity to clinch the match in the fourth game. Rounding out their careers in fine fashion were Mike Johnston (27 kills, 15 blocks), Matt Bromley (19 kills, 22 blocks) and Nick Shea (eight kills, 11 blocks).

Meanwhile, the Presidents faced the No. 2 seed in the opening round, Greater New Bedford Vocational, and lost, 3-0, on the road. Quincy was paced by the efforts of seniors Geoff King (seven kills) and Don McCarthy (five kills), along with junior Jared Downey (14 assists, two service aces, 11 digs).

In the fall, the two high schools' girls' volleyball teams equaled the feat of the boys' squads, and North did them one better. The Red Raider girls' team was victorious in its first round match before bowing out in the semifinals.

The Red Raider girls pulled the biggest upset of the tournament, stunning top seed Newton South on its home court, 3-2. In that match, sophomore Katie Jellison registered 22 kills, junior Angela Scott added nine kills and seniors Kerry Skehan and Katie Sweetser combined for 20 digs on the back row of defense. North did not fare as well in the semifinals, losing to host Milford, 3-0.

Quincy's girls' team was swept in the quarterfinals, 3-0, by Milford, despite the top-notch performances of senior co-captains Erin Barry (11 kills, seven digs) and Mary Chenette (six kills, 12 digs).

One of the year's biggest success stories was the North Quincy's girls' soccer team, which earned the first tournament berth in the squad's 20-year history with a late-season triumph over Dennis-Yarmouth.

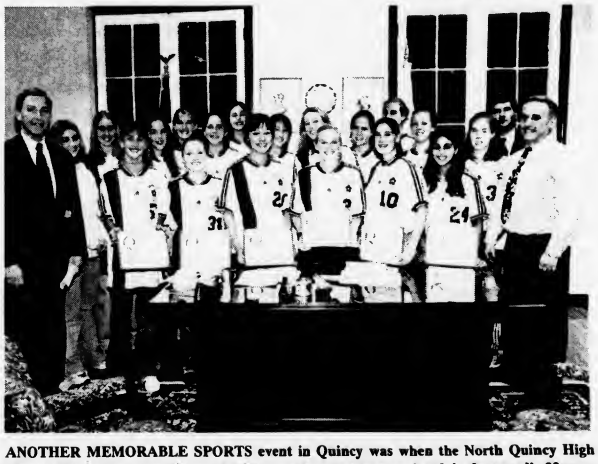
"I said before the season that this could be our breakthrough year and to the girls' credit, it has been," said North Quincy head coach Paul Bregoli. "They did a lot of work in the off-season on their own, and it paid off."

In their tournament debut, the Red Raiders fell to a strong, balanced Marshfield squad, 4-0, but had nothing to hang their heads about, said Bregoli.

"They gave it all they had," he said. "It was a fabulous season. They're the first girls' soccer team at North to qualify for the tournament, and when they look back five years down the road, they'll think what they did was pretty special."

The fall sports season came to an exciting close on Thanksgiving Day, when Quincy's Nathan DoRosario scored on a 1-yard run to lift the Presidents over the Red Raiders, 7-0.

DoRosario's touchdown came with just 45 seconds left and provided Quincy with all the scoring it would need to clinch its fourth consecutive victory over North. With the win, the Presidents became the first team to win four straight Thanksgiving Day games since Quincy claimed five in a row from 1954 to 1958.



After scoring his first touchdown of the season, DoRosario said, "I can't explain how I feel right now. I prayed we'd win, that's all. This is everyone's dream, to win the game."

Quite a fitting conclusion to a thrilling year in sports in the city of Quincy.

(Sun photo/Robert Noble)

Brian Walsh On Xavier Football Team

Brian Walsh of Quincy, a freshman at St. Francis Xavier University in Nova Scotia, Canada, had a successful season as a running back on the X-Men football team.

Walsh, a North Quincy High School graduate who rushed for nearly 2,000 yards as a senior, was praised by X-Men head coach John Stevens, who said, "We expect great things from Brian next season. He will definitely play a significant role in the program next year. He had a great season with us."

The X-Men won the regular season AUAA title and were AUAA finalists.

NQ's Supporting Cast Plays Important Role

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Before the season began, North Quincy High School boys' basketball head coach Ted Stevenson knew opposing defenses would concentrate on shutting down his star center, senior captain Brian Ross.

So far, that plan has failed miserably, as Ross has led the Red Raiders to wins in each of their first three games.

North's latest triumph came Sunday at the Scholastic Holiday Tournament against Stoughton at the Boston Latin School. North won the game, 47-42, sparked by a key three-point play by Ross with just 15 seconds remaining in the game.

Leading by two, North called a timeout to set up a full-court pass to Ross. Senior forward John Sullivan spotted Ross racing towards the other end and hit him in stride with the ball, which Ross dunked to give North a four-point advantage. Ross was also fouled on the play, and he made the free throw to seal the victory.

"The play worked to perfection," said Stevenson. "Brian just broke into the clear and John got the ball to him to set up the easy dunk."

Despite Stoughton's efforts to contain Ross, the Red Raider big man poured in 25 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and had two blocked shots.

Making significant contributions for NQ were senior forward Mark Stanton, who scored 11 points and collected 11 rebounds (six offensive), and senior guard Brian Linskey, who added seven points and dished out eight assists.

"Brian hit a couple of big shots for us and passed the ball well," said Stevenson. "That was the difference--the solid play of our other starters."

North played in the tournament's championship tilt Monday night against the host team, Boston Latin.

North's next game is Saturday at 4 p.m. at Old Colony League foe Plymouth South. Next Tuesday, the Red Raiders host Dennis-Yarmouth in an OCL matchup at 7 p.m.

Last Tuesday, Ross notched 32 points, 18 rebounds and five blocks to pace the Red Raiders over visiting Barnstable, 70-62. Other big scorers for North were senior guard Jay Turner, who had 19 points and Stanton, who added 14.

"The key in this game was our free throw shooting," said Stevenson. "We shot 20 of 22 from the line, including 12 for 12 down the stretch, which won the game for us."

E. Boston, Barnstable North's Latest Victims

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Off to a hot start, the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team remained unbeaten following a 64-38 first-round victory over East Boston Saturday in the North Quincy Christmas Tournament.

The Red Raiders (4-0) played Weymouth Monday in the championship game of the tournament. North's next game is Saturday at 4 p.m. against visiting Old Colony League opponent Plymouth South. Next Tuesday, the Red Raiders make the long trek south to Dennis-Yarmouth for a 7 p.m. game.

Abalanced scoring attack resulted in the triumph over East Boston. Junior guard Kristen Bowes was the leading scorer with 10 points, followed by senior Kelly Fernandez with nine and junior small forward Lauren Liuzzo with eight. North's starters, including senior forward and co-captain Laurie Flynn (six points) saw limited action.

Last Tuesday, North Quincy traveled to Barnstable and came away with a convincing 65-48 league victory. The win was particularly special because North's girls had not defeated Barnstable in five years.

"This was an unbelievably great win, especially against a team ranked 11th in the Boston Globe at the time," said North head coach Ken Panaro. "We got good balance offensively, which has been the story all season. We haven't had to rely on one girl to carry the entire load; we have a lot of options to go to and score some points."

Flynn led the way with 18 points, including eight free throws down the stretch to seal the win. Panaro also commended the efforts of senior guard and co-captain Kerry Skehan (15 points), senior forward and co-captain Kristen Keohane (10 points) and sophomore guard Jill Nicholson (nine points).

With the game tied 30-30 at the half, North began to trap defensively, create turnovers and force its opponent to foul. Panaro pointed to a three-point play by junior center Deirdre Jacobs as the start of North's run.

"It was like you write it up on the board," said Panaro, whose team outscored Barnstable, 35-18, in the second half. "We wore them down, then pulled away, just like we hoped we would."

Struggling Presidents Drop Fourth In A Row

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The reason why the Quincy High School boys' basketball team has lost four straight games is quite simple, said head coach John Franceschini.

"We're just not putting the ball in the hoop," he said. "Other than that, we're doing everything else pretty well. It seems like the whole team has been struggling with their shooting. The kids are working hard, and we've played good enough defense, but we're not getting anything down the other end."

The Presidents (1-4) will seek to break out of their shooting slump Saturday at 12:30 p.m. when Old Colony League foe Dennis-Yarmouth comes to town. Next Tuesday at 7 p.m., Quincy visits Silver Lake in a tough OCL matchup.

At the Marshfield Cranberry Classic over the weekend, the Presidents (1-4) dropped their first-round contest and the consolation game.

Sunday, Quincy fell to Plymouth South, 64-50, in the consolation. The Presidents connected on just six of 17 free throws and shot 28 percent from the field.

"It's frustrating, because we're getting good shots, but they're just not falling," said Franceschini. "We're all disappointed at the way the season has gone so far, but we're trying to keep a positive outlook and just work our way through this."

In the first round on Saturday, the Presidents lost to Rockland, 87-70. In the loss, Quincy connected on 14 of 32 free throws and shot 27 percent from the field.

"One of the problems poor shooting causes is falling behind early and being forced to play catch up," said Franceschini. "We've been getting down 12 or 14 points early, which puts more pressure on the kids to score and that's not something we want to see. This has been our Achilles' heel and hopefully we'll overcome it soon."

Last Tuesday, the Presidents hosted Plymouth South and came out on the losing end of a 54-45 score.

Shooting Woes Plague Quincy In Two Losses

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Coming off its first victory over the season, the Quincy High School girls' basketball team ran into shooting problems and lost both games of the Marshfield Cranberry Classic over the weekend.

The Presidents (1-4) are back in action Saturday at 12:30 p.m. when they visit Old Colony League opponent Dennis-Yarmouth. Next Tuesday at 7 p.m., OCL foe Silver Lake, led by standout guard Marche Strickland, come to town to face Quincy.

This past Sunday, Quincy lost to Milton, 61-39, in the consolation game. In the first round on Saturday, Quincy was defeated by Abington, 46-28.

"Milton and Abington are good teams, but when you shoot 30 percent from the field like we've been doing, you're not going to beat anybody," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble. "We're taking good shots but they're just not falling."

Quincy's Becky Mackey, a senior guard, was selected to the all-tournament team, an honor Noble felt she certainly deserved.

"Her tremendous hustle and defensive efforts are really appreciated by the coaching staff," he said, "and I'm glad she was recognized for being one of the best players in the tournament."

Another Quincy player who had a good tournament was senior center Erin Barry, who led the team in scoring with 16 points against Milton and eight points against Abington.

"Erin's been our most consistent scorer," said Noble. "We just need some others to help out. We have 13 players, all of whom play and contribute strong efforts every game. We just have to keep plugging away and maintain a good attitude. They're doing all they can, and I hope it pays off for them."

The Presidents picked up their first victory last Tuesday, upending OCL host Plymouth South, 55-23. Leading the way for Quincy was sophomore forward Colleen Nichol, who scored 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

"We played very well defensively, pressed successfully and got some easy layups off turnovers," said Noble. "That was a nice all-around effort from all our players. They've been doing that all season and it was nice to see it result in a victory."

Two Soccer Skills Programs Offered Mondays, Thursdays

The Quincy Recreation Department is offering two soccer skills programs for girls as part of its expanded after school and evening activities utilizing neighborhood school gyms during non-school hours.

Each program will feature activities and instruction designed to improve the fundamental soccer skills of each youngster. Participants will also take part in mini-games and contests. The program is offered free to Quincy residents only.

The program is offered on two separate days and for two separate age groups. Both will be at the Broad Meadows Middle School gym.

On Mondays beginning this past Monday, the program is for girls in Grades 5-7. Two sessions, one from 5:45 to 7 p.m. and one from 7 to 8:30 p.m., will offer the same instructional material. Participants may register for only one session. On Thursdays beginning today, the program is for girls in Grades 8-11. There is one session from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Registration for the Monday program was held this past Monday, while registration for the Thursday program will be held today.

For more information, call the Recreation Department at 376-1394.

NQ Blanks Silver Lake, 2-0

Carthas, Raiders Earn 'Unbelievable' Victory

HOCKEY

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Searching for an identity, the young North Quincy High School hockey team may have found it with a 2-0 Old Colony League victory over highly-regarded Silver Lake Saturday night.

"It was unbelievable," said North Quincy head coach Bob Doyle. "I was pleased with the effort the kids gave the entire game. This was a solid victory over a team picked to finish near the top of the league. Hopefully, this will build some momentum and give us the boost we needed."

The Red Raiders, who improved to 3-2 overall and 2-2 in the OCL with the home triumph, hosted New Bedford Monday and visit Taunton Saturday at 8 p.m. Next Wednesday at 6 p.m., they host Dennis-Yarmouth.

In the victory over Silver Lake, the Red Raiders received an outstanding performance from junior goaltender Chris Carthas, who made 26 saves en route to his first shutout.

"Chris was just superb in net," said Doyle. "He stopped the shots, pounced on rebounds and cleared the puck to the corner, keeping it away from his crease. This was a pressure-type game and he rose to the occasion."

The Red Raiders got on the board late in the first period when junior left wing Chad Fitzpatrick banged home a rebound for a 1-0 lead. North senior Jeff Glynn intercepted a clearing pass and fired a shot on the goaltender, who saved the attempt but left the puck out for Fitzpatrick to poke into the net.

North held onto the one-goal lead through the second period, then added an important insurance goal in the third. Junior right wing Mike Sullivan scored at the 10:13 mark, assisted by junior center Paul Markarian and Fitzpatrick.

Last Wednesday, the Red Raiders traveled to Durfee and came away with a 7-4 victory. After Durfee took the early lead midway through the first period, Markarian (hat trick, assist) knotted it at 1-1 with an assist from Sullivan.

North controlled the second period, outscoring Durfee, 3-1. Netting goals for the Red Raiders were Fitzpatrick (assisted by Markarian), senior center and co-captain Mike Powers (assisted by senior left wing and captain John Barron) and Markarian (assisted by sophomore defenseman Ross O'Driscoll).

In the third, the visitors again outscored the home squad, this time by a 3-2 margin. Fitzpatrick netted his second goal, assisted by O'Driscoll. Two minutes later, Markarian completed his hat trick with an unassisted tally. Junior left wing Ryan Barrett closed out the scoring with a late goal assisted by senior center Mike Fitzpatrick.

Last Monday at Barnstable, North jumped out to a 2-0 lead only to relinquish it and eventually lost, 5-3. NQ goal scorers were Markarian, Powers and Chad Fitzpatrick. Markarian, Powers and Sullivan each added an assist.

Doherty & White, First Choice, Ayers, Cashman Among Winners

MITE HOUSE

Craig Calley and Mike Maxey each notched a hat trick and an assist to spark Doherty & White over Lydon-Russell, 9-2, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League action.

For the winners, Dana Lopes pitched in with a goal and four assists, Joe Reggiannini netted two goals, and Dan Gaughan, Domenic Noskovic and Trevor Richardson each dished out an assist. For L-R, Stephen McDonagh picked up a goal and an assist, Jonathan Cahill scored a goal and Conor Roche had an assist.

Mike Marshall's hat trick and assist paced Doran & Horrigan to a 7-1 triumph over Barry's Deli.

Other standouts for D&H were Kevin Bossart (two goals, two assists), Tom Keefe and John Kurpeski (one goal, one assist apiece), Tom Henry (two assists) and Brandon Gilmore (assist). Matt Clifford notched the Deli's goal, assisted by Sean Dunn.

Charlie McGee netted a hat trick for Bruce Ayers Club in a 7-3 victory over Quincy Sheet Metal.

Also getting on the scoreboard for Ayers were Derek Murphy (goal, assist), Matt Grady and James Corbett (one goal each), Jim Dunn and Pat Totten (two assists apiece), and Kevin Tyron and Brian Sullivan (one assist each). For QSM, John McInnis netted two goals, Lambros Papalambros added a goal, Josh McKeon dished out two assists and Frank Sorrento, Michael Leone and Amanda Maggio each collected an assist.

Ted Walsh's goal and assist helped First Choice Home Care top Kiley Real Estate, 3-1.

Quincy Continues Hot Start With Wins Over Durfee, B-R

Unbeaten through its first five games, the Quincy High School hockey team battled Old Colony League host Plymouth South Monday, then returns to action Saturday at 7:45 p.m. against visiting OCL foe Falmouth.

Next Wednesday, the Presidents (4-0-1) hit the road to take on league foe Barnstable, with the opening face off slated for 8 p.m.

Over the weekend, Quincy picked up its fourth by defeating host Durfee. Earlier in the week, Quincy topped visiting Bridgewater-Raynham, 3-1, in a key OCL matchup.

Leading the Presidents offensively was Scott Mattson, who netted two goals in the second period. Chris Lumaghini scored Quincy's first goal for a 1-0 lead before the Trojans' Greg Lusky knotted the game at 1-1 with a second period tally.

Quincy goaltender Chris Burns preserved the victory by stopping 15 Trojan shots.

Maggio, Pee Wee A's Blank Dedham, 8-0

YOUTH HOCKEY

Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee A's goaltender Bruce Maggio earned the shutout as Quincy blanked Dedham, 8-0, in its first state playdown game of the year.

The R&B line again had Quincy's opposition singing the blues by netting five goals. Among them, Ryan Donahue and Billy McKeon each had two goals, and Brian Lewis chipped in with one goal. Other goal scorers were Josh Giordani, Rob Mooney and Matt Grazioso.

Ryan Conley, Sean Moriarty, Steve Kelley, Brendan Conley, Miah Hasson and McKeon all registered assists in this complete team victory. Brian O'Hanley, Mike McGonagle, John Chevalier, Kelley and Hasson provided outstanding defensive support to preserve Maggio's shutout.

Coffee Break Cafe, Morrissey, Bernie's Pick Up Victories

PEE WEE HOUSE

Tim Duggan (two goals, two assists) led a balanced scoring attack for Coffee Break Cafe, which defeated Quincy Black, 7-4, in recent Quncy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League action.

Other offensive standouts for CBC were Robert Mooney (two goals, assist), Ryan Feldhoff (goal, assist), John Chevalier and Dan Coughlin (one goal apiece), and Tim Mullen (assist). For Black, Mike McGonagle scored two goals, Lee Sheehan and Dan Donovan each netted a goal and Jeff Butts, Bruce Maggio, Bob Donovan and Chris Sheehan each dished out an assist.

In Mike Morrissey's 11-7 triumph over Colonial Federal Savings, Josh Giordani led the way with a hat trick and two assists.

Also getting on the board for the winners were Andrew Ross and Steve McGrath (two goals, one assist each), Mike Delahoyde (goal, two assists) and Matt Peters and Chris Haldoupis (one assist apiece). For Colonial, Bill McKeon notched a hat trick and an assist, Tom Walsh also collected a hat trick and Joe Norris picked up a goal and three assists.

Brian O'Hanley's hat trick and two assists lifted Bernie's General Store to an 8-3 victory over Skinner's Winners.

Contributing to Bernie's win were Joe McManus (two goals), Daniel Clark (goal, two assists), Patrick Kelley and Billy Barter (one goal each), Casey Winter (two assists), Bryan Cooper and Robert Richards (one assist apiece). For Skinner's, Matt Grazioso notched two goals, Ryan Tobin scored a goal and Dan Sullivan and Brendan Conley each dished out an assist.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

One of the gods in Roman mythology was Janus. He was pictured with two faces, one looking ahead, the other backwards. It is certainly appropriate for January, the first month of the year, to be derived from the name of Janus.

January first is an ideal time to look back, but it is far more important to look ahead. Worry, regret, disappointment and other negative thoughts of the past can and should be replaced with positive thoughts of hope, faith, trust and confidence as we look ahead. The New Year represents opportunity. The New Year offers challenge. The New Year offers accomplishment. But accomplishment requires a start, a beginning. And the beginning is in the mind. No other place. Thinking about doing something is one thing. Doing it is another thing. We can only make the most of it if we show less concern for what lies behind us and intelligently motivate our thinking and action to what lies ahead.

With a New Year facing all of us we sincerely say "Happy New Year to you - We especially mean - "Happy Anticipation, and above all, "Happy Accomplishment" to you . . .

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is the week to enjoy the comforts of domesticity. You're busy with projects around the house, but this is a source of enjoyment. Guard against impatience with a loved one over the weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seek out the company of friends you've had for a long time. You reach a major decision involving either education or travel later in the week. Be sure to meet a loved one halfway this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You could take in a special entertainment early in the week. Later, pleasure comes through romance and activities with family. Bonds grow stronger among friends and family over the weekend.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Serious thinking takes place concerning your career concerns this week. you're not in the mood to tend to routine domestic chores. Relax instead and take it easy once the week ends.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're in the mood to visit a favorite haunt, so don't fight it. However, be careful that you're not overly extravagant this week. Togetherness is accented this weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A bargain or sale is happily what it appears to be this week, so take advantage of it. Partners reach agreements about investments or mutual financial matters.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Spend some time this week focusing on where you'd like to take your career in the next few months. However, don't be so work-oriented that you neglect your social needs. Friends help by dragging you out to a party this weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're here, there and everywhere as you gad about making those holiday rounds. Those you can't visit are reached by phone. Creative interests rule the weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's a week of paradoxes for you. While you want to get out and shop, your budget doesn't have room for those extras. You've spend too much on holiday gifts. Stick close to home this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You are self-confident and have a clear vision of what you want to accomplish in the future. You are of a serious frame of mind and don't have much tolerance for holiday frivolity.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) There are a lot of loose ends for you to attend to. For the most part, you must get the past out of the way. You're dwelling too much on what can't be changed.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You don't want to be alone and wish to spend time with friends. Visiting others sparks up your holiday mood. A new perspective is gained on many of your concerns this weekend.

Fr. Bill's Place Christmas Dinner Enjoyed By 300

Almost 300 persons enjoyed Christmas Dinner at Christ Church on Christmas Day sponsored for the ninth year by Fr. Bill's Place.

Father William McCarthy said the crowd was "bigger than Thanksgiving Day". He added that it was "great to see all those people who had no place to go at Christmas to partake of our dinner."

He lauded the volunteers for their involvement.

According to Jim Carras, purchasing manager at Fr. Bill's many volunteers, men, women and some children worked from 9 a.m. on Christmas morning until about 3 p.m. in the afternoon serving from 250 to 300 dinners. He said members of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans played an important part in the event, which included Commanders Irving Isaacson, Harvey Solomon and Herb Fontaine.

After dinner was served, there was an additional 138 dinners for shut-ins all delivered a short time later.

Among the volunteers were members of Temple Shalom in Milton, and volunteers from Sharon, Canton, Marshfield and Plymouth. Carras said that families in Milton, Hingham, and Quincy volunteered with many families bringing in cooked turkeys.

Carras said about 40 turkeys with all the fixings were served. He credited Kevin Barry who had the job of preparing all of the potatoes and the vegetables to accompany the turkey.

Also volunteering were Curry Hardware who supplied trucks, parked at the Common Market on Willard Street, Radio Station WJDA for their advertising contribution, O'Brien's Bakery in Wollaston and Shaw's on Quincy Avenue.

Gifts to the guests were distributed by Mary Lou O'Connell.

Supervising the volunteers was Sandy Johnson, a member of the Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy Center.

Before dinner, Fr. McCarthy gave a blessing to the large group.

UTILITY POLE on Quincy Avenue was accidentally knocked over by a private plow during last week's surprise snowstorm. Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano said the street was closed for at least three hours as a result. John Mezzetti, owner of O'Lindy's Bowling and Billiards, said he lost an estimated $2,400 in business that day because his power was out until repairs were made and he was forced to cancel all regular bowling and bowling leagues.

Nine Businesses Pass Liquor Sting

By MICHAEL WHALEN

All nine Quincy establishments put to the test last week by a sting authorized by the Quincy License Board passed with flying colors.

None of the nine businesses--which included three package stores and six restaurants and/or pubs--sold alcoholic beverages to three women, ages 18 and 19, that were used in the sting, which took place Dec. 22.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said board members were "pleasantly surprised" by the results.

"It's done a couple of times a year, and we thought now would be a good time since kids are home from college," he said. "Not one place fell for it, which makes us feel very good."

Shea said all of the establishments refused to sell alcohol to the minors when they failed to show propert identification.

The three package stores that passed the test were Presidential Liquors, Quincy Discount Liquors, and L and G Liquors. The other businesses were Alumni Cafe, Brigadoon's Cagney's, Owen O'Leary's, Imperial Terrance and Quincy Adams Restaurant.

Shea said businesses are chosen randomly for the sting. He noted that two years ago, all 19 of Quincy's package stores and all 91 "pouring establishments" (restaurants, bars and clubs) were tested by a citywide sting during which seven businesses were caught selling alcohol to minors.

He added that a business that sells to a minor is closed for two days for a first offense. Subsequent offenses bring stiffer penalties, he said.

Nursing Patient Death Investigated

The state is investigating the death of a Quincy senior citizen who authorities say was punched in the head by a younger woman living in the same nursing home.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health, which regulates nursing homes, will determine whether nursing home officials took measures to prevent such an accident, according to a spokesman. He added that such an investigation is routinely done after an allegation of patient abuse.

Wanda Perryman, 35, was scheduled to be arraigned Monday in a secured unit at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton, where she has been since Dec. 21. She is charged with manslaughter and assault and battery on a person over 65.

A Quincy District Court spokesman could not confirm at press time if the arraignment had taken place.

"We haven't received any papers on it yet," he said.

Police said Mary Keenan, 89, died three days after she was struck by Perryman, who was being treated at Robbin House Nursing and Rehabilitation Center for dementia due to a struck-induced stroke.

A nurse who witnessed the Dec. 21 incident said the younger woman punched Keenan in the back of the head. Keenan said fell backward, hitting her head on the floor.

Keenan was taken by ambulance to Quincy Hospital and then moved to Boston Medical Center, where she died.

Another health department spokesman said investigators will soon pay an unannounced visit to Robbin House. Meanwhile, staff members of the nursing home said they will meet this week to review the incident and determine if changes are needed.

Public Hearing Jan. 7 On Shipyard Plan

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Jan. 7 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., for the purpose of considering an application for a special permit for site plan review filed by Massachusetts Heavy Industries.

The applicant proposes to construct shipbuilding additions to the existing steel plate fabrication and welding shop at the Fore River shipyard. Addition 1 is at the south side of existing Building 3 and Addition 2 is to the north side of existing Building 3.

A copy of the plan may be examined at the Department of Planning and Community Development at City Hall during regular working hours, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Crime Watch

Don't Drink And Drive

- Alcohol is the Number One drug of choice of teenagers.
- Alcohol-related car crashes are the number one killer of teens in the United States.
- Alcohol is the number one drug problem in America.

HOW DOES ALCOHOL AFFECT YOU?

- You see double, speed slurs, you lose your sense of distance.
- Alcohol loosen inhibitions; you make bad judgements that can result in car crashes, or other types of accidents.
- A significant proportion of violent crimes and vandalism among and by youth involve alcohol.
- Using alcohol can cost you your drivers license, or even send you to jail.

SOME FACTS ABOUT ALCOHOL

- Drinking coffee, taking a cold shower, or breathing fresh air will NOT sober you up. All it does is make a wide awake drunk. The only thing that sobers you up is time.
- One beer, one shot of whiskey, and one glass of wine all have the same amount of alcohol. Don't fall for the notion that beer and wine are less intoxicating than hard liquors.
- Only 3 to 5 percent of alcoholics are what we think of as bums. Most alcoholics are just like the people you know. Anyone can become an alcoholic - young, old, rich, poor, married, single, employed, or our of work.
- Alcohol ages and damages the brain.

If you are celebrating the upcoming Holidays, Don't Drink and Drive.

Use a designated driver, call a cab or call for a ride.

One bad decision this Holiday season could cost you, your family or someone else's family a life-time of pain and suffering.

Quit smoking.

Give Yourself the Gift of Health

The Greatest Discovery of Any Generation is that Human Beings can Alter Their Lives by Altering Their Attitudes of Mind.
Attributed to Albert Schweizter

Spinal health is as important for your overall health as is proper nutrition, rest, exercise and a positive mental attitude. Spinal health can be affected by vertebral subluxations which can prevent you from functioning at your best. By adjusting the spine, Chiropractors remove these subluxations which allows you to be more balanced with less stress on your nervous system and body structure.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 97P3052E1
Estate of MARGARET M. KILROY late of QUINCY
In the County of NORFOLK
NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that CHARLES J. KICKHAM, Jr., of BROOKLINE in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on March 18, 1998.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16A.

WITNESS, David H. Kopelman, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this sixteenth day of December, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven.
